COMMENDED HYDRO COM. UPON REPORT

Council Hears Statement From Mayor on Differences

ARGUE ON MOTION

Seven to Six Vote Carries Griffin-Wotten Motion

City Council last night after an argument passed a motion to receive a resolution of which notice was given at the meeting, commending the Hydro on the work of the Provincial Ontario by four liberal directors in the commission membership. Mayor Reid was given a chance to speak which was followed thereby by the discussion on the Hydro question. Asked for Facts

Mayor Reid rose and asked if the privilege of replying to what had been stated about one month ago at the meeting of the city council by members of the Hydro Commission, when they had presented a report which they said was accepted as satisfactory to the city. "I accept it but I believe it did not go far enough" he remarked.

"I want to make it clear that there no personal feeling against the Hydro management as far as I am aware of the Hydro system. I shall have no personal case to argue."

The Hydro system of Belleville has undoubtedly been a "white elephant" to the Power Commission of Ontario except as to what it costs to buy it. Officials of the Hydro are just as much puzzled as other citizens of the province. It appears to have got into the middle of people and they don't seem to want to believe it that the Hydro officials and other citizens of Belleville city but the mayor held that they did come under the government of the city.

From Ryan's Report

He stated he had received figures from Mr. Scott and the books of Hydro system and that they were wrong it was the facts of the Hydro officials. Mr. Ryan's report is fair.

"It is high time the Hydro situation was cleared up in Belleville and I am sorry that it has not been done before now. The matter has been trying for fifteen months to get the issue submitted to the people of the Hydro. The press was submitted to the people but the meeting was refused. In last three years the mayor has been in the dark and the ratepayers have been kept in the dark and ignorant of the Hydro affairs and system," he said at the meeting. Why should not the people be allowed to have a say in this matter? Why should not the people have a say at this time?

Mayor Reid stated that the Hydro Commissioners outside of Belleville had set up that they could not give out a statement to the press and that the tenth power bill was received but they could vote months ago to increase salaries of the Hydro staff. Hydro Staff Salaries

Mayor made the surplus of over $60,000 in the year's operation. The mayor understood on good authority that Mr. Ryan had given a civilian and not an electrical engineer though he had not seen his statement in that regard. Before This Bill

The mayor said that he opposed a motion to increase the salaries of clubs as a cost of about $1,700.00 or the office would have to go before. He had said, that it would be better to get the bill before the government. The machine was bought help was also needed and it is all connected up the Hydro office. Later an addressing machine was purchased but this was done before the sixteenth power bill was brought in.

Mayor Reid said that Mr. Scott was paid $600.00 per month by the Hydro Commission of Belleville and that when the system was taken over by Belleville it was not going to be worth $373.00 in the minds of the other commissioners for which he got the $23.00 per month increase.

Hydro Commissioners

The mayor also dealt with the case of a citizen who went to $70.00 on a question of the Hydro shop and she accordingly names obtain the commissioners powers has said he is paid, "I contended before the commissioners that that is wrong." The mayor thought this action would not stand law.

Dealing with the statement presented by the city to the government the mayor pointed out that Brockville city had taken over local Hydro reports in their annual statement, Kingston Hydro report took thirty pages, while that of Belleville Hydro formed up with a little more.

"My did the Commission go to Brockville for a seal report?" the mayor inquired. Did somebody write them? What did it cost to Toronto to secure that report? Our city solicitor is here to give the water and utilities. I tell you it is a slur on your city solicitor not to have the report of an alderman who would pass over the city solicitor I leave that with you."

The mayor then went into the question of the method of the sale of the Rice Commission be

Dr. Barney is shown with Pilot Joe Crosson, who flew him to the Eskimo village, landing his plane with the precious serum before his take-off from Fairbanks.

RESCUE SQUADS WORKING FEVERISHLY TO SAVE LIVES OF WOUNDED IN MANAGUA

Five Adds to Danger in Capital City—Toll Between Five Hundred and a Thousand—Not One Building Intact in Beautiful Central American City—No Water Available—Eleven Shocks—Legations in Ruins

Managua, Nicaragua, Apr. 1 (By Richard Frizell, Copyright, by Associated Press)—This capital city which was being burned over today by a fire which had its origin in one quarter veered with a fickle wind and spread to other sections. The city will have to be entirely rebuilt.

With the marines and the national guard troops rebuilding martial law, all available men were mobilized to fight the flames and take the dead and injured from ruined residence sections.

It was impossible to place an accurate estimate on the number of dead but between five hundred and one thousand persons are believed to have been killed and two thousand wounded in the shocks, eleven of which occurred in a short space of two minutes before noon yesterday.

Mains Broken

So far as is known there is not a habitable building left in the once beautiful Central American city, the second city in the Republic. Both the British and United States legations are in ruins.

There is no water available for drinking purposes or fighting the flames, the tremors having broken the water mains and flooded the streets while landslide covered the pumping stations.

Prisoners Enlembed .

The greatest fear of life occurred in the National Penitentiary where 1,200 prisoners are confined. Fifty prisoners were killed when the walls and ceiling tumbled on them. Many prisoners were killed in the public market place.

Committees will be organized to feed the poor and suffering. Orders have been issued to shoot looters on sight. Many bodies are buried beneath the crumbled stone walls and

MINER SANCTUARY ALIVE WITH GEESE

North-Bound Flocks Reach Kingsville—Tourists Numerous

Kingsville, April 1.—Kingsville is the Mecca at present of hundreds of tourists from all parts of Canada and the United States as the bird season here is at its height.

Wild Canada geese numbering well into the thousands are finding food and protection on the marsh at Jack Miner's sanctuary. Each evening these birds fly in flocks, a distance of two miles, where they spend the night with several thousand swans and ducks. These swans and ducks which in 1916 were practically all killed off, are now along the lake shore just west of Kingsville.

In order that the public may view this sight at close range, the birds have been trained to feed on the shore. The birds will continue their stay for at least two weeks longer.

ONTARIO SCHOOL FOR DEAF TEACHERS HOSTS AT DINNER

Dr. C. W. Bishop of Albert College Chief Speaker

The Association of Teachers and Instructors of the Ontario Institution for the Deaf held a very enjoyable dinner party at the school on Tuesday evening, March 31st. Invited guests included Dr. and Mrs. Bishop, Dr. and Mrs. McMullen and the other members of the staff of Albert College, Mr. and Mrs. Macklaurin and Mr. and Mrs. Lamb, members of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School staff, Dr. Peterdy and Mr. Cuyler Gerrard of Toronto, Mr. and Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Clarke, Mr. Hogg and three members of the Ontario College staff were present to help represent due to previous engagements or duties necessitating their presence.

The room in which the banquet was held was beautifully decorated with flowers, rugs and furniture were removed, for a lovely setting for an informal social gathering. A delightful meal was prepared and served by Mrs. MacGuggage and her staff. During the progress of the dinner, Miss Deamar, president of the Association, presided and congratulations were sung and everyone joined heart and voice to make the occasion. After dinner was served, two piano duets were played by Miss Deamar and Miss Gee, the following which seven members of the O.S.D. staff rendered a humorous duet, the composition of Mr. Gordon. The meeting was then placed in charge of Miss Deamar, by, who introduced the speaker of the evening.

In introducing the speaker of the evening, Mr. Doherty spoke briefly re-organization leading up to the association of Teachers of the Instructors of the Ontario School for the Deaf. The association was formed in 1920, and, whereas if necessary, to discuss various problems of a general and particular nature connected with the instruction of the deaf, and problems to be met in the administration of the school. There is a tendency to oblige from one school to another, often accompanied by unfortunate results. At times we would like to visit from one school work and to this end outside speakers are invited to address the staff at teachers' meetings such as this one.

The first speaker called on to be introduced for by a committee whom he consulted in the choice of a suitable speaker for the evening. Dr. Bishop of Albert College, was one who had known for over a year, but whose reputation has been known to him for many years.

Dr. Bishop's address was an intellectual treat. It was one seldom heard. It caused his audience "to think." His speech was one of the best and the pleasant experience it was the writer in this school has had the opportunity of hearing. The speaker selected it as "a lovely party to the deaf" and proceeded to apply the principals to bring on academic discussion into a working knowledge. He trusted that his subject New trends in education and the application of ideas realizing that his hearers were specialists in methods by which the presenting of ideas and discussion of technical methods, but would speak rather from the standpoint of those who are the educators of normal children.

The teaching profession has its ups and downs. Sometimes the ups are confused. Other times come when teaching seems to be a monotonous ordains that schools shall have vacations—a time to restore the energy to the teacher. The effort to keep ideals is a hard task Vacation gives a much needed time in which ideals is periodic reading.

The trend in education concerns itself with the capture of means and methods which adapt themselves with the will. As time goes on, more and more will this will means more than intellectual. Psychology and psychology an intensive, experimental study of the basis of the will.

On the part of the student there can be only three attitudes, that of passivity, opposition (related to coercion), or that of co-operation. Much of our formal education finds this attempting to motivate the will by the use of the will. Some of the educational process to be successful there must be a bond of sympathy with strands of feeing. In an attitude of passivity there is an strong group of co-operation bonds. When the attitude of opposition exists there is a negative attitude to a repelling or repulsive attitude.

The great problem in the process of education is to experience benefit the primary interested attitude of the student so that what is taught the student can be readily related to investigation. Some results are claimed. It is the duty of teacher in the process of education does on the student to secure school because the process is accompanied by interest and initiative.

Dr. Bishop recalled several incidents in his own experience bearing on the ideas advanced by the modern psychology. He recalled a visit to the class of Professor Kilpatrick of Teachers' College, Columbia University. Professor Kilpatrick goes to school, whereupon his education class discusses the problem of the previous tendencies in formal education. Professor Kilpatrick suggests a plan. As far the child's interests are child's will was changed at a certain period.

There exists a challenge to the modern school. Some of this challenge is being met by the progressive school. It must be remembered that it is a great job to get a practical application of the theory. Great fundamental principles of education have to grow, a process long and evolutionary.

The movement is being anticipated particularly by the establishment of experimental efforts along these lines presented at the recent New Education Conference in Denmark.

Dr. Bishop concluded with some very perspicuous observations as to the kinds of practical application of the theory.

Mr. Campbell of the School, in tendering the vote of thanks to Dr. Bishop, expressed the enjoyment it was to us to have the head of a neighboring educational institution in our midst. He added a humorous touch by a talk in the original Scotch.

Mr. Gerrard in seconding the motion recalled that "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh" and that reason Dr. Bishop always does well. Both Mr. Campbell and Gerrard expressed the thought of the O.S.D. staff that they hoped Dr. Bishop would visit them frequently.

After the meeting several of the staff who were interested in Dr. Bishop's address were given an opportunity to see and hear a new instrument which will be used in teaching certain phases of the deaf pupils' education. Those pupils who have some hearing.

CITY HALL AT OTTAWA SWEPT BY BAD FIRE

Pinned Beneath Debris Three Injured Firemen Were Released

Ottawa, Apr. 1.—Trapped for almost two hours in the ruins following a city hall, three firemen were released at 1:30 o'clock this morning by their fellow firemen after heroic efforts.

Barely conscious, they were rushed to hospitals, but it was learned that their injuries will be determined. Pre-liminary reports say that they have been pulled from the burning structure by the use of ropes and pulleys.

None of the three was in a critical condition.

The seven were plunged from the fourth floor of the building when the basement floor gave way beneath them. Flames burst through into the building seeking the men. He searched and found them. Fire Chief Alfred Gilmour pronounced the last rites of the Roman Catholic church.

Damage of $200,000 is estimated to-night. Shortly after 9 o'clock yesterday morning, at 9:15, the blaze was discovered in the engineering department of the city hall. Workmen of the top floor it swept across the stone structure, and the floor gave way down into the second and first storey below.

The city hall stands in Confederation park on the site of the old parliament buildings included in plans for the beautification of the city. Council has decided that there is not to proceed with the work for some time. Whether or not the entire building will be built or the present structure repaired has not been decided. Temporary offices have been secured so that the city's business will not be interrupted.

DECREASES IN CUSTOMS SEEN

Ehrinkages in customs duties at this port were reported today after the books for the month, quarter and year were closed last evening.

There was a drop in the quarterly revenue this year from the total of the same period of last year. The total for the quarter ending March 31st, 1934 was $954,182.60 and for 1933 it was $217,874.50, a decrease of $176,308.09.

The yearly revenue for the year ending March 31st, 1934 was $3,733,194.53 for the year ending March 31st, 1933.

ROYAL SUITE IS RANSACKED

Buenos Aires, April 1.—The Prince of Wales' suite said today that the bedroom of Prince George at the Palermo legacy was ransacked on the night of March 14 and that personal jewelry of considerable value was stolen.

Since Prince George and the Prince of Wales left for Brazil, the newspaper said, police have recovered the stolen property identified the thief. As yet unnamed, he was said to be a prominent young Argentine who had been so friendly with the royal visitors that his presence at the Embassy was not considered suspicious.

The Prince of Wales and his brother were attending the British Empire Trade Exposition during the time of the purported robbery.

SHOTS FAILED TO HALT CAR AND OCCUPANTS ESCAPED IN EARLY MORNING CHASE

AT TERRIFIC SPEED

Robbed Gas Station in Brighton—Car was Stolen in Toronto

A fusilade of shots echoed through the quiet streets of the city at an early hour this morning as local police tried to capture three bandits who are stated to have robbed an Imperial station in Brighton early in the morning. The car in which the bandits were riding, travelling from the fence at St. Agnes Manor, smashing a fence at the corner in will subdivision, the men escaped under cover of darkness. When the car was examined it was found that it had done about half, barrel the old Ford V-8 and had a large gas and oil line tank but had failed to enter any of the stations in the city.

About two forty-five this morning Inspector Langford of the Provincial Police headquarters here received a call from Brighton and immediately notified all police officers in that village and those stationed at Trenton. Provincial Constable Hanson noticed a car approaching the village and immediately followed it into Belleville. Police stated today that Hanson had his revolver out and was riding was travelling at a speed exceeding seventy miles per hour.

At the top of Murney Hill, the officer drew up beside the car. This failed to have effect and the other car increased its terrific rate of speed. Another shot was fired which punctured the left rear tire of the car which pierced the gasoline tank letting the gas run out. The car then left the road at the corner of Bridge and Front street at sixty miles per hour and crashed into a tree on the corner of the street. Front street hill. Rear William street another shot was fired which punctured the gasoline tank letting the gas run out.

COMMENDED HYDRO COM.

given by the Hydro.

He said that the books showed that Mr. Scott was given membership in the Rotary and Chamber of Commerce and his three cars the commission twenty dollars each for fees for the year. There were also the luncheons at Hotel Quinte of the club which if attended every Monday of the year would cost $26.52. The manager he claimed was paid $23.35 for the use at the rate of eight cents per mile, when it was in use for the Hydro's business.

The total of $1,572.86 was paid out for the year for superannuation and insurance of the Hydro employees. The commission paid $228 of this in the case of Mr. Scott's insurance and superannuation and for the other employees accordingly.

When the Hydro salaries were under discussion and the increases made merchants were considering cuts rather than increases. There is talk on all sides of reductions in salaries of teachers and of clerks and workmen and yet the Hydro salaries were raised.

The manager of the waterworks received receives $1,800 per annum and his department turns out a surplus of $36,000 per year. "What are you getting to shoot it," was you going to be square with the waterworks Andrew Mason, the other city officials."

Ald. Woodley—"I asked the manager of the waterworks department if he were prepared to carry on as at present and he said he was. The manager then asked how could it be expected in the future to show at maximum of interest and efficiency when the Hydro paid so much lower than that of the Hydro manager. Are you going to raise fish of one and flesh of another? It is ridiculous and unfair. Can you get loyal support? You have to pay living accounts, the same as I do."

The mayor said he could not comment on administration which related salaries. If teachers were reduced to take reductions (and they are doing it in many cases to help the young) why should salaries of others be increased. The mayor and officials on the same basis and the Hydro and other departments of the city.

The committee arose at this point. A little later the cohtention recommendations went in a notice at last meeting was brought up. It was the summer season. The motion was moved by Ald. Griffin, seconded by Ald. Worden.

Fleet—That the Belleville Hydro Electric Commission and their manager be requested to file their quarterly report of last year's bus'-ess as outlined in the statement submitted to this council showing profits of $19,258.45, and we urge that they spare no effort in trying to secure a substantial reduction in rates for the power users of the city.

Second—That this council affirms its faith in the Belleville Hydro Electric Power Commission and their manager and desires to place on record that we do not question in any way the honesty, integrity, ability, care and business efficiency of the Commissioners and the manager in the administration of the Belleville Hydro Electric System.

Third—That a copy of this motion be sent to the Belleville Hydro Electric Commission.

Mayor Reid said—"I am opposing this on the grounds not of disloyalty but of administration."

Ald. Griffin—"I am taking myself a kind of mediator. I am not yet through. Fleet or side or other, I do not think there is any side to take. As I said, the duty of this council is concerned. It is a decision of the council that this was ever brought to the council. Seven members were present six weeks ago when this matter was introduced. The whole contention seems to be over salaries. This Hydro commission was elected by the city of Belleville the same as any other city commission and should be brought into this matter I cannot see. If I should say anything it would be to forget it and to go out and shake hands and forget. I cannot see how this reflects on any member of the commission. The motion I think is out of order."

Alderman Woodley said he wanted to see the trouble buried and he was sorry of the discussion over the Hydro differences.

Alderman Worden asked who was responsible for bringing the question into the council. Ald. Woodley replied that it had been brought up and he asked the members not to put the motion.

Ald. Kinnear spoke in the same vein. The council should not take part. The council as no right to commission any other body. To pass the resolution would be to censure. It was a matter of confidence in the mayor. The question might better be dropped.

Ald. Griffin said he moved the motion without prejudice and he could see no hour it was reflection on Mayor Reid's stand in the controversy. The differences were set aside the pale of the council. The Hydro was the same. He knew the details and be able to comment with more knowledge as the council on the Hydro report and for that reason the recommendations of the Hydro in the motion was timely. Whatever the mayor's previously was concerned only within the commission.

Ald. MacMillan regretted that the matter had been brought before the council. He favored withdrawal of the motion.

Ald. Armstrong said that the officials' salaries were set by the commission and the council had nothing to do with them. The only method was to let the question drop and let it be public he the judge next year.

Ald. Woodley besought the withdrawal of the motion and Ald. Wooten as seconder refused because he raised the question in the first of the council.

Ald. Looker said it was not the fault of the council members that the question was brought in. The withdrawal of the motion after the statements of the mayor might leave a reflection.

Withdrawal is the only way to peace.

Ald. Hill favored peaceful adjustment by withdrawal.

Ald. Wotten said that after the motion was dealt with he would be ready to move a vote of confidence in the mayor.

The vote was then taken and recorded on the motion of Ald. Griffin Yeas—Griffin, Wotten, Looker, Walker, Griffin Wotten—7.

Nay—Reid, Woodley, Kinnear, Armstrong, MacMillan and the mayor—5.

The motion carried.

The mayor said the motion had been concocted upstreet and Ald. Wotten said he had written it and had not had it given to him by anyone He did not like the use of the word concocted. "I am sawy with the idea that the manager or commissioners had anything to do with it."

Ald. Woodley—"It is a closed book."

Council adjourned.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARY LANE McCAW

Rawdon, Apr. 1. — There passed away on Monday morning, March 23, Mrs. John McCaw, one of the esteemed residents of Rawdon. The deceased had been ill for about two weeks at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Andrew Mason. Mrs. McCaw was a regular attendant of her church and was 82 years old. She was eighty eight years of age.

ACCOUNTANT OF LOCAL BRANCH IS FOUND DEAD

Elgran W. McClarty, accountant in the local Branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, was found in his room in the Y.M.C.A. building shortly before nine-thirty this morning, shot through the heart. Police state that when the housekeeper at the "Y" tried to get into the room she found it locked. When he failed to appear at the bank, George Glover, the bank messenger, tried to get in. William Tedman, janitor for the building, broke down the door and found McClarty in bed, dead.

Glover, and a teller in the bank Frank Amey, went into the room and found McClarty lying in bed in his pyjamas. Police were called and Coroner W. W. Boyce was summoned. Mr. Clarty had not been dead very long. It is stated. An inquest was ordered for four o'clock this afternoon. We do not think that a post-mortem examination is necessary," Mr. Boyce stated to the press this morning.

William Parker, the manager of the bank, had nothing to say to the press today. A staff of inspectors, in the city, auditing the bank's books, would make no comment.

So far as can be ascertained, McClarty was working in the bank last night, as it is the end of the month. He entered the Y.M.C.A. last night after the attendants had left and apparently went right to his room. No shot was heard, according to "Y" officials.

In a small note-book, left on his dresser stand, McClarty had scrawled what was a red pencil—"Good Bye." "Pay D. B. 1925." There was another notation in the book. He also left the combination of the safe and mentioned the fact that he owed three weeks board to Mrs. Kaldeck the "Y".

Elgran McClarty was one of the popular members of the younger social groups in Belleville. He was a member of the Roman Catholic Church and the Knights of Columbus. He was a member of a hockey team on the renowned Own Sound "Greys" and played for the Royal Bank hockey team in Toronto.

He leaves to mourn his loss his parents, both alive, in Owen Sound, and a brother, and two sisters in Detroit.

WEDDINGS

NESBITT—BIRBY

Toronto, April 1.—A quiet wedding was celebrated in Hamilton on Monday when Miss Marie Birby, formerly of the staff of the Toronto Normal School, was married to Mr. Sam Nesbitt of Brighton. After the ceremony a reception for a few intimate friends was held at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Beverley Ketchen. Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Nesbitt left for Saint John, en route for England.

Clean inside-well outside!

HE LOOKS IT and is one too!

THE happy, unconscious health of a child—the play-filled days, the long nights of restful sleep—these are the outward signs of inward health. You too can be "smooth" and look it—if you learn the safe and easy way to keep "clean inside."

Doctors pretty well agree that (barring germ diseases) most drowsiness, lack of pep and ambition, are due to failure to keep "clean inside."

In blaming the condition for much of our sickness, so they also agree that the Nujol type of treatment is the safest way to relieve it. Nujol can't possibly hurt you. It isn't a medicine at all. It has no drugs in it. It is odorless — tasteless — and children love it.

INSIST ON NUJOL . . . REFUSE SUBSTITUTES

OLD FUSES

By Lena Gary Clark

When Agnes Bates caught sight of Phoebe, she stopped under the mulberries in the churchyard, her old knees weakened as she had to lean against a tree for a moment.

It was the first time since their separation of five weeks and two days that she had seen Phoebe. And Phoebe had given her only a heartstabbing, staccato nod, the kind she always gave to the carpenter's wife, whom she had suspected of poisoning her maltese cat, and to old Mr. Goosley at the parsonage, who had once shortchanged her.

It had happened, too—the icy nod—before almost the entire congregation,—Agnes felt crushed, humiliated.

"To think", grieved the elder woman as she moved slowly down the broom-bordered walk, "that Phoebe could have nodded to me like that. Just as if we hadn't lived in the same house for twenty-five years and hadn't shared all the secrets of our hearts since the days we dressed our kittens in doll clothes!" Quick tears stung her eyes.

Once her green front door she sat down on the old sofa in the parlor and wept, forgetting even the little prayerbook on her lap. Tomorrow was Phoebe's birthday and it would be the first birthday they hadn't celebrated together since the year Phoebe was at Miss Randolph's School for Girls and she attended The Woman's College at home.

By the time two afternoon callers came she had succeeded in banishing all thought of Phoebe from her mind for the remainder of the day.

But next morning because it was the kind of day you like to tie your head up in a towel and sweep cobwebs down and be terribly kind to someone or something, like taking cookies to old Mrs. Jones or caressing "Blackberry," the cat, for fleas, she felt terribly lonely. Memories of all Phoebe's birthdays overwhelmed her; the red cake with the pink pink candles which Phoebe pretended to think a lot of foolishness but really adored, the gifts always wrapped in tissue paper and pink ribbon that always made Agnes blow her nose hard and say gruffly, "You shouldn't have done this, Aggie, I'm too old for such foolishness."

It was nothing but that terrible Blanton stubborn streak that kept Phoebe from coming back home, decided Agnes, as she pulled lavender-scented sheets from the linen closet drawers. With the corner of her white apron she wiped away a tear. Phoebe, she knew, for all her practical side, adored lavender scented sheets.

Everywhere Agnes turned she was reminded of her cousin. There was the Boston rocker as good as new so you would fall sick of it in no time; then too, the knobs in the old chest of drawers now covered as tight as wax. Phoebe had a way of fixing things. And there in the left-hand corner of the top drawer a cardboard box of old fuses. What a needle Phoebe had for mending! Less things. "Just leave them right there," she had always said, "they'll come in handy." Well this was a good day for throwing away less things!

Carrying the box downstairs, she told Mattie, the girl who came on Mondays to do house cleaning, to run over to Mrs. Warburton's and borrow her vacuum cleaner. Later she became terribly preoccupied. She even had to set the pieces for the laundry last times. Before Mattie returned armed with the cleaner, she had spread a generous cover on the floor.

Hastily she pinned newspaper over a fringed lamp shade by the window; she did so also with the window on the corner of her eye. The eye struggled with the machine for minutes. "Dear me, a grave stone!" she commented, staring at the intricate machine. "Hadn't I better see Mrs. Warburton?"

"Nonsense, no," replied Agnes quietly. "Oh, dear, what shall I do with the—that—man?" I don't know much about electricity .... I guess that would be best .... You'd better come in five minutes' All right. Thank you, Miss Phoebe."

When Mattie came back into the room, Agnes pretended to be dusting the broken china shepherd on the mantel.

"Miss Phoebe says she's comin' in five minutes to fix it," the girl announced triumphantly.

For a long moment Agnes could not speak; her hand trembled on the shepherd; she would drop the shepherd; she would drop the shepherd.

"That's a very good idea," she finally said very primly. "Meanwhile I'll get the vacuum cleaner and the fringe."

Agnes had abnormally dusted the windowsill when Phoebe, almost out of breath, came up the steps.

"Why good morning, Phoebe," she said, shaking hands. "I—I wasn't you come in?"

"I'm the vacuum cleaner," Mattie whispered to me.... You know I'm a little deaf."

"That last sentence was like music to the startled memory of the icy nod. Phoebe was smiling. Phoebe had brought no implements. The machine brought no implements. She smelled of a hot iron; she had pressed it and pulled off her gloves.

"Humph, that's funny," she said, looking at both hands as she unscrewed it. "You all seem to be blown. Heck, I'll bring my handle; I left it under the car. I thought I'd fix the hanging screw."

The few implements and the new fuse stood in a neat row. "Put that back," Phoebe ordered Mattie, who replaced the old fuse. "They only blow heavily some day."

Soon Mattie was nosing the burnished mahogany, the corners of the parlor and there was no smoke for the vacuum cleaner.

Phoebe, with elbows in her hand, was saying, "Oh, no, I'm not angry, I promised Annie Anne Douglas to help some tea towels but—you always could make good spice cookies, Aggie."

After the sixth cookie, Phoebe said, "What I've been racking my brain to find out is what you said I requested about that Sunday."

Agnes colored. She was so grateful to Phoebe for being direct. "I won't know, Phoebe, I can't remember either.

"This is good apple sauce. Where saps are hard to beat," announced Phoebe master-of-facility.

"You know, Phoebe" said Agnes, ignoring the apple sauce, "it's about time we did the spring cleaning, but it's kind of hard to do it all alone. Can't you—"

"Spring cleaning was never intended to be done alone.

It takes two women to do it successfully. Then, too, Aggie, you do need me to fix things for you, like the washers on the spigots—seems to me I hear water dripping now—putting in fuses and—"

"Fixing the tucker on my machine," added Aggie, her eyes shining. "You never were much good at fixing things."

"I know it," said Agnes happily. "Then you can help me stir up the birthday cake, can't you?"

"Of course. What are you paying for eggs now?"

But Agnes didn't hear her. She was thinking of the old fuses that had come in so "handy" that morning and the perfectly good ones she had hid in the cellar trading.

Little Benny's Note Book

We was eating brekfist this morning and the letter carrier brung mail being three letters for pop and he looked at one of them as if he was wondering what was in it, ma drinking her cawffee and trying to look as if she wasent noticing, and pop opened the letter and red it, being the chain letter ma sent him yestiday on account of having to send 9 to dif frent people, pop saying, Well for f'eet sake, is this your ideer of a joke?

Its nothing to get incited about, ma sed. If you dont want to keep the chain going, all you half to do is tear it up. You sed yestiday you'd tear it up in the church if you got one, didnt you? she sed.

Yes I did and I repeet it and under line it, pop sed. No bone headed chain letter is going to make India rubber out of my backbone. Leave suversilize to the superstitious, thats my motto. Whats the good of manind pulling itself out of the mind of them he sed.

Well then tear it up and show your powerful backbone, ma sed. Of corse its expensiv says in it that if you dont copy it off 9 times and send it to 9 other people youll have some rumatics bad luck within 9 days, but of corse if you have no luck to stop you' luck yourself, so why dont you tear it up rite now this moment in so much as you dont want to take any words? she sed.

I will with pleasure, pop sed. And he stuck the letter in his coat pocket, saying, I'll tear it up at the office.

Youre not anxious to have a lot of torn paper around the house, are you? pop sed and ma sed Hee hee.

Meaning she didnt breeve he would ever tear it up.

Which maybe he wunt.

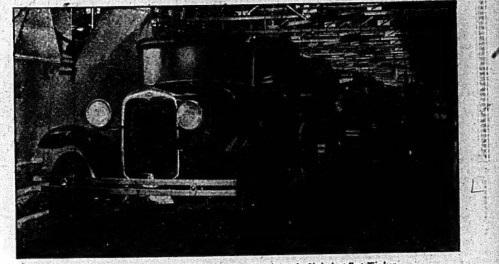
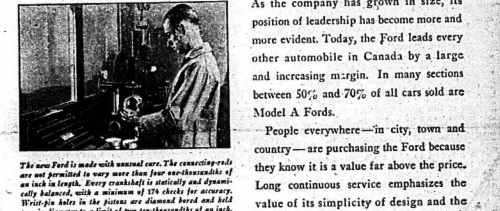
One Million Ford Cars



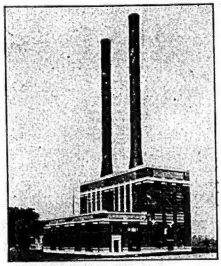
have been made in Canada

The Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, was organized in 1904. The business was started in a small frame building, with a force of seventeen men. The first year's production was only 117 cars.



Because of the value built into its products for the past twenty-seven years, the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, has become one of the largest industrial organizations in the Dominion. In March of this year the millionth Ford made in Canada came off the assembly line and was delivered to a Ford owner.

This achievement is of particular importance to the people of this country because the Canadian Ford car is made almost entirely of Canadian materials and by Canadian workmen.



During the past ten years the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, has paid out in Canada more than $95,000,000 in wages and more than $201,000,000 for materials and services. In 1929 and 1930 alone the company's payroll exceeded $22,000,000. In addition, employment was furnished to

The final assembly line of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, at East Windsor

The new Ford is made with unusual care. The connecting-rods are not furnished to users more than four one-thousandths of an inch in length. Every crankshaft is statically and dynamically balanced, with a minimum of 17½ checks for accuracy. Wrist-pin holes have a true diameter and bored and held true in diameter to a limit of two ten-thousandths of an inch. Ford valve stems are held exact in diameter to within one one-thousandth of an inch along their entire length. From the seat to the mushroom end there is never a variation of more than two one-thousandths of an inch.

thousands of other workmen through the expenditure of $40,000,000 for Canadian materials and services. To the end of 1929 more than 72% of the total earnings of the company had been reinvested in the business.

Throughout the years, the policy of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, has been to provide greater and greater value at lower cost to the public. Every purchaser shares the benefit of the Ford low-profit policy and the economy and efficiency of its manufacturing methods.

As the company has grown in size, its position of leadership has become more and more evident. Today, the Ford leads every other automobile in Canada by a large and increasing margin. In many sections between 50% and 70% of all cars sold are Model A Fords.

People everywhere—in city, town and country—are purchasing the Ford because they know it is a value far above the price. Long continuous service emphasizes the value of its simplicity of design and the substantial worth that has been built into it.

"THE CANADIAN CAR"

LONDON, April 1.—(By the Canadian Press)—A correspondent of Overseas writing from the Federated Malay States says: "While I was in Tavoy, four Chinese lady doctors, carrying their own para, hernalia, toddled into town on their little 'lily' feet, practising as they went. A patient was "aund near my gate, and I saw him man open his mouth and point inside. Instantly the ladies took to their lily feet, and another his left arm, and forced him into a sitting position, when the third lady sat on his lap, this stilling his struggles. The four then wrenched out a tooth, while the patient uttered a most dismal howl. Then, with a scream further up the road denoted is progress of this mission of mercy."

SWEEPSTAKES

The game which has attracted so much interest through the winnings of some in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes is expected to draw more attention than ever to lotteries, to make more people hope for unearned wealth and to leave more disappointed than ever in the history of the game. The New York Times comments: "So long as some countries permit these sweepstakes, human nature assures that they will be patronized by the preponderant majority who believe that gold is at the rainbow's end."

When people see an Italian winner enrich his relatives and return to his native land from London, when an American mechanic, his wife and family, his brother and his brothers-in-law start out to tour the world, people are amazed, forgetting how many hundreds of thousands have contributed to the making of these fortunes.

Back of it all sweepstakes are not steeplechases. As a writer points out the sweepstake is a pure chance and most of the ticket purchasers draw blanks. But the training of the horses for the steeplechase is a more serious and absorbing matter than speculation in tickets. Winners of the prizes will not be able to buy Grakle or Grakle is something more than something to be gambled in. His place is in the race, not in a velvet-lined stall for the rest of his days.

PRAYING IN WORKSHOPS

Too much of religion is going by the timetable, declares Dr. Samuel Trexler of the United Lutheran Synod of New York who on Sunday called for his people to pray in the subway and advised that New Yorkers utilize their time spent in travelling in devotion. Religion today is much stilted, he said. We must lift our hearts to the Lord in our workshops. Our lives are so fragmentary and so unsatisfactory. This life of ours is filled with so much jealousy and hatred and envying.

AN ACHIEVEMENT

The success of the Belleville waterworks department and the far-sightedness which has directed the management and the building up of the plant until in a few weeks we shall have one of the finest water supplies which any city on the continent possesses call for more than mere passing comment.

Through the use of the surpluses which were allowed to pile up without cutting of the rates when the rates were low, and through the retirement of the bonds during the present year, the city will when the new filter is completed and the bonds therefor issued have less indebtedness against the plant than at present. The department is on the eve of the retirement of $192,000 of debentures which were issued thirty years ago.

In spite of increased cost of the operations of the plant which will follow the opening of the filter, the water rates in the city as far as can be foreseen will not advance when Belleville is drinking the finest drinking water which has passed through the new filter basins.

The manager and the city councils past and present deserve credit for what they have accomplished for the city.

The addition of the purification plant to the waterworks equipment will be something of which Belleville may justly be proud.

HOLY WEEK

"Lenten devotions culminate in the solemn services which during the next few days will be held in most of the churches, and in the calendar are set forth under the caption of 'Holy Week'," says the Montreal Gazette. "The fact that these services are attended by a vast number of people is a gratifying sign of our time. We would go a long way towards moderating the fanatic predictions of gundry modernist critics that the thing we call religion is in this twentieth century upon its last legs." It is only fair to remark, this criticism has been heard before. It has a long and famous pedigree. Those who repeat it would at least do well to note that human arts and literature have focussed upon the Holy Week incidents with a vividness and vigor of expression that belongs to no other historic episode ever recorded. And this is something to say."

"It stands to common sense that human society will never attain anything like a positive and progressive order of its goings, of more evolution, until our minds are domesticated in an atmosphere somewhere beyond the level at which material interests and selfish passions have their way. We can hardly do better than recall the maxim of Guizot, jotted down in his introduction to the 'History of Civilization'. Back of civilization stands the man. And any influence brought directly to bear upon our lives, tending towards the production of a better type of manhood and womanhood, represents a capital count in our personal or social reckonings. From this essential and fundamental moral posture, the Christian community never departs insofar as concerns its teachings. During Holy Week the eternal pattern and constant significance of the moral law centring in self-sacrifice are brought powerfully into contact with those motives and emotions that "touch our lives to no finer issues." And in this all-important respect its services are of inestimable value. We can follow this gleam with advantage."

THE GOLDEN HORDE

A roaring in the desert,
A roaring in the dawn.
An earthquake in the Gobi where all the devils spawn.
The golden horde is on the march,
Their Golden Khan is gone.

A million men and horses,
A million hawk-faced men.
The world had never seen their like and never will again.
Ten thousand kings had hastened
To seize a humble pen.

The sages droned in China
As they had droned of yore.
They dreamed of great K'ung Fu-Tse, they mounted his ancient lore;
And when the Mongols struck them
They bowed their heads to gore.

The Rajahs wore their splendor
Of gems and cloth of gold.
The jewels in their turbans had graced the king of old.
And did they do the easier
For all their wealth untold?

The Christian kingdoms trembled,
Girt futile sword to side.
Which rolled upon their fragile coasts
And saved their Christian pride.

The centuries bring their cycles
Of which the nations ease.
What kingdom dare predict its fate in terms
Evermore,
Yet know Kha'n's Great Empire
Is now but scholars' lore?

Other Papers' Opinions

A COWARD'S CRIME

Two more victims of the cowardly and callous hit-and-run motorist lie in a city hospital. This dastardly kind of criminal seems to be growing, and each week lives are either ended or imperiled in a fiendish scale as that which occurred on the Lake Shore Road on Saturday night. The victims were dragged some distance by the car, and their photo clothing virtually torn from their bodies. Witnesses say that they saw only the lights of the auto were switched off and it left the scene at a speed undetected pursuit.

It is hard to fathom the mental [illegible] to which a man must be reduced before he can commit such a dastardly thing. Ordinary humanity, to say nothing of selfish humanity, would seem to dictate that their victims should be succored, and such action would mean a great deal in their favor during any prosecution that might follow. The only explanation seems to be that such drivers are utter degenerates or are under the influence of liquor. If the latter, terror, of consequences prompts flight from the former, nothing better can be expected.—Toronto Globe.

MIGRATION ALONG THE CANADIAN-AMERICAN BORDER

According to an announcement from Washington the next session of Congress will restrict immigration from Canada to one hundred nationals annually. Nobody in this country can take exception to this programme. We say this partly because we do not wish to lose any more of our young people to the neighboring republic and partly because the tide of migration is at the present time, northward, rather than southward. Official statistics show that in the past few months the Lilies of Canada have come back from the United States to their own country and that they have been augmented by 22,000 Americans. The policy of our Federal Government is to restrict the migrants from all sources until the present state of unemployment is entirely overcome. We are making progress in that direction since the Bennett administration came into office, and the day will come when we will again open our doors to desirable immigrants from other lands — Toronto Mail & Empire.

IS IT THE MARBLE AGE?

Twenty-five worthy and respected citizens of Walkerville, each with more than a half-century of years behind him, have taught him more caution sought to renew their youth on Saturday by playing marbles. There were features of the solemn affair others on the shady side of fifty, but with greater self-restraint, still find it hard to understand. Had these men, sedately assembled for the croachment of the years, assembled in some secluded spot and tried to bend their backs to the game, there would have been little criticism.—Toronto Globe.

PAY FOR CARELESSNESS

Two companies writing insurance on automobiles have announced the inauguration of a policy which, if it becomes general, will go far toward to ensure careful driving as any single law or regulation aimed at that end.

What these companies propose to do is to give a reduction in premium to the man who can show a clean accident record. The basis of such his record extends the greater the reduction in his premium will be. Thus a man who goes for four years free of accidents or police prosecution arising from bad driving or the evasion of responsibility after such, he will get as much as 30 per cent off from his insurance bill.—Montreal Star.

SILVER HOURS

Come lovely Morning, rich in frost
On iron, wood and glass;
Show all your paths to silver-gild
Each little blade of grass.

Come, rich and lovely Winter Eve,
That with your fingers cold;
And spread your silver banner
In glittering fold on fold.

Come after sunset; come, O
You clear- and frosty Night,
Dip up your fields of diamonds,
The Silver Hours delight.

WHEN CHILDREN DREAM

With a little practice we can learn a great deal about what is going on in a child's mind by studying its dreams. For children dream as well as adults, and in each, of course, the dream is the product of their unconscious thinking.

Take the dream of the fear is fashioned in our deeper unconscious minds —sometimes referred to as the subconscious—does not mean that it has [illegible] actually [illegible] and feel.

Indeed quite the opposite is the truth. For the real "you is the unconscious "you." It is the "you" that constitutes the sum total of all your experiences from the cradle to the grave.

When we are awake and indulge in conscious thinking, we are on the alert and there is a marked sense of what might be termed our "awareness." When we fall asleep, this awareness of being disappears and ideas from the unconscious come to the surface, as it were, producing what we know as the dream.

A study of the unconscious thinking, therefore, reveals us as we really are, because we are not censoring and restricting or otherwise controlling our daily thoughts, nor are we influenced by those about us, nor by the surroundings in which we happen to be.

If any one has any doubt concerning the theory that all dreams somehow embody a wish element, one need only go to children's dreams for confirmation.

A child of five who had asked his mother for a sister's doll one day dreamed that night that he was sitting on top of a bag of candy "as big as a house."

A little girl of eight years who wanted a doll very badly," dreamed that the new doll was sleeping in bed with her and when she awoke she cried because it wasn't there.

Another child, a boy, dreamed a few days before Christmas that Santa Claus got stuck in the chimney and so had to leave behind—for the present, of course—many toys intended for other children.

Still another child was found laughing in her sleep when her mother awoke her she said that she had been to a party and had won the first prize in the donkey game.

Although the dreams of a child are just as simple as that, and just as easy to interpret, those of adults are much more involved, disguised and falsified. To find out what they mean requires considerable knowledge of the intricate mechanism of the human mind.

Ask your children what they dream hereafter, and you will discover many of their secret thoughts and desires which they inspiration you have confided to anyone.

Which reminds me of a boy of twelve who began to do poorly at school. He had a big appetite and who became shy and depressed. His mother formerly he had behaved in an opposite manner in all these particulars. Nobody seemed to know what was ailing him, neither his parents, his teachers nor his playmates.

Then one night he dreamed that he was rescuing a little girl of his own age from a burning building. What's more, he became so excited that he talked it all out in his sleep.

The boy was in love, of course, and the dream revealed his heroic desires.

Persian Balm is irresistible. Praised as summer flowers. Cool as a mountain spring. Wonderfully invigorating. Softens and whitens the hands. Makes skin soft-tender and youthful. Used by women as a powder base and as a peerless aid to lovely complexions. Used by men as an after shave hair tonic and refreshing lotion. And for children, nothing compares as it protects their tender skin like the delicately cool Persian Balm.

Fashionably Speaking

By Lucille

Dear Readers:

What does Fashion say about coiffures this season? She says a great deal and here are the important points:

"It isn't precisely the bob, this new spring coiffure which sets the final feminine accent to 1931 mendanes and modernistes, but it's a far cry from long hair. Hair is, if anything a bit shorter than it was last year.

"Every trace of the masculine or mannish "bob" is gone on most heads, leaving the back and in the place truly smart heads, and in the place are tiny rolls or clusters of curls or little chignons. For as all the most attractive heads hair is semi-long.

"Inasmuch it the new hats demand this year a sotarting show of waves or curls, more hair is seen on the forehead and temples than has been considered smart in many day. There is more individuality, too, and no particular fashion is followed except that which is most flattering to the wearer. Hair may be waved over the forehead and drawn back from the ears, or it may be alently parted at the middle or side and drawn softly over the ears. For those who find them becoming, bangs are very much in the mode and worn by many women. But they are not the squarely cut Dutch bangs of the time when the bob was in its heyday. Rather they are little fringes, probably waved a bit. Some women wear their bangs over the temples.

"All of the best hairdressers agree that their smartest patrons demand a soft and natural arrangement, and that except for the curls on the head. If the front is waved at all it is on two large, natural looking waves.

"A good thing to remember in adopting a new hairdress is that the contour of the head must be followed. Many women are having their hair carefully thinned out to eliminate as much of the cranium outline as possible, particularly if they have well-developed ones. The back of the hair, from the crown downward, is combed sleekly and closely to the head, until it ends in a burst of curls at the nape.

Fashionably yours,

Lucille.

Consider Question Of Women as Elders

MONTREAL, April 1.—By the Canadian Press.—The question of ordaining women as the logical recognition of their place of service in the Church, was the present deliberations of the United Church of Canada according to a general feeling. The question was raised in the early days of the Church's existence and has already been discussed and even decided by a number of bodies, but only recently did it come before the Montreal Presbytery in the form of a remit from the General Council who instructed the presbytery to determine their members' feeling in the matter of changing the word "men" in the official definition of an elder to the word "persons" in order to permit the allow of women holding this office.

The presbytery referred the matter to a special committee which will report their findings to the next meeting of that body in May.

Rev. Dr. Lloyd C. Douglas, Minister of St. James United Church said: "There is no scriptural basis for a choice of persons—as for her in the matter of eligibility for the eldership in the Church. In women's work in early Apostolic Church was very conspicuous. They are also mentioned by name as having a great deal to do with the social services.

"Paul it is known rejected the idea of women having any administrative voice in the church. But, that was a celibate.

"Actual church-organization work, missionary propaganda and enthusiasm, and the best of the social work are carried on by women. This is not surprising. They have always been the conservers of culture-religious as well as aesthetic—and for this reason alone they should be better represented in the Church.

"The duties of the elders' added Dr. Douglas include the pastoral care, so, the religious services as are that of the ministers. Many of these duties are carried on in accordance with Christian principles by women and present the congregation and are in touch with the people, attend to their religious services. They also advise the minister concerning the social life suited to the class of the congregation."

Lily Pons Not Spoiled by Success

Toronto, March 31—Modesty and enthusiasm are outstanding characteristics of Lily Pons, the newest opera star to win acclaim on the Continent and who gave a recital at Massey Hall on Saturday night.

Interviewed in her suite at the Royal York, this youthful French prima donna showed a rare naturalness and charm that was thoroughly delightful and refreshing.

Her work is her chief joy, and to it this petite French girl gives herself completely.

"Since I have been singing I have given up all social engagements, and I go to bed every night I am not singing at nine o'clock. I miss my sports, riding, swimming, tennis, for I grew up in Cannes, where I was born, and where the year round we play. But now I feel that to give my very best to the public, I must give up parties and that sort of thing for all my time is devoted to study. It is hard sometimes, but oh so worth while."

Her fine clear eyes sparkled with enthusiasm, as she spoke of the future of opera. "I do not think there is any danger of opera dying out. It is based on the fundamental love of all peoples the world over, for singing and dancing and the opera, I feel, has a very bright future. The radio is doing much to develop a love of music here."

Her success has not spoiled her, and her appreciation of kindnesses and interest is one of her most loving traits. Among her most treasured Souvenirs is one she showed last night—a fan which had belonged to Melba, and had been signed and given to her by a friend. This friend heard Lily Pons sing at her debut in January at the Metropolitan, and although she could never met Miss Pons, as a token of appreciation she sent the fan to her with a card saying, "To the second Nellie Melba."

"Never have I known a more charming thought," commented Miss Pons.

When she was 13, Lily Pons entered the Paris Conservatory to study piano and graduated at 16 with the first prize, but because of a serious illness with meningitis, was forced to give up her piano. There followed a year on the stage, when she played ingenue parts with Max Dearly. Then she married. One day she was singing at the piano when her husband remarked accidentally that he thought she should have her voice trained. She studied under Alberti di Grosatiaca.

Contrary to some impressions, her American success was not that beginning. For two years she had appeared as guest star at opera houses throughout France. It was the quietness with which she slipped on the American scene that caused the surprise. Unheralded the 166-pound singer arrived in New York, had an audition, and within three weeks was on a five-year contract with the Metropolitan, was engaged as concert artist with the Metropolitan Music Bureau and was placed under contract by the Victor Talking Machine Co.

Canadian Stereotypers

According to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, there were 29 firms engaged primarily in stereotyping and electrotyping in Canada in 1929 as compared with 27 in 1928. The distribution by provinces was as follows: Ontario, 16; Quebec 7; British Columbia 3; and Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, one each.

SLEEVES SHOW NEW CONTRAST

Paris, April 1—For the young woman whose perference leads her to black and white there is a new model of white romain that has all black sleeves. Over this the white of the body of the dress are two aprons, like effects of black collars are tied on back and front with small bows. The novelty comes in being able to tie the aprons sideways, placing the bows over each hip and giving the costume an entirely different attitude.

For the not quite so young woman who would like to strike a few years from her appearance there is no surer way of doing it than by wearing a youthful little dress that is slightly "old-fashioned" in cut, a simple round neck, sleeves that flare out but return to tight cuffs, waistline a bit higher than normal, a crisp organdy collar with a tiny bow tie of organdy and a row of novelty cut buttons going all the way down from the throat to the hem of the skirt. Hair style must be an inch or two below midcalf.

For the young girl who feels youth is a handicap and who wishes to look more "mature," there is the sophisticalism of black taffeta with waist of perpendicular shirring from just under the arms to below the hips. On the wide hem of the skirt ther is a band of white eyelet embroidery. Over the shoulders is worn a tiny cape of the same taffeta bearing on its border the same pattern of embroidery.

Lucille.

Good Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman
A CHARMING AFTERNOON WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to be married within a few weeks and I would appreciate your advice on a few points.

I have an oyster-white satin dress, with a train, which square neck and dress fits beautifully and I would like to have an oyster-white hat, shoes, gloves and purse with it for my long white gloves. I want the wedding to have an air of simplicity about it, although we still have one maid of honor, two bridesmaids, and two ushers, and it will be held at four-thirty or five o'clock in the afternoon, at a church.

It is my desire to have a correct but informal wedding, and I would like you to let me know if you think that this would be the right kind of dress to wear, and what kind of dresses you believe would be nice for the bridesmaids.

I understand if it would be better to buy a light colored dress and the same hat. A friend told me she thought it would not be exactly correct to wear a white satin dress with cut a veil, although the dress does fit nice.

This letter is rather long to a person I don't really know, but your articles make you seem so lovely that I just want to explain to you so that it will be easier for you to answer.

J.A.

The dress that you describe sounds very charming and I believe that it would be thoroughly appropriate—especially if the satin is one of the finest quality that takes a high lustre.

Have your attendants wear dresses of an afternoon type consistent with the type of dress that you are wearing. They might wear chiffon dresses, of plain color, with rather large hats.

Thank you, dear bride-to-be, for your gracious words. And blessings to you and on you for this Great Day to come!

WHEN A GIFT IS NOT NECESSARY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A young man who works with me has invited me to his engagement party. What I want to know is: If I do not attend this party, is it necessary for me to send a gift? And if so, should I send it to his fiance's home?

I am not very well acquainted with the girl, but I have been introduced to her.

H.

If you do not attend the party it is not at all necessary for you to send a gift. But it would be gracious if you wrote a note saying that it is impossible for you to attend.

THANKS FOR A PHOTOGRAPH

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How should I answer a letter to thank a cousin who sent me photographs of his two grandchildren? They are very attractive as nurses very soon. I know only one of the girls. Should I congratulate them on their brother's letter?

N.

Since they are all cousins of yours it would be the gracious and "cousin-ly" thing for you to write to each of them .... the cousin who was an kind as to send you the photograph and to the girl-cousins to tell them how much you like having the photograph and to congratulate them on their forthcoming graduation as nurses. Tell your cousin how deeply you appreciated his sending you the photograph and then chat with him about things in general .... there must be family news to be chatted about, and this and that about which that were and are to be. Write the girls separate letters, though you don't know both of them.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers).

Meals Without Marketing For Your Busy Days

By Hannah Wing

Just now most of us are putting our houses in order for the spring and summer. If in addition to cheking over our stocks of linen, china, summer clothing, we plan a permanent food supply, we'll save ourselves a lot of time and worry later on. We ought always to have on hand cereals, macaroni, and rice; canned soups, fish, meat, vegetables, milk; fruits canned and dried; jams and preserves; pickles and relishes; salad dressing; relishes and jelly powders; packaged cheese; and sweet and sour pears. If our storage space is small, we shall not be able to buy a large quantity of any one article, but we can renew supplies promptly.

Following are some suggestions for "marketless meals" which I call "MAIN DISHES"

Salmon, heated, and served with Tartar sauce. Tuna fish and olives heated in tomato soup. Shrimps and peas heated in cream sauce. Lobster and oysters dipped in seasoned butter and broiled. Baked beans or ham hash baked in green pepper shells. Tuna fish, or chicken, browned with spaghetti and cheese. Chicken heated with chicken gumbo soup. Corned beef baked with kidney beans. Ham and pineapple slices, broiled thoroughly in oven, and served with noodles.

SALADS

Green Lima beans and beets with mayonnaise and chopped pickle. Asparagus tips and peas. French dressing. String beans and onions, may be onnaise dressing. Pear stuffed with cream cheese, Russian dressing.

DESSERTS

Hot toasted crackers spread with marmalade or jam. Stewed peaches as garnished with toasted marshmallows. Cow peas, prunes served with drips, hot cinnamon toast. Whipped cream and chopped candied peel baked into it. Dried fruits — washed carefully with water and boiled 20 minutes to 1 hour, according to variety. Cool and serve with whipped cream (or whipped evaporated milk).

MAIN DISHES

It has Many Qualities.— The man who possesses a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, is armed against many ills. It will relieve a cough, break a cold, prevent sore throat; it will reduce the severity of a sprain, relieve the most persistent earache and outwardly heal cuts and contusions. It is a medicine chest in itself.

OPPOSE FORMATION SENIOR BALL LOOP IN PETERBORO CITY

Frown on Proposal to Operate Exclusive of C.O.B.L.

Peterboro, April 1—Members of the East Peterborough Baseball League met at Duffin' and discussed the base ball situation. There was a fairly representative gathering present, and Charlie Curtis occupied the chair.

Bill Kay of Raybestos and "Shiner" Johnston, manager of the newly-organized senior team, were invited into the meeting to hear a suggestion concerning senior ball to be played in Peterborough this summer.

The chairman thought it might be worthy of some thought for the Raybestos, the new senior team, and two or three of the East Peterborough League teams to get together and form a senior league right here, thus eliminating out of town trips until the provincial playoffs began in the Fall. It would simply mean raising the Rays and the E.P.L. teams from an intermediate to a senior classification and including the already-organized senior outfits.

As it was said that some of the local factories were against the idea of having players losing time from work to play out of town games in the summer, this arrangement would permit more players here to get into senior ball without having to make these trips until late in the summer or early in the Fall. Another advantage claimed was the cutting down of expenses connected with travelling around Central Ontario. It was also maintained that fans would be enabled to see two senior games a week in Peterborough instead of one, and at a cheaper admission charge.

But it was pointed out that with four or five senior teams in Peterborough, the players would not be able to field a good enough team to compete with other group winners throughout Ontario. The idea was that while there was material for one good team, the best players divided among several teams would result in a poor brand of senior ball.

It seemed to boil down to the question: "Do the fans want to see one good senior team representing Peterborough, or a local league of some four fair senior teams?"

There was considerable discussion on the question of the use of the E.P.L. managers and others favoring it, and still others, including "Shiner" refusing to commit themselves to let the idea stand for a few days and carry in the week for a committee, chosen at the meeting, to meet Joseph and Harry Ranger and "Shiner" Johnston and thresh it out. It is hoped that something definite one way or the other will come of this conference. And so the matter was left for the time being.

Water Power in the Pulp and Paper Industry

The pulp and paper industry maintains a hydraulic turbine installation totalling almost 5,000,000 hp. and purchases hydro-electricity to operate electric motors totalling at over 944,000 h.p., indicating a total of approximately 1,524,000 h.p. of hydraulic power utilized directly and indirectly in the industry. This is according to the figures of the Dominion Water Power and Hydrometric Bureau, Department of the Interior. In addition large amounts of surplus, seasonal or off-peak electricity are used in electric steam boilers for the production of process or heating steam.

According to tests by University of California scientists a 20,000-volt electric spark is 50 per cent. darker and 100 times as bright as the sun.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR BALL IN CENTRAL LOOP THIS YEAR

Belleville Will be Represented by Strong Diamond Outfit

MEET SATURDAY.

Peterboro, Oshawa and Kingston are Ready for Barrie

The baseball "pot" is beginning to boil in the Central League district. The outlook for ball looks very promising for 1931. There seems to be that "old" baseball spirit in the air this spring.

There is no reason why the Central League cannot go back to the old "1919" stalls, when each town had to depend on the "home-brews" as "imports" were unthought of at that time and the league enjoyed very keen competition. Perhaps the brand of ball was not quite as fast as developed in later years, but there is no question as to the rivalry when "Jake" Soloman, Dick Turpin, Alex Patton, Fred Goyer and a host of other veterans, clashed.

Then came the era of "Williams, Hickman, Ainsley, Jack Harris, Gallagher, Derry and Collette when the Central League was at its height, being, perhaps the fastest amateur league in Canada.

In recent years, although the "Wasmunds" did win the Provincial title in 1928, the league has slowed up somewhat and they are in a very good position today to reorganize and start over, giving the young, local, talent a real chance to show their wares. And on the opportunity that the younger generation have been waiting for. And when the Central league outgrin its junior stage there will be a lot of "boys" out there hustling for positions. Which is, as it should be.

Peterboro have signified their intention of re-entering the league after a year's absence, and with "Pete" the pick of the "Lift Lock City" will be there to do a real team of hustling youths.

Kingston are already for the fray as they started to replace the veterans who have left with young blood, and are rounding out a smart bunch of "real boosers".

As for Oshawa they are an unknown quantity, but they sure had a smart bunch of juniors last season, and no doubt Manager Cohen (Speedy) will have a couple of veterans up to senior company. As Ogden and Mathews have been mentioned among these two will add a power of strength to the "Motor City Crew".

As for the local "Nationals" they are waiting and wondering. With the exception of short-stop the locals are in, at position, as Point Anne have decided to throw their lot in with the locals, and there is no question that, between the pro circuit a real smart junior club can be placed on the field as that Belleville and district will be well represented in the C.O.B.L.

There is no doubt, that, there should be a league meeting called before the annual Provincial meeting, which is being held in Peterboro, this year. This is the first time this "Parent Body" has ever met in Eastern Ontario and it is hoped that the meeting will be a success and a credit to the East.

Why all the delay in calling a league meeting? It is quite evident, that, that is all which is required to rejuvenate the old league, as in past stalls. With the interest that has been shown by the press of the Central League district, all that is needed is the annual league meeting to be held and everything will be ready for the cry "play ball".

HOSPITALITY NOT KNOWN IN CANADA?

Toronto, Ont., April 1—"We don't know anything about hospitality in this country," said Dr. Paul Harrison, medical missionary to Arabia, speaking at Convocation Hall recently. He pointed rather ruefully at the magnificent structures of stone and mortar reaching to the clouds. And he said that the Canadians knew little about the meaning of sacrifice.

"Can a man be a Christian if he has a head with 600 undesirable citizens in it?" he asked. Some days it required a great deal of faith, and some days his faith wavered, he said. "What is the hope of our calling? Does it depend on having a silk shirt? How many of us can stretch our minds around a church of people who cannot keep clean and can never be educated and are childishly Oriental? A man here told me the other day that when the Arabians become Christians their economic status would be elevated. For 90 per cent. of the Indians, Hinduism is better and for 75 per cent. of the Arabians Mohammedanism, for there is not a rich man's religion. I see a church in Arabia for Arabs—Arabs that wear loin cloth and does not keep clean—but knows the meaning of hospitality," he continued.

BENGALS LOST TO WINNIPEG

Tigers Made Valiant Attempt to Tie Score

Winnipeg, April 1—Speeding skates smoothed a paem of victory last night as the red-clad Winnipeg hockey team, best in the West, defeated the Eastern champions, Hamilton Tigers, 2-1 in the opening game of the Allan Cup finals. The battle for Canada's hockey title and the right to wear the maple leaf at the 1932 Olympics is a two-of-three-game series.

A rousing rally in the last half of the final period threatened to snatch impressive triumph from the willing hands which the Tigers arose from lethargic cautiousness of 50 minutes and fought ten minutes of pressing, thrilling, scrapping hockey. They cut down Pegs' lead from two to only one but could not notch the equalizing score.

Dazil disorganized by an unlooked-for recovery of the Tigers in the last period, the Winnipeggers held sway by speed alone. They sent Howie Morenz, Hamilton centman, spraining to the ice time and again to save from flourishing attacks. And their back-checking aided hard Tigers in their own end for most of the game which ended in the afternoon.

Pegs scored once in the first period again in the second and Tigers counted their lone goal in the third. Shindy Thain, Pegs' left winger sent the Pegs ahead when he batted a shot into the net after Vic Lindquist had threaded through the Tigers only to be foiled by Marsh. "Tick" Carbutt, who relief centre, hocked the next goal from behind the net as Marsh was flattened in a scramble.

Protest on Carbutt's goal delayed the game for several minutes. Referee Alex Irwin, Winnipeg, ruled the goal was legal, although the goal judge expressed doubts that the puck had crossed the line. Harry Watson, Toronto, the other official handling the game, stated his view of the play had been obscured by a player.

Gonie McGowan, Clever Hamilton centre, counted the Tiger goal with less than three minutes to go. He batted his own rebound into the cage after a scramble following a three-man Tiger rally.

The second game of the series is slated for Thursday night with the third, if necessary, on Saturday.

CANADIAN ARTIST'S FINE EXHIBITION

Toronto, Ont., April 1— The name of Tom Thomson is a familiar and fine into the annals of Canadian art, and art lovers here are much interested in an exhibition of pictures by his brother, George Thomson, of whom The Globe says: "George Thomson is a Canadian who is holding an impressive exhibition of his paintings at a Toronto art gallery, planned to cover a period of nearly 20 years in the United States and in painting. Born in Georgian, with vigor and a fine color sense.

One feature of the Ontario landscape he has mastered uncommonly well, and that is the rendering of an October day. The glowing maples, red and yellow leaves of the Canadian autumn, in the presence of these pictures one feels the October woods in their richest and most radiant beauty. There are also fine landscapes in the green robes of summer, the ice-locked streams of spring, and the glistening robes of winter by George Thomson, who has met with confidence and a kindred ... most true. Though a brother of the late Tom Thomson, George Thomson has earned his way, developed along his individuality and earned his own place in Canada art."

"ROUGH" HOCKEY IN OLD COUNTRY

London, April 1 — Canadians in London read with some amusement the front page story from Ottawa about the match between Oxford and St. Moritz at Oxford, in which no fewer than three men were disqualified. One wonders how the same newspaper would have reported a match for the royal in the Canadian play-off. Under the headline, "Kicking off the ice" and "rough hockey," the Daily News said: "Three men were 'sent off the ice,' for rough play during the ice hockey match between Oxford University and St. Moritz at Oxford. The University won easily by five goals to nothing. The referee was cerned were O. Schmidt (who was previously disqualified in the second period), and R. Breiter (St. Moritz) and O. A. Gratias, Oxford. C. C. Bonnycastle and L. Watson of Oxford dominated the play. Although Watson did not score, he gave Bonnycastle passes from which the international scored three of his four goals."

CHURCH HIT BY DEPRESSION LONDON, April 1.—(By The Canadian Press)—Industrial depression has hit badly contributions from the Church of Scotland. At the Glasgow Presbytery it was stated that while the contributions from the whole church were over £25,000 less than for 1930, the contributions of the Presbytery of Glasgow alone were £11,460 less, so that practically one half of the decrease came from the Presbytery. On the other hand, over 100 congregations had increased their contributions.

Nearly 235,000 pounds of prunes were exported from the United States last year.

RADIO FANS CORNER

For a short period last night following Amos 'n' Andy in rather lookers as though we would be able to be in for a rough time throughout the night. However, reasonably good tuning in reception started to pick right up and after this picking so it wasn't so bad after all.

Several guest artists on the programs tonight and they are well worth listening to. Among them are and Claudette Colbert for another, and Ruth Etting, who is supported by Grantland Rice also. The Maxwell House program has their way down to Scotland tonight during their program. "Auld Lang Syne" and "Bluebells of Scotland" will be included in the broadcast. Another guest scheduled is the "Auld Lang Syne."

The Ten Timers at 5.30 WEAP and at 6.45 Uncle Abe and David. Bobby Jones will be on at 9 o'clock from this station and at 8.15 Welcome Lewis, mandolin player and baritone crooner entertain us for a fifteen minute period. The orchestra also has some hand in that entertaining business by the way.

David Lawrence is guest artist on the Hallo Broadway program tonight at 9 from WEAF and he speaks on "Government and Business." Andre Kostelanetz and Anghi Dalton to this program. It might also mention that I have had difficulties. Amos got the giggles last night didn't you Amos?

Frank Black has arranged a "Miniature Minstrel Show" for the 9 tonight and it's going to be good. Tom Howard and the station WEAF, Vincent Lopez and his orchestra will be heard at 10 and Florence Richardson at midnight.

Claudette Colbert, guest broadcast from the WABC studio at 10 tonight during the Vicks Vaporub radio presentation. Smith Brothers by the way from WJZ at 10.30 and a movie program at 9 called Radio Symphony. Dennis King from WJZ is going to say would be heard over WEAP at 9.30. The Kremlin Art Quartet is on the air at 11.30 from WEAF.

REDUCING FAR TOO RAPIDLY, SINGER IS SERIOUSLY ILL

Chatham, Ont., April 1— Some idea of the strenuous life of Miss Jeanne Ingram can be had by the hours through which Miss Jeanne has been working on the Charlot Revue. She was under contract to appear in a musical production of Noel Coward that the production might live up to all requirements of this fashionable revue. In the appearance of the actors, as well as the quality of the music. It was also necessary that Miss Gordon undergo a course in physical exercises. Her glorious voice was perfect, and her charming personality pleasing—but the excessively slim, disappearing figure was not. Every night now; even actors are compelled to appear in their public appearances before the public during the Charlot Revue, Miss Ingram heroically until 28 pounds had disappeared and even the strong physique broke under the strain and she was seized with her present illness.

HUMMING DURING "CARDS" BAD FORM

EDMONTON, Alta., April 1.—(By The Canadian Press)—When playing cards a husband is not to hum during a card game. At least, such was the unfortunate decision of Mrs. Sheremeta, who brought her husband before the bar charged with assault. "He hit me and he hit me, and I wouldn't. Then he got up and pushed me," said the aggrieved wife. Mrs. Sheremeta dealt at length with the fight at the Sheremeta finances, adding that her husband gave her orders to make the shopping actions during the day.

"Women should not be in my country," the magistrate told the accused. "You will be in court to do what she pleases as long as she performs her duties as a wife."

3RD AMELIASBURG

3RD AMELIASBURG, April 1.— Services which have been conducted weekly in the church by Rev. Mr. Cook during the last month were brought to a close on Sunday evening last.

Mrs. Enoch Adams has not been so well during the past week. We hope she may soon be herself again.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. Alyea, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Ray of Marshall Road, Sidney, also their guest, Mrs. James Wallace of the City, Belleville, were Saturday evening visitors with Mr. Mr. and Mrs. Milton Alyea.

Mrs. Charlie Lloyd has returned to her home in Peterboro, after having spent the past week with her mother, Mrs. Arnold Ray.

Quite a number in the neighborhood are busy with the spring house cleaning.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Moreland, South Lakeside were guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stirling Adams on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Alyea were dinner guests of Mr. William Way and Leone on Sunday.

"Holy Grail" Bears Figures of Christ

A silver cup which many persons believe was used by Jesus and his Apostles at the Last Supper—the Holy Grail of the legends of King Arthur—will soon be removed from a vault in the Chatham Plenk Bank at 397 Fifth Avenue, New York City, and taken to Paris as part of an exhibition of Christian art to be held in the Louvre, it was said yesterday by Arthur Kouchakji, of 5 East Fifty-seventh Street, owner of the cup.

This cup, known to archaeologists as "the great Chalice of Antioch," was found in 1910 beneath the ruins of a great Christian Church built at Antioch in Syria by the Emperor Constantine in the Fourth Century and destroyed by an earthquake in 526 A.D. The cup, enclosed in an elaborately sculptured sheathing of silver and gold leaf, which several archaeologists are convinced was made in the First Century, was found with several other silver objects of religious significance, but of a later date; fourth or fifth century. These objects, a goblet known as "the silver chalice of Antioch," a ceremonial cross and three book covers, constitute with the great chalice, the collection known as "the Antioch treasure" and all will be taken to Paris to be exhibited publicly for the first time.

A Much Travelled Cup

If this cup actually is the Holy Grail so so many believe, its new journey will be only another of many wanderings, and quite in keeping with the traditions of the Grail. For in the King Arthur legends the Cup of the Last Supper voyaged strenuously to Glastonbury where it remained until the pure knight, Sir Hallahad, took it to the mysterious city of Serras in the East, where it vanished from sight.

The great chalice of Antioch has made many long voyages since it was unearthed twenty-one years ago. The chalice and the silver articles of the treasure were stolen by Arabs soon after they were found and were recovered only with much difficulty. The cup was taken by members of the Kouchakji family to Paris and expertly cleaned of the coating of silver oxide which had formed around it. In 1914 it was shipped with the other articles of the treasure to New York, uninsured, over a sea swarming with German commerce raiders. It has been here continuously in a bank vault ever since.

The significance of the cup was first analyzed by Dr. Gustavus A. Eisen, an archaeologist familiar with the forms and ornamentation of art objects in the Near East. The chalice, as described by Dr. Eisen, stands about eight inches high. It consists of an inner cup of silver, crudely made and without a base, upon which has been placed an elaborately sculptured sheathing of silver and gold leaf. The sheathing of the inner cup extends above this ornamentation, and it is the theory of Dr. Eisen that the outer envelope was made to guard and glorify the inner.

Said to Be Authentic Portrait

cup. The sculpturing on the outer cup centres about twelve figures, which Dr. Eisen has identified as Christ—one figure as a boy and the other as an adult—and ten of His Apostles. These figures of Jesus, Dr. Eisen believes, are His only authentic portraits, made by an artist who either had seen Him or who had obtained a description of Him from men who had known Him. Dr. Eisen assigns the latter cup, because of its form and execution, to the last half of the first century.

Dr. Eisen's publication of his findings in 1924 caused world-wide discussion among archaeologists. Some disputed his belief that the cup was the first century, among them, Professor R. Morey, Professor of Art and Archaeology at Princeton, who contended that the decoration placed it much later.

Another authority agreeing substantially with Dr. Eisen is Professor Arthur Bernard Cook of Queen's College, Cambridge, who in an article in The Cambridge Review said that no vessel of exactly the same shape and proportions as the chalice of Antioch is known of a date later than the first century.

"With the fall of Jerusalem, Antioch became the main centre of Christianity in the East," wrote Professor Cook. "And if so the inner bowl of the chalice may be Imperial, brought thither from Jerusalem where it may well have been the very vessel used in Apostolic times by the infant Church. Indeed, a presumption is that it was none other than the cup of the Last Supper. The chalice of Antioch is certainly genuine, and as it stands, unique."

The exhibition at which the chalice is to be shown will open late in May. Mr. Kouchakji said yesterday. He expects to sail with the chalice and the other objects on April 15. The objects will be insured by Lloyd's, though for how much Mr. Kouchakji has not decided. The authorities at the Louvre have informed Mr. Kouchakji that they will arrange with the customs authorities so that the treasure will not be unpacked until it is safe in the Louvre.

PIONEER SUFFRAGIST

LONDON, April 1.—By the Canadian Press.—Lady Frances Balfour, who died recently was born in 1858, was a pioneer of the woman suffrage movement, and the champion of any cause for the advancement of women. In the early days of the woman suffrage agitation she led a procession of suffragettes through the streets. Believing that serving behind the bar in a public-house was a proper an occupation for a girl as a shop, she fought to better the barmaid's life.

TOMB ADDS TO EGYPTIAN LORE

(By Joseph M. Levy in New York Times)

Cairo, Egypt.—The season's excavations under the auspices of the University of Pennsylvania at Meydum, between Cairo and Fayoum, have revealed much of archaeological interest, and the most important was the discovery of the tomb of a new prince of the fourth dynasty, as announced last week.

The tomb, which is in Mastabah, north of Meydum pyramid, consists of a pit forty-five feet deep and part lly blocked by stones. After the stones were removed, the masonry-lined chamber was discovered, filled with mud and debris.

When access was gained it was found that debris had percolated into the chamber through a small hole in the roof made by robbers, who, knowing that the pit was sealed, reached the chamber by driving a tunnel from the east side of Mastabah to the top of the chamber.

Three hieroglyphic inscriptions were found, each of which gave the name:

"Ny-Hep, he who belongs to Apis."

As the pyramid evidently was built by King Snefru it was concluded that Ny-Hep was his son. "The prince's name heretofore had been unknown. The name of King Snefru's mother was Ny-Maat-Hep, and in view of the similarity of that name to Ny-Hep it was assumed that the prince was her grandson. In the pit was found a necklace of carnelian and green-fly faience beads, which evidently belonged to the prince.

Excavations continued also on mear by Mastabah work which was begun last year. It has been definitely proved that Mastabah had three levels on each side. In the course of clearing the south side, there was found an entrance to a robbers' tunnel, leading to the southern sarcophagus chamber. This chamber, built of solid brick, contains what is probably the greatest red granite sarcophagus of the fourth dynasty in Egypt. The weight of the entire sarcophagus, which is intact, is eleven and one-half tons.

North of the pyramid was found a great Roman cemetery which provided a large collection of pottery, also many coffins and mummies. One coffin, dating to about the twenty-sixth dynasty, was made for a foreigner, believed to have been a Cananite, whose name appears to have been Hemeni. The inscription on th coffin contains an appeal to the sky goddess Dut, similar to that on the coffin of Myrerinus, builder of the third pyramid of Gizeh. The former coffin was found not far from the place where the casket of another Canaanite named Gemiah was discovered last year.

Southwest of the Roman cemetery were unearthed many tombs dating to the intermediate period between th third and fourth dynasties. These consisted of pits with small chambers to the south and west. The majority of the bodies therein lay in a crouched position, with head to the north and face to the east. In some cases the bodies had wooden rests under the heads.

JILTED

By Margaret Widdemer

Helen made herself and Patricia ready for the party at 7:30, with excitement. It was the first time she had seen the girl since, after an occasional encounter in the street with Patricia by her side, or occasionally Marietta, since it had happened, she dressed with more care than usual. She had a little new dress, a pink ivory satin evening frock, long-waisted, full-skirted, ankle-length, quaint and charming. She had bought the cloth and made it herself in some of the time she always seemed to have such comfort now; made it with Patricia looking on, and helping run seams accidedly whenever Helen let her. Patricia's callandy set unerring stitches, over-and-over the selvage inside, were the whole length of the hand-tha, and Helen smiled, thinking of them. She had bought red high-heel shoes to wear with all the white-ness. It was a little too much dressing for a party where half the girls would come in long-sleeved frocks, but Helen felt she needed all the courage her loveliest dress would give her. She stared at the Helen in the long shabby mirror Marietta had inherited from the big house, and saw that they could not say she was worn and unhappy because of Tommy. Indeed, as she leaned to the glass, the girl she saw there was more lovely and alive than she had ever been. What Doris called her "conquering look" was in the tilt of the chin, the golden-brown eyes, the darkly-gold curls, the slim graceful figure of her body were charged with life and the vitality she had had before anything had happened. If only.... well, she'd crush that helper when she came in.... going home by herself, while, they remembered how Tommy used to march her smacking off, Patricia, bless her little loyal flavor heart, would be a comfort! Would it be so dreadful, she wondered, to have Patricia, she hesred went home, instead of having Andrew come for her as nine in the Ford, as they had arranged?.....No; she aren't looking, they'll get their way unless somebody stops them."

"What do they want to do that for? The lovely golden-green grass, and the spacious feeling!"

"Well, it's complicated, but there would be some money in it for a couple of setchmen, in a roundabout way."

"And you're going to be the some body who stops them?"

"They ought to get away with doing a thing like that to the community while I live and Stephen Gale is Chief!" said Ethan quietly. Then, more lightly, "Let me see the ivory satin dress that Patricia made such lots and lots of!.....She's a talented child, Patricia is. I'm proud of it."

She twirled on the porch, slipping her coat off and tossing it on a bench for the moment.

"For evening they do. An Infanta by the way was the King of Spain's daughter, wasn't it?" She gave a little light laugh. "We're all of us haunted with your mother's nursery rhyme, aren't we? I can't forget it either." She pulled her coat on with his help and started the road with him, getting into his car. He spoke, behind her, as they began to go.

"I don't wait to." She heard his voice, deep and moved, through the dark.... in the morning. "Helen, you are that to me. The King of Spain's daughter. I've fought it ever since I've seen you—and told myself I was glad when they said you were marrying young Delamater, because I thought Helen Herbaker must be like Nina Heather.... At least Helen. I've loved you when I haven't trusted, and that took some doing.

"But suppose you didn't trust me now." He stepped from the car and came to meet her, his eyes dancing. There was a concentrated silence about Ethan, too, tonight!

"I'm trusting you," he said, "and I'll come for you. We mustn't tire poor old Andrew!"

Helen turned to him with frank delight. One of the great comforts about Ethan Kingsway was that she didn't have to pretend with him. That first day when she had, in her franticness and illness, cried out on him and reproached him for what Tommy had done made a sort of little island of understanding somewhere where they were together..... and now that he trusted her!

"Oh, Ethan, you don't know how happy it will make me," she said like a child. "I hated so seeing the crowd alone, and—and especially leaving Andrew!"

"And I'm coming for you, if I may. I would even ask to be allowed to stay and watch the Gay Young Gypsy-terman Dance, if Patricia and you can't expect to keep anything from me that Patricia knows."

"That first day when he had, in her there's something that will go through tonight, if I don't squash it."

He would always be Lord of the Manor, Ethan, whether he admitted it or not!

"What is it?"

"Are your really interested?"

"Of course, Pixie curls, or on acting as it was an orange flapper."

"I didn't know—there's such lots to learn about you, Helen. It's about the village green, as a matter of fact. Some of you ideas wants to abolish it, and by the rule that the people who are most interested in a thing can always put it over when the rest mustn't be a coward.....

As the two—Patricia dancing with all the excitement Helen was trying not to show—came down the steps of the gate-house, they saw the Ford waiting for them. But it was not Andrew who was at the wheel. That sort of thing had not come into the conversation was Ethan's.

He stepped from the car and came to meet her, his eyes dancing. There was a concentrated silence about Ethan, too, tonight!

"I'm taking you," he said, "and I'll come for you. We mustn't tire poor old Andrew!"

LONDON STILL LIKES FANNY'S FIRST PLAY

London, Mar. 31 (By The Canadian Press)—"For some reason not easy to understand," says The Times critic with reference to the revival revival at the Court Theatre here of George Bernard Shaw's play, "Fanny's First Play." plays. It is far from being the most ambitiously profound of his works, but we shall not grumble about that. Certainly it wears the marks of its age, but it wears them with an entertaining grace, and needs only to become a little older and to be awarded the honors of costumes to appear as what it is—a brilliant occasional piece with the fascination of an old newspaper found in the bottom of a drawer.

"In the present performance by the Macdona players the Induction moves heavily because with the exception of Miss Joan Harker's Fanny, which is pleasantly eager and gay, the movement is too slow; but the play itself is admirable. Here as elsewhere Mr. Shaw sometimes protests too much. His burdens there Knox with the kind of repetitive humor that becomes shallower and less amusing with each repetition; then suddenly, he redeems her, as he alone is capable of redeeming characters he has cheapened, by giving to her one speech that contradicts by its sincerity all the nonsense that he has thrust upon her.

"In the rest of the play Mr. Shaw has fortunately little need for these violent and brilliant acts of repentance. To the Gilbey's, to Juggins, to the footman, to Margaret Knox, and the others he applies consistently his formula of comic reversals, and their entanglements are thus given an appearance, and a delightful appearance, of unity. If you've ever tried to make youngsters like plain cod-liver oil, you'll enjoy reading this:

The Scott's Emulsion reporter cornered the above picture of Jack while just as this youthful boxer was getting ready to spar with his brother in front of their home, 219 Jarvis Street, Toronto. His mother, Mrs. Jean White, had told us that Jack disliked plain cod-liver oil thoroughly. And she was curious to see if her boy would like Scott's Emulsion "of Cod-Liver Oil any better.

So Jack tried a spoonful for us. Then he looked up ?.....

"Why, that tastes great," he smacked.

Pleasanter to take—but that isn't all!

Pale, thin, underweight children often respond to Scott's Emulsion as directed. Give them an extra ration. Soon they'll be stronger, sturdier, more energetic. It hasn't that strong "fishy" taste. It doesn't upset even delicate stomachs. It brings you purest, Norwegian cod-liver oil in a perfect emulsion. Easier to take—easier to digest. Assimilation is complete. So you get more good out of Scott's Emulsion and you feel the benefits quicker.

Scott's Emulsion contains no alcohol. It is rich in vitamin A, the growth-promoting vitamin that helps guard against disease. It is rich in vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin that prevents rickets. It contains materials that help form sound bones and teeth. So Scott's Emulsion is good for growing children, infants, nursing and expectant mothers.

Paul Dubar of Quebec Gave Sound Advice to Members

Canadian Life Underwriters of this district repsenenting Peterboro, Cobourg, Stirling and Belleville, gathered at Dickens restaurant last night to welcome Paul Dubar, President of the Dominion organization. The Association in Belleville is one of the finest in the Central Ontario District and before the meeting closed, a shield was unveiled. This is the first crest of this association to be procured and the president congratulated the members on their foresight at the unveiling, which he performed. The crest has around the outer ring, "Belleville Life Underwriters Association," and in the centre, a crest bearing a beaver and beneath two eagles. Underneath this shield are the words . "Non Sollis Nobis." The work was done by a local artist and the shield will likely become the emblem of the Dominion Association.

The members and the president

were welcomed by Mayor George A. Reid, while E. L. Sackville of Peterboro brought greetings from the Peterboro Association. President Dubar is making a tour of the eastern part of Canada and Belleville members were fortunate in having such a talented speaker visit them. W. B. Deacon, a layman, and an invited guest, spoke to the gathering. Harold Hollon, president of the Association occupied the chair.

Mr. Dubar in opening his remarks, stated that a life insurance policy is something that will pay to the holder, certain money, providing the holder pays the premiums. The company from these premiums, makes the investments. "The insurance business is built on a solid foundation, and each underwriter is in a position of trust, while the work imposes certain responsibilities," said the speaker. "In 1929 one billion, three hundred and forty millions of dollars worth of insurance was written and of that amount, 722 million lapsed.

This is not a good situation and the lapses did not just happen. There is a reason, and my advice to you is not to sell a policy, unless you are sure the policy holder can maintain the payments. These lapses were partially due to high pressure salesmanship and unethical business practices. There has come to the attention of the life underwriters cases where an underwriter will advise his client to drop the policy he now holds to take one with his company. There is no place for that man in the insurance business and it affects the whole structure of the business. There should be a careful selection of men and these should be educated.

The speaker explained how the situation was met in Quebec Province. "Every Underwriter must have a license to sell insurance, and if any unethical practices are found, that man is immediately thrown out of the Association and blacklisted."

The speaker was convinced that education in life insurance should be taught in the schools, and that everyone taking this work as a life occupation, should write off His Canadian Life Underwriter degree. "Today the big businesses are demanding chartered accountants to audit their books, while in the old day any book keeper would do. The same thing applies in the life insurance business. The public wants more information, and the only way the agent can give the public that information, is to study for the degree and be conversant with all the angles of the work."

He advised his listeners to increase their membership in the association as one man is not big enough to stand alone in this specilized field of activity. The insurance business forges ahead in good times or and and every agent or seller of life insurance must be on his toes to get the business.

ROCKNE RECORD AT NOTRE DAME

Knute Rockne, personification of good football and good sportsmanship, crashed to death with seven other men in a passenger airplane near Bazaar, Kansas, yesterday.

Notre Dame's great coach had taken a series of her football teams to victory in all quarters of the country, against the best opponents that could be found. In his fourteen seasons at the South Bend university, Notre Dame teams won 111 games and lost 11, made 2,966 points and got 474. The 1920, 1924, 1929 and 1930 teams were unbeaten and untied.

Consecutive victory record — 20 games (won nine straight in 1919, nine in 1920, and defeated Kalamazoo and Depauw in opening 1921, games before losing to Iowa, 3 to 7).

During Rockne's 14 seasons as head coach Notre Dame was defeated only once on its home gridiron and was outscored in only one season.

Y ALLEYS

In the Ladies Afternoon game the Smile and Try and Ramblers divided the points, two each, in a very interesting game. High bowlers were Mrs. Stark 599, for Ramblers and Mrs. Smith 502, for S. and T. Nice singles were Mrs. Smith 214, Mrs. Aman 182, Miss Kerr 180, Mrs. Stark 254 and 222 and Mrs. Asselstine 201

In the Ladies League National Ladies took their usual 1 point while the Royals added 3 points to their league standing.

The Hydro Short Circuits met the Ontario-Intoll. in a scheduled bush league fixture resulting in Hydro Short Circuits 3 points, Ontario-Intell 1.

Good Friday should be a busy day at the Alleys. They will be open morning, afternoon and evening. A play off game is billed in the afternoon while at night an awkward squad tournament scheduled for 8.15. Conditions left handed bowlers bowl right handed, right handed bowlers bowl left handed. No handicaps—Suttale's prizes will be handed out. Those interested enquire about this and enter.

EDUCATIONAL GUIDANCE, HATE MOVEMENT TO ASSIST THE NEW CANADIAN GENERATION

Herbert L. Troyer, Secretary Was Kiwanis Speaker

Educational guidance, a new movement to benefit the boy and girl seeking a life occupation, was fully explained to members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon at the Queen's Hotel yesterday by Herbert L. Troyer secretary of the Educational Guidance Movement for Ontario. The speaker gave an interesting address and from his remarks on educational council in this city will likely be formed. He was introduced by Joe Shortt, secretary of the Y.M.C.A. while Kiwanis appreciation for the address was expressed by F. C. MacLaurin.

President George Cole occupied the chair with "Art" May as scargeant at-arms and James Bankier, song leader. Leo B. Riggs accompanied on the piano for the community singing and also accompanied for "Al" Sillman, who delightfully rendered a solo. Charles Haspel told the members of the program that would be in operation for the visit to the sugar bush and many members signified their intention of making the trip. "Wally" Walshe gave the auditor's report at the meeting showing both the welfare and current accounts to be in strong financial position. The auditor made certain recommendations, which will be considered by the directors at their meeting. A new member Oliver Olmstead was introduced, while a number of guests including members of the Board of Education were present.

Herbert Troyer in opening his remarks asked the assembly three questions. How many of you are parents, what is your boy worth to you, and what do you think he is worth to the world? The members were not asked to answer the questions at hand but to go home and think about the questions. "There is also another question," said the speaker, "what sum of money would you need in order to secure a dividend equal to the value of your boy?" He explained that a boy costs $12,000.00 until he is 18 years old, when the income of the parent is $2500.00 a year. "Some day your boy will be called and will be ready to respond". To start this educational movement a meeting was convened in Toronto last December with Dr. Charles W. Bishop of Albert College in the chair and from this meeting, the National Council was formed with E. W. Beatty K.C., as the head. The purpose of the movement is through concerted effort to co-ordinate the activities of all individuals interested in Vocational guidance and to consult also these on a co-operative basis to serve as a clearing house of information as to methods and programs, to secure a maximum result at a minimum of expense, to vitalize and realize larger values from resources now available and the service clubs such as the Kiwanis Club can assist materially."

Need Adjustment

"In considering the problems involved in Vocational Guidance and Educational Council there are at least four general divisions of the subject 1st Vocational Guidance, helping the boy to find himself and discover his abilities, 2nd Vocational training, fitting the boy for his selected task; after his native abilities have been discovered, 3rd Vocational Placement, placing him in a job or position for which he is fitted by native ability and training and 4th Vocational Adjustment readjusting the individual after being placed and reviewing his progress from time to time," said the speaker. "From 50 to 75 per cent need a change or adjustment for we are in the midst of an economic and industrial change. Our ideas and ideals are in a state of flux. We are in a period of unusual stress and strain and our values are being tested and misjudged." Guidance is not merely to give facts but to give power to achieve to give direction to effort and to secure satisfaction from self realization."

"A true guidance program," continued the speaker, "will include provision for self inquiry through a self analysis, provision for occupational studies by pupils under direction of teachers and provision for counselling activities by teachers, parents and friends. Life is a series of puzzles and problems, and we have not seen the completed picture as yet and therefore we need each other for guidance. Every year thousands of boys and girls leave school and go to work. They get a job," said the lecturer to discover it is not the thing they want to do, like to do or can do. They become dissatisfied, discouraged and discontentment and they are misfits. Interest in work is what oil is to machinery. A machine working without oil will grind itself to pieces, shorten its life, use more power, produce less and be a needless menace—and an unnecessary expense. Guidance will help to prevent unnecessary friction. We look around us and see conditions that need reform. Our friends and ourselves, we are convinced that human energy is wasted and we see misery, disaster and tragedy resulting from the unwise selection of occupation and the individual suffers and society pays.

"Guidance is based on the fact that men need help and to a greater or less degree we depend on others. The young people are not capable of solving life's problems successfully alone. Critical situations occur where decisions must be made and we hand simply because the conditions are changing in the home and conditions are changing in labor and industry. The speaker urged that a guidance council, educational board, public library, teachers, Y.M.C.A. service clubs and others band together and lay out a program to meet the need of the rising boy and girl."

QUESTION OF MEMORIAL IS TO THE FORE

Special Committee Takes up Letter of Mr. R. J. Graham

SUGGESTIONS MADE

Mr. R. J. Graham's suggestion regarding the proposed war memorial as conveyed in a letter to the City Clerk was referred to the Special Memorial Committee of the City Council last evening. Mr. Graham's letter follows;

MAR. 30, 1931.

Mr. Wilfrid Holmes,
City Clerk, City.

Dear Sir—With reference to my 'phone conversation today concerning the war memorial monument to be erected on Memorial Park in this city, you will recall at the union meeting, Mr. John Elliott was made chairman. He advises me that no progress has been made towards the disposal of the War Veterans' building on Front street, which the city contributed a considerable sum. The Chairman of Finance of the city intimated at the meeting referred to that the Canadian Legion who have the property in charge found it is financial burden, that the city had been unable to collect taxes and had remitted them annually and that recently they had assumed the responsibility of fire insurance. Miss Yeomans has intimated that the ladies organization of which she is a member are willing to put their money into this monument. The Parks Board have laid out a plan for its location. I would thank you to bring this matter to the attention of the city council and ask for their co-operation in erecting this monument for which we have a tender for about $12,000.00 exclusive of the foundation. If the property of the Canadian Legion could be sold, the proceeds would probably pay the most of the cost of this monument. I personally want to contribute towards the cost and have it completed this summer. If the war memorial-building cannot be sold, will the city council assume the cost of the foundation if I undertake to put up the monument in question with such assistance as my friends are willing to give.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) R. J. Graham.

GREATNESS OF BOTHA RECOGNIZED AT CAPE

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, April 1.—By the Canadian Press—In command with the unveiling of the Cape Memorial to General Louis Botha (1862-1919), soldier, warrior, statesman, first Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa, and one of the most impressive figures in the history of his country, The Cape Argus in an editorial headed "The Great Peacemaker," pays tribute to Botha's memory. The Cape Argus says in part:

"A glow of satisfaction will be felt at the unveiling in this city of the Cape Province statue in honor of General Botha. Durban set the example a few years ago. It is not through any lukewarmness of feeling that Cape Town has lagged behind, for the name of Botha is today even more revered by the majority of the people of this city and province than it was at the time of his untimely death 12 years ago. If the wide of detraction is still heard, that is hardly surprising. Not the least of the evils of the bitter racial controversies which for so many years poisoned the public life of this country was that they encouraged an unreasoning bigotry which is slow to disappear. The outside world has never doubted for one moment Botha's enduring greatness. It is only in the country of his birth, and among people of his own race that there are to be found some who would treat his memory as though he were the enemies of Washington treated the reputation of that great statesman in his own lifetime."

The memorial is in the form of a huge bronze equestrian figure, mounted on a lofty pedestal situated in Stal Plein, one of the most historic parts of Cape Town. General Botha is depicted in the uniform of a commander-in-general of the Union Defence Force. The statue is very simply inscribed with the words: "General Louis Botha Farmer, Warrior Statesman." The unveiling was by Lady de Waal, wife of Sir Frederick de Waal a former Administrator of the Cape, who was ill at the time, and in the presence of the Governor-General, the Earl of Clarendon, and the Countess of Clarendon and a large assembly. The Prime Minister, General J. B. Hertzog, did not attend the ceremony. General J. C. Smuts, former Prime Minister of South Africa was present, and prominent in the gathering was the widow of General Botha and her son, Captain Louis Botha.

Senator F. S. Malan gave the chief address at the unveiling and the Mayor of Cape Town, Rev. A. J. S. Lewis, received the statue on behalf of the City. Senator Malan referred to Botha as one of the greatest and noblest sons of South Africa, who has played an unforgettable part in one of the most eventful epochs of our history as a nation and who has rendered a great fatherland and people inestimable service."

UNION VALE

Union Vale, April 1—About 50 neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Tubbs on Monday night and tendered the bride and groom Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Brown (nee Marie Tubbs) with a miscellaneous shower. In the first part of the evening a contest (Business places and men in Picton) was greatly enjoyed. Prizes were won by Mrs. J. G. Leavitt and Mr. Arthur Tripp. After the contest, Misses Thelma Tripp and Marjorie Tubbs entered the room carrying a beautifully decorated basket, laden with gifts of all kinds. After the gifts had been unwrapped the groom on behalf of his wife thanked everyone for their kind remembrances and inviting all to visit them in their new home.

Delicious refreshments were then served. Music and a social time was enjoyed until the wee small hours of the morning. All sang, "For they are Jolly Good Fellows" and wishing them a long and happy wedded life.

HOLY WEEK IS CELEBRATED BY CATHOLIC CHURCH WITH SACRED, BEAUTIFUL RITES

"Stations of the Cross" Ancient Custom Observed on Good Friday

PROPHECIES READ

Vestments of Priests are Changed to Festive Hue

Holy week solemnities, the most significant in the year, are being held this week and were begun as St. Michael's Church on Sunday when the ceremonies of Palm Sunday were held, the triumphant march of clergy and altar boys about the church, bearing blessed palms in recalling Christ's triumphant entry into Jerusalem, the place of His sacrifice.

Holy Thursday

Tomorrow is Holy Thursday. On this morning the commemoration of the institution of the Most Blessed Sacrament is vividly brought to the minds of the faithful by the celebration of High Mass which takes place tomorrow at eight o'clock.

The church for a few minutes lays aside her mourning attitude, the vestments in which the priest is clothed and even the draping of the crucifix, which, since Passion Sunday, have been of violet hue, are today changed to the festive color of white. The altar, where Mass is celebrated, is ornamented with flowers, all symbols expressing the gratitude of the church for the institution of the Sacrament of Christ's Body and Blood.

During the "Gloria" of the Mass, a last outburst of joy is evidenced, for at the singing of this ancient hymn, the bells in the tower and at the altar are rung, but at the end of this part of the service everything once again betokens sadness for bells and organ are silenced until the Mass of Holy Saturday.

Altar Stripped

At the end of Mass the Blessed Sacrament is carried in procession to the place of repose, erected as a side altar of the Church, where it will remain with myriads of lights and flowers until the following day. During the procession the ancient hymn of the thirteenth century, composed by St. Thomas, the "Pange Lingua," ushers in the period of special adoration which is offered to the consecrated Host in memory of the Last Supper. The priest, after the procession, strips the main altar of all its ornaments to depict the desolation that took place on Good Friday as Christ hung on the Cross on Calvary. A special Holy Hour in memory of the agony of Christ in the garden will be held on Thursday evening.

Good Friday Ritual

On Good Friday morning no Mass is offered up, the only day in the year when it is not celebrated. Instead, the Church contents herself with a very ancient ritual, that goes back far into the centuries. The priest, clothed in black vestments, accompanied by acolytes, prostrate before the altar in silence, then, mounting the steps to pray for all the peoples of the earth, the faithful, the heretics, the infidels, the Jews, that all may be brought to the true knowledge of God.

Then follows the unveiling of the crucifix on the main altar which on this day is deep black. As first the top, and in succession, the arms are unveiled, the following prelude sings in the Latin, "Behold the Wood of the Cross on which the World's Salvation Hung." The old ceremonies of the veneration of the cross follow. At this point a procession is formed which sends its way to the place of Repose from which the Sacred Host, consecrated the day before, is brought back to the main altar. The hymn composed by St. Fortunatus in the year 603, the "Vexilla Regis" ("The Banners of the Kings") is sung during the procession. The priest, after reciting the Pater Noster of the Mass, with few additional prayers, finally consumes the Host and departs from the altar. The place of Repose, like the two other altars is stripped of its ornaments and the Blessed Host in this desolation is pictured in a most striking manner.

Station of Cross

During the day the Catholics throughout the world flock to the church to privately pass around the Stations of the Cross. The pictures of the Stations of the Cross, representing the passage of Christ to Calvary were introduced after the crusades in the early part of the 13th century. Previous to this time the faithful contented as an object of their lives to visit the Holy Land of Palestine but with the turbulent times which followed the Crusades, a journey to the scenes of Christ's life and death was practically impossible owing to dangers from the Turks. Then it was that the Pope satisfied the devotion of the faithful by placing in churches representations of the scenes of Christ's passion. Since then those who are deprived of a journey to Jerusalem can at least meditate in spirit on the reality. The public prayer of the Way of the Cross takes place in the evening and is followed by Veneration of the Cross.

New Fire Lighted

Perhaps the most beautiful ceremonies of Holy Week take place Holy Saturday. The Mass of this day was originally the first Mass of Easter. It was celebrated centuries ago during the early hours of Easter morning. The frequent occurrence of the words "This is the Blessed Night" are used still in the Office of Holy Saturday. The Paschal candle at the altar servers proceed to the vestibule of the church where the New Fire is blessed from which all the candles and lights of the church will be ignited. The new fire has not only typifies the newness of life expressed by the Resurrection but recalls the fire which led the Israelites through the Red Sea and their wanderings in the desert, and the first Passover.

The procession forms and moves up the main aisle, the priest holding a staff on which is placed a triple candle, which represents the three Persons of the Blessed Trinity. This is beautifully ornamented with flowers and Easter lilies. Three times the priest chants "Light of Christ." Entering the sanctuary the celebrant sings one of the most solemn chants of the church composed in the fourth century, the "Exultet." This hymn is acknowledged by many to be the most beautiful of the chants of the church and from a literary standpoint there is nothing lacking to express the note of joy on this blessed occasion when Christ broke the chains of death and rose triumphant from the dead.

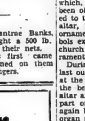
Holy Water Blessed

The Paschal candle, representing the resurrected Christ, is blessed during the course of this hymn. In the Paschal candle is placed five grains of incense in memory of Christ's wounds and the embalming mixture with which His Sacred Body was preserved in the Sepulchre. The twelve prophecies of Old Testament are read by the priest who is vested in the vestments of mourning. Then follows a procession to the door of the church by the priests and altar boys where the Holy Water and water used conferring baptism is blessed. As the priest returns to the Sanctuary the choir chants the Litany of the Saints, the priest prostrating once more before the altar until the Litany is finished.

Meanwhile the altar is prepared with festive ornaments and the Mass begins without the organ. When the "Gloria" is reached an outburst of joy is everywhere in evidence and after the celebrant intones this joyous hymn the organs and bells, silent since Holy Thursday, break forth in joyful throbs. The violet coverings which have hidden the statues for the past two weeks are removed during the chanting of this hymn.

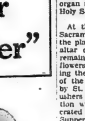
Vespers Sung

The gospel of the day especially reveals the visit of Mary Magdalene, Mary the Mother of James, and Salome who went at an early hour to tree the sepulchre. Vespers, the shortest in the year, take place at the post-communion after which the Mass is finished with the words, "Depart, the Mass is Finished, Alleluia, Alleluia."



ELECTED BISHOP

Glasgow, Scotland, April 1—Archdeacon J. R. Darbyshire, of Sheffield, has been elected Bishop of Glasgow and Galloway in succession to the Very Rev. E. T. S. Reid, who has been appointed to the Bishopric of St. Andrew's, Dunkeld and Dunblane.



Archdeacon Darbyshire went to Sheffield from Manchester, where he was a canon, eight years ago. In addition to his gifts as a preacher he is also an accomplished musician and organist. Before going to Manchester he was in charge of a Liverpool parish.

Fishermen off Ballantrae Banks, Scotland, recently caught a 500 lb. bottle-nosed whale in their nets. When sitting tables first came into use, diners reclined on them and ate with their fingers.

"I Robbed Your Dresser Drawer"

"This My Signature"

A certain city had an epidemic of house robberies in daytime. The robbers could tell when doorbells audibly anyoneanswered, they would make some excuse and depart. But if no one answered, they would break in through a window or a skylight. One such robber left his finger print on a broken piece of glass. The police knew the robber, his gang and their records. The crooks were all picked up and convicted.

Germs in Every Print

This is told to remind you that we all leave finger prints on everything we touch. Most of these prints are germ-laden. We pick them up from others or by handshake by touching things they have touched. Then we convey them to the mouth, where they breed and so get into the system.

Life Extension Institute lists 57 diseases which may be conveyed in this way. The most common is a cold. A hand used to check a sneeze or a cough may convey germs to others.

We cannot escape these germs. Every hand-shake, every touch conveys them. The best we can do is to kill these germs before they reach our bodies.

Lifebuoy Soap is made to do this. Millions of people, in all countries of the world, protect themselves in this way. No perfume, but a scent of safety which tells you it purifies and yet disappears in a few minutes. And Lifebuoy contains a germicide. Countless laboratory tests have proved that Lifebuoy kills germs or makes them inactive.

Wash your hands with Lifebuoy often. Wash them always before eating. No ordinary soap kills germs.

Stops Body Odour, Too

Lifebuoy is a beauty soap, made from two palm oils. No soap is better for your skin and complexion. Yet it offers you supreme protection against germ infection.

Also against body odour. A bath with Lifebuoy, before you go to a party or before you start the day's work, insures you against bodily odours for many hours.

You will learn to love Lifebuoy's extra-clean scent which tells you it purifies — and protects.

Keep Lifebuoy handy on your wash basin and bath so the family can use it. Get some Lifebuoy from your grocer today.

An Ontario Landmark

The completion of the erection of the 510-foot smoke stack of the International Nickel Company of Canada at Copper Cliff, Ontario, in 1929 gave one of the most outstanding artificial landmarks in Canada. It is visible from hill tops as far distant as 65 miles, while from the air it's easily picked up at 100 miles and will serve as a very helpful point of orientation for travel by both land and air.

GOLD IS KEY OF ILLS

Characterizing the economic depression as a profound perturbation which threatens the world, Viscount D'Abernon, financier and British Ambassador at Berlin from 1920 to 1926, said in a radio address from London broadcast by the WABC-Columbia network yesterday that "the world is tired of prayerful pantrits and blind hope."

Declaring that 20,000,000 men were out of work, that staple commodities continued to fall and that the debtor nations experienced great difficulty in paying their debts, Lord D'Abernon urged that energetic and unified action by the creditor nations was imperative.

"I hold," he said, "that the present deplorable conditions are due in the main, though not entirely, to the falling of prices of staple commodities. This fall has been brought about by a corner in gold payments not being available in gold and gold currency. This position can be corrected by combined action between the central banks of the leading gold-using countries, providing these central banks adopt a joint policy and take as their objective the restoration and stability as to the standard of value.

"The precise price level at which the standard of value should be established is a matter for discussion. But I must say that this should be such as will permit the maintenance of wages and salaries at their present rates. It also must be such as will render possible to debtor nations the punctual execution of their contracted obligations. The present moment is not one for cry of grave crisis, but is an opportunity for unique service to civilization. If the managing authorities of the United States and Great Britain act in harmony, they can, even without further assistance, not only avoid recurrence of such a crisis as we are living through, but taking the whole face of the economic world, restore confidence and bring back activity."

Lord D'Abernon disagreed with those who have asserted that the collapse in prices of staple commodities was due to overproduction, saying that this theory was not borne out by statistics. There had been no startling increase in wheat production, while the output of copper, silver and cotton had fallen heavily, he declared, saying the increased carrying over from year to year had been due not to overproduction, but to under-consumption.

"What has really occurred," he said, "is a hold-up in currency to make gold scarce and therefore dearer than when measured in commodities. It is not so much commodities which have fallen but the value of gold has gone up. If it were generally understood that the level of commodity prices reflects purchasing power of gold, and is in fact, nothing else but an alternate form of stating what the purchasing power of gold is, reform would be easy."

Lord D'Abernon said the idea of opposing interests among countries in the economic crisis was a profound mistake.

"We are all concerned," he said, "in the maintenance of stability of prices. This stability has been allowed to disappear and the disastrous results are felt. Creditor nations like the United States, England, France, have special interests and special responsibilities. Debtors must be able to sell their products at a reasonable price. If any one had suggested a few years ago that by 1931 the great creditor nations would have so mismanaged their affairs as to render probable an almost intolerable bankruptcy of many nations, such a man would have been thought demented. Yet it has occurred.

Fox Film Depicts Allied Method Beating U-Boats

George O'Brien, Marion Lesaing Leads in "The Seas Beneath," First Talking Version of Sub Warfare Dur ing the World War

Recounting in a thrilling manner the Allied fight against the submarine menace, and combining this with a unique romance between an American naval commander and a German secret service agent, "The Seas Beneath," Fox movietone drama with George O'Brien as the Belle the feature attraction at the Belle Theatre today and Thursday, matinee daily, reveles many hitherto unfilmed secrets of the U-boat struggle.

The story, written by a former naval officer and directed by John Ford with the co-operation of the United States Navy, revolves around the activities of a noted German submarine, the U-112, and the efforts of two American ships to capture it. of two American ships to capture it. One of these vessels, a big schooner is equipped as a "Q-ship" or "mystery ship," with a big gun concealed under a false deck-house. The other is an American submarine, escorting the schooner and maintaining telephone communication with her through a long cable. The efforts of the German spy, a woman, almost capture the American vessels and the heart of their commander.

Filmed aboard a big three-masted schooner the "Dolphin," and on two of Uncle Sam's finest submarines, the giant "V-4 and the "S-47," Director Ford has achieved unusual fidelity in his marine sequences. The scenes in the interiors of the underwater vessels were actually filmed and recorded aboard them, new types of portable sound and camera equipment being thus employed for the first time to give absolute authenticity to the picture. Dudley Nichols wrote the screen play and dialog, and William Collier, Sr., in addition to playing an important role, also staged the production.

George O'Brien, as the American commander, has what critics term acclaim as his greatest role, and Marion Lesaing, the newest film "find," is perfectly suited to the part of the German girl. John Loder, as the U-boat's first officer, makes the third side of the triangle, and Warner Baxter, William Collier, Sr., Walter C. Kelly, and Walter Catlett complete the cast. The comedy of the story, Larry Kent, Henry Victor, Gay lord Pendleton, Ferdinand Schumann Heink, Mona Maris, Nat Pendleton, Francis Ford, Hans Furberg and many other noted players are featured in the supporting cast of this unusual offering.

Glenn Tryon in a highly amusing Spooky laugh festival entitled, "Happy Little Honeymoon," Belle Sound News and "Dance of the Paper Dolls" a gorgeous Technicolor Revue will also be exhibited on the same program.

JUNIOR LEAGUE WAS ORGANIZED

Four Teams Will Operate This Year—Two in City

The Hastings County Junior Baseball League held their first meeting of 1931 season at the Y.M.C.A. last night.

Delegates were present from Point Anne, Belleville Amateur Athletic Association and Belleville Junior Moose. Owing to business affairs the delegates from Wellington were not present but assured the league that they would join.

The following officers were elected:—Past President—D. L. Murray, Deloro; President, Robert Redner, Point Anne; Vice President, Joe Short, Belleville; Secretary Treasurer, Gordon Delaney, Belleville. Executives, Walter Gerow, Junior Moose; George Gaulin Point Anne; Vernon Weir, B.A.A.A.; Ira L. Burd, Wellington.

Walter Gerow was nominated to represent the Hastings Junior League at the Annual Convention being held in Peterboro.

1. That entrance fee be reduced from $7.50 to $5.00 per team.

2. That the Guarantee of return game be reduced from $15.00 to $10.00.

3. That the visiting team take one umpire and the home team to furnish the other.

The following teams will represent the league this year:

Point Anne; Belleville Amateur Athletic Association; Wellington Legion; and Belleville Junior Moose.

The officers of the league are anxious that someone will donate a trophy to be competed each year in the Hastings Junior Baseball League.

Canada's First Paper Mills

The first paper mill in Canada was established at St. Andrew's Quebec, in 1803. They will compete in a league against Corbyville, Shannonville and Napanee.

Clayton Webb, Lionel Blaker, Jack Bush, George Jenkinson, Leo Culhane, Gerald Wannamaker, Frank Murray, Harold Mott Gordon Delaney, Arthur Rowbotham, Jack Smallhorn.

The team are anxious that Ed. Peets and Chick Barrage will also sign up which will give the Victorias considerable strength.

CHICAGO HAWKS IN THE FINALS

New York, Apr. 1.—The Chicago Black Hawks, backing up their two goals from the first game put on a close checking and speedy exhibition here last night that sent them into the final round of the Stanley Cup series, defeating the New York Rangers 1-0, and capturing the round in the National Hockey League eliminations 3-0.

Seldom did the Hawks make a sensational drive on the attack. Their speedy forwards, three sets of them, left loose with a brand of slick checking that tied up the Ranger offensive threats, and added to this was the stellar work of Chuck Gardner in the Hawks' net. This combination proved too much for the Ranger stalwarts and they were held scoreless for the whole 120 minutes of hockey in the series.

The Ranger boys did all they went down to defeat was a magnificent one. They forced the play from the very start, fought valiantly against the relentless checking and the cool-headed Gardner. For minutes on end play flashed spectacularly behind the Hawks' blue line. Open combination play was out of the question under the checking and the speed demons from Chicago cut loose, and many a Ranger thrust turned into a free-for-all scramble.

To Tommy Cook, sub wingman, night. On one of the few three-man attacks the Hawks garnered home. Adams, Wentworth and Cook drove in as nearly the entire Ranger team was forgone. Adams shot when within but Wentworth picked up the rebound, flipped it back to Cook who lifted it over Roach.

Chicago gave every indication from the beginning of the first period that they would protect the two-goal lead they brought with them after Sunday night's battle at Chicago. They broke away for dangerous rushes only as opportunities were offered. Beyond that their pack of backhounds kept up that pestering checking that held the Rangers off.

The fight of the Rangers proved the spectacular feature of the game and not until the dying minutes did they appear to fade. They threw caution to the winds in desperate effort to score, four and five-man attacks playing a big part in their play.

Find Centuries Old

Quite recently some white birch trees which had been buried for centuries were discovered in the vicinity of the village of Riviere St. Jean Gaichee, by a field officer of the Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior. The remarkable thing about these trees was their state of preservation. Specimens were presented to the Forest Products Laboratories, Department of the Interior, at Ottawa, whose officers state that preservation was due to a surplus of water and a deficiency of air, conditions inhibiting the growth of wood-decaying fungi.

BOARD OF EDUCATION DEAL WITH TEACHER'S SALARY INCREASE

BOARD OF EDUCATION PLAN TO PARE SALARY SCHEDULE DESPITE TEACHERS' PROTEST

J. Arnold Thomson is Favored as Architect For Addition

FOUR PER CENT

Board Convinced Teachers Should Forego Increases

Adjustment of the teachers' salary schedule in the city schools for this year, together with the appointment of an architect to draw the plans for the additions to the public schools here, were the two major issues discussed at a special meeting of the Board of Education at the Collegiate last night. Both problems were handled with vigor by members of the Board and particularly the salary question was discussed from every angle.

It was finally recommended that Miss Blanche Roberts have expressed an unwillingness to the interruption of their salary increases, which is provided in the agreement signed with the city, and that the salary schedule as drawn up in 1929, be re-established and adopted, and that the matter of adjusting details be referred to a joint committee of the public school management committee and the chairman of all standing committees the report to be returned to the Board.

Mr. J. Arnold Thomson of this city was favored by the majority of the architectural work for the school additions and after the matter had been discussed at length, the following recommendation was framed. Plans, Specifications, Buildings and Repairs committee are to employ Mr. Thomson, if satisfactory arrangements can be made. Inquiry has been received by him for preliminary plans and this is to be delivered from the 4 per centage figure which he is to receive. The matter must also be approved by the Finance and School Management Committees following which it will be referred to the Board in the form of a report and then ask for tenders.

The matter of a fence on the College grounds was brought to the attention of the Hon. Building and Repairs Committee. It is proposed to erect a fence on the south side to prevent pedestrians cutting across the corner.

Teachers' Federation

Mr. Ackerman spoke in support of building a sidewalk on Bridge St. Ponton felt that the corner was an ideal spot for an ice-cream parlor and that a walk would be dangerous. The matter was left to the

LEAGUE OF NATIONS STUDY PROPOSED NEW CALENDAR

Dr. Ivy Martin of R.M.C. Was Speaker at Moira Lodge

Professor Ivy Martin, Ph.D., who for thirty years has instructed in mathematics at the Royal Military College, Kingston addressed the members of Moira Lodge in the banquet hall of the Masonic Temple last night.

Though the weather was disagreeable, the banquet hall was filled to capacity, when Dr. Martin gave an interesting address on the new calendar, which has been proposed to take the place of the present measure of time.

The League of Nations is now study ing the effects of the proposed calendar and it is expected that it will be submitted to the different nations of the world for acceptance during the next year.

Dr. Martin, after giving a history of the present calendar, which dates back of the early Egyptians down, said that the proposed calendar would have thirteen months, and there would be an extra month at the end of each year which could be devoted to prayer, labour, pleasure or sleep as the individual desires.

In the new calendar the same date each month will be on the same day, that is for instance every month will commence with the first day on Sunday and end on Saturday. In this way the 1st will always be on Friday, and the League of Nations will guarantee that it will be a lucky day.

Wor. Bro. Robert Orme occupied the chair at the banquet. The speaker was introduced by Wor. Bro. W. Millet, K. C., and the vote of thanks was proposed by Wor. Bro. W. N. Ponton, K. C.

During the evening instrumental and vocal music was rendered by Ross Hunter, Frank Hitchon and Alfred Evans.

ALLIANCE CONVENTION IS OPENED

Rev. E. A. Prentice on Furlough From S. America

GIVES IMPRESSIONS

Rev. E. A. Prentice, of Argentina and Rosario, whom he had charge, the experience of fifteen years in mission work, opened the quadrennial missionary convention of the Gospel Alliance Tabernacle this evening and will continue to deliver addresses until Sunday.

Rev. Prentice last evening gave a survey of the racial progin of the people of South America. Indians, Spanish Negro and Chinese. He stated that in Argentina, writer, Dr. Bunge, had claimed that the Jews were afflicted with the three fold evil, arrogance, indolence and a misunderstood genius. Argentina has suggested, education and migration of the Nordic race with regard to education it occurs that South America attracts a number of northern mechanics who in time does not imbibe the spirit of the north and the newcomers often call "native". What is needed is something to give spiritual and moral regeneration which is found only in the Gospel of Jesus Christ. I have has the privilege of dealing with an Indian author Sir Rabindra Tagore and have seen several people who seemed to be saved and who on returning, take a new outlook through the power of the Gospel," he said.

Rev. Prentice left Argentina and he told The Ontario Intelligencer to that the city of Rosario is the largest Canada for trade expansion with the Latin peoples of South America, and has seen evidences that South America would eventually become a high-speaking country, namely Canada, to the Pan-American.

Mr. Prentice is showing pictures tonight and on Sunday night from the southern continent. Mrs. Williams of Toronto will address the meeting at 7:30 p.m. Her pictures have been shown.

The missionary worker has been brought into close contact with conditions of the southern continent and he has brought some samples of the native looms of materials dyed in vegetable colors and woven in the traditional art style of the Indians.

KIWANIS CLUB AT SUGAR BUSH

Service Club Members and Families Entertained at Frank Knight's

A party fifty strong, Kiwanians, their wives, families and guests of the club invaded the fourth concession Sidney yesterday afternoon as guests of Mr. Frank Knight, prominent farmer of Ameliasburg township, prosperous farmer of that line.

It was a most enjoyable time for most of the party. From the tapped trees to the final refining process, the party was shown the entire routine and everything was explained to them. A bountiful supper was served in the sugar camp the farm the members of the party did full justice to the meal.

Everybody took the opportunity of making some maple sugar to take away as a memento of the occasion.

An interesting interlude was introduced when a serving contest was held. Mrs. Russell Smith and Mrs. Alvin Wallbridge succeeded in securing through a hefty tug in 43 seconds, to defeat Mrs. Ivy Walker and Mrs. Ferson a guest of the club, and Mr. George Cole, treasurer of the club served a lot in the remarkably short time of 43 seconds.

NO MOTIVE IS ADVANCED FOR YOUNG ACCOUNTANT'S SUICIDE

Manager Says Books Were in Perfect Condition to His Knowledge

That Elgin William McClarty came to his death from a self-inflicted gun shot wound in the head at the Y.M.C.A. here, between 10.30 p.m. Wednesday and 1.20 a.m. this morning, was the unanimous verdict of the Jury, which sat at the inquest held into the unfortunate young accountant at the Belleville Branch of the Royal Canadian Bank. The inquest was held before Coroner Dr. Sopye at Belleville Burial Parlors, on behalf of the bank.

The Jury was composed of Chas. Rodgers, foreman; Chas. Marshall, L. C. Patrick, Isaac Gills, F. R. Wills, Wm. Black and Wm. Woodburn, Chas. Meagher.

The inquest was conducted by Crown Attorney Bryson Donnan, Secretary Treasurer Lewis Hamilton and Richard Arnott of the firm of Porter, Payne and Arnott was also furnished by those who found Mcclarty dead and Dr. J. J. Robertson.

At the outset, Mr. Donnan said, "The Jury are concerned only with the cause of death, are not interested in any possible motive behind the unfortunate act, for the sake of his family, it would not be well to press for any motive."

After the body had been viewed by the jury and identified by Mr. W. A. Parker, Manager of the Bank, the inquest took the stand.

Books Were O.K.

Mr. Parker said he had been manager here for the past two years and McClarty accountant for the past two years, for the year at work yesterday and I observed nothing unusual. What's condition were his accounts in? In perfect order to my knowledge." Parker identified the hand-writing in a note book, left by the deceased, which read as follows—Pay D. V. Doyle $35"; Mr. Doyle's name in combination of initials.

Jowsey Imlah said he received the

SHELLEY ANDERSON CLAIMING $75,000 DAMAGES OWING TO LACK OF PARK ENTRANCE

Owner of Massassaga Park Involved in Another Suit

FIFTH ACTION

Original Plans and Blueprints Introduced at Picton

Whether there is a well defined road leading into Massassaga Park or otherwise has been argued through several suits brought by different litigants during the past nine years and at the present time, there is proceeding in the Supreme Court in Prince Edward County before Mr. Justice W. E. Raney without jury, a case of unusual interest especially to the older inhabitants of Ameliasburg township. Shelley Anderson, former owner of the hotel and dance pavilion at Massassaga Park, has brought a suit asking for $75,000.00 damages against Mr. and Mrs. G. Wallbridge of Belleville, owner of a portion of Massassaga Park and the township of Ameliasburgh his claim being that he has lost that amount through the fact that he was travelled road to his place of amusement. H. W. Geary, K.C., Toronto acting for Mr. Anderson, while Chas. A. Payne, K.C., of this city is defending Mr. Wallbridge and R. S. Robertson, K.C., Picton acting for Mr. Lane of Walmsley and Lane, Picton, are acting in conjunction for the township. The case opened on Tuesday afternoon and will not be concluded before Wednesday. When the court adjourned yesterday, only the plaintiff's side of the question had been heard.

Plans and Blueprints Closed

Mr. Anderson bought the Massassaga property in 1922 and operated it for many years as an amusement park. The owners made many improvements in the park, particularly the renovation of the hotel which stood on the property. He also built a new and up-to-date dancing pavilion. This property was purchased from the Ontario Rock Company but Mr. Wallbridge owned a strip of property between the Anderson property and the main highway and in 1929 Mr. Wallbridge closed the two gates although there were gates on the property. The gates enclosed his property, and Anderson did not have access to his property and appealed to the Rock Company in a suit followed in which judgment was given against Anderson. Anderson made application to the township for a road to his park, a survey was made and the work started, but before the road reached the junction, restraining them from the work. Anderson then sued Wallbridge, the Township of Ameliasburg and Anderson, being made third party and again Mr. Wallbridge won. Anderson then brought suit against Wallbridge and the latter was again successful. The case was closed to Mr. and Mr. Anderson at the present time is trying to recover damages, that is that they have been put to the lack of road which he maintains existed. Voluminous evidence was taken at the hearing yesterday, all of a technical nature, the surveys and the plans made from original plans as well as the blueprints of the hotel evidence, while testimony was given by the older residents of that district to show that there was a travelled road into the park for some years back. Mr. Wallbridge testified that the road was never defined that the Massassaga Park property was sold to Mr. Anderson by the Attorney of Prince Edward, John Hall, Ralph Boulter, Norman Montgomery, Jean Ferguson and Ernest Hall, all gave evidence for the plaintiff, respecting the travelled road, and also Mr. Kerr, surrogate court clerk for Hastings County produced documents of former trials, when this property was in dispute in Surrogate Court.

1815 Plan Produced

Ernest Hall, deputy surveyor, was on the stand the greater part of the day, and was subjected to direct cross examination. He produced a plan of survey of John Graham's farm, the second owner of the property, which showed no road through the land. Wallbridge's property to the easterly boundary of Anderson's property.

"There are slight marks on the ground indicating a road, such as would be made by horses and buggy," the witness remarked. Certain sauwood and elm trees were used as guiding marks for the surveyor to make his survey. He also had a plan of survey in 1815 being a chancery plan drawn by Deputy Surveyor Ketchum, and also showed the park property.

It was pointed out, that Anderson tried to secure cpress from his property by the concession line in 1916 but failed in his suit.

"When did you become aware of the road survey of 1815 by Young?" asked Mr. Robertson in cross-examination.

"About a year ago."

"Have you got a copy of Young's plan?"

"Yes, about one year ago and from it made a plan, where I thought the road if continued from Wallbridge's property to the park, should go." This plan was produced.

Apparently finding that this road did not agree with the conformity of the ground another plan was drawn in October of this year changing the location of the road.

DENY REPORT THAT TRENTON AIRPORT TO BE ABANDONED

Steel Framework in Position for New Hangar

Trenton, April 2 (Special to Ontario Intelligencer)—"It is the first I knew anything about it," said C. B. Wilson, Resident Engineer, when interrogated by the Ontario Intelligencer last evening regarding the dispatch from Ottawa, which appeared in the morning issue of the Toronto Daily Star, to the effect that the Dominion Government intended abandoning Camp Borden as a Trenton Airport.

"We have had no intimation of such intention. Of course anything may happen these days but we do not anticipate any such move," said the engineer, who also denied that men were being laid off and construction operations gradually being curtailed. "Work is going on as usual at the field where some sixty or seventy men are engaged," he stated.

During the past week the steel framework of No. 3 hangar has been erected and men are going ahead with the brick work. The building of the second hangar is practically completed, while only a few bricks wanted in the erection of the large water tower. The latter is situated on that part of the airport field lying between the highway and the Bay Shore.

The Ontario Intelligencer was told this morning by a prominent town official that, in the opinion of government purposed bringing down some $240,000.00 in the estimates on the 13th of the month, for the carrying on of operations.

Twenty Six Confirmed

St. George's Anglican Church could not accommodate the number who attended the confirmation service on Tuesday evening when a class of twenty-six, fifteen girls and eleven boys, were presented by the Very Rev. Percy Heywood, for confirmation. The "Laying on of hands" service is a ritual of hoary age in the Anglican Church as performed by the Rt. Rev. C. A. Seager, Bishop for the Diocese of Ontario.

Vital Statistics

Thirteen births, five marriages and thirteen deaths were registered with Town Clerk P. J. O'Rourke for the month of March in Trenton. Three deaths from outside the corporation limits were also listed.

Those joined in the Holy Bonds of Wedlock during March were Dena Rudd to Harold L. Lewis, Daisy Evelyn Morton to M. Walter Wickett, Mary Ethel Cron to George I Samis, Jean Kathleen Young to Harry L. Harris and Eliza Jane Mannion to William H. Clenahen.

Financial Meeting

The Town Fathers met in session here this week for the purpose of passing the usual monthly accounts and transacting other financial matters. Following are the several departmental totals as passed: Finance $1773.44, Harbor and Public Works $2.15, Printing and Stationery $135.78, Streets and Sidewalks $546 — 91, Indigent Aid $27, Fire, Market and Police $1565.85.

Curling Rink Club House

The C. P. R. Curling Club are laying plans for this year for the erection of a Club House at the entrance to their Ball Park off Bysham. While the plans of the building have not been definitely drawn it is anticipated that the building will be approximately 45 ft. by 80 ft. with the basement divided into kitchen and dining room as well as dressing quarters and showers. The main floor will be utilized as a lounge and assembly.

The Club intend also to do considerable work on their ball grounds in the way of leveling and filling in. The entire playing field will be covered with cinders which in turn will be covered with a thin layer of sand and when rolled will be the height of one of the finest grounds in this district, it is stated.

Final Shoot Held

The final match in the Dominion Rifle Shoot was held at the Dufferin Street Public School Range on Tuesday with the following scores being attained: Gordon Lindsay 85, Elden Purtle 83, Douglas Kenny 82, Claude Huffman 77, Harold Bassett 73, Harold Weldon 74, Edward Burns 71, Donald Vandervoort and Horace Newton 71, and Bernard Cowan 70.

While the totals have not yet been estimated it is anticipated that Elden Purvis holds the highest average and will become the winner of DEATH NOTICE

BASEBALL LOOP MET AT TRENTON

Point Anne Only Club Willing to Operate This Year

Trenton, April 2 (Special to Ontario Intelligencer)—A meeting of the Bay of Quinte Baseball League was held in Trenton last night but unless there is renewed interest there will be no baseball in the district. Intermediate series this year. Trenton announced that the town will be unable to field a team owing to lack of material. Point Anne, represented by Frank Gore and Jim Marsden stated that they are willing to enter provided there is some opposition. There is also a possibility that they may forward their team and draw a bye waiting for the play-offs later in the summer. This plan however was frowned upon. There was little enthusiasm shown at the meeting. Bob McKinley of Trenton was elected to be named from Point Anne will attend the annual meeting of the O.B.A.A. in Peterboro on Saturday afternoon. Picton and Napanee found it inadvisable to attempt to enter a club owing to lack of interest.

body at the Y.M.C.A. at 10.30 a.m. Dr. J. J. Robertson said he examined the body and found a revolver lying alongside over the heart with the right hand covering it. The point of the weapon was in the puncture in the left breast. Dr. Robertson said that death would be instantaneous. There was no bruise on the body."

William Todman, caretaker, at the Y.M.C.A. said he was summoned by a hammering on the door of the room. "There were two men who knocked on the door and I went to the room. I looked from the inside and it was forced by a hammer. There was no fire escape, the body was lying on bed, partly covered by a sheet.

Mr. Donnan, "Do you know where to get the gun?" he was asked by Mr. Used Rank's Gun

George Clorey, messenger for the Royal Bank said that he last saw McClarty alive at 4.30 p.m. on March 31st and noticed nothing unusual at that time. "I visited his room at 9.30 next day and got no answer, I informed the bank, and Mr. Amey and myself again returned to the room. I saw he was dead when we entered although the flesh was still quite warm". Mr. Clover identified the revolver as that found in the bank during clearing hours. He said Mr. McClarty had access to the weapon.

Sergt. Arthur Booth of the city police force said he found the body of McClarty on the bed covered with sheets. The officer said he had never seen a revolver resting in a similar position following a tragedy of the kind but said it might remain so, since the body was totally covered by the bedding. He said investigation revealed that no one heard the shot.

TAX RATE RISES

Preston, April 2—Cutting expenditures, the Finance Committee decided to recommend the mill rate for 1931 at 42.50 mills, six mills higher than last year's. One of the factors making necessary an increase in the rate was the unemployment relief work, which is estimated at $2,500. Requests for salary increases were refused.

NO MORE SWEEPSTAKES

WINDSOR, April 2.—The Windsor Trades and Labor Council will not sponsor any more sweepstakes. The organization's name has been placed on two such money-raising schemes which were conducted by Chicago interests. The decision was reached at a special meeting of the organization.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

committee.

The salary question was again brought before the city teachers' have frowned on any attempt by the Board to discontinue the increment for next year.

Mr. Harry Greenleaf pointed out that the Teachers' Federation must be considered when the salary schedule is adjusted. "They are a Dominion-wide organization, and we must not trend on their toes," he observed.

Messrs. Victor Graves and John Allin were in favor of referring the matter to the Board instead of to a joint committee.

Mr. Ackerman said, "I do not believe it is in the minds of the Committee to make any drastic reductions."

Dr. MacTavish to Mr. Fred Smith who was in the chair, "I'm the proponent to deal with the teachers individually or as a mass."

"I don't know."

Col. Ponton, "I believe something that would effect them all would be less irksome and in dealing with this matter no discrimination should be shown. The schedule should be arranged so that it would be effective generally and I believe we should allow the increases but make the maximum stand. Whether this would function for this year or for all time I don't know. I do not believe that the general maximum should be touched."

Chairman Harvey: "We must move carefully and not cause dissatisfaction among the teachers. We must be careful not to offend the teachers' federation."

Mr. Ackerman: "This schedule was drawn up when times were at the height of prosperity and I think the teachers should be willing to forego their increases for this year."

Col. Ponton: "The western Boards have been salaries to the bone."

Harry Greenleaf: "We should not have the committee obliged to make a re-adjustment. Let them make the recommendations and refer them to the board."

Small Committee Better

Mr. Ackerman said there was little use of a committee meeting unless the salaries are to be re-adjusted.

Mr. Green: "Let the committee submit the proposed changes to the board."

"I believe a committee of four or five could do more with this matter than a large committee," said Mr. Barlow, "this must be done quickly if it is to be effective this year. We will get nowhere if it is not handled by men of experience."

Mr. Ackerman: "I believe the city council is under the impression that there will be a rearrangement of salaries."

Mr. Graves: "Will this be a permanent measure?"

Mr. Ackerman: "It is absolutely a new salary schedule which is proposed."

Mr. Lent and Mr. Graves were opposed to interference with the salaries of teachers in the public schools".

Mr. Ackerman: "With the new schedule if approved, effect the superannuation of public school teachers."

Mr. Ackerman: "It may possibly."

Mr. Smith asked as to possible saving which might result and Mr. Ackerman replied that no estimate could be made until a new schedule is drawn up.

Col. Ponton expressed himself as opposed to reducing married teachers' salaries.

Mr. Ackerman: "Each case must receive some consideration. Married is likely that of widows. The matter was finally left to the committee.

Three Local Men

In the matter of the employment of an architect, Col. W. H. Ponton moved that if satisfactory terms can be made with Arnold Thomson, that he be employed to draw plans for additions to the public schools in the city. "I believe he is capable and efficient and will do the work cheaper than an outside man."

Mr. A. R. Schryver spoke in support of Mr. Thomson. "He is always willing to meet the Board in every demand and his reputation and work in the past has always been satisfactory. If we make a move with local talent, we should have no hesitation in employing him."

Mr. Ackerman: "Mr. Thomson's services have always been satisfactory."

Mr. McLean: "Then if Mr. Thomson will do the work on the basis of four per cent of the contract price, he is to be employed to do the work. But he has led us to believe that he will charge five per cent, the same as Toronto architects."

Mr. Schryver: "I don't think that he should charge any more for the public schools than for the collegiate for which he will get per cent."

Mr. Barlow spoke in support of Mr. Thomson.

Mr. Schryver: "Mr. Thomson's expenses would not be as high as through the building operations were to take place in another town."

Mr. Harvey brought up the question of using a roller on the grounds of Queen Victoria School and permission was granted.

STONE CHURCH YOUNG PEOPLE ARE ORGANIZED

4th Sidney, April 2.—Service next Sunday evening at 7.30. Rev. R. D. Sexsmith, pastor.

Mrs. (Rev.) R. D. Sexsmith has returned home from visiting her sister, Mrs. Chambers, of Coe Hill.

Quite a few attended the debate at Wallbridge on Wednesday evening. All report a good time.

Mr. J. Hannah has returned home from Hermon having spent a few weeks there.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Harris were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Hall, of Thurlow, on Thursday evening.

Glad to report that Mr. R. W. Lloyd is able to be home again and is improving in health.

On Thursday night the Young People met at the Stone Church and organized a League, the following officers were elected: President, Miss Keithia Lloyd; 1st Vice Pres., Miss J. McPherson; 2nd Vice Pres., Miss Leslie Hooper; 3rd Vice Pres., Miss Ed. Phillips; 4th Vice Pres., Miss Magazine; Secretary, Miss Ethel Woods; Treas., Everett Phillips.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd entertained on Friday evening to tea Mr. and Mrs. A. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lloyd and children, and Mr. and Mrs. F. Harris.

The singing class under the leader Mr. Colclough is preparing for a sacred cantata entitled "The Shepherd of Men" to be given April 9th at the Stone Church.

As the sun grows warmer and the days longer and the slight frosty is turns one back to think of spring-making as a number seem to be busy in the bush and report a very good run so far and as we have Robin Red Breast singing his songs of Spring it makes one feelsas if it is just around the corner.

Mrs. Embury has been a guest at the parsonage during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Harris attended the latter's mother's birthday party Tuesday evening last at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Langabeer, Belleville.

It has Many Qualities—The man who possesses a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is armed against many ills. It will relieve a cough, break a cold, prevent sore throat. It will reduce the swelling from a sprain, relieve the most persistent sores and will speedily heal cuts and contusions. It is a medicine chest in itself.

"I think all writers of first novels should be given six months in jail; then only the good ones would think it worth their while to do it."—Bertrand Russell.

"Where is the gate that now stands to west of Wallbridge's property with respect to your road?"

"Your road of July was right on top of road that was in two litigations?"

"Yes."

"When did you make up your mind that the plan of July was not good enough?"

"About August 1st last year, Mr. Anderson finding fault with it."

"Did Mr. Anderson tell you to have a new road as all the other trails had been litigated that led into the park?"

The witness did not answer.

"Does your plan seven show location of gates between lots 48 and 49?"

"No."

"Then you ran your road through that gate?"

"Yes."

"Mr. Anderson found fault with it?"

"Yes."

"Was he able to tell any physical features of the ground between the hotel and the basswood trees near the Wallbridge property?"

"Yes he said he found a surveyor's pin in wood of tree."

"Was that the only word."

"Yes, I did not see the pin."

"No."

"What else did Mr. Anderson tell you?"

"He explained that land cultivated north of 45th gate was the clearing of Asa Wallbridge, you disregarded the description in this plan?"

"Yes."

"What other physical features were pointed out by Anderson?"

"A pile of rocks on lot 35. This was pointed out in August."

"Did you see them before?"

"Yes."

"Where were they?"

"Down in the ravine."

"Then the description as written by you of where the road should go is exceedingly indefinite?"

"I would not say that."

"What is your angle to the road at the basswood tree in the July plan?"

"What is the angle in the October plan?"

"About 15 degrees less than a right angle."

"Both roads laid out in July and October cross the ravine?"

"Yes."

"When you speak of near the fields of Asa Wallbridge, there is not much to guide you?"

"No."

Property Cost $7000

John Albert Kerr, clerk of the Surrogate Court for Hastings County, produced a number of documents from former trials, that were placed in the exhibits of the court. John Black told of having to open two gates to get into the park for some years. He also told of a heated argument with George Wallbridge in 1924, when he wanted to go in to get his girls. Wallbridge allowed him to go through but asked him to be out in an hour. John Henry Holmes, Registrar of Prince Edward put into court certain deeds. Anderson bought the property in 1922 for $7,000.00 and gave back a mortgage for $3,000 and this mortgage was foreclosed in July 1930. He also produced abstracts of a number of lots in dispute, the deed of Elijah Wallbridge to Asa, five lots, patent from the crown to John O'Reilly Smith, lease from David Wallbridge for 999 years for the yearly rent of one peppercorn and certified copies of documents and leases from Elijah Wallbridge to his five sons. Fred C. Pitcher, Clerk of the Township of Ameliasburgh produced certain bylaws passed by the council in olden time.

Anderson's Evidence

Shelley Anderson, plaintiff in the action, took the stand and his evidence was much the same as had been given at previous trials. He stated he purchased the property in 1922 from the Ontario Rock Company and made certain improvements and in that year had a favourable business. He stated he had access to his property through two gates, which had to be opened and closed. "In 1924 Wallbridge put the gate farther to the west and locked it and I appealed to the Rock Company for egress from my property. I also appealed to the Township council. I had a number of pleasure parties contracted for and had to carry out my contract. I paid Wallbridge without prejudice for one month to allow me to go through the gates and later tried the water route but this was not feasible and in 1925 abandoned the scheme and since that time have not made the trip. In all I spent $27,000.00."

"Did you go to the council?"

"Yes with Ontario Rock Company."

"What did they do?"

"They said they would give me a road."

"What happened?"

"Wallbridge issued an injunction against me and the township for bidding us to proceed with the work."

"Did Wallbridge tell you he sued?"

"Yes."

He told of the gates being presented to his knowledge for forty-five years. The gates were not always in the same position as at present. The court then adjourned to sit again today.

TO WAIT ON PREMIER

OTTAWA, April 2—Delegates from the Canadian Manufacturers' Board will wait upon Premier George S. Henry on Monday, 23 Sidesmen at Toronto, on Wednesday or Thursday of next week, with a view of resuming negotiations to have the Mackill Junction filled. The first injunction, started by the present, prevents the local board from raising debentures to pay its share. Decision to wait on the Premier was made at a special meeting of the board tonight.

ADMIT STARTING FIRE

Columbus, Ohio, April 2.—Prosecutor Donald J. Hoskins of Fairfield County announced last night that two convicts admitted that they started the fire that claimed the lives of 320 prisoners at Ohio Penitentiary last April 21.

Relief from Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you relish food and digest it properly.

"Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing."

Mr. Alex. Kendrick, Clavit, Sask., writes: "Constant indigestion and cramps had about doubled me up. I lost weight; nerves were on edge; I tired all the time. TANLAC brought back my healthy, vigorous self again; meals digested easily, cramps gone for good."

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation, or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get Tanlac from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you.

from the south of the hotel to the north.

"Could you find elm trees to the north of the hotel?"

"Yes there were two or three trees and some stumps." The witness stated that the elms marked on plan seven are not on the height of land.

"Then if you took your starting point from plan seven, your starting point would be on low ground?"

"Yes, I think the water from a ferry could land in the cove at the south end of the hotel."

"Was there a ferry"

"There was not on the plan of 1915 and it is reasonable to believe the ferry would run back to the cove in the bay?"

"Do you know that a ferry ran from the hotel northwards to the park?"

"Only by gossip."

"Is your road on the height of land?"

"Yes."

"Is the height of land uncertain?"

"Yes."

"If the starting point in July was right is your plan does the line to the basswood trees conform to the description you have given the court in your notes?"

"Yes."

"Would you venture to suggest that it went too far?"

"Yes, I believe I would."

MARKET REMAINS

The delamat is described as something which will take the place of market basket in the larger cities where apartment houses take the place of individual residences. It is an adaptation of the automat. It is the robot type of market where money goes in a slot and meats, canned goods and other edibles come forth.

Belleville however has not reached and it will be long before it will reach this stage of civilization. Here the good old market and market basket which have done service for generations will still be in commission, here the market will be the produce market for generations yet to be, for there is not in sight any general desire on the part of the citizens to have a contraption like a delamat to take the place of the market square. Think of the constant attendance here on Saturdays with the appeal of everything that the farm grows, offered as the vegetables and fruits grow down on the farm. Here is variety, here is the making of wholesome meals of numberless variety.

The market basket will stay, not always in its old form for motors take its place and paper often supplies the container instead of the old baskets made of cane and of wood but in principle the basket is here like the dinner pail.

GOOD FRIDAY

Tomorrow ushers in the day of the year when activity is at a minimum and thoughts are set far beyond the reaches of man's ordinary life as they contemplate the tragedy of Golgotha enacted just nineteen hundred years ago when man sent to death the Exemplar of the highest form of life which can be lived in human form.

For nineteen centuries this solemn event has been commemorated and in this age it seems to occupy more and more the attention of men and women as they realize that the way of life is largely the way of sacrifice. About these awe-inspiring events outside of the Hebrew capital have grown up morality and art so that the theme of Calvary is the most powerful in this age.

But Good Friday gives way to the joy of Easter, which combines the Christian Resurrection with the coming of spring in northern climes. Good Friday would not be complete without Easter Sunday, its crowning symbol of human aspiration for the life beyond death.

On Saturday Lent with its long drawn-out period of human error and doubtless many lessons have been learned in this period devoted in principle to meditation and the Holy Communion. Sunday will be the logical outcome of this period of trial and testing.

ADDITIONS GO FORWARD

Any uneasiness felt by members of the Board of Education as to what might be the attitude to their requisition for funds to erect additions to the two East Belleville public schools were set at rest by the council on Tuesday evening when that body guaranteed the initial expenditure and promised to raise the funds for the construction of the additional rooms.

The need is great, the council was told by its figures, and the tax situation is much clearer than many of the public believe for additional government grants will take care of a large portion of the additional annual levy raised for the additional rooms. None of this tax will be levied this year.

Conditions of overcrowding have been pointed out so that there seemed but one way to take—to accept the board's requisition which had been drawn up after due consideration.

Someone almost seemed to upset the apple cart yesterday when it was announced that even gold was a little cheaper. Talk of commodities have been falling so low as to think of gold being lower in value, especially as this comes at a time when world talk has been heard of a gold famine or at least scarcity! But no one need fear that gold will drop far, there is not enough of it.

Belleville had its Chicago-like sounds the other night with the ringing of gunshots as city police gave successful chase to a fleeting car which was suspected of having been stolen. A small city like Belleville knows more of such an incident than a city like Chicago could of anything of the kind there. Besides it is unusual here, otherwise the people would not take such interest in it.

Cleveland Plaindealer speaking of the Canadian Doukhobors who persist in spring and summer in parading in nudity remarks that the Canadian Government does not look upon a colony of these men as it would upon a Greek statue in a museum. Greeks themselves were doubtless generally not accustomed to nudity as the numbers of their statues would indicate. Naked Grecks in this age parading about in their historic scenes would be as much a problem as a Doukhobor march.'

A polecat has been developed without an odor. This may lead to a more kindly attitude to the lovely pussy which fatly walks through the woods and causes frights.

SIDELIGHTS

Grave and Gay

(Conducted by the Lamplighter)

CHANGELING

She was a stately lady,
And kept her in her place
Beside her lord and husband,
In broideries and lace.

She stepped with pretty hauteur
In pavan and quadrille.
(But once she skipped with urchins
At moonrise on the hill.)

She crooned her plaintive ditties
In verses pure and quaint;
Her lord and husband harkened
And blest her for a saint.

She was a gracious lady,
Serene to look upon.
(One night she plotted mischief
With troll and leprechawn.)

She kept the castle strictly—
The butlers and the maids;
Went all in white o' mornings,
And wove her hair in braids.

She walked to church sedately
And bent her head and prayed.
(But some one saw her follow
Where gypsy folk had strayed.)

The day before last April
The bulbered one came shoon
And off she went a-running,
All in the afternoon.
And where-at-all she ended,
Why, no one ever knew.
(But I could go and find her, Because I'm gypsy too.)

A PLACE FOR PETTING

The ideal retreat for lovers is traditionally a sylvan dell, in town, a bench in the park, discreetly distant from public paths, will serve. But young lovers must have trysts even in inclement weather, and so London is considering the building of a public palace for them. It would be welcomed by young people who are in love but out of pocket.

A wealthy backer, according to the New York Times, is ready to put up a million dollars or more to finance the scheme. George Lansbury, First Commissioner of Works, explains that the man behind the "proposition" is anxious to build a concert and dance hall, "and is willing to include the Winter garden in order to gain his object." The garden would be free, while a charge for the music and dancing would make the scheme self-supporting.

Mr. Lansbury, who is 72 himself, takes a keen interest in the younger generation. He is delighted with the idea that they may soon have a place where they can "feel at home —and yet not feel at home." "Courting in the parlor or kitchen is sometimes embarrassing," He recalls that in his younger days he would walk with his sweetheart for miles and miles—a sort of peripatetic privacy.

If a suitable site can be found, and the minor details arranged, the commissioner believes the plan will be accepted. It should be a great success if it does not become so popular—and the palace so thronged—as to defeat its own purpose.

A FABLE OF THE DOLE

There was once a factory girl who earned a modest but sufficient livelihood by joining soles to uppers. And it came to pass in the land that there was unemployment in the land, so that the factory girl lost her job and was fain to exist upon the dole. For three years she lived and thus in peace.

And in the third year there arose a lady of high degree, even one who sat amongst the rulers of the country, and she conceived the idea of issuing a decree to the end that the factory girl, being no longer able to join soles to uppers owing to the poverty of the land, should enter domestic service.

Then was there a great outcry amongst the people; and their leaders declared that such a crying shame had never been seen in the Pacific, and linking the whole with the celebration of the 300th anniversary of that day when, in a spirit of faith in the future of our country, the pioneers of the C.P.R. started their great effort.

The Canadian Pacific Railway is bringing forcibly to the attention of the people of Canada, in a series of beautifully executed and striking advertisements, the achievements of these fifty years of railway expansion. Starting with the single line turned fifty years ago, it has grown in extent and in service until now it is one of the world's greatest transportation systems on land, on sea and in the air. Its trains run on 21,000 miles of track, its ocean liners sail all the seven seas, C.P.R. ezto every corner of the world. C.P.R. press is carried by air, and over mines, C.P.R. hotels, C.P.R. irrigation, companies, C.P.R. telegraphs carry scattered thickly across Canada. —Ottawa Times.

IN THE COURT ROOM

It is nigh time that some move was made to put an end to the exploitation of crime by the press of sensational journalism. There are no limits to the lengths rival editors will go, as the cross-examination of witnesses of trial scenes and the ingenious dodges resorted to by press photographers to get them, show. One recalls the case of the miniature camera, worked by an invisible cord, which secured a snap-shot at the death chamber itself of a condemned murderer in the act of execution. It is to be hoped that Representative Armstrong will be successful with his bill, and that the example set by Michigan will be copied by other states. The bill would make it an offense punishable with ninety days in jail, or up to $100 fine, or both, to take a photograph in courtrooms for the entertainment of persons connected with trials — with or without their consent. It is reported the measure was prepared by the state's attorney-general's department.—Hamilton Spectator.

The Poet's Corner

"IN NO STRANGE LAND"

O world invisible, we view thee,
O world intangible, we touch thee,
O world unknowable, we know thee,
Inapprehensible, we clutch thee!

Does the fish soar to find the ocean,
The eagle plunge to find the air—
That we ask of the stars in motion
If they have rumors of thee there?

Not where the wheeling systems darken,
And our benumbed conceiving soars!
The drift of pinions, would we harken,
Beats at our own clay-shuttered doors.

The angels keep their ancient places;
Turn but a stone and start a wing!
'Tis ye, 'tis your estranged faces,
That miss the many splendoured thing.

But (when so sad thou canst not sadder)
Cry—and upon thy so sore loss
Shall shine the traffic of Jacob's ladder
Pitched between Heaven and Charing Cross.

Yea, in the night, my Soul, my daughter,
Cry—clinging Heaven by the hems;
And lo, Christ walking on the water
Not of Gennesareth, but Thames!

—Francis Thompson.

Letters to the Editor

Belleville, April 2nd, 1931.

The Editor,
Daily Ontario Intelligencer.
Dear Sir,

In a dust storm in the Sahara cannot be much worse than a windy day on Front Street. Dust besides being a nuisance to the public must cause considerable loss to storekeepers. Anyway as up-to-date city like Belleville should not have to put up with it. I would therefore urge the City Fathers to at once dispose of their dust sweeper and buy a motor flusher and be done with the matter for some time to come.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) Taxpayer.

Other Papers' Opinions

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY

What is the cause of delinquency? It has been ascribed to the home or the school or to some physical or mental disability. Judge Mott, however, thinks that to say there are the causes of delinquency is far from reaching the question. After many years of observation he admits that he is not able to answer it satisfactorily, and he is convinced that the problem will remain unsolved until science can tell us more about the workings of a human mind. We do not know what science can do about it. Professor Eddington, the astronomer, stated in an address a few months ago that the principle of determinism, that the future was predestined, was until recently almost universally accepted as the teaching of science, at least in regard to the material world. But today physical theory is not mechanistic and knows nothing of the supposed determinism. Looking inward to the spiritual world, he added that there was no longer any need to doubt the intuition of free will. His statement is not far from one by Gladstone, quoted in the report: "What is really wanted is to light up the spirit that is within a boy. In some sense and in some effectual degree then in every boy the material for good work in the world."—Mail and Empire.

BOOZY

In recently commenting on the origin of the word "booze," the Boston Transcript clarifies the present prohibition situation by quoting from Noah Webster's Thesaurus the various synonyms for "drunk." Unpleasant though these terms may be, they might well be brought forcibly to the attention of the youth of today who knows so little of conditions as they existed in the days prior to the Eighteenth Amendment. Here they are. Look them over:

Tipsy, intoxicated, inebrious, inebriate, in one's cups, temulent, fuddled, mellow, cut, groggy, half-seas-over, elevated, flush, disguised, groggy, beery, lopheary, pot valiant, potulent, overcome, overtaken, whistified, screwed, tight, primed, corned, raddled, sewed up, hazy, fogged, muddled, muzzy, obfuscated, maudlin, crapulous, half-shot, three sheets in the wind, under the table. —Christian Science Monitor.

AGE LIMIT TOO HIGH

When the school-leaving age was sixteen there were those who held that it was too much. It would be much better for many children to be employed in industry at that or earlier period. That criticism seems to be borne out by the results, altogether apart from the cost of expense.

A leading educationist of Manitoba has directed the attention of his government to the fact that a considerable number of pupils now forced to attend the secondary schools are really "parking." They have little interest in their work—some of them are not competent to take such studies —and they are merely waiting until they can leave school and begin to earn money. This educationist urges that, in order to obtain the interest of parents in children of this type, a charge should be made for students who do not come up to a certain standard. Nothing can be done with them, he says, without the interest of parents.

It is doubtful if such a policy would be workable. It would be found, for instance that in a number of cases forced attendance at school worked hardship on their parents. Even such a charge for that school attendance would merely double the hardship. But there is a growing feeling that the age limit might well be reduced to fifteen. This would lessen the number of "parkers" and reduce the cost of providing teachers and accommodation for them.Ottawa Journal.

A NOTABLE ANNIVERSARY

In about a month's time, a notable anniversary will be celebrated in Canada. On May 2, 1881, the first sod was turned for the Canadian Pacific Railway. Today, fifty years later, that great transportation system is stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and linking the whole Dominion together. Fitting is the anniversary of that day when, in a spirit of faith in the future of our country, the pioneers of the C.P.R. started their great effort.

Today's Verse

CIRCUMSCRIBED

Sir Winter is a bachelor.
And prided himself on it
Till he caught a glimpse of April once
In a lovely new spring bonnet

If you should chance to meet with May
With lilacs in her hair
And crimson tulips in her hand
Beware Proud Coat Bearer!

Sir Winter, crusty bachelor,
Would prove a lover rash
Should he meet June in apple-green
With roses at her sash.

The indications of worms are restlessness, grinding of the teeth, picking of the nose, extreme peevishness, often convulsions. Under these conditions the best remedy that can be got is Miller's Worm Powders. They will attack the worms as soon as administered and will grind them to atoms that pass away in the evacuations. The little sufferer will be immediately eased and a return of the attack will not be had.

Fashion Fancies

By Alice Aden

A call for color continues to be heard and answered. Ready for Spring is a lovely outfit consisting of a wine red, angora knitted frock and a short jacket of the dyed ermine. This is worn with a tan felt hat, bearing wine red and orange quills.

Glad to be turned back are the brims of the new hats, for such brims are becoming to most women because of their softness. A new Spring hat is fashioned of white taffeta with a wide turn-brim of navy blue velvet secured by a crystal and blue enamel pin.

Don't look at one of the new white satin evening coats if you are inclined to be envious, for they are expensive and fragile. Paris sends an exquisite model in white satin with a one sided band of silver fox at the trimming, the same fur being used as a border on a one-sided cape. The cape may be draped in different ways.

The coat is three quarters in length has long sleeves and is lined with dark green velvet.

Don't miss an afternoon of smartness by denying yourself one of the new black and white satin frocks. A very new model has a sheath-like bodice of white satin which dies to one side. The black satin skirt has triple flounces and is rounded at the hem.

The scarf trails in the wake of the mode and is seen on everything. It is very much seen on a bodice of gown of gold lame with a large red poppy design. The scarf runs across the back of the square decolletage, hangs over the arms and becomes a long train.

Let the Capelet keep you warm when you wear a thin frock on a chilly Spring day. Most attractive is a black silk crepe frock with a print of large yellow and orange flowers. The cape is a novel peplum and a belt of black velvet with a crystal buckle. A black velvet capelet with a bolero front is both picturesque and youthful.

Lines are forming over many Spring hats for plaids are endorsed for millinery. Very smart is a cap of highly polished plaid linen, the plaid being formed by lines of vari-colored stitching. The hat is the new and popular cuff model and the brim has a cluster of berries.

A splendid example is that team of lace and chiffon. This combination is much favored for informal evening costumes. Black lace is used for the bodice of such a frock, which has a draped neckline, flowing sleeves and is girdled with twisted black and white ribbon. The black chiffon skirt flares and its scalloped hemline is edged with narrow pleats.

African Magic in the form of the new lovely Algerian colorings is beginning to intrigue us. There is a new blouse which is in striped crepe featuring Algerian colors. The front panel has a vertical arrangement of the pattern and the neckline is deep, tailored "v".

Try to be suited this Spring for the suit will be an indispensible item of every woman's wardrobe. Ideal for day wear is a suite of blue, spongy woolen with a long roll cardigan collar in white. There is a curved jacket on cutaway lines and a slightly flared skirt.

Watch your youngster and see that she keeps her clothes neat and tidy. For the little girl who enjoys a dainty frock and knows how to keep it, there is a lovely pink organdie frock out on flaring lines. It is trimmed with appliqued linen flowers in blue and pink with tiny green leaves, and the waistline is marked by clusters of smocking.

Long for a short Jacket of fur and your Spring chic will be assured. Brown and beige lamb are used for an exceedingly smart sports jacket. It's body is of beige while the tipering revers, peplum and cuffs are brown.

Fashionably Speaking

By Lucille

Dear Readers:

Every Spring has its problems, but they are nice ones when they relate to fashion. Business women have style troubles all their own but the solutions are magnificent this season with a tremendous number of correct results.

For street or office wear nothing is quite as gay as a silk print with a floral motif. The frock must be flocthed up with intricate dressmaker details . . . darling little bows peeking out at odd angles, on the sleeve, the waist, etc. In fact, a bow's good most anywhere. Flares and peplums are equally important, for they lend the casual touch which gives a really inexpensive dress a "custom-made" appearance.

For daytime wear a soft woolen ensemble is particularly smart. If it's a suit it is very likely to have a vividly colored or even plaid jacket with a sober skirt. A darling contrast, but it's smart. Many waistcoats have graceful scarf ends falling with studied carelessness over the shoulders.

For more formal daytime wear you may choose the ensemble with the three quarter length coat. . . . Don't let it have a belt. The lines should fall gracefully and not mould the figure too snugly. Softness . . . that's the motive. Even the flare doesn't flare too much.

There are all sorts of absurdly beautiful frocks in lace and slightly stiffened chiffon. Odd shades that are neither pastel nor bright, somehow manage to achieve a fascinating "in-between-ness." Many of the costumes have cocktail jackets with flowing three quarter length sleeves and a flaring peplum. The hemlines are quite often jagged affairs, but then, you'll find quite as many even ones. Backs are equally fashionable.

Formal dresses are wildly colored, although black and white are perennially good. Colors lead, provided they are blue, red, green, or pink. The gown must have jewels. There may be a long, straight rhinestone stripe, running snakishly down the back; perhaps there will be a glittering shoulder strap, or turquoise belt, but there is bound to be a jewel somewhere.

The lines of the frock are classic in their simplicity and wickedly decollete. You must make your own selection for your formal gown but about refuses to have one. The most popular colors are interpreted in satin and velvet. But no matter how clever you adore your dress, be sure that it ends before it quite touches the floor.

Fashionably yours,
Lucille.

Male Students Out For Women's Rights

MONTREAL, April 1.— (By The Canadian Press).—The cause of women's rights has advanced a step at McGill University in the opinion of the Students' Executive Council, composed entirely of male undergraduates, of a report which recommends that women students be admitted to the council on an equal status with the men. The vote was 6-3. Women will have equal voting powers, will have representatives sitting on the council, and will have a large share of the administrative duties of undergraduate affairs if a motion along the lines of the report is passed when presented to the next general meeting of the male students.

The proposed amalgamation has been discussed for many years but has come to the fore recently with the increased activity of women on the Campus and the difficulties that have arisen in arranging cooperation between men and women.

"At present time men have their student council, the women their students' society, but there is no liaison between the two when they have matters of common interest as McGill is peculiarly has proved unsatisfactory," it stated.

The inclusion of women on the staff of the McGill Daily, in the Debating Union, the Players' Club, and other societies controlled by the men is increased complications.

The debate on the question at the annual meeting of the men students is expected to be a lively one as indicated by the fact that the brief report on conditions presented by a sub-committee of the student council. Four committees unanimous in recomending this amalgamation. At the same time it realizes that the objections emanating from men students will be thoroughly largely on grounds of tradition and prestige, and that a desire to maintain the status quo. While individually the members of the committee share these views, they consider, however, that in the interest of progress these changes should be made.'

LEADERSHIP UNCHANGED BY CHURCH LEAGUE CAGE GAMES

Bridge St., Christ Church and Holloway St., Win

AT Y.M.C.A.

Judeans, St. Georges and St. Andrew's Lose

The Y. M. C. A. gymnasium was the scene of three more hard battles in the Church League basketball series within the past two days, Tuesday evening the Judeans and Christ Church played their game scheduled for last night and this fixture was won by the Anglicans. Last night Bridge Street were successful in maintaining unbroken, their string of wins when they turned back St. Georges to win every game played in the first round. Holloway St. and St. Andrews played a very close game which finally went to the former by a single point margin.

Bridge Street St, St. Georges St

It was expected that St. Georges would give the Bridge Street team a real argument when the two teams met in last night's game as the score previous to that had lost but one game and were in a favorable position to tie up for first place. They started off strongly and for the opening minutes of play, kept pace with the set-combination. The latter however pulled away before the half concluded and ending the first when they play stopped at the end of the interval 12-7. The Bridge Street continued to carry the lead in the second stanza out-scoring the Scouts 20-10. At times the game was rough and ragged and too freely punctuated with inaccurate passing by the members of both quints. St. Georges in particular were weak on foul shooting converting on only three occasions out of a possible chances for single points. Their opponents showed too much better advantage in this department and netted on seven out four of their five tries from the free throw line.

Bridge Street—Ostrom 16, Calber 10, Counsell 2, Cole 12; Overall, Players try 2; Bell 2; Morgan 10; Lister; Total 52.

St. Georges—Embury 4, Gardiner, Burley 2, Morris, McLean, Pepper 3, Churchill, Pringle 4, Munn, total 27.

Christ Church 13, Judeans 3

As a result of their close guarding of Zeke Tobe, the main scoring threat of the Judeans, and also a marked improvement in their own attack, the Church League representatives were able to defeat the Pinnacle St. club and at the same time make the link that pursued them in all their other games. Judeans did not display the same form which they put forth in a previous fixture against St. Andrew's and the fact that the Anglicans were in there fighting with all they had and on the night in play certainly looked much the better team. The low score was the result of the very close checking resorted to by both quints during the short to be taken from well outside the defence.

Christ Church as a result of their win will be greatly encouraged to go out and win their games in the second round which will commence on Saturday next.

A slow start by the St. Andrews team cost them their game against Holloway Street boys. The opening period was all Holloway and until the final half had progressed several min utes it did not appear as if the Presbyterians would be in the picture at all. With the score standing 10-2 against them at half time the Scots men went in there to show the West Siders a thing or two and they almost pulled the game out of the fire. With less than a minute to play McMurray of Holloway scored the basket that won the game for his team. Sinfield and McMurray were outstanding for the winners while Campbell and McMurray did valiant heavy gunning for the losers.

Holloway Street—McMurray 4, Sinfield 8, Cadman 2, Harris 2, Twiddy, Martin, Moore 3, Jones 2, Laughlin, Phillips. Total 22.

St. Andrews—Ritchie, W. McCreery 6, Campbell 13, A. McCreary, Shiers 2. Total 31.

Standing of Teams in Church League

With the first round of games play ed the standing of the teams in the Church League is as follows:

WHO CAN FILL ROCKNE SHOES?

South Bend, Ind., Apr. 2.—No one took Knute Rockne seriously a few days ago as he lassoed hearty laughs by saying 1931 football prospects at Notre Dame were "sad".

But little did any of his audience "sad" they would be—not just for but perhaps down through the years.

Gone is Rockne, the great master and strategist of the game, who astounded the football world by his genius and in the sorrowful wake of his sudden departure has come a sad sense and heartbreak that at many times combine to wreck hopes far greater than those nurtured in the hearts of a swarm of husky, rollicking college boys on the gridiron.

What is Notre Dame's future on the football field. No one knows but everyone is fearful tonight. Even the most optimistic fear is not so much for the game itself and its glory but their ability to "carry on" Rockne's hopes and dreams, which so often were realized.

No one at Notre Dame, in South Bend or hardly any place cared even to talk about Rockne's successor tonight.

Two Names Mentioned

Out of the entire field, however, two stood out as the most probable choices. One was Charles "Chile" Bar nhart Notre Dame guard in 1916 and 1917, coach of the University of Florida; the other was one of the immortal "Four Horsemen," Harry Stuhldreher.

Other likely candidates, who are active service as stars under Rockne and are now coaches at various universities throughout the country, include: Edward Madigon, Noble Kizer, Jimmy Crowley, Adam Walsh and Gus Dorais.

Harley "Hunk" Anderson, assistant to Rockne last year, will probably guide the fighting Irish frankly admits he would rather be an assistant. It is probable no permanent selection will be made this year.

HEWITT BEATS FOX IN FEATURE MATCH

Toronto, April 2—Rugged strength and endurance won the main bout at Massey Hall last night, helping Whit ney Hewitt pass the time limit for the only fall of a wild and woolly struggle. Hewitt was the first to indulge in battling, but only after he survived a strenuous assault in the first half of the bout, and Fox tired in the rough-and-tumble tactics. The bout was a heavy slugging affair from first to finish, and the stronger man got the victory.

While the main match provided all the thrills for rugged, rough-house wrestling expected in one show, the semi-final was a reverse, with George Galea and Robert Fox first forging a high-class display of neat matwork which almost drove the crowd distract. The semi-final was a finished exhibition of smart wrestling by both Galea winning the decision on his aggressiveness and being on top most of the time. In the opener Al Hassen gave a greatly improved display to best Young Goth, scoring a fall in 16 minutes.

CANADIENS TO MEET CHICAGO FOR THE CUP

Defeat Bruins Last Night in Overtime Game

HARD FOUGHT

Montreal, April 2.—Montreal Canadiens beat the rugged Boston Bruins 3-2 with a sensational here last night, ending their five-game National Hockey League championship with the Canadiens winning by three games to two, a wicked cross-ice shot by Wildore Larochelle, Canadiens' substitute wingman, ended the deciding battle last night, after 19 minutes of overtime, and gave the Flying Frenchmen the right to meet the Chicago Black Hawks in the Stanley Cup finals.

The Boston Bruins were great in defeat. They were smothered hopelessly in the first period under a shifty, hurtling, bewildering attack. They got their stride in the second period and made a game of it, but in the turn, drove furiously in a terrific effort to tie the score and send

It was not great hockey, but 13000 fans were tense and tingling with excitement because of the stakes. Canadiens, as Canada's sole survivor bid for the Stanley Cup, fought desperately to stay in the running to defend the old silver mug they won last season.

Two Weary Squads

Both teams were leg-weary and battered by the four hard games they had played. Boston won the first encounter at home, coming from behind to win it to 4. The Canadiens next beat the Bruins at Boston 1 to 0. Canadiens took their first home game 4 to 2 and then went to Boston on Monday night, Bruins winning by 3 to 1.

The crippled Canadiens tore into Boston with a vicious offensive in the first period last night. Boston did not get a shot at Hainsworth till 18 minutes went by, according to the score sheet. The first period gave the Canucks a comfortable 2 to 0 lead. Johnny Gagnon scored first on a pass from Marty Burke inside the Boston defence. Lepine took a short pass from Joliat, the two combined and Lepine lifted the puck into the corner of the net.

Canadiens fired in after the first period drive, and Boston started a fighting attack that carried the play. No score came until the third period and then Cooney Weiland rattled the goal behind Hainsworth. Weiland broke through left wing, circled around the defence and beat the Canuck goalie with a cross-shot his first goal. The second Bruins' goal came from a scramble in Canadiens' defence area. Weiland took a pass from Barry and Clapper shot the rebound lifted the puck into the cage.

Canadien Goal Disallowed

A welter of Canadien players on top of Tiny Thompson shoved the puck over the line with two minutes to go, but the play was called back. There were cries of protest at the decision by then and dumping was

On The Sport Trail

Central Ontario baseball fans are focussing their attention on Peterborough on Friday night at the annual meeting of the Ontario Baseball Association, as well as that of the Central League will be held on Saturday Peterboro baseball moguls are making great preparations for the event and the delegates will be assured of a splendid reception.

Belleville Nationals will be represented by Bert Collins and Mitchell Gerow. Both will carry the wishes of the local Executive for the reorganization of the Central League with four teams upsetting Belleville, Oshawa, Kingston and Peterboro Last season the locals and Kingston played a series and while it was far from a success it kept the Central League alive. Peterboro having been without Senior ball for the past year are yearning for a return of the good old days with four teams battling for the pennant. A number of premature blocks have been developed in the Peterboro camp however who will succeed some of the veterans.

The "Peter" have named a live wire manager in "Shiner" Johnston. He is a capable baseball man. He is a fighter and knows the game from the ground up. He is probably the oldest player still in harness in Ontario and he will be sure to collect a first-class aggregation.

Johnston will have the support of a splendid receiving staff. Two of the best ball ...ches in ... years, "Frenzy" Miller, and Norman Hodge is likely to be in harness and there are few better than the same Mills. Three pitchers will probably be available in Thompson Miller, Alex Weir and "Hoot" Gibson. With the two Nationals should be well fortified in the box and infield department. All have seen service in the Senior ranks and need no introduction to the fans.

Feint Anne will not enter the Intermediate field this season which will leave several of the cement team available for the Nats. Fred Cooper will be in charge of by Harry Mills with Vern Shier slated for the receiving sack "Bob" Scott who has no peer is ready to take his post at the red light corner .. Short-stop ..might cause Manager Mills some worry since George Scott has left the city. Harry Blakely could be induced to come from the infield would be well-rounded out.

Several boys will seek berths in the outfield including Hank Cooper Cretney, Flagler and others. Alex Weir is also a smart fly-chaser and could be used in that role when not occupying the pitching mound.

This shapes up as a well-balanced line-up and the Nationals should be just as impressive as in former years. They have a great reputation to uphold on the diamond and Belleville fans are looking for them to come through.

wholesale. Chapman slashed Howie Morenz in the face with his stick and drew a major penalty for the Boston stalled effectively till he came back on the attack.

Canadiens mustered energy for a plucky counter-attack in overtime. They blazed in at the Boston goal again and again, but sturdy Shore, Hitchman defence stubbornly resisting. Boston seemed tired and waited for a break. Matty Burke rushed to Boston defensive area through centre and swung a quick pass to Larochelle on right wing. The fiery little wingman sent a whistling drive at Thompson true to the corner of the net and the game was over.

Manager Art Ross of the Bruins jumped over the boards and ran across the ice to congratulate the Canadiens, who left for Chicago today to meet the Hawks there on Sunday, after which they return to Montreal to complete the five-game

"Owners of a senior ball team here this summer has been warmly received by a large number of fans around town. There is no doubt that the owners went to see the Petes in the Central Hockey series.

The general feeling is that there are plenty of classy ball players in town, and that the senior team can carry fifteen good players and do that without hurting any of the good players.

We understand that the Peterboro Rangers will be known as the Rangers. This will be welcome news to Rangers, Joe and his son Harry Sanger.

The Entertainment Committee of the O.R.A.A. covered a lot of business last night at their meeting. Plans are shaping up well to show the visiting delegates a royal time.

There will be an attempt made to secure a big streamer to spread across in front of the theatre bearing the words "Welcome O.R.A.A. Delegates" if approached to the effect.

It would be a nice touch.

A letter of invitation will be sent to Jake Solomon, former colorful manager of the Petes, and all round good sport. Although it is not likely he can get away at this time, he would get a great welcome.

The "phone Saturday to Percy Bell Elliott of Deloro. The latter was paid Peterboro's call and again entered the C.O.H.L. He said he had written to Belleville, Oshawa and Kingston to find out what they were doing this summer.

While he had not heard from any of them yet, Bob was confident the Central League would be rounded out once more. He will have something definite to say on the matter at the O.R.A.A. meeting here next Saturday."

That Belleville was represented by a fast basket-ball team this season is borne out by the fact that the Royal Military College with their usual flair out the Y's Men are now "playing" in the Provincial finals. The White-Standard congratulates the prospects for the Cadets say!

Arrangements are made this morning that the Royal Military College basketball team Belleville will play Lincoln City Intermediates of Toronto in a sudden death game for the championship of Ontario at the Exhibition Basketball Association at Toronto on Saturday.

The previous schedule announced that the Belleville team would play on Wednesday night in the first home and home game but it is stated however that the Lincolns found it impossible to play on Wednesday night and it was impossible for the Cadets to go to Windsor on Saturday night, so arrangements were completed between the secretaries of the O.A.B.A. and the officials of both teams to play a sudden death game in Kingston. It is pointed out that in the finals it is the policy to play a round that count, but the games win.

Local basketball fans who have watched the cadets in action point that R.M.C. will be able to capture the provincial honors, one of the best wishes of local fans accompany them to Toronto.

Penalties cost the Bruins dearly in the third. Shore and Owen were on the penalty bench when Canadiens scored first.

MADOC JCT.

Madoc Jct., April 2 (By Mail)—Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hough of Frankford visited Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Sexton during the week end.

A number from here attended the play at the Trinity Baptist Church and report a fine programme.

Mr. Russell Shipley acted as chairman of the evening.

Our pastor, Rev. Mr. Truscott preached another very inspiring sermon on the signs of the second coming of the Saviour. The choir sang "Christ is Risen," and "Jesus Thou Art Coming" by the leader, a number of W.M.S. members assisted in Easter offerings.

"No single girl is as charming as she will be when she marriage ceremony is behind her."—Colonel Jacob Ruppert.

"The British love liberty for themselves; it is only a step further to love liberty for other people."—Mahatma Gandhi.

"The only thing that will bring happiness, success as it is, is the realization of accomplishment."—Henry Ford.

"In a way, neglect and poverty are fortunate. They take away the privileges of filtering away your time."—Theodore Dreiser.

RADIO FANS CORNER

Reception was rather bumpy and rough last night with occasional bursts of old man buzz. It wasn't all over two seconds though so it really wasn't so bad. Still I'm disappointed in yesterday and made a complaint on the amount of buzzing that was present. Am subjected to around Alexander street.

If the radio is to continue its success as an entertainment and educational appliance would be a shame to spoil their pleasure don't you think?

John Masefield's play "Good Friday" will be broadcast to-night during the C.N.R. program and network. Stations CFCA, CKAC are hooked up with station CFRB. This is the most outstanding program on the networks tonight, fails, so tune in.

Uncle Abe and David at 6.45 WEAF and let's hope they call it an even break on the April Fool's jokes they played on us last night. The Canadian Federation Hymn Sing, tonight at 7 WEAF and network will be used frequently have to forego the program of the Ford Sunday Evening Hour. Interpretes are putting on a good program from WJZ featuring the Columbia Symphonic Strikers' orchestra number by Del Lampe.

Rudy Vallee and His Connecticut Yankees at 8 from WEAF and to-night their guest artist will be Ray Perkins radio star. Gertrude Lee, Bob Rolfe and the boys in another program featuring Rudy Vallee's band but all dressed up in fahdy dress.

Cab Calloway at 11.15 and Jack Albin at midnight guarantee to drive the listening fans away. Only Rudy would come back, give a lot to hear Rudy Vallee and his band every night at present. Frank Crumit and Julia Sanderson at 9 from WJZ and a play from WJZ for another program of hits featuring old and new novelty numbers.

During the Radio Round-up program to-night which we will be able to get from Toronto, Ted Weems and Betty Dodge, twins known to vaudeville as "the twins" will appear to make their radio debut. Harry Jolson, brother of Al, will also be heard. Eddie Walker, banjoist, Betty Morgan contralto, and Jack Arthur tenor will contribute to the program also.

PIGS ARE FUGITIVES

Cobourg, April 2.—A dozen pigs were scattered along the highway this afternoon when a truck, driven by Ivy Symons of Cobourg, was in collision with a sedan, driven by John Hinchcliffe, also of Cobourg. Passing motorists and many of Symons' men volunteered to round up the pigs. They had an exciting time trying to get the last animal recaptured. Both machines overturned in the ditch and were slightly damaged.

EDITORS RESIGN

GRAND FORKS, N.D., April 2.—Resignation of 17 editorial staff members of the Dakota Student, University of North Dakota newspaper, were submitted to the Board of Control of Student Publications as a result of an indignation meeting held Thursday night to protest the appointment of Donald Reinoehl, Winnipeg, as editor of the paper for the publication. Joseph Carlin of Hettinger is being supported for editor by the dissenting faction.

ARCHIVIST MAKES STRANGE DISCOVERY

Montreal, April 2—By means of the recent work he has published tracing the movements of some of the 900 voyageurs who left Montreal for the fur trade and the Canadian West between 1670 and 1780, W. J. Mauvais, Dominion Court House Archivist, has been able to fix the fate of two of his own ancestors who dropped from sight early in the 18th century. They contracted for voyages to Missilimakinac, (Mackinac Island, Michigan, and died on the journey.

Here are the entries in Mr. Mauvais' book which gave him a clue to completing the family genealogy on this side of the Atlantic:

"Contract of Joseph Masnicot with M. de Crisafi and others to make the voyage to Missilimakinac, May 27, 1731."

"Contract of Jacques Massicot with M. de Crisafi and others to make the voyage to Missilimakinac, May 27, 1731."

Joseph Masnicot had already made the trip to Detroit in 1730, but this was the first voyage of Jacques. He died in 1732 went to Fort Ponchartrain, Detroit, and Joseph married Isabelle, however, and Mr. Masnicotte is the only living descendant.

All three brothers were of the first Canadian generation in the Masnicot family, being some of the first Massicot, who came from the Loire district, in France, and first landed in Champlain county in 1692.

The spelling of the family name changed around 1853, Mr. Masnicotte said. It should be "Massicot" as set forth in the voyagers contract, but one of the clerks that came to Montreal succumbed to the variation partly through the fact that the Champlain county schoolmaster of English speaking descent thought the name should be partly through documents made by Mr. Masnicotte's father with a focus family named Masnicot for whom he worked in Toronto in his youth.

Nobody Loves a Skinny Woman

Gain pounds of weight in few weeks with new IRONIZED YEAST—a special combination of Iron and Yeast—2 times more iron — or pay nothing

Thousands are amazed at quick benefits of new Ironized Yeast. They quickly get pounds of good firm flesh in few weeks. Tired, weak, nervous people become "fit as a fiddle." Blemished complexions changed to clear, rosy smoothness. Constipation, indigestion, disappear. Why not get Ironized Yeast work so quick?

Ironized Yeast is 7 times richer in iron — special weight-building dried yeast — than meat and blood-enriching strengthening iron. The yeast is the same used in making malt and in which tonics make so beneficial. It is specially cultured and concentrated to give the utmost in flesh-producing value. Double-tested for strength, purity and potency. Used by doctors and big hospitals.

Then this concentrated dried brewer's Yeast is added three kinds of iron — and something from 5 to quickly make rich, red blood and tone up nerves and muscles. By this special combination of Iron in tablet form more effective than yeast or iron taken alone, in raw foods, in ordinary tonics or gas-forming fillers.

Day after day, skinny, nervous, tired—if you suffer with constipation, indigestion, pimples, skin blemishes, a muddy or blemished, start Ironized Yeast today. Pleasant little tablets before meals. Don't accept substitute or cause gas or bloating. Never spoil the appetite.

Go to your drug store today, get a full size package of Ironized Yeast, and take the little tablets as directed. If not delighted with quick results, your money promptly refunded by manufacturer.

KIWANIS CLUBS SEEK TO CURB ACCIDENT RATE

Chicago, Apr. 2.—A safety campaign to decrease the number of fatalities due to traffic accidents in the United States and Canada, in part by the use of safety devices, is sponsored for Kiwanis International, will direct the campaign.

"There will be 36,000 motor vehicle deaths in the U.S. and Can. in 1931 if something isn't done immediately," declared Mr. Guernsey. "During each month of this year 3,000 people have met death in the automobile and 100,000 more have been injured, and more people were killed in 1930 than in the year before.

"There are no two provinces in Canada, and probably no two states in the U.S. that have the same legislation governing the automobile and its incidental uses. Therefore, the Canadian "Motor vehicle traffic has become a universal problem and that there is a need of a uniformity of laws for investigation and decrease in accidents and deaths."

Kiwanis and Kiwanis Clubs aim to study traffic codes and inspect regulations, urge adequate examinations for drivers, sponsor safety driving-life propaganda, erect danger and warning signs, and do other safety work in their committees during 1931.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL AND PARTY WILL ARRIVE SHORTLY

JILTED

By Margaret Widdemer

Helen's anger vanished, as she remembered pityingly, a hundred things about Ronny. The awkward ungainly boy of fifteen who read poetry and occasionally burst into flares of passionate protesting socialistic talk. Who worshipped his mother's memory, had temper and all. Whom Miss Tried to turn into her own idea of a conventional little gentleman, and, failing, left entirely alone. Ronny hunched over some deep book, tossing his mop of curly hair out of his eyes; Ronny refusing sugar in his coffee because there were starving Armenians; Ronny, just as Armenians became fashionable, coming with a vase he had had bought with enough money to keep his coffee supplied a couple of years, because it was a lovely shape; Ronny, banging round you one minute passionately, flinging away the next because you hadn't given him something you didn't know he wanted....Ronny, always hungry for something spiritual that nobody knew how to give—and finally finding it in sacred Immaculate Feva Millikan.

Helen had always been fond of him;—though she felt toward him, occasionally, the annoyance naturally obliging people do feel for moody and impatient ones who go their way and won't ever explain or explain—unless one may call their poems an explanation. And Helen always felt like an eavesdropper reading Ronny's poetry.

"Ronny," she said with her usual elder sister firmness, "what on earth were you trying to make Doris do?"

"Oh, it's only you, Helen," he said with relief, closing the book and the pencil of light from the shutter. He looked badly, thinner even than before, more pallid and sunken-eyed. He spoke with a dispirited frankness. "I was trying to get Doris to run away with me, and she wouldn't because I'm broke."

"Oh, Ronny dear—" Helen's irritation with him changed to affection young tiredness and unhappiness. "That is all the trouble about?"

"You know Nina cut my allowance unless I'd explain, and I won't." He spoke sullenly. Helen remembered it all so well! Nina, cool and hard and logical, handling oversensitive Ronny without gloves and Ronny resentfully shutting up like a clam.

"Won't you tell me, now, dear, after it's all over?"

"The same old Helen, always trying to manage people out of their troubles! As though you hadn't enough of your own! Well, it's the same thing I shouldn't. That's all I'd tell the Angel Gabriel or you or a United States marshal. And Nina has spread it all over town that I'm a disgraced wretch, and everyone's down on me."

She did not take all he said seriously. Nina wouldn't do anything that bad. Nina was given to having a chip on his shoulder.

A flash of dazzling white light from somebody's car suddenly drew them both clear against the blackness of the shrubbery, then left them in the dark again, just as Ronny had bent and kissed her in his accustomed rough brotherly fashion.

"Don't. You put my head out," he said. "See here, don't tell anybody I was here to see Doris. It would get me into a mess and her too. A worse one, I mean. I promised not to. I'll see her, don't you tell on me. You're going Doris away, poor kid, and you'd better not be seen with me yourself. For a while."

Helen sighed. "Of course I promise, Miss Louise wouldn't do anything. She'd rather die than to death, she loves her. Doris just has a talent for being frightened, the way you brew, Ronny, for being a mule!"

He laughed at that, a little more willingly, and was gone in the dark, before she could ask anything further. She sighed and made her way up the path along the side of the house to the front, made one step up on the low-set porch, and saw a dark shape standing there. Really, you found somebody everywhere you turned—

It was only Ethan, leaning against the side of the door smoking a cigarette: Ethan—and everything turned happy and sheltered and unworried again. "Oh, were you waiting for me?" she said gladly. "They weren't long when I came out. Come in."

But his voice, when he answered, was the old cool clipped half-scornful voice of that Ethan she had nearly forgotten. The Ethan who used to watch her with that annoyed admiration that had stung so; the Ethan who didn't quite trust anyone named Heather any more.

She was the old sickened, frightened Helen again. The shelter and delight and comradeship dropped away. Everything in the world vanished. She had to keep her word to Ronny. "I don't see why it was!" she said sed, going straight to the point.

His voice was icy still.

"I want to tell you. But I promised not. It was somebody else's lover.... Oh, please, don't distrust me—"

His face softened. "Everybody kisses everybody nowadays. I forgot that. All right, Helen."

She was about to cry out that she wasn't one of the girls who kissed everybody casually. She was nearly an old-fashioned girl when it came to sin. But—almost not. If she did she would betray Ronny.

"And you're beautiful—My heroine, you're beautiful." He spoke pedantically of a sudden, not like the impassioned Ethan she knew at Scandiful and young and gay and easy to kiss....

He bent suddenly. His arms were like steel around her soft body; he had thrown down the book on her breath her cost, against the softness of that satin. She had never thought a hold could be as unbreakable as this. She made one faint protest.

"Oh, Ethan, not that way—oh, Ethan you must not—you're in—"

But only held her faster, and bent down to her lips in the darkness. She closed her eyes, flashing by what his mother had said proudly "the Kingsways are wived for a little way—yes—then steel—and then fire!" And as Ethan's hard, close kisses fell on her lips, she knew what all Kingsway's had meant.

Only that romantic, sentimental old phrase could describe the thing she was learning had been in Ethan's arms. The light love she had known was nothing to the intensity of this; it held her to Ethan Kingsway as she had never been bound close to anyone in the world. For the moment the flame that crept through her at his hold stood belief in him, faith in him; and he kissed her half in passion, half in anger.....Oh, no, no, that wasn't true, it couldn't be true. Her faith in him said she must not believe even that,...and then she remembered nothing for the moment but his arms, at once passionate and sheltering....

"I love you—you love me——" he said, and swept her closer. He laughed a little, triumphantly, as she tried to draw away.

And then, as she stood, half drawn from his arms, for a second time that night light fell all about her. The front door was flung wide, and a group of men and girls stood there. Helen tried to hide her face. But he held her hand with his, and as she glanced up at him, she saw that he faced the group with a face flushed still, but with his usual courteous control; even proud, even debonair, even smiling.

"It's rather an informal announcement, we're making them, isn't it, Helen?" he said. "I hope you don't mind?"

The sale of greeting, of wonder, of congratulation was over. It had been congratulation with a subtle note of respect in it. Helen realized suddenly. She had never thought, in the hidden enchanted days in the garden with the Kingsways, just how much of social control marriage to Ethan Kingsway would mean.

Finally they were alone in the car together again, rushing down the road in the crisp starry evening wind. Patricia on the back seat was nearly asleep. Ethan, his eyes ardent, turned impetuously to Helen, taking her and ungloved on her knee.

"Ethan," she said, with an effort, "it was very sweet of you to do that...But I don't want love on an impulse, and I don't want to have your love at all, unless you can believe in me. I—Oh, I couldn't stand it! Because—I believe so in you."

Ethan coldened; he spoke sadly and effortlessly as he did most things, but his face gave a jerk under his surprised hands as he checked it beside the road.

"Why, Helen!," he said. "I know it was taking too much for granted. Forgive me. But—don't talk on the way over—You know I loved you. I thought you loved me. It was a crazy way to have it happen. But there wasn't any crazy thing to it. Rather the reverse, I should think; I think I had a sane head.

She dared to look at him; his face turned to hers was warmed, made gay with happiness. He bent to her. His arms went around her again, she felt his lips on hers and everything was suddenly good and joyous and right again. She spoke into his shoulder;

"I thought—you were angry because you saw me being kissed by—I promised not to tell you who he was, even. I thought you'd go back to not trusting people named Heather because of Nina—and had to love me, just the same—against your wishes. Couldn't stand that."

"But, Helen, don't you know what you are to me? The King of Spain's daughter from the old rhyme! The most wonderful, the most perfect! The princess from the legends, always!... Helen, I'll explain. For a flash I was angry. I had just come to feel that you were mine, nobody else's, I hadn't even kissed you—and then, I saw who it was—young Bigelman. I'd heard he was in love with you. I spoke and acted out of—jealousy, first, I suppose—and then nothing more or less than the immediate, intense desire, to know you were mine ,to have you in my own arms."

"Ethan! It is getting fearfully late for quiet little Kingsway Village. You must take me home."

After he had left her, she sat a long time not seeing anything but the happiness that had come to her; the happiness in which she was wrapped, surrounded—safe. That was it. Safe! Safe with this courtesy of Ethan's that was chivalry.

"He thinks I'm wonderful now, because he didn't think I was as good as I was, before. Oh, I must try to be very, very wonderful!"

Patricia flew at her, of course, with shrieks of delight, when, trying to look as if nothing had happened Helen came into the study next morning. But it was no use—her yellow-brown eyes were more alight than usual, and her tall, slim body into its sedate smart brown cloth dress white-collared and white-cuffed, moved more lightly, more happily than it had. Patricia had a hawk's eye for differences.

"Why, you look all pleased and happy! I knew you'd like the idea of marrying Ethan once you got used to it," said this amazing child.

"Who told you?" Helen demanded.

"Marietta. Everybody in the house knows. Didn't you notice anything when Marietta let you in? Ethan must have told Cousin Ada last night. She was as pleased—you'll see. And Cousin Ada told Marietta when she was helping her to get to bed. And, of course, Marietta told the cook and Andrew and Gladys."

Patricia was excited to her depths by what had happened, and it took all Helen's strength of mind—which wasn't so much at that, today—to pin her down to a copybook. But Patricia won out after all: for they were scarcely settled together at the long, low carved library table, before the door opened, and Mrs. Kingsway's slender figure stood there. She was smiling and holding out the hand that was not needed for her cane, with that radiance of happiness over things she liked which had at ways made Helen love her so.

"I wasn't going to be official," she said. "I thought I'd give Ethan time to break the news, and oh—dear Mrs. Kingsway—I was as near as nothing not coming at all this morning."

Mrs. Kingsway kissed her.

"I'm very glad you're going to belong to me," she said sincerely.

Honestly, it's too much good luck!" Helen said naively. "To be as crazy over you as, I am, and get to be a relative."

"You're going to be my daughter and I'm going to be your mother. And when I think," said Mrs. Kingsway, settling into the biggest armchair with a sigh of relief, and lying back in it, her lined, sallow but dominantly bright face and great knot of red hair light against the dark leather, "when I think of the girls I was simply terrified to death might have been her—and it's you, you blessed little Helen! I know I'm being ungrammatical, but I'm gladder than I'm calm."

There wasn't need for an engagement to announce anything this time. As Ethan had said, the announcement as the door and the news to Kingsway in general. To her surprise, she found that Mrs. Delamater joined the chorus of admiration.

"Dear little girl," she said, "I'm so glad you're happy! As one of your oldest friends, you must let me do everything I can for you. It would make me so happy if you were married from my house."

Helen stared at the squatting coolness of it, and was nearly too late in her amazement to keep Mrs. Delamater from accepting it as a fait accompliated. Fortunately she found time to say:

"If my cousin isn't back in time, we plan to be married very quietly at Miss Louisa Millikan's. But it's sweet of you." And she ran, before Mrs. Delamater could do more than call after her, "Tell Mrs. Kingsway I'm running in to talk it over with her, very soon!"

Mrs. Kingsway, when told, lifted an eyebrow.

"There are points to inflammatory rheumatism," she said naughtily. "It has kept me from the pleasure of Lydia Delamater's calls for seven years past, and I think it is still in good working order. You'll have to learn to steel yourself against social climbers, Helen dear."

Patricia began to find her time with Helen more curtailed than she liked. Ethan did not keep so strictly to office hours down at the garden. His car (Helen had always listened for its sound, she knew now) would be heard coming in, before Helen left Patricia; Ada and he would keep Helen, nothing loath, for dinner; after dinner the three of them would sit together around the fire in the big hall, or, more often, in the library, talking together of little things, or not talking, as many friends may. Sometimes they would play bridge with Mrs. Kingsway, who was a brilliant player. Sometimes Helen and Ethan would get out the chessman, and play, Mrs. Kingsway watching them lazily, or perhaps playing Canfield, or pulling some old book out of the case nearest her and reading a scrap to the chess players.

TWO HUNDRED DOLLARS WAS HIGHEST PRICE PAID AT SALE HOLSTEIN FRIESIAN CATTLE

Fifty-three Head of Cattle Disposed of By Auctioneer

AVERAGE PRICES

Sale Continued for Five Hours in Big Tent

Fifty-three head of pure-bred, tuberculin-tested Holstein Friesian cattle changed hands yesterday afternoon at 21st annual sale of the Holstein Friesian Breeders' Club of Belleville district. Despite a rather cold, blustery day a large crowd had begun to assemble at the rear of the Belvidere Hotel where the sale was held every year by one o'clock and auctioneering started promptly at two.

Prices this year were not nearly high as an average as those brought at the sale last year. Money is a good deal tighter, it was explained. For nearly five hours Norman Montgomery, the auctioneer, from Toronto, tried to stir some bidding enthusiasm up in the large crowd that was gathered around the ring-side but offers were slow in coming and prices low on display. All cattle were from fully accredited herds and were negative to the test.

The sale was finished about six o'clock, while in other years bidding has gone on until after seven o'clock. Following is a list of officers, executive committee and consignors. Appended below are cattle sold and the price paid for them.

Geodetic Exploratory Work

In doing reconnaissance or exploratory work for the surveying on of its Labrador section the Geodetic Survey of Canada, Department of the Interior, obtains a great deal of information concerning undeveloped country, including findings and locating hills or mountains, existence and the location of water routes. When a triangulation scheme is laid out attempts is made to choose a series of outstanding hill tops or summits to be used for station sites that will most economically and thoroughly cover the area in question. This is also the objective of those who lay out schemes for forest protection, and if it happens that triangulation has already been done, these station sites will make excellent locations for fire lookout towers since they have a good command of the surrounding country besides the fact that their locations may have previously been accurately determined.

POLICE SCOUR SWAMP AREAS AT HAMILTON

Three Men Finally Captured Following Bloody Battle

BRUTALLY ASSAILED

One Officer in Hospital—Another Suffering From Shock

HAMILTON, Ont., April 1.—Police today scoured all the swamp area west of this city in search of members of a party of brutal motor thieves whose crimes during a long chase in the early hours of the morning have aroused the officers. One constable is in the hospital with a broken leg and body and facial injuries while another is suffering seriously from shock.

Shortly after midnight, George Fields reported his motor car stolen. Motorcycle Officer John Arno spotted the car, travelling at high speed on the Paradise Road and the driver, seeing the officer, attempted to swerve into the entrance of McMaster University but instead turned the vehicle into boggy land. Arno rushed up and grappled with the two men, struggling to handcuff them. Suddenly he was attacked from behind and beaten into unconsciousness. When he recovered his gun and baton were gone and the assailants had abandoned car. The officer gamely tried to renew the search and rode almost two miles in his machine in search of help. As he and a fellow officer were returning to the scene of the attack Arno slumped into unconsciousness and his machine crashed into that of Officer William Thorbourn, painfully injuring both drivers.

About thirty officers later assisted and after an organized search of the swamp Sydney Gale, Toronto, and Peter Kitson were captured, while William Goodale was arrested at his home. A further search for other members of the gang is continuing.

GEORGEOUS EARRINGS OF RIDEAU HALL

Toronto, April 1.—Canadian dollars and workmanship, went into the production of the ornate pair of earrings which is the token of the women of Canada to the most popular chatelaine of Rideau Hall and Canada's record first lady. The earrings are valued in the thousands and are marvels of workmanship.

A most interesting feature of the jewels is that they are made for wearing in pierced ears. Her Excellency has all her earrings made after this fashion. There are 64 diamonds and one large lustrous emerald in each earring. Their great beauty and charm are easily visible but the slightest motion of the head, the earrings having been made flexible. To do this, the craftsman had to make 226 individual pieces of platinum, in which the jewels are set. The platinum, incidentally, was mined in Canada.

The style of the earrings is baroque or romantic in design and feeling, being long and tapering. The diamonds came from South Africa and the emeralds from the United States of Columbia in South America. The emeralds were cut in British India.

The formation of the earrings includes 12 marquise-cut diamonds or "navette," as the French say, which means of shuttlecock shape. Each of the ear-pieces contains one emerald-cut diamond to match the cut of the emeralds themselves which are remarkable for their luster, depth of color and freedom from blemish. "It is easy to find a flawless diamond, but almost impossible to find a flawless emerald. These are remarkable in this respect," said incustodian of the jewels.

HER BACKACHE RELIEVED AFTER USING TWO BOXES

Says Mrs. R. Richardson Of Dodd's Kidney Pills

Orderly Lady Found Them to be Just the Remedy She Wanted

Lamont, Que., March 26.— (Special)—It is with true enthusiasm that Mrs. R. Richardson, a resident of this place gives her opinion of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I have been suffering with a lame back and after using two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills I was entirely relieved. Many thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are the best remedy I know of for Lame Back."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have become popular all over the country because people have tried them and found them good. They are purely and simply a Kidney remedy.

To enjoy good health your Kidneys must function properly. Do you realize what an important part your kidneys play in your bodily health and length of life? Sluggish kidneys play in your bodily health and length of life? Sluggish kidneys permit waste impurities to remain in the blood and cause slow poisoning of the system.

Stimulate the kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills, the kidney pill that has been winning new friends for over a third of a century. They are endorsed from coast to coast.

Council Gives School Board Guarantee Sought

Puts $3,000 at Disposal of Board, Guarantees Cost of Additions

The amount of $3,000.00 was ordered placed at the disposal of the Board of Education by the city council Tuesday to procure plans and specifications, tenders for the new proposed additions to Queen Alexander and Queen Victoria Public Schools and the council agreed to furnish the necessary funds for the erection of the new additions, the amount not to exceed $140,000.

The resolution to this effect was brought into the city council last evening by Ald. Tice and Ald. Kinnear. Previously the Board of Education had met the council in committee in support of a requisition for funds for the construction of two additions.

Chairman Wm. Harvey of the Board of Education made public the announcement to accommodate both the two schools. Queen Victoria and Queen Alexandra School.

Each class according to regulations is allowed 40 pupils but in Queen Victoria School the registration is now from 42 to 51 for the ten classrooms and the assembly room. There are 501 scholars attending at Q.V.S. Besides there are 91 scholars attending at King George School as a relief measure and 40 new scholars will enter at Easter. This brings the registration at Queen Victoria School up to 632 after Easter. Under the law only 450 can be taken care of at the school leaving an excess registration of 182 to be taken care of by new accommodation.

In Queen Alexandra school the attendance is 686, there are 49 other scholars who are accommodated in the collegiate and 45 new scholars are expected after Easter, bringing the total up to 780. The school on the basis of 40 scholars to a room can take care of only 360. Eight of the eleven classes have registrations running from 46 to 53 scholars.

JAILED AFTER ACCIDENT

Guelph, April 1—Found in an overturned automobile on the Guelph Hamilton highway, early today, Edward McGregor, of Stratford, was convicted in police court of driving a motor car while intoxicated, and sentenced to 15 days in the county jail. A companion, Charles Beattie of Listowel, arrested with McGregor faced a charge of being intoxicated and was fined $10 and costs. Both occupants escaped injury.

ESTABLISH FARMING SCHOOL IN EAST

Winnipeg, Apr. 1 (By The Canadian Press)—A. G. Cummings, writing from Jaffa, Palestine, to the Tribune, says:

"To Canada belongs the distinction of establishing the first agricultural school for girls that the Near East has ever known. It is no small distinction either. Twenty-five years ago such a school would have been thought of. Now when you see it in operation, as I did, at Nahalal, in the valley of Armageddon or Esdraelon, with its strong, healthy-looking girls clad in gymnastic costume for work in the fields, you can hardly believe you are in the heart of part of the world where for centuries women have been looked on either as little better than beasts of burden or as something to be kept veiled and shut up in a harem.

"We have 70 girl students here at present," the principal said. "Most of them are educated free, thanks to the generosity of the Canadian Esdraelah which provides a budget of $15,000 a year. The girls learn all branches of agricultural work though we employ male help for the heavier duties. They are educated in domestic science, in household management and in fact in everything that is likely to be useful to a woman who wants to live on the land.

"We take girls here from the age of 11 to 20 for a term of years course. Already we have sent out about 30 qualified girls, many of whom have since married. They are putting their knowledge and skill into practice in the co-operative and other settlements. We have 500 dunams of land around the school and here we train our girls in the management of cow-sheds and dairies, in grain growing and poultry farming, in plantation work and the care of plant nurseries, etc."

Persian Balm is irresistible. Fragrant as summer flowers. Cool as a mountain spring. Wonderful for creating. Softens and whitens the hands. Makes skin soft-textured and youthful. Used by women as a powder base and as a poudress aid in keeping complexions. Used by men as an effective hair fixative or shaving lotion. And for children, for itching soothness and protects their tender skin like the delicately cool Persian Balm.

CAT GETS JOB FROM BERLIN AUTHORITIES

Will Have Official Positions as Rat Catchers

Berlin, Apr. 1 (By The Canadian Press) — The efficiency of certain German cats which have no other home than the Central Market at the Alexanderplatz, Berlin, has so impressed the market authorities that the town has decided to appoint twenty-four of them officially. They will wear special collars and receive daily rations of milk and a certain amount of food in return for their services. The collar is to be of leather, and the city colors of red and white have been suggested as suitable. They will rank as municipal cats, and must on no account be roughly handled or shoo'd away by lads attached to dealers who attend the markets. Their care and keep will cost the city less, it is estimated, than the rat poison laid down at officially-controlled intervals. Strangers poaching on their preserves will be considered fair game for the city dog-catcher, who has hitherto not been empowered to seize the collarless cat at all, but will henceforward take up any cat found wandering in the central markets. What is to become of the families the 24 may be likely to produce is a question the city fathers do not feel called upon to answer.

MEMORIAL FOR CANADIAN DEAD

Shorncliffe Will House Tablet To Local Heroes

London, April 1—The Army Council proposes to incorporate in the new building of the Army School of Education at Shornciffe, Kent, a memorial to the men of the Canadian Expeditionary Force who lost their lives in air raids in that vicinity.

The memorial will take the form of a suitably inscribed bronze or stone tablet to be placed over the main entrance to the building. The school is situated in what was part of the camp occupied by Canadian troops during the war where nine feindal casualties were caused by enemy air raids.

Military records show that men of the Canadian cavalry, artillery, infantry and army medical corps were killed in this area on three occasions, viz: Oct. 31, 1915, 24 Otterpool; May 25, 1917 at Dibgate, and 28, at Shorn's Plain and August 22, 1917, at Ramsgate.

End Piles Quick

No Salves—No Cutting

Your itching, bleeding, protruding piles will go right to the seat and remove the cause—dad blood circulation. Stop the itch, shrinking and not one minute before. Salves or cutting can't do this—an internal remedy is needed. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds because it goes right into the circulatsp, drives out congested blood, heals and restores normal blood parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record right in this city that J. S. McKeown's Drug Store says one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile agony or money back.

How to Get Relief From Catarrh.

If you have catarrh, causing headache, or head noises, go to your druggist and get 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength); take this home, add to it 1-4 pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take a tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to make, tastes pleasant and costs little. Every one who has catarrh should give this treatment a trial. You will probably find it is just what you need.

EVER TRY TO START A COLD CAR?

. . . EVER spend half an hour cranking the car on a frosty morning? Good exercise . . . but mighty bad for the disposition.

Ever consider the idea of lining the garage with TEN/TEST and shutting out the frost o'nights?

You can do it easily. The cost is almost negligible, but what a difference it makes!

TEN/TEST is so easy to work. Saws and nails like lumber. Five-eighths inch of perfect insulation and strong and solid enough to last a lifetime.

Let us tell you how to make your summer garage into an all-year garage. TEN/TEST.

Little Benny's Note Book

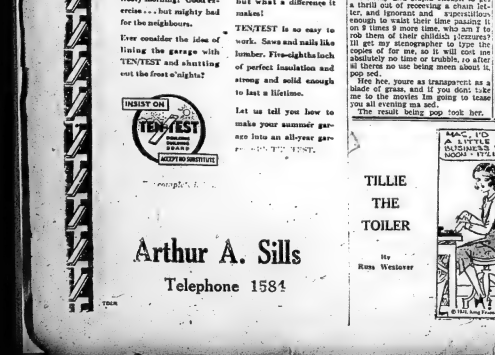
Pop fell warm after supper, and he took his coat off and hung it on the back of a chair. Giving me a idee, and she got mad felt the inside pocktt while pop was looking up at the ceiling and, says, sayins: Ha, ha, just as I thawt, youve still got that chain fixed I sent you.

O, was that still in my pocktt. I aint now I havent had time to tear it up, pop sed.

My goodness, does it take an infinite etendin of reasoning to tell a ma sed. Youre as superstitious as pussy cats. Suppose I told you dont copy it off and send it to 9 other people youll have bad luck, I can see through you just like a hole in a dane wall, you can fool me. And not yet I remember youre very words at though it were yesterday. Pop sed if you ever received a chain letter would tear it up with plezure, she sed.

And so I would, pop sed. I will pop sed.

Why dont you then? ma sed, and pop sed, I will.



Will you give me permission to tear it up for you? ma sed. It cant bring me bad luck as long as I am sure the one that gave me permission, because youre the one that received the letter addressed to yourself in the due course of the mails. Do you want to tear it up for you, Willyum? she sed.

Why not, its nothing in my life, pop sed, and ma sed, All rite here it goes in little unrecognizable fragments and pop sed, Hold on. wait a minnit.

What a matter? ma sed, and pop sed, After all, who am I to judge people? If there are a lot of superstitances silly and stupid enough to get a thrill out of receiving a chain letter, and ignorant and superstitious enough to want their time passing in on 9 times 9 more time, who am I to rob them of their childish plezures? Ill get my stenographer to type the copies of for me, so it will not use absolutely no time or trubble, to after all theres no use being meen about it, pop sed.

Hee hee, youre as transparent as a blade of grass, ma sed, I can see how he to the movies Im going to tease you all evening ma sed.

The result being pop took her.

TOOK FIVE YEARS TO GROW, MATURE POISONOUS PLANT

Montreal, April 3—Thaw and hope fiend weather had the unusual effect of dashing the hopes of a man who went into the stenographers' department of the criminal courts a short month of the criminal courts a short time ago to find out if, on the dismal failure of his first get-rich-quick plan, he was not actually a criminal.

An Outremont resident, the visitor who gave his name, as Kenny, said he had spent five years raising a crop of ginseng, only to find out with the thaw that revealed strong young shoots that the cleverly-foiled plant he had been cossetting was somewhat different in genus and species from the valuable plant that Orientals buy at fabulous prices because of its supposed aphrodisiacal powers as an elixir.

To the stenographers, who obligingly ransacked their fund of reference books, encyclopedias and statute volumes for his information Kenny confided that five years ago about this time of the year he found in a package of lichen nuts a curious slip of a plant that he immediately identified as ginseng. He planted it under a bell jar and watched with daily pride as the "dessicated leaves filled out and new ones budded.

"This morning," Kenny told the sympathetic group, "I found the snow in the garden nearly all melted, and the place where I had put my jar. It was sprouting forth in great style. It seemed to have spread all over that place like a strawberry plant.

"I pulled a plant up, and the root was bifurcate. Then I took it to an herbalist on Ontario street to get an estimate of its value. I have read that the wild ginseng of Korea fetches twenty times its weight in silver."

"Well?" someone asked.

"His said," came the measured reply, "that it was not ginseng but lobwort or catbane."

In a plaintive voice, Kenny said that according to the herbalist the plant was an insidious poison and subject to very strict prohibitory laws throughout the North American continental. One state, he thought it was Kansas, had suffered so much harm from herds of cattle ate the exotic weed and died, that they had placed a heavy penalty on the importation or even possession, except under a special experimental permit.

"That's why I am here," Kenny said, "Am I a criminal or not?"

Willing handing over federal and provincial statutes.

Up to the time of Kenny's leaving in a great state of perturbation no such reference had been found.

BRITISH GUIANA NEARS CENTENARY

Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, B.W.I., April 1. (CP)—Elaborate tentative proposals, formulated by the Colonial Tourist Attraction Committee, are before Government in connection with the celebration of the Centenary of the Union of the three former colonies of Essequibo, Demerara and Berbice which today com prise the single Colonyy of British Guiana, according to The Trinidad Guardian correspondent in Georgetown, the Capital of British Guiana.

The suggested celebration, if carried out, will extend over the period from Sunday, July 19, to Saturday, July 25.

The Guardian's Georgetown correspondent, reports:

"The Government proposal to seize the impending unique occasion for the purpose of advertising as widely as funds permit the attractions of British Guiana in the outside world. Already, following the assumption of the reins of Government by the present Administration there has been a forward movement in this direction. This awakening in a practical manner to the advantages of advertising propaganda. It is hoped to emphasize this considerably.

"The final arrangements in connection with the Centenary Celebrations are now before the Governor for his approval and have not yet been made public. It is known, however, that these include a day-by-race meeting to be sponsored by the Demerara Race Club at which prizes offered will be sufficiently attractive to bring competitors throughout the neighboring Colonies to extend to the meeting their patronage.

"Arrangements will also be made by which it will be possible for tourists and visitors to the Colony during the period to visit the Kaieteur Fall—the highest and greatest water fall in the world. Much has been written about this Fall and many attractive articles have been written by distinguished visitors to it of its beauty and magnificence which prizes offered will be sufficiently attractive to bring competitors throughout the neighboring Colonies to extend to the meeting their patronage.

"Arrangements will also be made by which it will be possible for tourists and visitors to the Colony during the period to visit the Kaieteur Fall—the highest and greatest water fall in the world. Much has been written about this Fall and many attractive articles have been written by distinguished visitors to it of its beauty and magnificence which will in amazing beauty.

"British Guiana Centenary Exposition (subject to approval) is situated on the north-east coast of South America, with a total area of 89,480 square miles and a seaboard of more than 300 miles. Its population in December 31, 1929, was estimated at 309,676, of which 128,208 were East India immigrants. The climate is hot, but pleasant. The principal products are sugar, rum and timber. The three component parts of British Guiana were originally colonized by the Dutch, and after passing for years backwards and forwards by the British. Dutch and French was finally secured by the British.

AFTER 45 YEARS

Winnipeg, April 2.—After 45 years of continuous service in the work of the Salvation Army, Colonel Gideon Miller, for the past six years secretary of the organization in Western Canada, will retire and spend the remainder of his life in Ontario it was announced yesterday.

BURR'S

BURR'S, April 2.—On Tuesday, March 17th, 1931, Charles William Fox passed away at his home in Wellington. He was born at Eldorado sixty-eight years ago and was the second son of the late Charles Fox and Ann Harrison. His early life was spent near Eldorado but he moved with his parents to Sophiasburg Prince Edward County in the fall of 1883, the married Miss Alvina Ainsworth and they lived on their farm on Christian street, in Sophiasburg, until seventeen years ago, when he sold his farm and moved to Wellington. Mr. Fox had been in poor health for a long time and spent the last few weeks in his bed. Death was not unexpected.

Besides his widow, he leaves two brothers, George of the Burr's neighborhood and Harold of Crofton and a half sister, Mrs. James Brooks of Roland, Manitoba. One brother, Sylvester died last December and a sister, Mrs. Mary Little, died about a year ago. Two other sisters Mrs. Tom Ayrhart, Carrying Place and Mrs. George Sandford, Eldorado and a half brother Herbert Fox, predeceased him some years ago.

The funeral on Thursday afternoon was conducted by his pastor, and was under Masonic auspices. The pall bearers were Messrs. James MacDonald, George Hubbs, Hilton McCartney, Garnet Taylor, John Branscombe and Arthur Thompson. Interment was made in Wellington Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Bridd Hough were guests on Thursday evening of Mrs. Anna Clarke and Sam.

Mr. J. Gordin, Belleville, spent Thursday evening with Mr. George Fox.

Messrs. Charlie McFaul, Allison Hill and Clifford Merkley and Con. Hillier, were assisting Mr. Eugene Hubbs in saw wood.

Miss Irene Fox spent Friday afternoon with Mrs. Leon Caughey.

Mrs. Anna Clarke, Misses Susan Clarke, Norman Fox, Thomas Vancott, Jack Reid and Clifford Hough were at Wellington on Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Moyles visited her parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peterson, Christian street on Friday.

Messrs. Sam Clarke, Ray Bird, Norman Fox and Jack Reid were at Cobourg on Friday night.

Mr. Clifford Hough went to Wellington on Friday night to see "The Gipsy Rover".

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Thomas and Mrs. Mary Fox were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Murney Parks on Friday.

The heavy rain on Saturday was very welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Carley and Clarence visited in Lakeside, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bride Hough one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Peck and Norman visited with her aunt Mrs. Christopher Wright, Wellington, one day last week.

Miss Irene Fox visited Mrs. Tom Boyle on Wednesday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Morden visited Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bowen, Picton on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Murney Parks and Donald visited his mother, Mrs. Tom Ayrhart and Mr. Ayrhart, Carrying Place, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Cole and Myrtle Bowerman accompanied them home.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Noxon, Christian Street, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Delamere Deadlife on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fox Norman and Irene, visited their daughter, Mrs. Adolph Kuno and Mr. Kuno, Mrs. Adolph Kuno on Sunday.

Little Shirley Kuno, who has been very ill is improving.

4TH THURLOW

4TH THURLOW, April 2.— Mrs. Kenneth Clarke and baby of Consecon visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sheffield for a few days of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Spurrow of Picton were Wednesday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Cole.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Bradshaw and Stella, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Marsh Bradshaw of Consecon on Sunday.

Mrs. Paul, Third Line, spent Saturday evening with Mrs. Chas. Cole. S. W. Powell's farm near the Tabernacle Church.

There was quite an excitement in the village on Friday afternoon when the grass in the cemetery was discovered on fire. The fire soon spread to the pine trees in Mr. Arthur Walls field and destroyed several before it was extinguished. It was thought to have been caused by a stub of a cigarette.

The special meetings in the Stand ard Church are being continued this week. These meetings have been a spiritual uplift to many.

Rev. Mr. Ridgeway took tea with Mr. and Mrs. Chas Wannamaker on Friday.

Miss Florence Crowe spent the week end with friends in Belleville.

JUDGMENT WAS RESERVED IN SHELLEY ANDERSON SUIT HEARD BY JUSTICE RANEY

Argument Will be Held In Osgoode Hall This Week

PLAN EXAMINED

George Walbridge Says He Built Road to Get to His Cottage

Argument and judgment was reserved in the case of Shelley Anderson against George S. Wainridge and the Township of Ameliasburg, when all the evidence was submitted in the Supreme Court action at Picton which concluded Thursday afternoon. Mr. Justice Raney wished to go to Toronto for the Easter holiday and at once for the plaintiff and H. S. Robertson, K.C., for the defendant both live in Toronto, argument will be given in Osgoode Hall some next week. Mr. Payne, who appeared for Walbridge will submit a written argument for his client.

It was pointed that defense would apply for non-suit at the conclusion of the plaintiff's evidence but fearing that the case would be sent to the jury, has changed his plans.

The object of taking that office a year ago, getting unity and good will in the party, has been accomplished.

KILLED BENEATH FREIGHT TRAIN

Oakridge, Apr. 4.—Thought to have slipped underneath the wheels as he tried to board an eastbound C. N. R. freight train, Stanley Orma, here at noon today, Lesvie V. Orme, aged 43, was instantly killed. Coroner A. E. Farquharson decided to hold an inquest on April 8.

Why he attempted to board the freight train is uncertain. A letter was found on his body with the address of Mrs. Edward Stahl, Chicago, a sister, but his own address had been cut off.

The train was bound for Belleville and in charge of Conductor J. Trim and Engineer J. Myrrett of Belleville. C. Bendall, an eye-witness, notified the police. Constable W. McClelland of Scarboro police investigated.

THOUSANDS MAY BECOME BLIND

Mexico City, April 4—Urgent calls for relief have been received by the health department here from Chiapas where whole villages have been attacked by dreaded smallpox-evils, a malady which leads to blindness. Instances were stated where not a single inhabitant of the villages had escaped the disease which forms its lungs under the skin and works up to the optic nerve. It is estimated twenty thousand will be blind if relief is not forthcoming. The only way to fight the scourge is to cut the lungs as fast as they form.

NO ONE HELD TO BLAME FOR RAIL TRAGEDY

Probe Into Death of Mrs. Rushlow Held Thursday

SHORT DURATION

Presence of C.P.R. Train on Other Track May Have Been Factor

A verdict of accidental death was rendered by the jury empannelled to inquire into the death of Mrs. Alice Rushlow who died instantly on March 31st when struck by a C.N.R. locomotive near the lower depot. The probe was conducted by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan before Coroner Dr. Ponton at the police court rooms on Thursday night. The inquest was concluded after five witnesses had been heard.

Patrick Lynch, 24 Pine Street was the first to be called. He stated:

"I did you see the victim any time previous to the accident?" asked Mr. Donnan.

"Yes, she was walking between the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific tracks. My attention was attracted to her presence by the fireman."

The witness said the whistle was sounded by the fireman when the Canadian Pacific train moving west on the main track was approaching the depot."

"How far were you away when the whistle was sounded?"

"I can't tell exactly," answered Mr. Lynch said the train was going about twelve miles an hour when Mrs. Rushlow was struck.

"How far did you proceed after striking her?"

"An engine length and three coach lengths."

Mr. S. Sinclair, Canadian National agent, stated that he saw the woman a block away. "As my head was turned toward the west I noticed Mrs. Rushlow disappeared in front of the engine."

"Did the deceased at any time look back at the locomotive?"

"I don't think she was aware of.

Farley Sharpe, 10 Harriet Street, who is employed with the Maple Leaf Milling Company, said he first saw the woman when she was struck by the pilot of the engine. The train was proceeding at 30 miles per hour according to Mr. Sharpe.

Sarah Daley, 98 Pinnacle Street, a friend of the late Mrs. Rushlow had called at her home at 10:45 on Tuesday morning. She had accident and after remaining a short time had returned home. At 1:30 she returned. "She usually went to her home by the C.P.R. tracks," Mrs. Daley said. She did not see the accident.

Sergt. Harness was the last witness called. He had path along the track which is used extensively by people and had visited the scene. He investigated the accident.

The jury did not leave the court room to render a verdict.

LEADERS OF STATE GREET EARL OF BESSBOROUGH AND GRACIOUS WIFE AT HALIFAX

LOYALTY TO CROWN

Streets of Ancient City are Draped With Flags and Bunting

Halifax, N.S., April 4. — (By Charles Bruce, Canadian Press Staff Writer)—A noon today over fifteen guns of Citadel Hill announced to Canadians the proclamation of a new Governor-General. Within a weathered gray stone wall of Province House, where three of his predecessors took the oath of service as their Sovereign's representative, Vere Brabazon Ponsonby, Earl of Bessborough, stood in the presence of Canada's people to renew the bond between the British and the Dominion, between the subject and the King.

Signed Oath Book

Seated about an old council table as Earl of Bessborough heard his commission read and signed the oath book, were fourteen member of the Dominion Government headed by the Prime Minister, Right Honourable R. B. Bennett. At left of the dais from which the Earl stepped down to assume his office, were his Ministers and representatives of the armed forces, Lieutenant Governor of Nova Scotia, Judges of Supreme Court of Canada, deputy administrator of the Dominion, Premier of Provincial Premier and his cabinet.

Addresses of welcome from the Prime Minister and the Provincial officials were read to Deep Excellencies and Miss Mildred Bennett presented a bouquet of flowers to the Countess.

Host by Bennett

Previous to the ceremony Premier Bennett with deputy Minister Skelton and Hon. C. H. Cahan, Secretary of State, went aboard the liner and met their successors. The liner was draped with flags and colored bunting and cheering school children filled all available spaces.

Loyalty to the Crown and the Dominion, straight from past and faith in the future were expressed by Prime Minister Bennett in a formal address to the new Governor-General.

In a fitting reply to the welcome the Earl made a graceful reference to the French blood of Her Excellency, "the Countess of Bessborough." He also referred to the strength that has come to the British people and her own, which makes her forever co-workers in the great cause of Canadian progress." It was Premier Bennett's duty, he said, to present the request Your Excellency to convey to His Majesty, the King, an assurance of profound attachment, affectionate devotion and loyalty of the Canadian people to his Throne and person."

He rejoiced that His Excellency combines with those qualities which have distinguished the service of your family to the state in the past the overflowing of a humanity which swept them into water.

The Red Cross has taken charge of relief. Thousands of natives are being fed regular meals and are receiving medical treatment.

SANITARY INSPECTOR GIVEN POWER TO SUSPEND THE OPERATIONS OF PRODUCERS

Important Meeting of Board of Health Held Here

For the first time in local history, the Sanitary Inspector H. McGinnis has been given sweeping powers by the Board of Health. At a meeting of that body on Thursday last it was decided that the Sanitary Inspector should have full power to suspend operations of milk producers if their premises are found to be in an uncanitary condition. Before, the Sanitary Inspector merely reported to the Medical Officer of Health and left it to him to act as he saw fit.

It was also decided at the meeting that all milk and cream sold within the city limits must come to the same inspection by the Inspector as that said by other milk vendors in the city. Following are two important recommendations passed at the meeting:

RECOMMENDED:

That the Sanitary Inspector be hereby authorized and instructed to inspect all cattle and premises where milk is being produced and milked by milk vendors or private individuals supplying milk and if in his opinion said premises are found to be in an unsanitary condition, he have full power to prohibit milk from same being brought into Belleville for sale until such time as conditions are remedied to his satisfaction. Said inspections to be made at least once every two months.

Carried.

RECOMMENDED:

THAT all milk and cream sold on the City Market be subject to the same inspection by the Sanitary Inspector as that sold by other milk vendors in the City.

Carried.

HOLY WEEK AT ST. MICHAEL'S IS CONCLUDED

Holy Week ceremonies at St. Michael's Church were brought to a close with the Holy Saturday services this morning.

On Thursday evening the Holy Hour was conducted by Rev. Fr. Thomas Lally, S.J., of Toronto, who spoke on the institution of the Blessed Sacrament and Christ's real presence in this Sacrament.

On Good Friday the Mass of the Pre-Sanctified was celebrated by Rev. C. E. Baker and was followed by the solemn Office of the Cross, during the afternoon large crowds visited the Sepulchre and kissed the Sacred Wounds of the Cross .The Way of the Cross was performed by seven-thirty in the evening conducted by Rev. S. A. Corriveau.

Fr. Rev. J. F" Nicholson, V.G., delivered the sermon of the evening speaking on the Passion of our Lord. For Veneration of the Cross the Rev. Fr. Rev. The True Cross was used.

This morning Holy Saturday ceremonies conducted by the Archdeacon at seven-thirty. They consisted of the lighting of the new fire, the blessing of the Easter and baptismal water, the lighting of the Paschal candle, and the chanting of the Litany of the Saints. The Litany of Saints. Solemn High Mass was then celebrated, Rev. Fr. Mr. Mickleborough, celebrant, Rev. E. M. Leacy, pastor of St. Vincent de Paul Church, Deseronto, deacon, and Rev. H. J. Madden, sub-deacon.

TWO HYDRO COMMISSIONERS ATTACK STATEMENTS OF MAYOR REID MADE TO CITY COUNCIL

Ask Mayor to Read Sections of Act Showing Control of Ontario Commission Over Local System—Say Mayor Suggested Increase of Salaries but for one Person only—Say Figures Quoted in Press as Given by Mayor Reid Were Not Authorized by Commission — Splendid Returns on Administration Show Profit of Over $60,000 Says Letter

Charles E. Hanna, Chairman, and H. E. Fairfield, Commissioner of the Belleville Hydro Electric System issued today the following reply to statements made by Mayor Reid, also a Commissioner at last Monday's meeting of the City Council:

To Belleville Hydro Users.

In answer to the statements appearing in the press as being made by Mayor Reid, our fellow commissioner, at the council meeting on Monday, March 30th, we find it necessary to acquaint you with the following facts:

We are pleased to note that no charges of dishonesty are made but that the difference is one of administration. We would suggest to the Mayor that instead of trying to dig up differences he study his duties and cooperate as a commissioner.

The Mayor is quoted as saying, "The Hydro System of Belleville is not controlled by the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario except as to rates." Can it be possible that he is not conversant with the Power Commission Act? If not, we suggest that he read sections 80-95. He will learn that the Ontario Commission has control over many other affairs besides rates. In fact from the correspondence of the Ontario Commission which has been read at our meetings he should know that such is the case.

The press also quotes the Mayor as saying, "It appears to have got into the minds of some people that the Hydro officials are not under the control of the city." Again we would say to the Mayor, study your duties and you will learn that the Belleville Commission are a body corporate and the city council has no authority whatever in the administration of the Hydro business.

With regard to salaries the Mayor's remarks as reported in the press create a wrong impression. One would infer that the Mayor was a member of the Commission. This was not the case. Mayor Reid was the first commissioner to suggest an increase, but he only wished it for one person. We contended that if any change was made every employee should receive consideration so the changes were put into effect. In the discussion on the motion to raise the salaries Mayor Reid quoted figures to the manager's increase, but when the motion was put he failed to vote either for or against it. We do not hesitate to tell you that in our opinion the staff are worth the salaries we are paying them and we feel that an unbiased person, knowing their capabilities, and the hours which they are faithfully carrying out, will agree that they are not overpaid.

Further statements of the Mayor in the press would create the opinion that the purchase of the billing machine and salary increases had something to do with the 1930 power bill. Nothing could be more ridiculous. No complete statement of the year's business could be made until the 11th power bill was received, but, that we can see no reason in carrying on the business of the city with the monthly statement gave ample evidence that, the purchase of a billing machine and salary increases were justifiable.

With reference to the bookkeeping machine we would point out that the matter was brought before the Ontario Commission in May by the Auditor of the Ontario Commission who recommended the purchase of such a machine. After thorough investigation by Mr. Fairfield and the Manager, the equipment was purchased in August against the Mayor's protest and the machine is working up to that time nor alone has he made any investigation as to its usefulness.

With regard to the Mayor's statement that the Mayor seconded the motion to purchase it, so why does he complain?

The press reports the mayor as saying that the commission go to Toronto for reference purposes. The answer is we didn't. We went to Toronto to discuss with the Ontario Commission and the officials the question of the billing machine and salary increases and the reorganization of the council. During the interview Mr. Hanna of the legal dept. was asked to look into the matter and report to us as to how it should be done which was published. It is the duty of the commission when differences occur to consult the proper authorities and we would point out that we are trying to follow the correct procedure, we interviewed them.

Mayor Reid also quoted Mr. Hanna as saying that City solicitor is lawyer for the gas, water and utilities." By utilities if he includes the Hydro he is wrong again. The Hydro has no solicitor and if he should need one, they can engage anyone they wish the same as the school board does.

The Mayor quotes the Manager as having been away for fifteen months to get the press admitted to the meetings of the Hydro.? Again we must correct him and suggest that he check up his records.

We have endeavored to keep the public informed at all times by the Mayor, we would point out that they were not authorized by the Commission and as officials. Some are not in accord with us we cannot accept responsibility for their publication.

We have endeavored at all times of our administration to do only such things as we would have done had the business been our own. From the splendid profit of $60,178.40 which we made last year, we think you will agree that our decisions have brought splendid returns.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

(Signed) CHAS E. HANNA, Chairman.
H. E. FAIRFIELD, Commissioner.

WHAT IS TEST OF MISSIONS

Righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you.

Obedience was followed by blessing. God opens up when we trust and obey. The word of the man of God was to borrow empty vessels and pour. How delightful to see God work!

The Widow had an obligation. We as Christians have an obligation to the world and to God, for support missions is not a matter of charity but of debt not a matter of doing just as are like but an obligation to Him—who came from the glory of our blessed Lord Jesus Christ who came to pay our debt. Do we not own a debt of gratitude to Him who left Heaven came down to this world of woe. We say, who am I? What can I do? Bring our Fot of Oil and let H.m perform the miracle.

Lastern Views

Rev. Mr. Prentice gave his stereloptican views on the coastal region of Ecuador depicting certain native ways of living and also the advance of the gospel. A sunday school of 200 members were shown and a Sunday morning congregation of approximately 200 was also thrown on the screen.

Mr. Prentice pointed out from John 4:35 "Behold Pray unto you, lift up your eyes, and look on the fields, for they are ripe already to harvest," that Latin America is for North America its harvest and that consequently a great harvest of men and women for the Kingdom of Jesus Christ were awaiting the coming of reapers from North America who never will enter into the heavenly kingdom unless their northern neighbors come to their rescue.

On Saturday evening beautiful colored views of the foreign country and Orient (the country of the Head Hunters) will be shown by Mr. Prentice.

On Friday, April 3rd, Mr. Prentice using the text, Gal. 1-3 pointed out that the apostolic objective of missionary work was the planting of churches, and hence " a good test of our modern missionary work was whether we had founded churches or not, where we were building up real institutional works which the native brethren could not carry on or bringing men and women to vital knowledge of Jesus Christ and allowing them to develop their own institutions."

Applying this principle to the work of the C.M.A. in Argentina the speaker pointed out that there were 19 churches with 21 workers, with their national committee and own yearly convention. The givin of these christians was remarkable for foreign fields for it averaged about $26.55 per member, per year which was six times that of ten years. So efficient were their evangelists that they had gone to the great Welsh colonay of Cherbout last year when the Welsh were ready to close their church and revived the whole Welsh christian community. Mr. Barnes, the only foreign missionary there was, only serving on an advisory capacity until his term was up.

Corbyville, Mar. 30, 1931

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

On reading a letter about the hiring of a manager of the filtration plant I would like to ask, has not the council done the same thing about the hiring of a complete secretary? Of the thirty-two applicants surely some were born in Belleville and their fathers have been paying taxes in the city all their lives. One would think to hear some of the council on nomination day that they were doing wonderful work. Any man with brains could do what they have done if some one else paid for it. They certainly haven't reduced the taxes any. The council should remember that they are handling someone else's money.

SUGARING-OFF FESTIVAL AT ZION'S HILL

Willet C. Ketcheson Plays Host to Many Friends

70th BIRTHDAY

Assembles Friends Together in Maple Bush

At the sugar-house on the edge of a maple bush in the eighth concession of Thurlow, Zion's Hill, there was staged on Good Friday afternoon an event known in Ontario annals as sugaring-off. Mr. Willet C. Ketcheson is host, and with him labored Mrs. Ketcheson their daughter, Mrs. George McCullough and their sons, Cecil and Clifford, to make the one hundred and twenty-five guests feel at home. The weather was ideal, say was Evening will, the sun was shining and last traces of snow and ice could be found here and there in the bush. It was from these patches was procured the snow so essential to the taffy process in sugaring-off.

Yesterday's event had its origin in a similar event ten years ago. In 1921 Mr. Ketcheson held a surprise festival of this kind and invited those who were then present to keep in mind a decade hence when he would officiate at another of the kind. Well, his seventieth birthday came this other day and true to his promise out came the huge sugar kettle, suspended on the end of a pole swung by a chain to a limb of a tree, the fire was started and the boiled sap brought from the sugarhouse where the water had largely been boiled out and placed in the kettle. There was the thermometer, dishes were ready. Best of all that invitation of ten held good, and many of those who had enjoyed the sugaring-off ten years ago came again and many more with them, a younger generation of boys and girls and young people. While the preparations were going forth to heat the syrup, girls and boys played at baseball to the east and on a west field the larger boys played football.

Sugar Snow

It was interesting to watch the crowds about the kettle as the time arrived for the sweet part of the program. Mrs. Ketcheson and her daughter put their knowledge and experience into the work and were able to tell that the time had arrived for the sugaring off. Men hastened down the hill with lids of dairypails in the hands of some, at the foot of the hill on which the grove of maples is situated and were soon back with the snow. The guests were given saucers, spoons and their syrup was poured into the saucers and the scores of waiters started to ate the hot liquid until it turned into a white sugar. Everyone had his a sweet tooth and no one had the toothache. One helping of the syrup would satisfy the nervous host and hostess and they had more and more supplied the guests. Mr. Myron Hawley stood over the kettle and with others acted as dispenser of the delicious liquid.

The time had arrived for the taffy and the lids with the snow were placed on a log near the kettle and the syrup was poured into the snow. In a few moments the delicious waffy was ready for eating, taffy with snow and ice in it to tickle the palate. Spoons ran short and many a lad had recourse to a cedar stick, nicely whittled down to the need and with that he rolled the taffy. This was the height of the spring feast in the presence of the guests outdoors. It was for this that Mr. Ketcheson had gathered his friends together. They were delighted, for it was an event in their lives.

This was followed by the recording of names of the guests in a book by the sugarhouse. Then Mr. W. Spence Clarke photographer, of Belleville used his artistic hand at arranging the guests for photographs. These were taken as a permanent record of the gathering and will be added to the collection of photographs taken of previous maple sugar feasts, which had come to enjoy themselves. This is our Sunday School gathering. I thank you for the time place. Come and see us again."

Class Appreciates

Mr. Ketcheson has until recently had a class of girls at Zion's Hill Church and they did not forget him on this grand spring day. Miss Jessie Kennedy stepped forward and on behalf of the Ladies' Daughters' Class read this address:

"Dear Mr. Ketcheson,—

"We, the former members of your Sunday School Class wish to extend to you our hearty appreciation of your faithful services as teacher of the King's Daughters' Class.

"We rejoice with you on this the anniversary of your seventieth birthday and hope you will live to enjoy many more of them.

"We ask you to accept this gift as a token of our respect and esteem for you.

"Signed on behalf of the Kings' Daughters."

Miss Edna Ray made the presentation of a box of chocolates. Mr. Ketcheson, after thanking the Class opened the parcel and proceeded to share the sweets with the members.

Family Present

Mr. Ketcheson has four brothers, two of whom were present yesterday, Orrin and William, and one sister being present, Sheldon and Mary Greater. Mrs. Harry Ketcheson, sister, was present, but two other sisters could not attend, Mrs. George Anderson of Hinsdale Sask. and Mrs. William Bates, of Woodstock, on account of distance.

About five o'clock the gathering broke up after congratulations had been showered upon Mr. Ketcheson and thanks to himself and Mrs. Ketcheson expressed for their entertainment.

The sugar bush is across the road from Mr. Ketcheson's home and is on the ancestral homestead of Mr. Ketcheson was born. It is on the farm of the hill and the entrance is by a lane in which were gambolling yesterday young lambs, sure and certain emblems of spring. These lambs and their mother ewes were the first sight the visitors caught as they approached the bush and were the last picture in the eyes of the visitors as they left for their homes.

BILINGUALISM ATTACKED IN SOUTH AFRICA

Cape Town, South Africa, April 4—Disclaiming a growing movement among the Dutch in South Africa against the English language and in favor of Afrikaans the Cape Argus editorially says in part:

"It will be a great pity if the cultural movement in favor of Afrikaans, which in itself deserves a great amount of sympathy, should simply degenerate into a sordid fight against the English language. Recent developments are distinctly disquieting, if not without a saving spice of humor. For some time past special correspondents of leading National-ist newspapers have been paying surprise visits to country places in order apparently to discover who dares to speak, write or read English. One enterprising gentleman conducted an investigation at the Union Buildings, Pretoria, afterwards naming and putting to the pillory certain officials who had been found guilty of the unforgivable crime of using English in their daily conversation, they being by birth Afrikaans.

"Unquestionably the greatest of the wrong kind is getting the better of good sense in the delicate affair of language rights. As a clinching proof of this here is the ludicrous sequel to the recent compliment of R. B. Sassman, with the backing of the local Afrikaans organ, 'The Burger, that the Afrikaans version of the papers of a for a nurses' examination is criticism on the score of linguistic correctness. It is also stated that the papers were translated by two distinguished Dutch authority than Dr. C. Louis Leipoldt, who, being a medical expert, is long out of the foremost Afrikaans authors of the day. After that English servants and even the bilingual need not be discouraged if, like poor Dr. Leipoldt, they are severely assured that their Afrikaans is not really up to the mark.

"There is another point worth touching upon. As we have pointed out on previous occasions, it seems to be no part of the aggressive language movement to make the path of the English-speaking South African as easy as possible. Some bilingual may be easier, and this has given rise to the belief that bilingualism is valued as a weapon that can be used to decry claims based on superior efficiency. Be that as it may, it is certain that true bilingualism in the schools and universities the existing facilities for the teaching of Afrikaans on the railways are not what they should be, considering all the while that is made about the importance of bilingualism. It would be well if the enthusiasts would turn their attention to this aspect of the matter instead of indulging in tactics which are distasteful to a very large section of the Dutch as well as to the English in South Africa.

"The average sensible Afrikander realizes the importance to his children of a knowledge of English, and is painfully alive to the fact that they are taught English badly in the schools and speak nothing but Afrikaans outside they will grow up unbilingual, to their own grave disadvantage."

WOMAN ON BENCH IN DRESS CASE?

When a High Court Judge questioned the decency of a feminine lawyer appearing in a divorce case the fair advocate might justly have suggested the propriety of His Lordship retiring to permit a woman Judge to attend to the case. Women are admitted to the practice of law it is not for the Bench to concern upon their decency or indecency in appearing in cases in which women are involved.

A LONG TRIP

Cape Town, South Africa, April 4—By an indirect route the Japanese steamer Yoshida Maru recently completed an unusually long passage of 61 days from Vancouver, U.S.A. to Cape Town, She left the American port a fortnight before Christmas and with a large cargo of nearly a million board measurement feet of timber and 3,000 tons of general cargo. Instead of steaming via Panama or via the Straits of Magellan, the captain of the Yoshida Maru chose to call at Malden, in Japan, for bunkers, and later Singapore. The total length of the voyage was 13,000 miles.

EASTERTIDE

Easter is a mark in the year which never fails to make an abiding impression upon man. It comes as the spring's first approach and it also commemorates a spiritual event in the history of the race. So important is the annual festival that it is inconceivable to imagine an Easter-less world.

At this susceptible season of the year hopes are highest. Nature is ready to expand in bud and leaf and blossom in the next few weeks and the outer world brings a reaction of the human mind and spirit, nature itself spells a powerful charm which works upon mankind very effectively. All is throbbing with expectancy of the great burgeoning of life.

The great religious festivals of the world coincide with this awakening in nature. The Christian festival of the Resurrection and the Jewish Passover, marking the events of early Jewish history when the Jews escaped from the bondage of Egypt after the angel of death had passed over those of Hebrew faith and had slain the firstborn of the strange land of Egypt.

To the greater part of the western world the occasion is the Christian feast, which commemorates the great and strange event following the Crucifixion. This is the official faith of the western world and through missions it is becoming the faith of a large portion of the Orient.

PRESERVING SUGARING-OFF

Kiwanians had a gala time the other day in the bush when they took part in a sugaring-off, a distinctively Canadian festival, which deserves to be remembered because of the part it has meant to the people of these parts. Particularly in this district the maple tree has played a considerable role in the economy of wealth in maple syrup and sugar production.

Mr. Frank Knight's bush was the scene of the activities of the afternoon through with all the appeals of the historic sugaring-off of one or two generations ago.

Clubmen will remember these scenes which used to add so much color to the life of the Canadians in the past.

Dyeing of this kind lend a distinction and an atmosphere to the life of Canada which ought to be preserved. Other nations have their traditional ceremonies. Canada must preserve her sugaring-off festival.

LIKE A FAIRY STORY

No more unpleasant bedmate can be found than a wildcat as a Waterloo, New York man found.

That was one of the sensational stories carried by the press last week. It possessed real story value and was "played up" in the newspapers all over the continent.

It made a good fairy story basis, so good was it as news.

THE PROPOSED CALENDAR

Belleville Masons had the new calendar which is proposed brought to their attention the other evening by Prof. Martin, of Queen's University. He says the League of Nations will guarantee that every thirteenth of the new month will be lucky. It ought to be for there will be thirteen thirteenths of the month every year. If they are unlucky the year will assuredly be one of the most wretched.

When the new calendar is becoming the subject of so much talk and is the subject of addresses, it looks as if it is quite near enough there is always the possibility that it will not receive final sanction.

More societies and others will likely hear remarks on the calendar in the near future.

MILK PRODUCTION IN DENMARK

The Woodstock Sentinel-Review quotes from an article on the milk consumption industry in Scandinavian countries written by F. H. Palmer, of the Canadian Trade Commission in the Commercial Intelligence Journal to show the amount of milk production of Danish cattle.

"It may be of interest to notice the great change that occurred in Danish agriculture after the great declines in grain prices about 1880. Previous to this period Denmark was almost exclusively interested in grain production, but the drop in world prices for grain stimulated a great activity in other agricultural pursuits. The great change was the general adoption of a policy to export the usually good cereal crops in the form of animal products; and the development of the dairy industry dates from this time."

The Sentinel-Review adds:

"Then the writer goes on to give a table showing increase in number of cows, yield per cow, etc. The Danes kept 808,000 cows in 1870; in 1929 they had 1,579,000. The average yield per cow, 1,350 kilograms in 1870, was up to 2,200 in 1900 and in 1929 was 3,250, which is 7,150 pounds. Now there are doubtless many herds in this province going well above an average, but the fact is that the average for all Canada is 4,497 pounds, and for Ontario 4,865."

APRIL

No more does Slumbers drowsy wand prevail!
From every field all nature cries, 'Awake!'
The robin longs again his song to take Unto his dreaming friends of hill and dale;
And chilling, chatting crows arouse the pale,
Still grasses High above by mossy brake,
The froglings, with their husky croakings make
A sylvan symphony for Auster's wail:
There is no death! I saw the trees grow brown
With autumn's breeze; the robins vanished then;
The roses petals drooped and fluttered down
Onto a frosted earth. I slept, but when
I woke, transpired were fields of sullen rowen!
The crocus smiled with Easter joy again.

IRISH SWEEPSTAKES with its division of a million of two dollars in prizes has created widespread interest, but the end is not yet, such lotteries being illegal in England and prize winners there are uncertain whether the money will reach them at all. A Buffalo winner of $800000 has had his station dampened by the news that the British Government Income Tax Department would take a big slice off his prize probably a couple of hundred thousand dollars while Sinn Feiners and others in the Irish Free Papers are now trying to figure out what he will have left, if any, when the tax sharks get through with the Irish money.

TRADER HORN has reached the screen—the broken down old adventurer of Johannesburg who had apparently reached the end of his wanderings in a cheap "flop house" and worked also a precarious existence can across Ethelrida Lewis, an sauntering, looking for a story plot From rags to riches the story is comparatively short jump by the book route when "Trader Horn", the hero of the old derelict's life, embellished, and brightened by vivid imagination, became a best seller. Now the story of the varied career screen and celluloid strip have screened the story with a realistic background in the jungles of South Africa and all the animal and native stuff that has been displayed on the screen thus far, and then some. Trader Horn in the book was a likeable chap, more so when he is visualized as the garrulous down-and-out pedlar who exchanged conversation for coffee and cakes at kitchen doors and made contraptions of wire for flapping pancakes and such like in his all too plentiful spare time. Trader Horn on the radio brought him nearer and now he comes to the screen in all the youth and beauty of his younger days when the white goddess of the jungle lured him away from his hunt for gold, ivory and diamonds

GOING TO COST Deseronto folk more for their water, which is viewed with alarm by the editor of the Post who suggests that a few of the many holes in their leaky water works system be plugged and then there would be no necessity for a raise in water rates Must be like the Belleville gas system used to be when had to make two thousand feet of gas to be able to deliver one.

Like spring fever has broken out talk up and down country of daylight saving. The Mail and Empire of Toronto says: "Broadly speaking, the larger urban communities are in favor of it, while most of the smaller urban and the rural communities are against it. But they are so closely linked together that both suffer unnecessary inconvenience owing to the lack of uniformity, and this condition will continue so long as daylight saving is a voluntary action by individual municipalities."

Permanent paving of three streets in the city is contemplated, that is on the two sections of Moira street, east and west, and on North Front street. Belleville's road system is perceptibly being rounded out completely.

News of the decision to light Station street in the manner of Dundas street and Highland Avenue is welcome to all those who use that thoroughfare.

MOTTO ON THE KING'S CREST FOR SCOTLAND

The motto: "Nemo me impune lacesit," commonly associated with Scotland in the public mind is properly that of the Scottish Order of the Thistle. An illustration of the King's crest for Scotland with the motto "In Defend" appears in a memorandum issued recently by the Secretary of State for Scotland. This crest is quite different from the King's crest for England which, since 1603 has appeared on the reverse side of the shilling. It is th crowned harp, flanked by the Scottish lion and, which is of a slightly different shape from the lion of the familiar Tudor Crown. The motto "In Defend" is on a small scroll below the crown in the illustration.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

KNUTE ROCKNE

Waving flags, enthusiastic thousands, bright music, and a host of student demonstrations organized cheering and eye-rending welcome home to hundreds of thousands of dollars have made American college football not only a magnificent display, but a great national institution.

Its domain has spread to the United States; it cannot be successfully limited to other countries and it is doubtful if there is any other country where this game could exist as it would be appreciated. It has become a part of the life of the people; it is a tradition.

Intentional to its extreme popularity, there are features more or less objectionable which have crept into proceedings. With the interest to give higher education to thousands where other opportunities are not sufficient to endow hundreds, there have been changes in the standards of education, in the spirit of student life and in the democratic understanding in the American college. These changes differentiate American college life from that in other countries.

USEFUL OCCUPATIONS

Walkerville's ancients having known what they can do at marbles, the Mayor of St. Thomas will con his butcher's apron, take up his knives and carve a few pounds of beef as Easter dinners for the poor. Which shows that some men are better placed people in the land may, at some time, have useful occupations.—Toronto Globe.

ORIGINAL INVESTMENT SAFETY DEVICE

From time to time unwary persons are mulcted in fines which may run to $200 for receiving the proceeds of a permit that did not belong to them. And there appears to be a tendency in this to a lot of people not so dilatantly situated to penalize readily when they get a friend to use his permit to get a better position to take home that they are liable up to $200 fine either while carrying the liquor home or keeping it in their own house a permit.

The obliging friend with a permit is also guilty of an offence for using his permit for others.

Of course, these cases only crop up occasionally, but the people realize the necessity for a reason that people who have liquor have a better make an original investment of it. It is not for Henry Drayton's neatly piloted little document.—Toronto Telegram.

BRITISH FILMS

It is announced that the provincial government intends to fix a quota for British films, which will mean a larger supply for the theatres of this province. Out of the thousands of feature pictures passed by the censors last year, the enormous number of seventeen were of British origin. Which means to say that, apart from this infinitesimal number, the Canadian public has had to content itself with American productions, with their subtle propaganda in favor of alien ideas. It is plainly a situation which calls loudly for redress, and the action of the Ontario government will be warmly welcomed by all loyal citizens. Pictures of moving-picture houses have to put up with what is offered them; they are told what they ought to prefer and they prefer standards set for them. Young people grow up in this queer atmosphere their tastes are to mold and their appreciation strengthened by a continual showing of cheap heroics and sensational rubbish. It is said that deliberate discrimination is shown by producers in the making of films, whereby British pictures are subjected to very unfair competition. From the point of view of art and entertainment, acting, diction and intellectual appeal there is often a vast comparison between the British film and the lauded superficiality of the average Hollywood production; but Gresham's law comes into operation, and the bad currency forces out the good.—Hamilton Spectator.

Greatest Price Savings of all Time...

The new Willys cars—a big Six priced like a Four—a powerful Eight—a brilliant Knight—are the finest of the 2,425,000 cars we have made—the lowest priced cars we have ever put on the market. They bring luxurious transportation within the reach of all.

They are notable not only for good taste in design and beauty of line, color and fittings, but also for extra comfort and safety . . . lower center of gravity, steel running-boards, Duo-Servo internal expanding four-wheel brakes—and, at small extra cost in the Six, and no extra cost in the Willys Eight De Luxe and Willys-Knight, safety glass all around.

The tread is 58¼-inches—widest of all low priced cars . . . three full sized adults may sit at ease on the wider rear seat. The front seat adjusts to your length, and its back takes the angle that fits you.

Porcupines Delay Circus

NEW YORK CITY, April 4—Word was received yesterday that something else had gone wrong with the circus. It will not arrive this morning.

Indeed, it isn't due now until tomorrow night. And when it does come it will lack the spirited presence of half a dozen African porcupines. They are being left in Sarasota for the time being.

As he prowled along the wayside by the Harlem yards yesterday Dexter Fellows received the word over his private wire. The code, it stated briefly that "moon last loot again." Taking the message to dinner with him—as well as a book of ancient Irish ballads—Mr. Fellows deciphered most of it. In his clear-cut prose language he ultimately delivered the following synopsis:

"It seems," he said, 'that the circus was to leave Sarasota on Friday. There were ninety-nine cars filled with tents, animals and other things. One car was left; the largest of all. Previous experience with them had fitted into it neatly. But after a Winter of sun baths and barracuda on the Florida shore it proved no longer fit into anything made by man. He had to bulge in all directions, although mostly horizontal."

Faced by the new problem, the authorities ordered a larger car, but the railroad protested. Finally they decided to roll Goliath's town car upon a cage carrier and so move the whole business. But that meant that something would have to be sacrificed. They urgently asked Mr. Fellows about it and New York said it could get along very well with the porcupines.

The six African porcupines, however, did not accept the solution gracefully. Mr. Fellows continued:

"They had joined the circus to see the world and New York came under that heading. They began shoot their quills at the officials. Darts stuck in the fantastic mural flora and fauna that adorned the walls, and other porcupines. While they did not quite shoot themselves, they came near the case. It will have to be remainted before anything more can be done with it.

"As it stood last night, the circus' famous porcupines will get 10 some time tomorrow. It will be unloaded from the Harlem yards in the near witching hours of midnight. And placed in the basement of the garden. Then there will be an opening from one former pen to just after Buster. That's as far as any one can tell.

Silent Motor Half Size

PARIS, April 4.—A close and apparently favorable study is being made in French aviation circles of a motor of entirely new conception, which, if successful, will revolutionize aviation" and perhaps, too, all automobile transport.

The new invention

Rotary motor and it is of Rhone-German origin. It is fully covered by world patents and it is hoped that manufacturing rights will be secured in France.

It is from the viewpoint of military and commercial aviation that the Bonetter motor is being studied here and technical advisers of the air Ministry are watching closely such favorable reports that negotiations for the purchase of the French rights have resulted

The advantage of the new motor is, briefly, that it is argued, it will will render the flight of airplanes absolutely silent and remove all danger of fire Power for power, the new engine occupies only about a third of the space required by those in actual use and its dead-weight is much less than that of any other type. It is said used is maximum crude oil. Furthermore it is said, it utilizes from 50 to 60 per cent of the power generated, as against a maximum of 25 per cent by the best of the present motors and 36 per cent by those of the Diesel type.

In industrial use, the Bonetter motor occupies less than half the space of a Junkers motor of similar power. As compared with the Bremen-Jupiter motors used in the giant Do-X airplane, it is only seventy-eight working parts, as against 376, and two-eight valves as against 432. It is contended that six of the Bonetter motors used on Dornier will do as effective work as the twelve Bremen-Jupiter motors used in the Do-X, while consuming 87 per cent less fuel when flying at 120 miles an hour.

Critical Guest Appreciates Perfectly Cooked Potatoes

By Hannah Wing

It may surprise you to know that potatoes are often the most poorly cooked part of a meal. To cook a potato perfectly is not common a thing as plain boiled potatoes, is no laughing matter, to say nothing of fluffy mashed potatoes and mealy baked potatoes.

Potato dishes must be served hot. And they should be eaten as soon as they are removed from the heat. In fact, at the French say, "Potatoes must not wait for the guests — the guests must wait for the potatoes." That's a good slogan for us all to follow.

Without doubt, potatoes are more often boiled than cooked by any other method. For in addition to being served in this way so frequently, they must first be boiled for many of the appetizing variations in potato dishes. Yet, too often, because of careless cooking, it is half-warm, discolored, soggy, boiled potatoes that find their way to our table rather than the hot, snowy-white, mealy variety that can be prepared so easily.

Potatoes for boiling may be cooked, peeled or unpeeled. "Boiled" potatoes should be either steamed or boiled in a small quantity of boiling water. Never let them stand covered in cold water. After they are all scrubbed or pared, drop them in boiling water and add only enough boiling water to cover its bottom. Then cover them tightly and boil until tender when pierced with a fork. Salt—one tablespoonful for every seven medium potatoes—should be added when the potatoes are half-done. When tender, drain from the potatoes the little water that is left. Then uncover and shake them gently in the saucepan over a low flame.

For baking, select smooth, medium sized potatoes, scrub, remove the eyes and any blemishes, place in a baking pan or on the rack in a very hot oven (450-500 degrees F.) and bake until tender (30-60 minutes). Be sure the potatoes are not boiled. Remove and put in. To test the potatoes, do not pierce them with the fork; squeeze them with the hand wrapped in a towel. When soft, break the skin to keep them from being soggy, and serve at once.

For mashing, pare and boil six potatoes. Drain, and set the saucepan in a warm place with the cover off for a minute or two to dry the potatoes thoroughly. Mash the potatoes in the saucepan in which they were boiled, or turn them out into a warm dish and put through the ricer into the same saucepan. Work quickly so that they will not get cold. Add two tablespoons of butter, season to taste, and beat with a silver fork or an egg-whip, adding hot milk or cream a little at a time until the potatoes are as light and moist as desired. Pile them lightly in a warmed serving dish. Do not smooth the top as that will make them compact and heavy.

Woman Station Agent Quits Job

St. Albans, Vt., April 4 — One of the few remaining women railway veterans in the country, Miss Mr. Louisa Isham, 70, a native of New London, Conn., has left the service of the "iron horse" after being with the Central Vermont Railway for 51 years at South Coventry, Conn., it was announced at Central Vermont headquarters here today.

Miss Isham, whose resignation has been accepted, succeeded her father, the late John Isham, as agent at South Coventry in 1918, upon his retirement from active service. Shortly after the Civil War ended when the "iron horse" was a small child, her father became agent for the Central Vermont at South Coventry. He was also postmaster of Coventry for four years during his railway service and his daughter served as assistant postmaster. In 1873 she became the assistant to her father, helping him with his railway duties and succeeding him as agent when he retired on December 2, 1918.

Miss Isham ranked fourth on the seniority roster of agents and telegraphers of the Central Vermont's Southern Division.

RUFFLED ORGANDIE NOT FOR "LARGE" GIRLS

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

"A" says that a girl who weighs 180 pounds is not too large to wear an organdie dress with ruffles down to the ankles. "B" says that she is entirely too large. Which is right? Thank you for your advice. Grace.

I certainly agree with "B" that a girl who weighs 180 pounds is "entirely too large" to wear an organdie dress with ruffles down to the ankles. Every ruffle would emphasize her bigness, and unnecessarily so. More than this, I should think that she would be able to find, in this world of charming and gracious materials, one that would be more becoming to her size and to her age—than organdie. Organdie is charming for slim girls and for large girls should make an effort to find a more "retiring" material. How about chiffon or georgette—or one of the lovely new and thin flat crepes. Flat crepes are the salvation of the Big Girls!

USE YOUR NAPKIN WHEN NECESSARY

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

Please tell me, when a lady sits down at the table and opens her napkin is it proper for her to wipe her mouth with the napkin during the meal, and at the end of the meal?

Yes, we use our napkins whenever it is necessary to do so, during a meal and at the end of a meal. But meticulous eaters use them as little as possible, because they eat with such care that the napkin is not necessary, as it is for people who are careless.

IT WOULD BE ALL RIGHT ON A PICNIC

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

1. Is it good form to eat bacon with the fingers?

2. Wouldn't you consider it very rude and poor breeding when in company to wipe your fingers you want to know something that you don't want the others to know?

Mrs. B.

1. No. This is terrible form. We should never eat in our fingers food that is greasy or sticky, that makes our fingers "messy" .... never, if we can avoid it. And we do eggs can be very messy, too, in our fingers, except, perhaps, at a picnic!

2. Yes! I should consider this exceedingly bad form.

70th Birthday Of Marshall Saunders

Toronto, Ont. April 4—Her attainment of 70 years means nothing at all in Miss Marshall Saunders' eyes—happy life, unless it means crowding every minute a little fuller. She is lecturing in city church associations two or three times a week and taking on outside tours, with delightful enthusiasm. She admits that she loves talking. A member of Authors' Association, Canadian Literature, Canadian Women's Press and Writers' Clubs, etc., she is often seen at their gatherings, "wife of the poet" by her side.

The famous author of "Beautiful Joe" has recently been engaged on a book about Toronto and a Toronto dog. She has attained the dignity of writer of a story considered "rare" in book collections, a first edition being scarce anyway, but hard to find in good condition because it was intended to please when it came out. Mrs. Saunders is well known in the city having resided there the Women's Canadian Club here.

Elaine and Her Ideas From Paris

The Beauty Box

By Helen Follett

While an oily skin maddens the female of the species, it is more amiable than dry skin which, when its disposition is ruffled, takes on the texture of an old bathmat. Wind and sunlight can't make much impression on epidermis that is well oiled, but acting as a protective covering, but they raise Hades dickens with the cuticle that is normally inclined to flake and fluff. All of which is offered as a slim excuse or consolation to the girl with the beaming complexion.

There's one girl who will never line up in the beauty parade. It is the femme with the cold suspicion, flaky eye and the chilly handshake. She has failed to learn "that friendliness, graciousness, easy of manner are qualities of beauty that are beyond price. Nice eyes smile. They send kindly messages. Cold eyes are suspicious of quality. Nobody likes them. They throw one into a state of gooey funk.

Perspiring hands give evidence of an impaired, unsteady nervous system To overcome this trouble it is necessary to cultivate habits of hygiene and health, to get plenty of sleep, plenty of fresh air, plenty of nourishing food. Sponge the palms of the hands with cotton pads that have been dipped in a solution of baking soda. To protect kid gloves sprinkle the inner surfaces with talcum.

The tight brasseres are a danger. Close confinements of the breast tissues is not good for them. Brassieres should be fitted as carefully as foundation garments are fitted, without unnecessary compression and yet so cut and designed as to offer support.

When rouge is applied to the cheeks, it should have no defined border. Let the color do a proper fade away. It is when rouge is spotty that the face looks hard and haggard. Lip rouge should be placed upon the inner surface as well as the outer one of the lips. Also, it should be left looking. Lead bowing makeup is passe. Old stuff!

For TEETHING troubles

FUSSY, fretful . . . , of course babies are uncomfortable at teething time! And mothers are worried because of the little upsets which come so suddenly then. But there's one sure way to comfort a restless, teething child. Castoria — made especially for babies and children! It's perfectly harmless, as the formula on the wrapper tells you. It's mild in taste and action. Yet it rights little upsets with a never-failing effectiveness.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given to tiny infants—as often as there is need. In cases of colic and similar disturbances, it is invaluable. But it has every-day uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops—a ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever older children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset, a more liberal dose of this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

BELLEVILLE GIRL CHIEF SCORER ON BASKET BALL CHAMPIONS OF QUEBEC

Miss Florence Skelcher is Lauded by Sports Writers

Miss Florence Skelcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Skelcher, Chatham street, Belleville, is more than making good on the basket-ball field in Montreal. Miss Skelcher is a member of the Sun Life girls' team champions of the Province of Quebec, which will shortly play off with the Ontario champions. According to reports in the Montreal Daily Star she is the chief point scorer and has been largely instrumental in winning the laurels. Miss Skelcher formerly played for Belleville High School. Following is a recent report in the Montreal paper which describes the triumphal march of the Sun Life team:

"Sun Life girls are Provincial basketball champions because they are, without doubt, the smartest aggregation of senior ladies in Montreal. They made it a certainty by their overwhelming score in the Provincial championship from the Northern Hurael, LaTuque.

"Going into the second of the playoff series with a 6-point advantage, the Sun team was not content to rest on this margin but started in early to make the title a sure thing. They won 35-8. This gave them an 81-30 victory on the round basis.

"Florence Skelcher started the ball clicking in the ring before play had been underway a minute. She kept up her ball-eyed marksmanship during the entire game, Netting five baskets in the first half, one basket in the second, and a free throw, put her on the high scoring list for the round. Her efficiency also counted material in her team's convincing win.

Summary follows:

"Although outweighed at almost every position on the floor, the little LaTuque girls put up one of the gamest fights of the year. Even when all hope was lost, they continued to fight hard. Led by Irene Roadnight, their 16-year-old wonder, the LaTuque girls tried gallantly to get behind the Montreal LaClair defence, but succeeded only once during the first half in penetrating the ball.

"That basket came from the hands of Phyllis Johnson, Irene Roadnight scored six, one throw to increase their total score up to 3 for the first half, and two baskets by Miss Dolphis, Gertrude Thomas, Grace Lawrence and Margaret LaClair all scored in the first half in the Sun cause. LaTuque were hard pressed during this period, but this was due to the great defensive work of Marie Rose Tremblay, a fifth year pass, that the score was not much more than 17. This little girl stood up against everything that came her way. It is the same with the whole scrub, but these were almost unavoidable. Her later earned another and was forced to retire. The LaTuque crowd gave her a great hand.

"Then came a flock of substitutes during the second half. Misses Shubhart, Bertolet and Mitchell all played well. LaTuque scored one more basket and three free throws during this final period, while the assurance ladies rounded up another 18.

Keith Mowbray Attack

"Bill Smart sent his regular line in for the last few minutes and they made things look like a real game. Ruth Marshal, who had been doing great work all season, was also started as attack that had the north ernors completely bewildered, a man remarked on the sidelines. "Those Laurier youngsters are playing their hearts out this game, somewhere." And so it seemed with the Sun girls working on almost every trip towards the basket, and the green-clad visitors forced to hoist helplessly on. The gameness of the LaTuque was evident all through playing. If they tripped, they came up smiling and went at it a little harder. Even the home town crowd was pulling for them and the pulling hard. Not one of the four hundred present failed to realize that the visitors were giving their utmost.

"As for Bill Smart's team—they were there with the goods and they got to make up a championship team. Well drilled in team play and a regular line working like clockwork, the title could not be denied them.

"Our provincial champions will now journey to Toronto to contest the Ontario-Quebec title and the right too meet the Maritime champions, should they have to meet the Community Club of Toronto, to whom Winnipeg defaulted this year. The Ontario-Quebec series will be two games points to count on the round. They will be played on April 4 and 6 at Toronto. The scene of the battle has not yet been announced, but it will likely be one of the Y.M.C.A. floors up there.

"Teams—Sun Life (35): F. Skelcher (13); G. Thomas (6); C. Lawrence (4); — E. Butchart (3); B. Marshall (3); M. Burrell (3); M. LaClair (2); J. Bain (1); E. Bertolet, LaTuque: L. Roadnight (11); F. Smith (3); B. Olsen (1); F. Johnson, M. R. Tremblay, P. Johnson, M. B. Payne; M. Griffiths (1); D. Dean, E. Martineau.

"Sun Life wins championship round 37-30.

"Referee, Bill Consiglio."

Miss Myrtle Cook sports columnist on the Star speaking of the victory says:

"When the local senior cage teams were being initiated into the boys' rules game, we predicted that the Sun Life team would likely go through to the championship.

"In some quarters, this contention was ridiculed almost to the point of back, "What about St. Mary's and Y.W.C.H.A.?"

"We all know what happened to the Saints, the Y.W.H.A.-A. Canadians and St Lambert, the other senior contenders. They all went out of the fight gracefully, but convincingly, leaving Sun Life to carry Montreal's hopes into the Queen's final.

"Just how they carried our hopes is pictured in the Sun Life-LaTuque play-off series. The 57-30 win on the round is about as convincing as anything could be.

"Well done Sun Life!

"While we are congratulating the senior team from a commercial league we must not forget to point out the splendid fight put up by the LaTuque girls. They didn't have a chance against the superior weight, experience and play formations of their opponents but kept trying to the finish. Many made threatening gains on favorites with the Montreal fans and next year will have a lot of additional cage knowledge tucked under their middy.

"The champions are confident they can step into Toronto and live up to the reputation they have earned in local competition. If the Parkdale team is a fair indication of the strength of the Ontario senior teams, the Sun Life team need not worry about taking on any of their intermediates over there. Parkdales were held to a fairly low score here by St. Mary's and Canadians.

"Now that the playoff dates are satisfactorily arranged, there does not seem to be any hitch as regards the playoffs. The games take place the 4th and 6th. Sarnia at Toronto; Ontario gave as a reason for not playing the first game on the 2nd, that it was a Jewish holiday and the Community Club could not play that date. The 4th and 6th are okay to them as it happens to be the same week-end.

"The Sun Life Assurance Company officials are right behind their team. On Saturday they tendered a lunch to the LaTuque girls, after which they were guests of the Capitol theatre. E. A. Morfitt, treasurer of the Company, tossed the ball to open Saturday's championship game."

CANADIENS WIN FROM HAWKS

Goals by Mantha and Lipine Provide the Margin of a 2-1 Victory

Chicago, Ill., April 4—A fagged and failing team from Montreal, Canadiens, National Hockey League champions put on one of the greatest displays of grit and grim stubbornness last night to hold a slender lead and snatch the first game of the Stanley Cup series from the Chicago Black Hawks by a 2-1 score.

With their team weakened greatly by injuries and absences, the Canadiens played the style of game that was to be expected. Undoubtedly worn and tired from the Montreal-Boston series with the Boston Bruins, that brought the Montreal to the league title Canadiens flashed their prewar, fast early last night, ran up a goal in the first period, held it grimly throughout the middle session, and then with opportunity before them, began another rally in the last period. But almost that entire third period was a fight to hold what they had so gained.

Unable to match the swift front line of Chicago Canadiens that dropped in a veritable procession over the boards, Canadiens defence back behind their blue line and backed indomitable on Goalie Hawk faces came and went before a Red Wing attack that swirled, From wild scrimmages deep in the Canadien defensive zone, a swirl of pucks rolling, bouncing and sailing forward or cajoled into one of the swarm of Black Hawk fought for possession. Hainsworth Holds the Fort

Throughout the contest, George Hainsworth saved his team time and again, thwarting attempt after stem of relieving the attacking pressure held forth at least three-quarters of that terrific final 20 minutes. At one time Hainsworth himself unable to find a mate to whom he might safely pass, dropped the puck to Canadien goal to Aurel Joliat Gardner in the other goal.

Young George Mantha, who drew down two penalties in a clean but terrifically fought game, was the flying Frenchmen soaring victory-ward with a well-timed shot in the first period. Scarcely had the crowd of some 17,000 settled down after a few opening minutes of continuous roars, than Mantha planted himself in front of the goal. He had spotted Gagnon speeding down the right boards. Gagnon made no effort to swing in toward centre. He went deep in a corner, turned quickly and passed perfectly in front of the net.

It was all up to Mantha and the youngster made no mistake. He gave fully fired as Hawks swooped down upon him, and as Chuck Gardner dropped suddenly to the ice the puck whistled in under his outstretched leg.

"LU" BLUE PURCHASED

Chicago, Apr. 4.— Laurence Atwell "Lu" Blue, veteran major league first baseman, was purchased from the St. Louis Browns by the Chicago Double Sox. The price was not revealed.

Blue, who is 32 years old, was one of the most spectacular fielders in either major league when he joined the Detroit Tigers in 1921. His hitting was well above the .300 line, and except for that indefinite "something", by Cobb once said Blue might have been one of the greatest or best first baseman.

JESS PETTY RELEASED

Los Angeles, Calif., April 4.— Jess Petty, veteran left-handed pitcher, was released outright by the Chicago Cubs to the Los Angeles Club. Petty, who pitched for Brooklyn and Pittsburgh in the National League, was bought by the Cubs this season from the Newark club of the International League.

CUTHBERT WON MARATHON

Conditions Were Ideal for The Run and Fast Time Was Recorded

Toronto, April 3, — Twenty-five thousand people lined Bloor street and other spots of the course over which the Bloor District Business Men's 26-mile marathon was held yesterday morning under the auspices of the Monarch Club. Conditions were ideal for the run as can be judged by the exceedingly fast times registered, the first fourteen runners finishing within three hours. This is most unusual for a course which, if anything, is a trifle long and extremely rugged, and testifies eloquently to the condition of the Canadian runners at the moment. In international rating of marathon races places three hours and fifteen minutes as first-class time.

Johnny Cuthbert of Guelph, in a winning, used excellent judgment, having plenty of speed and enough reserve all the finish to make his position safe from Frank Hughes of Hamilton and Percy Wyer of the Monarch Club, Canadian champion. Both, who pressed hard at the finish. The pace for the first few miles was made by Robinson of Weston. He was replaced by this position by Norsemen, the Finnish star, who appeared to have plenty of speed, and held until the thirteenth mile, where Cuthbert passed him. Following Cuthbert in the eighteen-mile were Dack, Miles, Hughes, Cuthbert, Wyer, Burnside, Fergusson, Wyer, Shaw, Dack, Lee, Bagley, Strunk, Bennett, Elliott, Hackley, Meegan and Furvis.

RAISE SUSPENSIONS ON PLAYERS

Ten Recommended for Reinstatement by O.B.A.A. Executive

Peterboro, April 4—A decision to recommend to the Ontario branch of the A.A.U. of C. the reinstatement of ten suspended Windsor ball players was reached at a non-committee meeting of the executive of the Ontario Basketball Amateur Association held here tonight.

On the recommendation of Secretary W. J. Snyder of Hamilton who was commended for the work he had done in straightening the situation in the Border Cities it was decided to recommend the reinstatements of Lawrence Parent, Wm. Jordan, Herman Dalgleish, Harold N. Kay, Harry Doughty, Frank Carnegie, R. Weir, Jack Hawks, W. H. Burnie, Leo Parent and E. P. Brown.

The executive was unanimous in the opinion that no action should be taken in regard to the reinstatement of Ted Hayes Slewart, Kenney and Girard of Windsor.

The meeting also refused to recommend the reinstatement of the Chatham players and players D. and L. Paddon, who were suspended in 1929 for playing against the Chicago Black Hawks.

The application of Edward C. Conpeau of Kingston for reinstatement was refused, as was a similar application from Charles McRoberts of Oshawa.

Grant Transfers

The following applications for transfers were granted: Jack Grant, fireman from Harrow to Dundas; Tom Wheeler, fireman from Leamington to Guelph; on the understanding that no further transfer will be granted for three years. Charles Daly from Flint to Toronto providing a sworn statement can be furnished and approval of the T.A.B.A. secured. Edward Shaughnessy of Kingston to Thorold when approval of the Niagara district branch and a sworn statement have been secured. Herbert Irwin from Trail, B.C. to Copper Cliff. Charles Wilson from Copper Cliff to North Bay.

The meeting decided to send a message of sympathy to J. J. (Tiny) McArthur, Toronto, who is confined in Intercounty league, wishing him a recovery from his illness.

BETTER FERTILIZERS

The Dominion Seed Branch reports that the volume of fertilizer sold in Canada increased from 1,000,000 to 50,000 tons in 1924 to about 225,000 tons in 1929. Increase unusual, however, is not the whole story. The average analysis of mixed fertilizer sold in 1924 showed more than 15 per cent. total plant food as compared with 1929 when it was 20 per cent. It is that the actual plant food sold in 1929 increased in 1930 was at least eight times that of 1924. The trend seems to be toward higher analysis fertilizer containing less filler and more plan food at lower cost to the farmer. Keep the trend in demand, also for the fertilizer containing the higher percentage of plant foods.

VICTORIAS ARE NOW ORGANIZED

Thursday night the Belleville Victorias organized their baseball club which will represent Belleville in Intermediate series against Corbyville, Bulphide, Napanee and possibly Deseronto, Picton and Trenton.

The team which is composed chiefly of Junior Moose and Canuilton, who are too old for Juniors will make a strong bid for championship honors.

If everything goes through as planned the team will have an exceptionally good coach who will likely be secured from Walter Green. A meeting will be held about the end of next week when he will give his decision.

HEAVY LOSS IS SUSTAINED BY B. MACDONALD

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)
Picton, April 4—One of the most disastrous fires in Prince Edward County in some time was that on Tuesday when the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce MacDonald at East Lake was completely destroyed. The loss is expected to reach over ten thousand dollars with insurance of not quite four thousand. Practically all the contents were lost and this forms a big part of the loss as the home was one of the best furnished in the county.
It was in the early morning hours that Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald were awakened by the smell of smoke and on investigating found that the whole interior of the home was already a mass of flames. They made their escape with only their clothes in bedclothes to escape burns. The alarm was quickly spread and firefighters soon appeared but were too late to save more than a little furniture. Nearby buildings were saved.

MANY EGGS ON EASTER MARKET

Biggest Day in Maple Syrup Expected Today

Eggs today were very plentiful but the anticipated Easter demand materialized. Prices ranged from twenty-eighteen to twenty cents per dozen for strictly new laid, and fifteen cents in some cases. At eleven thirty there were many 21 cent eggs. Wholesale prices were 17 cents for extras, 15 cents for firsts and 13 for seconds.
Today was the big day for maple syrup, more selling than at any previous Saturday in the past three weeks. Prices remained at fifty cents per quart and seventy-five per gallon. Next Saturday the offerings of syrup will not be as large if we thought.
Butter held at two pounds for sixty cents and chickens and fowl ran from one dollar up.
The poultry market showed a few changes, pork sold at 13 cents and 14 cents, spring chickens, best kinds quarters sold at 13 cents for choice ones. Leads was reported at nine cents live and 30 cents dressed. Veal sold for twelve, five and thirteen cents dressed, Spring lamb was offered in the stores at 25 cents per lb. Smoked hams brought 25 cents per lb. In the vegetable line offerings were unchanged beets 80 cents peck, carrots 60 cents, parsnips 40 cents, rhubarb ten cents or three bunches for 25 cents, onions 30 cents peck, lettuce three bunches for 25 cents, cucumbers were sold at 90 cents to one dollar. Apples sold at one dollar and twenty five cents per basket.

RADIO FANS CORNER

The radio seemed to be suffering from a bad cold all day yesterday and last night too which made it bad for the fans who had been all set for the long distance stations were certainly anxious to hear them yesterday. For tonight there doesn't seem to be much on the dial that is outside of the usual stand-bys.

Gilbert E. Gable, clubman and sportsman, will present a talk on radio tonight, 6:45, "The Highroad of Adventure", three Navajo Indians who have been all set with the western Navajo Reservation and who have collected nearly 7,000 Indians to tour the country. The program from Chicago, 9:30 tonight.

Ted Lewis and his Musical Clowns take the air to-night for a program of smart dance tunes. The Lewis program is heard from the Washington Studios over WEAF and the time is 10 o'clock. Tonight's program will be heard from a different city as the band is on tour. Tomorrow it will be from Baltimore, on April 15 from Pittsburgh and on April 25 from Columbus, Ohio.

Uncle Abe and David at 8.45 WEAF and Weber and Fields at 8, you'll get a good laugh from this funny pair, funny as a barrel of monkeys. Another good one on our list tonight is a smart program from this station at 8:15 and the Silver Flute program is heard at 8:30.

Waller Damrosch presents his musical appreciation hour WEAF, and Gibbons is also on the program. B. A. Rolfe once more will be heard from WEAF and Lenny Ross. Troubadour of the Moon, croons serenades to the moon at 11:15. Little Jack Little holds the spotlight at 11:45.

All hail the Jesters at 7.15 WJZ and at 9 Howard Lanin's Royal Danube orchestra. The Musical Doctor at 9:30 and the Cuckoo program at 10. Ben Bernie at 10:30 and from WABC to-night at 9 a new program will be heard, "Atlantic City Entertains" and Al Gallup will remain a secret until tonight.

CANADA-BRAZIL TRADE SEEN AS PLEASANT POSSIBILITY

Visit of Canadian Trade Mission Does Spade Work

PERNAMBUCO, Brazil, April 3.—(By Claude Mesheau, Canadian Press Correspondent) —The commercial exchanges between Canada and Brazil are possible nobody among the Canadian Trade and Goodwill Mission doubts. It is only a matter of finding out the ways and means; but it can be said a momentous step has been made in that direction.

While touring Pernambuco, or rather Recife, as the Brazilians call it, on their brief stay here, the Canadian delegation did not forget their mission. By questioning their courteous and benevolent Brazilian guides—in French generally as it is the language most spoken in Brazil after Portuguese —they found ou a few interesting things. For example, that the State of Pernambuco, with a population of two million inhabitants, buys only 15 per cent. of its wheat and flour from Argentina. The other 85 per cent. is imported from the United States. From the latter country it also buys 90 per cent. of its canned goods and a large quantity of the fruits grown in temperate climate.

In front of each grocery store in Recife are large stacks of New Zealand or Californian apples, a delicacy which apparently enjoys as much popularity in the tropics as the orange in Canada, and which should be still more in demand once the hucksterss of the Canadian grown is revealed to the southern consumers.

In return for Canadian wheat, canned and manufactured goods, and fruits, Pernambuco could export to the Dominion, among other things, delicious pineapples, candied fruits, and high grade tobacco all products which could readily satisfy the exact ing Canadian taste.

That "trade follows friendship" is a motto always true, and should be particularly so after the Canadian Mission's visit to Recife. Although Canada's representatives had very little opportunity to show their wares or talk business, as the stop was a short one, they have apparently grasped the situation quite accurately, for some of them talk already of sending commercial travellers to Brazil as well as to the West Indies. On the other hand some of the importers are looking forward to these two countries furnishing them with products readily saleable on the Canadian market. They should not have trouble in finding an assortment, for, like Canada, these are the lands of plenty.

REDNERSVILLE W. I. OFFICIALLY OPEN NEW LIBRARY ROOM

Agricultural Representative assists in Ceremony

(Contributed)

On the evening of March 26th Mrs. Ritz Hall acted her home for the monthly meeting of Redneersville W. I. The lovely room was lighted in the evening by her daughter Ruth and long before the hour of opening the large comfy room were filled with members, some chatting gaily and others strolling into the large west room of the home to get a glimpse of the new library and reading room, which was officially opened by Mr. Webster, B. S. A., Picton, Agricultural representative of Prince Edward County.

The meeting opened with the president, Mrs. Earle Boster, in the chair and community singing was led by Miss Clara Anderson. Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Miss Helen Redner.

After discussing correspondence Mrs. Alex Anderson gave an outline of the first institute organized in this community in the year 1909. She read a list of the officers and members and drew attention to the items on our first program.

It was interesting to note that expansion of the work — our membership now being 125 and the activities embracing the care of the Albury Cemetery and the new library and reading room.

A paper full of deep thoughts was read by Mrs. W. C. Dempsey, on Motherhood as a Profession.

The musical program consisted of a selection by the Redersville Ladies' Quartette and beautiful renderings of solos, Robin Adair by Mrs. R. Bradford and Mother Machree by Mrs. Webster of Picton, who was a guest of the evening. At the close Mr. Webster in a few well chosen and encouraging remarks declared the library officially open.

We are the present status of our library to the unselfish and untiring interest of one of our members, Mrs. Wm. Hough, who through nearly six years of its babyhood and growth, has so kindly loaned a room free of charge and has acted as librarian greatly indebted for her able assistance in guiding our readers in the choice of books.

Our rooms are well heated, bright and sunny and are open on Tuesdays p.m. from 2 to 5 o'clock and on Saturday evenings from 7 to 9 and also Saturday p.m. from 2 to 5 o'clock.

We are especially thankful to the members for donating chairs and to Mr. John Cook of Belleville for donating a large reading table and to all others who have helped with work and donations.

Hail Barbara Stanwyck, Radiant Personality of Screen

Her New Picture, "Ten Cents a Dance" Plays Capitol Monday Tuesday and Wednesday

"Ten Cents a Dance" is the kind of picture that makes an audience glad its movies were invented. This entertainment is easy to take. One of the chief reasons is Barbara Stanwyck, the young actress who flashed to Broadway fame in "Burlesque" and attained stardom in Ladies of Leisure, her first picture. Because her personality and charm radiated from the screen like the sun warming the earth, "Ten Cents a Dance" has proved a hit wherever shown.

Having the advantage of the sympathetic, understanding guidance of Lionel Barrymore, who directed this picture, Barbara Stanwyck made the most of her opportunity. She portrays the role with a natural freedom which gives one the feeling of being in the same room with an old friend.

When Barbara laughs, the audience laughs with her. When she is tormented by problems which seem unreasonable, the audience feels her anguish and is deeply concerned when one thrills with her. Here is no image of light and shadow with a synthetic voice coming from a celluloid filler. To all people Barbara Stanwyck is a glowing woman, vivid and compelling....she is a living presence to which one responds.

"Ten Cents a Dance" is marked by acting and direction that are far from commonplace.

Touching on the story we will see a pavilion of taxi-dancers....a dime a dance....amongst them a girl outstanding. This girl lives a wealthy life whose backbone is substituted by his wishbone....they marry and she is disillusioned.....he is a thief..... a stale from the prison....Barbara loves the girl....she seeks to borrow money from the employer.....intrigue situations and misunderstanding.... and a surprising ending.

"Ten Cents a Dance," plays at the Capitol Theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, March 9,10, 9.15, and 9.12.

In addition a full supporting comedy programme will be shown.

Nothing as Good for Asthma. Ask my remedies come and go but every year the sales of the original Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy grow greater and greater. No further evidence could be asked of its remarkable merit. It relieves. It is always the same unvarying quality which the sufferer from asthma learns to know. Do not suffer another attack, but get the splendid remedy today man. Mrs. Joe Payne, Mr. and Mrs.

FATHER LALLY TO SPEAK IN CITY

The Auditorium at St. Michael's Academy was crowded last evening when Rev. T. Lally, S. J., Toronto, formerly of this city, gave an illustrated lecture on the Life and Passion of Christ and on the Canadian Martyrs. The distinguished speaker was introduced by Mr. Charles Dolan The slides depicting the Life of Christ were very beautiful, many of them being taken from famous paintings. The rich colorings of the scenes and the striking beauty of the figure of Christ were outstanding. Slides illustrating the parables that Christ spoke, and the Miracles He worked were also shown in each part of the lecture. As the scenes were shown on the screen Father Lally described each in the part of the Scriptures.

The slides on the life and martyrdom of the Canadian Martyrs were particularly interesting. Father Lally has been associated with the Shrine of the Martyrs at Port Ste. Marie, north of Toronto, and the scenes included recent views of pilgrims at the Shrine. Each Sunday afternoon thousands visit the Shrine, arriving by motor and by rail. On one occasion 2,200 cars were counted at the Shrine. Mass is frequently celebrated at the outdoor altar to accommodate the crowds.

JILTED

By Margaret Widdemer

Ethan added, "I stopped by your place and couldn't get in on the front office."

"Who's it from? Who's it from?" clamored Patricia.

"Who's it for, you mean," he said. "Not you, my child."

"You never let me ask any really interesting questions," sighed Patricia. "I never get to know if my guesses are right, and I have to ask them. And I always want to know things like that, and I just stopped."

Ethan's slim long hand, with the gold signet on it, reached over and pushed the letter to Helen, facing Patricia.

"I'll tell you, . . . e consoled the child. "Take a letter to my sister Jessica. I can tell by the postmark. And this one is—she had to tear open to find out— "from a man who wants to sell me beautiful lots by mail for three dollars down, if I'll sell some raincoats for him. And this—" They were watching her, gay together over little things, as people do who live together and like one another—and the three who loved her saw Helen's face suddenly turn serious. "It's from my cousin Nina," she finished, laying it down by her plate and beginning to break the brown, crumb-covered chicken over which Ethan had poured a sauce with a sprig of cress, with her fork.

"Read it!" demanded Patricia.

"Not now," Mrs. Kingsway took a hand. "Afterwards."

Ada Kingsway picked up the conversation and carried it: Ethan, man like, saw no reason for concern to Helen in a letter from her cousin, and had no feeling about her beyond the calm neighborliness a man has for a woman he has known some time.

"You don't owe your cousin anything, my dear," Ada said in a firm voice as they rose from the table. "Send your letter, and don't worry."

Ethan helped his mother back upstairs, Patricia flew out of the room after her evasive Lucille, who knew mealtimes very well and was a most devoted and charming guest when they were over, when she relapsed into her ordinary warlike state. Helen went into the library to read her letters.

The one from Jessica was just the usual weekly letter; full of news about Lester, and the little apartment and the bridge club, and shopping, and small worries about the approaching baby. She wished Helen wasn't marrying the Northerner, because they would always be so far apart, and she looked wistfully forward to the baby's coming. "And do be sure he gets a good allowance," concluded Jessica sadly, "because all the girls I know have to cut down a good deal on what they have to get husband and baby clothes and nursery furniture and things like that—the other day. And I'm sure Lester will be careful, but he doesn't understand how much it costs."

Helen drew her out in the hall. "—I ought to go speak to Mrs. Kingsway," she added.

"No, indeed. Mrs. Kingsway will understand."

Doris powdered her face and got hold of herself. The two girls, when Helen had put her wraps on and said a hurried word of explanation to the others, went out and drove home in Doris' car.

"What is it really, Doris?" Helen said.

"Nina's back," Doris answered to the point.

"I know. I'm dining with her—we're dining with her—next Tuesday evening."

"I always thought she wanted Ethan," Doris said mysteriously. "You know there was a sort of belief that Ethan had never got over Nina, and she encouraged it, I think, Helen, you afraid to go have dinner there, Helen?"

"Nina won't put poison in my soup, Doris—how could she—far from this herself—" Nina isn't the emotional kind."

"I know all about her! She was "Where is Ronny now," Helen so horrid to my poor Ronny," Doris asked, hoping to change the subject.

"He's been getting along all sorts of marvelous ways. Half the time I haven't known where he was. He was in New York one week, digging on the subway. Then he tried to write, but he says editors are just like all the rest, bonded to either ideas or to people."

"I don't see that you and Ronny are any different, then," said Helen half impatiently. "If anybody ever was a bondslave to an idea it's Ronny Higginson."

"Well, but men never are reasonable," said Doris in a tired voice. "What I thought was—Helen, do try to make Nina give Ronny his money! You don't know how much depends on it."

"Yes that what you wanted to tell me?"

"Yes—no—part of it. Oh, if Ronny would only have sense. . . ."

"He still wants to write and you still won't. Is that it?"

"Yes. And he's so unreasonable. He says if I loved him I'd risk starvation with him. Oh, he didn't say that, but more like it. And, oh, Helen, I'm so afraid. Aunt Louisa and Father were talking about editors and writing and Helen's skirt. Ethan, lying back in his chair, said any girl who did not never to expect her people to have anything to do with her again."

"Perhaps it's better to wait till Ronny makes some money. Only try to make up your mind what you will do, and then don't be unhappy over it."

But Doris only looked up at her with red scared eyes and jumped back into her car and hurried down the street to her own door.

(To Be Continued)

"The dream is the body's express. Hoh In the best possible symbol it knows to tell you that something is going wrong."—Dr. Carl Jung.

"I like just about four people; then it's a real party."—Sinclair Lewis.

"Like Patricia, I want to know what was in your letters," he greeted her. "You look very serious, dear. Anything I can help about. Is the little sister ill again?"

"Oh, yes," Helen told him serious-ly. "But Nina's asking us to dinner!"

"Where—in France?"

"No—Kingsway! Next Tuesday evening."

"Why, that's all right," he said cheerfully. "Oh don't you want to go—off Nina for any reason?"

Helen shook her head. She had never told Ethan what Nina had said; the calm taking-for-granted of Ethan's love with which Nina had sailed off.

There was nothing for it but to smile and promise, and write telling Nina she'd go. She went slowly down the hall, thinking it all over.

And then Patricia called her, and she answered. They had planned to spend that afternoon upholstering a chair for the first floor of a doll's house in the grounds. It was a thrilling sale discovery of Helen's an adorable house big enough to crawl inside with actual stairs.

They put on their wraps and went out through the sheep gate, they crushed through the deep snow in their galoshes, laughing and snowballing each other. The mood prevailed all the afternoon, after they were through taking the measurements for the house, and sitting before the fire in the long salon parlor.

Marietta had spread a sheet carefully down before the fire, having large suspicions of what glue and cretonne and cotton might do to the Aubusson carpet she loved more than mistresses did. And in the centre of the sheet Helen and Patricia sat, their heads bent with glue and their hair very full of cotton. The little wooden chairs they had found at a Philadelphia lyceum were set on two semicircles, one of upholstered ones, and one—there were only three left now—bare.

The fascination which making things had for most adults caught Ada Kingsway with came in first. In spite of the danger of drafts, she dropped down, pinned her gay crepe de chine up over its slip, and began to work in different shades and two twisted scrolls, slim and long and flourishing like Ethan's.

It was so Ethan sfound them, entering just as, at last, they had time for some mislaid papers.

"Well, nobody said he was tea unless something drastic is done," he said, taking in the intense industry that prevailed among the womenfolk.

Patricia, darling, go get three damp towels, said Mrs. Kingsway, Ethan, you are the only one here with hands fit to touch anything. We've got glue from head to foot, even Luella. Could you pour the tea, do you think?"

Ethan considering, thought he could, and went down on one knee beside Helen to do it. Patricia came back with the towels, and they all sat in a heap in the Turkish armchairs, the little chairs and the scraps of cotton and cretonne.

They were all hungry, and were in danger of ruining the eight o'clock dinner which was fatally near.

Helen happened to glance down at the wrist-watch that sparkled in the firelight, and sprang up, finally.

"Good gracious! It's here and I must have dinner at home, I've only had your letter, and don't worry."

Ethan helped his mother back upstairs, Patricia flew out of the room after her evasive Lucille, who knew mealtimes very well and was a most devoted and charming guest when they were over, when she relapsed into her ordinary warlike state. Helen went into the library to read her letters.

The one from Jessica was just the usual weekly letter; full of news about Lester, and the little apartment and the bridge club, and shopping, and small worries about the approaching baby. She wished Helen wasn't marrying the Northerner, because they would always be so far apart, and she looked wistfully forward to the baby's coming. "And do be sure he gets a good allowance," concluded Jessica sadly, "because all the girls I know have to cut down a good deal on what they have to get husband and baby clothes and nursery furniture and things like that—the other day. And I'm sure Lester will be careful, but he doesn't understand how much it costs."

Helen sighed and smiled a little over that, sitting in the deep window seat under Master Everard Kingsway's black-browed portrait, and trouble with Ethna would always be the other way: already he was plotting out of hand in his passion for piling gifts upon her, and poor bankrupt Jessica, with her wonderful values! She remembered those in her tailor's day—fifteen dollars for a coat on some necessity, and proudly paying twenty-five for it—lamp or rug or garment—because it was "such a wonderful value." She must try to pull the child up, not now, but next spring. Poor Jessica, who adored affectionate, plaintive Jessica, and was always giving her an allowance of taking it away in the vain hope of having things come out right at the end of the month!

And then she braced herself for the reading of Nina's letter. Where your cousin leaves you with the calm of stated purpose of marrying a man and that man returns from abroad and tells you it was you he had been in love with for some years, you may feel triumphant or guilty, according to your temperament. Helen felt guilty. And she cared for Nina. Nina's letter was perfectly cool, calm and unangered. She made no reference to her own earlier idea that Ethan had never ceased to love her since she broke her engagement; she congratulated Helen without a visible claw, suggested a few months' boarding-school for the child, and ended by setting a date for having Ethan and Helen to dinner.

"I'm writing on the train," she finished, "and by the time you get this I'll be back in Kingsway, Telephone me and say you can both come. I'm having just the four of us. Ed Gaynor is the fourth."

Then she did feel it, just a little. For the fourth was a man who was known to everyone in Kingsway, by his own admission, to want to marry Nina. She wished to be armored.

450 Scholars Contest 70 Music Competitions

Public School Music Competitions Are Keen

JUDGES' AWARDS

Winners of Shields, Medals and of Special Mention

On Thursday from 9 a.m. until 5.30 p.m. with an intermission at noon, the competitions in music in the four public schools, were held in the assembly hall of Queen Mary School before many interested citizens.

Over seventy competitions and in all some four hundred and fifty children taking part. Girls and boys solo singing. Duet singing, junior, intermediate and senior choirs, all competing for shields, medals and prizes under the direction of Mr. V. P. Hunt, supervisor of music and all taking part receiving direct training by him in the city schools.

Mr. Leo Riggs and Mr. Sam Anglin acted as adjudicators and are most enthusiastic over the work being accomplished and the great improvement being made each year and they praised the ability and the mind-ful of the young choristers. New this year was the duet singing and music playing by the pupils of the piano classes in the schools. Below are given the winners of the shields, the boy and girl medalists in each school, also special mention in all taking part in the piano playing.

JUDGMENT WAS RESERVED

ing an appeal by the plaintiff. If judgment were given against him, the defense submitted only sufficient evidence to argue upon. If appeal was set up. Frederick Wilkins, land surveyor of Napanee, was the first witness called and he produced a number of plans, that were placed into the exhibit of the court. He admitted studying the Young's plan of 1816 on which the plaintiff was relying to establish a road into Massassaga Park across the lands of Wallbridge and the witness stated that from the description given on the plan, it would be impossible to lay out on the ground the course the road should take.

"If you were handed that report one day after it was made or now could you go on the ground and lay out the course as in the description reported in the report?" asked Mr. Payne.

"No."

"Could any competent surveyor?"

"I don't think so, in fact I know not."

"Were there at any time trees marked that would help lay out the road?" "No."

"Is there a trail called the telephone trail?"

"Yes and can easily be followed around the trees and rocks."

"Is that the trail used in 1919?"

"Yes, Mr. Wallbridge used it to get to his cottage on the Bay of Quinte shore."

George Wallbridge the defendant was next called told of building the road spoken of by the last witness in '19 to get to his cottage. He told the court that no one spent any money on the preparation of the road excepting himself and that the road was laid on virgin soil.

"Is the road constructed north of the telephone line wider than the line itself?"

"Yes but only by hearsay."

"Have you examined the plan of Young?

"Yes."

"Have you gone over the ground laid down?"

"Yes."

"Is there any indication of a road in its length?"

"No excepting the Indian trail."

In cross examination Mr. Wallbridge said he was a descendant of the old Wallbridge family and stated there was a road over his property from water to water. There was always a trail but never a road.

"Was there any uniform way?" asked Justice Raney.

"No."

"Were there fences always there?"

"Yes, as long as I can remember."

"Was there always a gate on the westerly boundary?"

"As long as I can remember."

Questioned as to the deed by his friend, Mr. Wallbridge admitted being in the United States for a number of years.

"Did you take out citizenship papers?"

Justice Raney would not let the witness answer the question as it was irrelevant to the action.

"Were you a member of the township council, when you sued the township?"

"No."

"Did you put up a gate at the west limit of lot 5 in 1923?"

"Yes."

James Broad stated he was a resident of Massassaga Point all his life and as long as the former witness there was a gate on the westerly limit of Lot 4. He explained that the route of the Young's plan was altogether impossible, that the trees were not cut out until about 25 years ago. The evidence in a former action of Dodge and Daniel Belong was then read into the records and the case was adjourned for argument in Toronto.

HER BACKACHE RELIEVED AFTER USING TWO BOXES

Says Mrs. R. Richardson Of Dodd's Kidney Pills

Ontario Lady Found Them to be Just the Remedy She Wanted

Lavant, Ont., March 30— (Special) —It is with true enthusiasm that Mrs. R. Richardson, a resident of this place gives her opinion of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I have been suffering with a lame back and after using two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills I was entirely relieved. Many thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are the best remedy I know of for kidney trouble."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have become popular all over the country because people have tried them and found them good. They are purely and simply a kidney remedy.

To enjoy good health your kidneys must function properly. Do you realize what an important part your kidneys play in your bodily health and length of life? Sluggish kidneys permit waste impurities to remain in the blood and cause poisoning of the system.

Stimulate the kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills, the kidney pill that has been winning new friends for over a third of a century. They are endorsed from coast to coast.

"Dance Fools Dance" Drama With A Punch

Joan Crawford Is Star of Exciting Talkie Coming to Belle Theatre

"Dance Fools, Dance," which is the feature offering at the Belle Theatre Wednesday and Thursday, matinee daily is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's latest talking picture starring Joan Crawford.

This is the most glamorous of Miss Crawford's recent roles, reflecting both the glitter of "Our Blushing Brides" and the tragic drama of "Paid," her last two screen offerings.

The story, with a Chicago locale, principally concerns the underworld and newspaper life of the metropolis. It is an original by Aurania Rouverol with screen continuity by Richard Schayer.

Harry Beaumont, who brought Miss Crawford to stardom in "Our Dancing Daughters," and "Our Blushing Brides" again is the director.

Lester Vail Opposite Star

Lester Vail, a newcomer to the screen who recently made his debut in "Beau Ideal," is Miss Crawford's leading man in her new picture, and the supporting cast includes such film favorites as Cliff Edwards, William Bakewell, William Holden, Clark Gable, Carl Pope, Edward Brophy, Hale Hamilton, Natalie Moorhead, Joan Marsh and Russell Hopton.

Perhaps outstanding in the spectacular episodes is a nocturnal lingerie swimming party staged during a gay yachting cruise in the opening scenes. In this, scores of the dancing camels strip to unmentionables and dive overboard with their boy friends. Another glittering scene is the night club dance number intriguingly executed by Miss Crawford, consisting of a clinging silver creation.

The story, despite lavish touches, is an intensely dramatic one, the plot motivated by murder on a white slave scale. It is a daring theme from the underworld and a still more daring one from the viewpoint of Hollywood crime and racketeering. There is a wealth of atmosphere, realistically supplied.

Make This Test of the HEART

To gauge the condition of the heart, there is a simple test which anyone can make. Medical men agree that it is unrivalled as a means of finding out if the heart is in health or if there is need for under difficulties.

Are you short of breath when going up stairs?

The extent to which you are inconvenienced under this strain will tell you how serious may be the condition of your heart.

In most cases, the trouble is due to a thin, poor state of the blood and a run down condition of the nervous system. The logical prescription is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food because this treatment enriches the blood and strengthens the nerves of the heart, as well as those of the other vital organs.

This reconstructive treatment has proven effective in such a long period that you can use it with the assurance that the results will be most satisfactory.

2 PAINTINGS PRESENTED ON EASTER DAY

Portrait of Late Rev. Dr. W. C. Clarke, Former Rector

DESCENT FROM CROSS

Work of Late James Thompson Given Christ Church

Two oil paintings, one a portrait of the late Rev. Dr. W. C. Clarke, under whose ministry the present Christ Church was built, and the other "The Descent From the Cross" by the late James Thompson, artist and photographer, who was a member of the congregation for many years, were unveiled in Christ Church and presented to the congregation on Easter Sunday evening, the former by Miss Winnifred Clarke, and the later by Mrs. Thompson. A large congregation was present at the ceremony.

The rector, the Rev. C. E. Clarke, said that very few of the congregation would remember vividly the late Dr. Clarke. The painting to be unveiled by Miss Clarke would help to keep alive in the minds of the people, one who had labored faithfully and done well. It could be said that he partially gave his life for the church. He died from a fall during the construction of the church and never fully recovered. He collapsed in church in September 1882 and died on October 16th of the same year. He had come to Belleville in 1878.

In making the presentation Miss Clarke said: "It gives me very much pleasure to present this likeness of Dr. Clarke to Christ Church as he was instrumental in building it."

PORT COLBORNE BOY DROWNED

John Paul, Aged Thirteen Died in Welland Ship Canal

Port Colborne, April 6—John Paul, 13-year-old son of Edward Paul, 84 Starnaud Street, Port Colborne, was drowned yesterday afternoon when he fell into lock 4 of the Welland Ship Canal at Humberstone.

The boy was walking along the edge of the lock wall with a companion, Frank Hinmans, 10 years of age, according to the younger lad, the first intimation he had of trouble was when he heard a big splash and saw Paul struggling in the water.

He ran to the other end of the lock where a number of men were seated in a car, but by the time grappling hooks were secured the boy had been in the water for over half an hour. Artificial respiration was applied for 30 minutes without effect. At this point there is only eight feet of water, but from the top of the wall to the water is a drop of nearly 40 feet.

The boy was the eldest child in a family of six.

E. R. CLARKSON ACCOUNTANT DIES

Well-Known Canadian Official Passes in Toronto

Toronto, April 6—Edward Roper Curzon Clarkson, pioneer Canadian accountant and an outstanding figure in the financial and commercial life of the country for half a century, died yesterday. He was in his 79th year.

Born in Toronto, August 11, 1852, Mr. Clarkson was head of the firms of E. R. C. Clarkson and Sons, and Clarkson, Gordon, Dilworth, Guillotyle and Nash and the most widely known figure in his profession in Canada. His firms had acted as trustees and auditors in the largest financial undertakings within their sphere during the past quarter century.

Mr. Clarkson had been in ill-health for several months and underwent an operation recently in an effort to regain his strength. The strain proved great for the weakened constitution and he died in the Private Patients' Pavilion of the Toronto General Hospital late last night.

Widely known because of the scope of his organizations, Mr. Clarkson was more widely known for the principles which he had always upheld and upon which his professional reputation was based. The name of his firms was synonymous with thorough administration of weakened financial structures.

DAME FASHION MAKES HER SPRING DEBUT AMONG FLUTTER OF COLOUR ON EASTER SUNDAY

Highways Were Crowded With Pleasure-Seekers

HARRY SHAW IS GOING TO GERMANY

Bright Easter sunlight, balmy zephyrs of spring, and crowds of people happy at Eastertide and feeling the freedom from the bonds of winter combined to make Easter Day one of the finest on record. It was a day which might be called the ideal of ideals, except for the weather contained all the factors that were sought.

Unusually large crowds attended the church services beginning early in the morning, many thousands thronging of the communion, many listened at home to radio services from churches though the radio listening population was naturally much reduced by the large numbers who were at places of worship. Sunday schools in the afternoon were called to the doors of youth and childhood felt the combined emotions aroused by the religious and the natural appeal of the day. Crowds continued to go to the later services of the day, rounding out a day filled full of the noblest of human motives and emotions.

Easter Capitals of Cars

The usual trappings of Easter made their appearance. Joy in the season found expression in gay garments and headdresses and thousands on walking though the local Easter walk is much curbed in this time by the appeal to motoring. Friday saw the peak of motor traffic due to that day being Canada's capital greatly exceeded that of Friday, the previous day, and Easter today is taking to the great outdoors and the exhilaration of motoring as yesterday. Cavalcades of cars crept along the highways.

Spontaneity and exuberance mark ed every activity. Birds sang with the gladness of spring. Humanity felt as free as the birds for the appeal of the outer life and the inner life merged to make the day one glad sweet song.

Yesterday many felt themselves a

TRENTON PAIR LOST LIVES IN BOAT TRAGEDY

Young Men in Quest of Ducks Drown in Quinte

NOT RECOVERED

Arthur Lamorre and Henry Williams Meet Watery Grave

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Trenton, April 6—A pair of mitts, two sodden caps, two floating oars and a water-logged skiff tell the mute story of a double tragedy which occurred here yesterday morning, when Arthur Lamorre, age 26, and Henry Williams, age 24, were drowned in the waters of the Bay of Quinte while out duck hunting. The drowning occurred about a mile and a quarter off shore at a point slightly southwest of the Grove.

Vernon Crouter, in company with the two deceased young men, left the home of Lamorre's father, Jos. Lamorre, in a horse and sleigh after one o'clock Easter Sunday morning. The boat, built by Williams, was launched by Lamorre, and as they were leaving the shore Lamorre advised the taking of the big punt. Williams laughed at the idea to which Lamorre replied: "Well, I can swim if the thing does turn over."

"You won't swim far in those things," said Crouter as he got out of the boat to attend a number of traps he has set along the shore. Williams and Lamorre headed for the open bay. It was a brilliant moonlight night and they had a double-barrelled shot gun with them. If their luck had been good, they might have secured a few of the wild ducks which were then flying around there on Saturday.

TAKES LIFE IN OLD WELL AT CRESSY HOME

William Powers Well-Known Farmer Commits Suicide

HAD FINE FARM

Jumped in Well—Pulling Top Over—No Reason Given

William Powers, aged about fifty years, was found at the bottom of an old well at the rear of his home on Saturday morning, drowned. Mr. Powers, who lived at Cressy, Prince Edward County, about twenty miles east of Picton, disappeared from his home on Thursday morning and it was not until Saturday morning that he was discovered.

Police were notified by relatives that Powers had disappeared, but for two days his whereabouts could not be ascertained. It is believed that he climbed into the well, pulled the wooden cover over after he had got into it and descended into the water. Powers was himself. Search parties finally looked into the well and while it was empty as usual, they found Powers' body.

Powers did not leave any communication stating why he had committed suicide. He appeared to be in his usual health when he left home on Thursday and so far as The Ontario Intelligencer can learn was not in any financial or other difficulties. He owned a fine farm, about one hundred acres in extent, and his household effects. He leaves a widow and one son, who has always lived there with him. Another family, the Andersons, lived on the farm. The Andersons have only been in Cressy a short time.

Powers was a bachelor. The well in which he is alleged to have drowned himself has been filled in and has not been used regularly.

HAVELOCK MAN REPORTS LOSS

Says Someone Rifled Club Bag in Rear of Car

TORONTO, April 6—Claiming that the rumble seat of his car had been broken open and $1,000 in cash stolen, while he and his wife were at supper, William A. Sizemore of Hamilton reported his loss to Toronto police late last night.

According to the complaint made by Sizemore to Detective-Sergeant Arthur Dunn, he had left Hamilton, he parked his car on Markham street, early in the evening and went to a restaurant on Spadina Avenue with his wife. They had left their valuables in the car for about an hour.

Five or six hours later, Mr. Sizemore said, he and his wife were preparing to spend the night. Sizemore found that his car had been unable to get his rumble seat, where the money and a $150 diamond were placed in his wife's suitcase. He found a couple of watch stands in the back seat, but the money was all gone. He also found that his car had been forced and the cash stolen. The draft, which was wrapped with his wife's fur coat, had been drawn from the bank by Mrs. Sizemore on Thursday morning and the couple started on a trip to Coball, police learned.

FIRE FIGHTERS KEPT BUSY ON THE WEEK END

Chief Kidd Threatens to Summon Trailers of Fire Carts

The fire brigade was busy over the week end, having three runs and all of them unnecessary. Early Saturday morning the brigade was called to a grass fire at Bleecker Park but there was no damage done. The brigade stayed on the scene for some time in order that the fire would not go out of control. The dead grass was considerable and the fire burned off.

Sunday afternoon shortly after three o'clock the brigade was called to George Street, where Miss Elizabeth Corbett's car had caught fire allegedly due to a leaky carburetor. The brigade made a quick run after the alarm was given and the car was the scene in the car. Extinguishers only were used.

Sunday morning fire broke out in a small barn owned by Charles Boyle, Foster Avenue and was totally destroyed. The loss amounted to $300.00 partially covered by insurance. The brigade seeing that it was impossible to save the barn owing to fire gaining headway before the call was sent in turned their attention to saving a number of geese in the close vicinity, which was accomplished.

Chief Constable Kidd complained to the press of people driving in cars cycles following the fire reels to the fires and stated the nuisance had to cease. There is danger of someone being injured by the cars and bicycles try to keep pace with the reels which is above the rate of speed allowed in the city. The biggest trouble is the bicycles, as the riders take many chances. The Chief stated that if the practice continued it would be necessary to summon the participants to court and impose a fine.

FATALLY HURT IN HIGHWAY SMASH

Kemptville, April 6—On the Prince of Wales highway this evening at 6.30 o'clock Mrs. Duff Cooper, well-known resident of Osgoode, was hurled to death as the result of being struck by an automobile driven by Garnet Woods of Kemptville.

Chaverand, who, with his brothers, David and Eddie was going to Ogdensburg, N.Y., where he died suddenly this afternoon, had reached a point about four miles south of this village when they met a car bearing Mr. H. Craig, Miss Emma Chaverand and Joseph Chartrand, who were returning from the hospital.

Both cars turned and stopped close to each other, last to the left hand side of the other car, where he learned of his father's death, and had turned out to cross over to the south side driven by Woods is said to have cut between the two cars and struck down the man, hurling him several feet in the air.

Jealous, Retired Minister Pulls Gun on Successor

NEVADA, Mo., April 6.—A quarrel between two rural Missouri ministers ended today with the death of one of them, Rev. George Rider, 45, minister of a little country church at Hadley's Bluff, near here, died from a wound allegedly inflicted Saturday by the Rev. E. J. Brown. Rider and Brown served as minister to the little Christian Union Church.

Brown, jealous when the sister and his wife called at Brown's home, Everett W. E. Butler said. Brown became incensed when Butler asked him to supply in the pulpit Easter Sunday, and shot the man through the heart, the officer said.

Brown was lodged in jail, pending outcome of the wounds. When Rider died today, Sheriff Butler said murder charges would be laid.

Butler said the shooting might have been motivated by Brown's jealousy of the younger pastor who succeeded him.

DESERONTO STORES WERE ENTERED

Police Seek Robbers who Secured $350

Deseronto, April 6.—Three burglaries in the last two nights have caused a great deal of excitement here and every effort is being made to find the culprits.

On Thursday night the burglar or burglars got into a room over the Tunnicliffe's jewelry store, let them selves down into a room at the rear of the store, broke through a beaver board wall and stole a revolver and about $100 worth of watches.

On Friday night the burglars broke the glass in the front door of Clement's hardware, reached through and broke back the lock. They stole a typewriter, watches, flashlights and a quantity of .22 and .32 shells. The loss is estimated at $150 over and above the loss of the typewriter. Harold's electric shop though a side door, got into a room where a quantity of radio supplies to the value of $100.

WILL QUARRY MARBLE FROM MARMORA AREA

Immediate Development of Deposit Is Now Indicated

QUALITY STONE

Promotion of Project is Anticipated in Near Future

Hamilton, April 6—Indications point to the immediate development of an exceptionally fine body of marble situated in the Township of Hastings near Marmora.

The deposit is somewhat unique in that it is remote from intrusions, and lies against Hurontian limestone. It analyses 98 per cent calcium carbonate, is readily quarried, easily worked takes a very fine polish, and is colored in white, shading to pink, green and black.

The history of discovery is interesting. In 1912 the property was optioned by United Empire parties for the prospecting of iron. It was diamond-drilled to a depth of 500 feet, but discovered marble all the way. The idea of iron was abandoned, and the limestone or marble was inspired. A core-drill was introduced and cores down to a depth of 120 feet were removed, disclosing a very fine grade of marble throughout. Negotiations are stored to exploit the marble, but the options covering the property to be of tremendous value, and possessed very extensive ideas of price. The Great War terminated negotiations and the proposition has remained dormant until the present.

Recently, through the efforts of H. Hamilton, C. M. Doolittle and associates have become interested, and have signified their intention of immediately and vigorously proceeding to operation on the property as at present is confirmed. A core-drill is on the way to the property of the syndicate and preparations are in progress to quarry marble in such dimensions as the requirements determine. Doolittle is particularly well equipped to successfully exploit this proposition, as he has devoted his energies to quarrying since his youth. One of the earliest operators in crushed stone in the province, the undertaking at Dundas has developed to immense proportions, as well as other quarries in the district, until in 1930 the aggregate of stone crushed in the province of Ontario under his control expect 1,000,000 tons.

Quarrying during the few years it has been under Mr. Doolittle's direction has come to be the most very rapidly until today its product is regarded as one of the best building stones on the continent. This is due largely to his resource and energy.

CHRISTIAN AND MISSIONARY ALLIANCE SERVICE CONCLUDED

Rev. Mr. Prentice Told Story of Work in South America

The closing services of annual missionary convention of the Christian and Missionary Alliance was held on Sunday.

In the morning service Rev. Mr. Prentice took as his text, Acts 1.8. He explained that the objective of the church, is not the church itself, nor its services, forms, or buildings. The objective must serve through its members as "witnesses" for Christ all the time, and never increasing radius, until the uttermost parts of the earth are reached."

He then proceeded to show how this being accomplished in some degree through the native church of Guayaquil, Equador, which is composed of a membership of a little over 140 and Sunday School 300 some 250. For a period of eight months and a half immediately previous to Mr. Prentice's leaving, there had not been one Sunday past (except one) in which in the evening services people had not been converted from the members of the church. Upon investigation it was found out that nine tenths of these converts came

MANY COMMUNICANTS

Rev. Chas. Clarke of Christ Church Spoke to Large Crowds

"Easter is the affirmation of all that is noblest in humanity. Can you wonder that the disciples could no longer keep the Jewish Sabbath as their sacred day?" asked the Rev. C. E. Clarke, Christ Church, Easter Sunday morning. To them this first Easter day was the human birth of every Sabbath day and so every Sunday is a replica, though pale, of that Easter day. The church was filled at the eight o'clock communion service and the large number of choral communion because in the Easter Lily, the symbol of the day, which is increased. Easter is not only a day to take interest only in the event of the death and passion of the Saviour but it is to take communion in a service with the Risen Lord; not as on Good Friday in memory of the Lord who died, but to see the Master in the world today leading on to higher purity and greater devotion.

VALUABLE HORSE DIED

Horsemen of the district will sympathize with Messrs. Healy and Herrington of Picton in the loss of their good trotter "Prymaldie," who suddenly died last week. Dr. Herrington was judging the colt conditioning him for the summer campaign, when without warning, the horse dropped in his tracks. The veterinary applied a hypodermic but to no avail. Prymaldie made his racing debut at the Canadian National Exhibition last fall winning the trotting futurity valued at $5,000.00 and it was expected the colt would come on this summer to the best in his class. The colt was bred by Armadale owned in Petersboro, his mother being "Margot Prim" a trotter of note. The owners have refused several flattering offers for this colt and their loss will be considerable.

to us when we are struggling against passions and desires which we feel and we say, to look up and say, 'I am not alone. Because He lives I shall conquer and live. May you as you kneel for communion feel that you are in the very presence of Christ, and may you touch as it were the hem of His garment."

There were very large communions at Christ Church for the eight o'clock communion and for the choral communion at eleven o'clock and for the communion at St. George's. At Christ Church and St. George's over six hundred took the communion. The musical services of the day were very appealing with the wealth of Easter Hymns and anthems and organ solos. At the communion service the choir sang "Christ Our Passover." In the evening the choir sang an anthem, Mrs. LaVels taking the solo part. In the services Rev. H. Scott Ives, and Rev. A. L. Geen, assisted the Rev. C. J. Machin, rector. Easter lilies were used as decorations in the churches.

United Churches

Appropriate Easter messages and music featured the services in the three United Churches in the city. Easter lilies about the pulpit created a beautiful appearance while the choir leaders had prepared special anthems for the occasion. At Bridge Street United Church, Dr. R. Bell B.A., D.D., preached to two large congregations while music rendered for the communion service.

Easter was interested his remarks particularly at the young people, reminding them of Christ's outstanding qualities which make Him a great model for our inspirations and thoughts. Dr. Bell spoke of Christ "as a young man, strong and vigorous, noted in purest whites". He urged the youth of the congregation to study His characters and attitudes and mold their lives after His. V. P. Smith, A.R.C.O., was at the organ with Professor Anglin, B.A., directing the choir. The Lord's supper was partaken of by a large number at both services.

A song service at John Street United Church last night with Leo Stiga directing, was an Easter feature. Spring flowers with the Easter lily predominating created a beautiful appearance. Rev. Robert Hall B.A., B.D., spoke at both services while communion was taken at the morning service.

Lovely Easter music marked services at Holloway Street United Church yesterday at both morning and evening services. In the morning service—Anthem Christ is Risen, by Maunder; solo, Mrs. Adams, "Calvary" Anthem—Hallelujah, Summer organ selections, "Holy City", by Adams and "Worthy is the Lamb", from Handel's "Messiah". In the evening—Anthem, "King of Kings", by Gounod; solo, Miss Helen Holcombe, of Toronto, "The Resurrection Morn", by Rodney; Anthem, "Lord Have Taken Away My Lord" by Shelley, Organ selections, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth", and "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah".

Rev. A. E. McCubbin conducted both services at Tabernacle United Church yesterday. Splendid crowds attended morning and evening services and special music by the choir and congregation was featured. Emmanuel Church

"Christ's Condescension to Honest but Doubtful Minds" was the subject of Rev. George Marshall's sermon at Emmanuel Free Church on Sunday last night. Special music was featured both morning and evening.

Easter Sunday was featured at the Baptist church by large audiences, the afternoon a special Decision Day was held in the Sunday School. Special Easter music was sung at all services.

St. Andrews' Presbyterian Church was crowded to its doors both morning and evening by large congregations. The services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Seymour and special Easter music was featured.

Thomas' Church

Communion was celebrated three times at St. Thomas' Church yesterday, seven, eight and eleven o'clock, in the morning. Large congregations attended all three services which were conducted by the Rev. John Lyons.

Easter services at the Salvation Army on Dundas Street were well attended. Ensign Howlett and Mrs. Howlett conducted. Special music was rendered by the band and the Songsters' Brigade which under Leader G. Adams gave special selections at every service. Bandsman Blanchy Lennis, sang "It is Jesus". In the afternoon the S. A. Band visited the General Hospital, Mrs. Howlett and Mrs. Adams also played before the residence of Mr. James A. Bay who is now a very staunch friend of the Salvation Army. Easter music was played by the bandsmen.

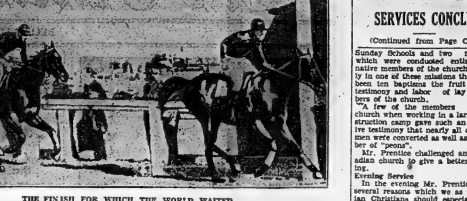
Sunday Schools and two missions which were conducted entirely by native members of the church. Lastly in one of these missions there had been ten baptisms the fruit of the testimony and labor of lay members of the church.

"A few of the members of this church when working in a large construction camp gave such an effective testimony that nearly all the foremen were converted as well as a number of "scouts".

Mr. Prentice challenged any Canadian church to give a better showing.

Evening Service



In the evening Mr. Prentice gave several reasons which we as Canadian Christians should especially interest ourselves in the evangelization of Latin America.

The speaker pointed out that the growing spirit of nationalism, might soon shut out the foreign missionary as had already happened in Mexico and Venezuela. Bolshevism also was growing among the oppressed labour ing classes and the so-called docile Indians. In Columbia hundreds of people were being converted through the reading of the Scriptures and needed the instruction of the missionary. Then as our country was increasing its cultural, commercial and social relationships with Latin America, Latin Americans with their peculiar standards of life would undoubtedly exert an influence upon our own people. So for the reflex benefit it was urgent we give them the gospel. A warning of cooking the missionary activity was seen in the spiritual and financial disasters of the Mennonites in Russia who never evangelized the Russians, and the Armenians who never attended to evangelize the Turks.

The Christian and Missionary Alliance Foreign Missionary Staff 524, representing twenty two countries; sixty-four languages. At the close of last night's service the pastor announced the amount pledged for missions as $700.00 an increase of $101.00 over last year.

Margot Ferguson Talks to Father on "Majestic"

Several hundred British boys experienced the thrill or their lives at the Schoolboy's Exhibit Olympia, London, when they took part in a telephone conversation with the world's largest ocean liner Atlantic. The most envied in the exhibition was twelve year old Margot Ferguson, daughter of the Assistant Chief Engineer of the Majestic. While dozens of boys gazed in wide-eyed wonderment, Margot, with all the self-possession in the world chatted over the telephone to her father. "It was wonderful," she confessed afterwards, "and I could hear Daddy perfectly clearly. He said he was very well."

Ship to shore, airplane to land, moving train to telephone in home or office and trans-Atlantic telephone service are all comparatively recent steps in the ultimate aim of Bell Telephone engineers—namely, "Universal Service."

NO TRACE OF MEN'S BODIES

Plane is Used in Search For Lamorre and Williams

Special to The Ontario Intelligencer

Trenton, April 6.—At press time today about ten boats were scanning the waters of the bay for the bodies of Arthur Lamorre and Henry Williams, who were drowned yesterday while duck-hunting. Police aided in the search, and Chief of Police Bain dislocated two planes and is inexpacitated as the result of running his hand in the door of his car while at the docks yesterday.

Lawyers Brothers' plane was pressed into service today in an effort to locate the bodies of the men. A load of bread was filled with ballast and dropped into the bay. Accordding to reports the bread would float in the water until it is directly over the spot where the bodies are laying. It is thought that the bodies will be located within the next twenty-four hours.

WEDDINGS

CROWE—LOTT

George's Anglican Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding at noon yesterday afternoon, when Miss Mildred, youngest daughter of Mayor and Mrs. J. W. Lott, became the bride of Mr. Harold G. Crowe, only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Crowe, Hey. Percy Heywood officiated while only the immediate relatives of the contracting party were present. The bride presented a very charming picture as he came down the aisle leaning on the arm of her father, while the Georgina's Wedding March was played by Mrs. I. Gahns at the organ, she wore a gown of duchesse Blue Georgette with lace bolero and long sleeves to match, and carried a shower bouquet of Sweetheart rose lily of the valley and baby breath. Mrs. Lott was gowned in black crepe Romaine with black lace coatee, an ermine neckpiece and black Ballbuntal hat. She carried an arm bouquet of Sweetheart roses. The mother of the groom wore beige crepe with coral jacket, hat and shoes to match. During the signing of the register soft music was played. Following a wedding breakfast at Pictured Rocks the happy couple entrained for Montreal, Quebec and Lucerne, travelling via C.P.R. The bride wore a Brown Cloungs tweed coat trimmed with Lappin fur over dress of brown printed silk crepe. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Crowe will reside at 89 Isabel street, Belleville.

In the 33 months ending January 1, arms and ammunition exported from England to Russia were valued at £53,000,000.

FEARLESS PILOT DEFIED DEATH

Brooklands, Eng., April 6 — Sir Malcolm Campbell, the world's motor car speed king, looked death in the eye for a few seconds today while an almost unmanageably racing car carried him along a steeply banked track at Brooklands at a hundred miles an hour.

Competing in a handicap event Sir Malcolm was just completing the first lap of twelve mile race when the rod holding the front wheels in position broke, as the other competitors roared past Sir Malcolm fought the careening car and brought it safely to a stop. At the end he left the track it would probably have proved fatal to the spectators and himself.

ELEVATOR IS PLEASING TO STUDENT BODY

Easter Edition of Collegiate Magazine the Best Yet

The most pretentious "Elevator", the annual publication of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, yet attempted by the students made its appearance on Thursday, the Easter edition of the magazine. Suggesting Springtime with its yellow jacket and promise of interest within by its striking novel design, this year's "Elevator" lives up to, and in fact exceeds all expectations.

It is larger than in former years and has many interesting new departments. Illustrations have been generously used, both photographs and drawings, making the magazine appealing to student and outsider. The orderly arrangement of its index gratifies one's first impression, for all departments are easy to find.

In its list of many contributors the "Elevator" this year can proudly boast of no less a writer than Stephen Leacock, the famous Canadian humorist, author of "Back to School"—From the point of view of the "Parents at home who sit up night and puzzle over the homework", is in his happiest vein and will cause a hearty chuckle from every father and mother.

Articles of special interest by students include "Impressions of an Outsider" by Joan Brigstocke, a deaf boy who is undertaking the difficult task of pursuing high school studies at Belleville Collegiate thus handicapped. The fact that at the midterm examinations he ranked ninth in his class, only missing one examination shows the result of his diligence.

Another outstanding contribution is an article in French by Emile Pelletier, Lachine, Q., who is taking English classes at the Collegiate. His treatise itself in faultless French, entitled "Le Francais Au Pays" is on the subject of the failure people in Ontario, that the French language spoken in Quebec is but "patois" and that the only pure French is that of Paris. This article well-written and very interesting, is worthy of one's special attention.

The magazine has many features that will absorb its readers. Each department of study has a section of its own, with illustrations showing the classes at work. The fiction, poetry and art departments are splendid this year. Great credit is due the editorial staff for the enterprising edition and to its business management for the large number of advertisements.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Itching, bleeding, protruding piles are caused by bad circulation of the blood in the affected parts. The parts become weak, flabby, almost dead. Only an internal remedy can remove the cause—that's why salves, suppositories and cutting fail. Dr. Leonhardt's prescription, HEM-ROID, succeeds because it removes congestion, restores circulation, heals and strengthens the affected parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record of quickly ending even piles of long standing that J. S. McKeown's Drug Store says one bottle of HEM-ROID must satisfy or money back or money back

RAPID PROGRESS IN MEDICAL RESEARCH

Montreal, April 4.—(By the Canadian Press)—The vast amount of work that is being achieved yearly in the medical faculty of McGill University in the fields of teaching and research is shown in an article on the accomplishments of this school in the past year by Dean Charles F. Martin published in a recent issue of the McGill News.

Among the outstanding achievements of the past year has been the work in biochemistry of Prof. J. B. Collip in connection with sex physiology and sex hormones. His publications on the ovary-stimulating hormone at the placenta are widely known, as are the clinical observations of his associate, Dr. A. D. Campbell. But the subsequent discovery of an anterior pituitary hormone in the human placenta is a new feature.

In anatomy, the addition of Dr. J. Beattie as an extra professor on a full time basis has done much to stimulate research. The outstanding work has been his investigations on the spinal sympathetic centres in connection with Drs. Drew and Long. A historical study of the mechanism of digestive secretion has been carried on in that department.

To meet the special needs of the department of physiology, through the appointment of Professor Babkin as research professor in physiology, two independent laboratories have been created, the one under Prof. John Tait, the director and professor of physiology, with possibilities as a result of research in charge of Prof. Babkin, Prof. Tait and Dr. McNally have studied the sense organ: of the inner ear, dealing with equilibrium and other functions. Important conclusions have resulted with respect to oto-sclerosis, progressive deafness and bone conduction of sound. Progressive deafness has also been studied in sound proof rooms by Dr. Dworkin and Dr. Sutherland, pursuing the existence of a special

WEAK AFTER INFLUENZA— COULD NOT DO HOUSEWORK

Could Feel Strength Coming Back After Taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills (Tonic)

"I took a severe attack of influenza," writes Mrs. Jack Fraser, 201 Main Ave., East, Owen Sound, Ontario, "and when I was able to get out of bed I was in such a weak condition that I thought I would never get my strength again. I could not do my housework. So a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which I did, and after taking a few doses I could feel my strength coming back. After taking six boxes I was completely well and as strong as I ever had been, and I haven't taken a severe attack of influenza since."

Danger ahead! Look out . . . if you've had the flu and can't get back to normal. That is the dangerous part of influenza — the after-effects. Influenza weakens the blood—makes further sickness likely. The iron and other elements in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills (tonic) increase the blood count—that is they multiply the number of red corpuscles in the blood. Through these pills thousands of persons weakened by influenza, overwork, worry or other causes, have been helped back to health, strength and happiness.

"Now Strong as Ever"

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills (tonic) at any druggist's—or from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ontario—50 cents a box. Don't wait. It's dangerous to continue in a run down condition.

FOXBORO

Foxboro, April 4.— The young men's Class "Neoliecumdai" of the United S.S. were royally entertained to a sugar party by the "Carter family" on Tuesday evening.

A very enjoyable evening was spent and a very generous amount of "the sweet" was disposed of.

Music and stories were heard and all expressed appreciation of a very good time.

Externally or Internally, it is Good.—When applied externally by brisk rubbing, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil eases the pores and penetrates the tissue, touching the seat of the trouble and immediately affording relief. Administered internally, it will still the irritation in the throat which induces coughing and will relieve affections of the bronchial tubes and respiratory organs. Try it and be convinced.

JUDGE SEVIGNY SERIOUSLY HURT

Former Speaker of Commons in Auto Crash at Quebec

Quebec, Apr. 4.—Hon. Judge Albert Sevigny lying ill in Sacrement Hospital in a serious condition tonight following an automobile accident suffered earlier in the evening.

Judge Sevigny was crossing Grande-Allee with Judge Antonin Galipeault prior to entering the latter's residence when he was struck by an automobile.

At the hospital it was discovered that Judge Sevigny suffered two severe fractures and many bruises. An X-ray examination will be made tomorrow when the gravity of the judge's condition will be ascertained.

Judge Sevigny, formerly a minister in the cabinet of Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden, is attached to the Superior Court. He was Speaker in the House of Commons when fire swept the federal buildings in February, 1926.

PLEASANT VIEW W.M.S.

A special meeting of the Pleasant View W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Hobes. It being her birthday. There was a good attendance also everyone appreciated being invited to help celebrate the happy event.

The President, Mrs. J. McPherson opened the meeting with the use of Lord's Prayer. Hymn "Sweet" followed by prayer. The minutes of last meeting were then read and adopted after arrangements were made for our Easter Thanksgiving service on Sunday evening, April 5, with Miss Bessie Ketcheson, a returned missionary as special speaker. Our apportionment allocation for this year is one guilt, Mrs. Wm. Lane reported and Mrs. S. Ketcheson kindly donated a quilt top.

Mrs. F. Jeffrey then gave a reading "My Easter Thanksoffering" after which Mrs. Hobes presented the birthday greetings to her, on behalf of the Collective brethren.

They Relieved A Pain She Had Had For Years

Saskatchewan Lady Used Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mrs. F. Mossinger Recommends Them to Other Sufferers

Rosenville, Sask., April 6 (Special) —"I suffered for years with a pain in my side," writes Mrs. F. Mossinger, a resident of this place. "I would be awakened in the night with such terrible sensations, I did not know what to do. I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and sure felt a relief. I continued taking them whenever I felt the burning feeling start and now I am free from pain. I keep them in the house all the time and have recommended them to other sufferers on many occasions."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely and simply a kidney remedy. They act directly on the kidneys, strengthening them and putting them in condition to do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills have been in use in Canada for nearly half a century. They demonstrate their worth in the most serious forms of kidney disease, such as rheumatism, backache, bladder and urinal troubles.

SPRING READING

What do I read on a day in spring.
Lovely lines that lilt and sing,
Spun in a poet's lofty mood,
Tales of a world that is wholly good?

Never a book do I open then,
Never a line from a poet's pen
Tempts me with words that are sweet as song
Painting a realm that is free from wrong

Over the fields and glens I move,
Following Spring where her footsteps rove,
Dancing with daisy and daffodil,
In a primrose-bordered hill!

What do I read? Why, the scroll Spring writes
Glowing lines that her joy indites.
Shining through jonquils and robin's wing,
Rainbow lyrics of madcap Spring!

EASTER DAY

Easter's full appeal can only be felt on Easter Sunday when, with the close of the Lenten season humanity gives way to the feelings of joyousness in the sure and certain hope of the spiritual government of life and in the realization that once in history perfection in human form because it was divine walked this earth and went about doing good and that the crowning proof of the divinity of that Life was the Resurrection.

Christianity claims to be the only revelation of God except what is seen in man's gradual ascent through the ladder of growth and civilization. At the head of the Christian religion stands the Perfect One who is the full expression of the life that is given mankind to live. Christianity, therefore, with all its restraints of life is still the most joyous and ought to be the most joyous of all the religions of mankind as it has assurance from heaven of its being the divine revelation.

Yesterday throughout the Christian world, and in the heathen world missions the message of the Cross resounded from thousands of choirs and pulpits and organs to millions of worshippers. And while in the world many are said to live as in a state of practical atheism, there are many others to whom such a day as Easter means the highest in life's experiences. Even those who live in a state of practical atheism are living in a world which, with all its unsatisfied and changed out of all recognition from what the world was nineteen centuries ago when the world was cruel beyond measure and ideals were not so high as they are today.

MAKES OF ONE BROTHERHOOD

The Nicaraguan earthquake which swept out of existence about two thousand souls, following so soon upon the unheaval of the world-wide war in which millions died, but make the mind ponder deeply over the tragedy which has befallen these countries. We thank Providence that such events have not happened here, and even while feeling grateful we sense in some measure the horror of the scene.

Loss of life in disasters of nature arouses man to a sense of his helplessness in the presence of the awful forces which overwhelm men away in utter disregard of every tie and bury the good and the evil in one grave.

Seven years ago we were shocked by the horror of a scene late one night in a nearby village when in an electric storm which shook the whole community, a mother, a father and his son, while sitting in a lodge meeting, answered the last summons, victims of lightning. This recollection brings to the mind the fact how entirely man is hemmed in by the forces of nature which are beyond, and well probably ever remain beyond, his control. He will never be able to control the earthquake and the volcano; he will never be able to control lightning, though he may some day learn to guard against it.

Disasters naturally therefore call forth expressions of human regret and sympathy which take the form of relief and which make men of one brotherhood throughout the earth.

LUXURIES BECOME NECESSITIES

Fine weather the past few days has revealed how indispensible is the motorcar in this age of speed. Life is impossible, impossible or even not dreamed of, have also taken their place among the indispensibles of this age.

Man takes to himself new devices which are so closely woven into the warp and woof of his life that civilized society he cannot give them up. Only certain abnormal conditions for instance could compel a man to relinquish his motorcar.

Yet, with all these modern inventions, men are still as busy and with little time to spare as they used to have. Labor-saving devices do not give plenty of time, but man goes ahead and finds new matters upon which to river his attention. So he does not become an idler.

Man will continue to acquire new inventions and use them as part of his daily life. What were once luxuries have become necessities. By the time they have become necessities, the adjustments have been made which make their acceptance as necessities possible without great dislocation of general conditions of society

How far man has gone from the time that legend says Prometheus stole fire from the gods for the sake of men! But we still use fire though it takes the form of electricity or chemical action, as in the propulsion of motorcars with gasoline and to the end of time men will be using fire in one form or another. The inventor of the wheel started something rolling which will never be dropped until life ends on this planet. Man cannot think of anything to take the place of the revolving wheel. It is in the motorcar, in every toy, in every wagon, in every bicycle.

The wheel has become a part of life So with the motorcar and many modern inventions, devices and appliances, and many that are not yet invented.

Even if much is heard these days of the Easter appearance of new shoes and clothes one should not take it amiss for it is the natural form of expression that delight in the spring takes.

Other Papers' Opinions

WINDY CITY BLUES

They used to say of Chicago, the "Windy City" which its part, was "hog-butcher to the world," that it could find a use for every part of a pig, except the squeal. This exception no longer holds good, however, since William Hale Thompson (Big Bill) took to politics. Butchers' squeals have done him good service in rallying the political porcines around the trough of the treasury. Like calls to like, or so it was in the past when now Big Bill is in office this time, even though he recently won the Republican Party's nomination as candidate for the mayoralty. It looks as if he may lose the municipal election. The old squeals are proving vain. Thompson's Democratic opponent is Anton Cermak, the former Bohemian immigrant, peddler, teamster, saloon-keeper, merchant, tailor, banker, and now one of Chicago's wealthiest citizens. Cermak is putting up a hard-hitting but comparatively dignified campaign. He is certain to secure a large block of Democratic and Republican votes.

Big Bill, formerly the "Foreigner's friend," now blusters: "My opponent is a Bohemian." It is reported that Alphonse Capone, king of the bootleggers, is aroused to activity in the political wind and is remaining neutral. Yet even Thompson's campaign expedient—offering to "keep King Edward's cows out of Chicago"—appears to avail him now. Big Bill may yet learn that, even in Chicago politics, truth interesting is not enough.—Montreal Star.

DEMOCRACY AND CRIME

It is brought as a serious indictment against democracy that it is on the face of public wrong. It is much more likely than other systems to arouse eminent enjoying more dictatorial powers. For two reasons or other, indifference takes the place of criticism; even in extreme cases, it is difficult to rally public sentiment as is shown in the exposures of municipal corruption in New York, Chicago or cities of the United States. Just as in the last considerable crime wave allowed to sink to the level of crime commonplaces, sensational as in New York and Chicago, for instance, is no mystery. The majority of citizens have become so accustomed to crime as a natural abhorrence of vice and virtue. Yet the tolerance of criminality is comparatively easy to keep the public in line. It is a matter of common observation becomes absolutely intolerable to the citizen who takes it himself and does what it ought to have done in the first place. Chicago is a case in point. For ten years that city has been the "enfant terrible" of the country. Gangsters and racketeers have approved by their ballots that they have a free hand unrebuked with their mouths. It does look as if the people of Chicago and that the democratic system public wrong, there is no need to take as pessimistic a view of democracy as evil cannot endure for ever; right is bound in the end to triumph.—Hamilton Spectator.

SCIENCE AND DISHWASHING

Dishwashing has lately become a fashionable, or at least a popular, subject of discussion. Magazines of recent date in The Atlantic Mercury and The Saturday Evening Post, to cite space to it, both agreeing that dishwashers are to be commended. dishwashers. It may soon be accepted that it is a scientific operation.

Inventor champions will have to look to outer laurels if they are not to be overtaken by the Westinghouse Technologue Laboratories. They are working on a machine to be 98 to 100 per cent. efficient, and they may have now produced it.

Their tools were found on the wide street type of dirty dishes. Dried eggs did not do the two ultimate efficiency. Science declares that a mixture of castor and kerosene oil makes pretty hard going. But the Westinghouse people standardize of dirt liberty for a family of five by the hour by allowing tomato soup to drop on plates for half an hour. Then it is ready to dry. A machine which can wash that is pretty good.

A mere woman might object that her family and guests would prefer castor oil or lamplack on their dishes, and never object to tomato soup more than, say two and a half soup But adaptability is the real secret of scientific dishwashing. A mere Summer camp a brook may do the trick. In the metropolitan apartment the best plan may be to pop each dish under the faucet as soon as it is empty. Most machines are made for permanent installation, but they surely must be necessary apparatus for receiving and transmitting and was soon on the air with the details of the great disaster.

Sandino, the rebel, whom the U. S. Marines have been hunting for months, threatens an attack on the ruined city.

Citizens rushing away from the menace of earthquake and volcano—newspaper writers and photographers hurring in—all in the day's work.

As remarked in the beginning of this article it is hard to visualize the terror of such a disaster as overwhelmed Managua, especially since folks have become more or less case-hardened these days by reason of wireless, moving pictures and newspaper photography bringing actual views of big news events in all parts of the world so vividly before us. Hence it takes a tremendous disaster to cause much of a thrill with the sophisticated citizen of today. Nevertheless there is a comforting thought in all this, earthquakes, volcanoes, fire and flood are far away from the home of the Bay of Quinte district.

Individual Teaching In High Schools

New York, April 6.—American high schools are varying their practice more than ever before in an endeavor to satisfy in an effective way the peculiar needs of every individual student, according to the United States Bureau of Education.

"It Many is slow to learn she requires special attention, sometimes in an opportunity room. The announcement said. If exceptionally able she may be permitted to skip a grade or half a grade by the principle of special instruction. She may be even placed in a class room for gifted pupils."

"John's failure is investigated, and an endeavor to get him on the right track is made in another special class. Individual work is also provided according to his ability, or a more homogeneous grouping might be arranged to get him more interested in English or history.

"Twenty-eight different methods are used in high schools of the United States recognize and adapt individual programs to special needs of individuals, according to a survey of the United States Office of Education in which 1,342 secondary schools sent replies to American high school principals' questionnaires. The survey is the first of its kind, and, with the exception of variation in number of subjects a pupil may carry and special coaching of some pupils, few schools consider any current control in the field of canning and should realize fatality is only another type of approach to the problem."

"Within the limits of the races now being produced we are able to make the most of our genetic resources and explain the various results obtained. We find that the average American people have considered work with transplanted tumors as being of little importance in the cancer problem. It may be stated that the experiments on transplantation we have already given us considerable information concerning the nature of genetic factors which influence the biological relationship of individuals and strains.

"The present situation has reached a point where the question is not one of the direct importance or applicability of the laws of heredity to genetic methods of analysis make possible an attack on the fundamental problems of the nature and origin of cancer, which is essentially inaccessible angle or approach.

"Through this genetic attitude it is adopted and the tendency to error interpretation on the part of some and truth of others are neutralized by the continued accumulation of steadily increased data we may look forward to advances."

CO-OPERATION OF AIRWAYS AND RAILWAYS

Airways are in some respects competitors of railways but the wide experience of railway men in other kinds of transportation will help to facilitate the conquest of the air. Aviation seems likely to revolutionize transportation methods and the railways have been quick to realize this fact. Two of the great transcontinental railway systems are shareholders in the country's new air line, Canadian Airways, Limited, and their experience will be of great value to them in the development of the new method of carriage.

This trunkline organization during its first year of operation flew nearly 2,000,000 miles without accident, in addition to a large amount of mail, freight and 8,800 passengers and 1,000 passengers. There was a net deficit of $68,396 but this was not surprising and in view of the difficulties inseparable from the inauguration of a new enterprise and in view of the unexpectedly long winter, especially in mining circles. The airways have led to the development of the new method of carriage.

To get it another way, we must figure out which the revenue will cover the charge per mile of the fastest to Calgary is very little more than the charge per mile of the slowest to Toronto.

The question is put in some instances by advisory programs, psychological studies, adjustment, record or restoration classes or rooms. Other differences may be met by the out-of-door projects, vocational educational guidance through exploratory activities, little study of problem cases or various arrangements for individual instruction.

"Regular class-room procedure has been modified by the introduction of meet special abilities or handicaps of children by the provision of individualized instruction, ability groupings, adjustment classes of various kinds, enriched courses or tutorial classes, and by the provision of special problem cases, psychological studies and ability grouping are used in the larger schools.

"Both large and small schools use the platoon plan, project curriculum, out-of-school projects, vocational testing of slow pupils, individualized instruction and laboratory plan of instruction with about equal success, Dr. Bullet points out. He stresses the fact that advisory programs, educational and vocational guidance, through exploratory courses, opportunity rooms for slow pupils, scientific study of

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles, and if you feel well your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you relish food and digest it properly.

Thanks to a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing.

Mr. Alex. Kronbrenk, Claret, Sask., writes: "Constant indigestion and gas pains left about doubled me up. I lost weight; nerves were on edge; felt tired all the time. TANLAC brought back my healthy, vigorous self again; meals digested easily; no cramps gone for good.

If you suffer from any pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation, or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you.

Fashionably Speaking
By Lucille

Dear Readers:

These are flourishing days for the blouse. What with the importance of suits and the revival of the separate skirt, as a fashion item, it gains fresh opportunities for development and interest with the season. Fabrics especially approves the lingerie blouse and the majority are short over-blouses—the tuck-in never was a widely beneficial style and has happened to a minor position.

Mannish blouses are to be found, but the tendency for next year is to wear softer blouses even with the most severely tailored suits. Soft collars are necessarily mean frilly, although it can; it does imply a stretching, feminine quality lacking in the man tailored shirt-waist of other years.

The waistcoat type borrows certain features from men's apparel, but is hardly be written off as masculine when it bursts forth in gay plaids and stripes, in silk pique and in silk and gingham.

Handkerchief linen, a joy because of its crisp freshness, is back in a place of honor in some charming new blouses. Mostly these are sleeveless, or have short sleeves, even in the case of those which feature high neckline or Eaton collars. One of these is a softened version of the collarless blouse with both wide hemstitched pleats extending from top to bottom, the hemstitched band attached at one side of the front. Another has a high collar buttoned close around the throat and a slanting row of little pearl buttons.

English eyelet embroidery is another detail with which linen blouses are elaborated. It is used in one model in a single line around a V-neck and on a big fan-shaped jabot.

A new variation on the eyelet embroidery theme comes from Roshier who contributes a batiste woven with tiny and punctured holes in the style as your thumb. One good looking blouse was of pale blue batiste with the woollen thread in white—it was combined with contrasting batiste, permitted to show through the holes, and had a plain blue batiste collar.

Fashionably yours,
Lucille.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Spoiled and Doesn't Like Housework

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 28 years of age and have been keeping company with a lady two years younger. My problem is that I do not know when, if ever, I will ask enough to support her. She is spoiled, is used to spending money extravagantly, and is very independent. She can do, but does not like to do housework. We both care for each other very much and have both our families' O.K. What can you advise?

Anxiously Waiting.

It would be a great mistake for a boy of 23 to marry a girl of 21 who is spoiled and who doesn't like housework. Marriage is a pretty risky experiment to try these days on a small salary, even if the girl is a good manager. But it takes much more and unselfishness to make a success of it, and a spoiled girl would only feel sorry for herself. Why not turn your attention to some course of study that would help you to get a better job? There are some good things to be picked up in these correspondence courses. Youth is capital and opportunity. Good luck to you.

He's Got Her Ring

Dear Miss Fairfax:

About two weeks ago I met a very fine young man and, I guess, "fell" for him, took me to a basket ball game and seemed to like me pretty well. He has my ring and said something about seeing me again next week-end. I have a date for the basketball games but he is never there. His friend said he was sick. What shall I do? I want to see him again, and I also want my ring. I will be very glad for any suggestions.

Elsie.

It looks to me, my dear girl, as if you'd have to charge the ring off to experience. You've had a fine experience. I may be wrong—I hope I am—but really it does look like the ring O.K.—so it looks flaky to me. The reason I'm inclined to be suspicious is that so many boys and girls are getting through their first untruthful in lending rings and pins to people they don't know. Get his address through the friend and send for the ring.

Elsie Can't Forget Him

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For the past four months I have been going with a boy who seemed quite interested in me. However, from the beginning we had an understanding that we were not going steady. Just lately we broke up and now he's going with a girl exactly my opposite. I used to think when we broke up, he would be just another boy in my life but I find that isn't so. I can't forget him. What am I going to do?

I know you will say "Go out with someone else and forget him," but that's easier said than done. I have tried.

L.S.

I am sorry that the unfailing remedy of going about with someone else hasn't been successful in your case. There are only two other alternatives I know of. One time a chance—interest yourself so deeply in some work of occupation that it will help you to forget the young man who is proudly having the time of his life with the other girl. Summon your pride, your common sense. Why waste your precious youth being unhappy over someone who has forgotten you?

A SOWEE WENT FORTH

Under the fetiund arrows of the sun
A farmer planté his furrow patiently.
So went the ancient sower of the world.

Before the dawn of Karnak's day
O long religion of the fruitful sunO living legend of the quickened earth!
Ere Kepyn was—the cycle of the cone
Ere seed.... the sun.... the full and ripened yield.

Ere Nazareth, the rhythm of the world:
The seed.... the shower and warmth
.... the winnowed grain.
Pharaohs, priests and peoples change
.... gods, these:
The sower and the seed, the sun and rain!

Fur Belts On Lace Frocks

Paris April 4—The collection of evening gowns shown by Jean Patou at Worth startled his audience out of their inertia into which it might have temporarily slipped by showing them with huge fur collared coats, and above-the-elbow antelope gloves and bare legs and feet clad only in open sandals. Tunnels were of a crimson color and the skirts were often banded like the sheath gowns of 1910.

Another novel feature was the use of fur belts on lace afternoon frocks and preference for the ornament of sport coats with leopard collars. Chain belts and metal ornaments trimmed tailored embroidery was extensively used to decorate the decolletage of a great many evening gowns, and pallettes were used for short bodices.

Plaids, 'candy' stripes, checks, small and large flowered patterns in light weight woolens and silks were preferred materials, with rodien that is used for sports and beach clothes.

The Nervous Child

By Constance Cameron

On first thought, I am inclined to say that there "ain't no such animal" as a nervous child but that is too big a blanket statement. I've seen even tiny infants who reacted more violently, more quickly to noise or light or new faces, than other infants and babies. I've also seen infants who are highly sensitized and who can be classified as "nervous." This type of child needs the placid, restful, loving calm that most babies usually does not have, for a fussy baby will wear down a mother's every nerve, too, or on the other hand, and more important, such a mother can make a child until he, too, becomes one of the irritable, fussy, cranky babies we call nervous children.

It is my belief that most "nervous" children are made not born. And I am inclined to blame the mother who is really on the ragged edge, frayed and worn, will make sure that progress both with herself and her child, if she gets ample rest and relaxation, and in the care of a competent woman who is placid and unruffled by the whirlwind of a small child. When Mother gets fully rested and calm, she will discover that her "nervous" child has grown rested and calm proportionately.

I have in mind a little girl whom is called "nervous." She knows she is because her mother tells her so; her mother also tells anyone within earshot, the awful state of affairs. The little girl is handed a glass or a book or—well, anything—with fear, and trembling. Mother sits in her chair. The little girl surely will spill it, or spill it. Mother is convinced of this fact, because she is so nervous.

Well, my goodness, the child wouldn't be human if she remained unconscious of that everlasting expectation of how she was going wrong.

But I've seen that child walking by my calm women, and that little girl was calm, too, until she got back to mother.

If you feel that your child is nervous, don't make him react so by discussing it before him. Don't worry him with your worries. Don't point out his faults. Remember that, whether your child is or is not nervous, he is going to enjoy the advice and kindness given over his real or imagined condition. He'll play up to your diagnosis of his case, don't worry about that.

The irritable, jerkily moving child deserves your most patient attention. He needs plenty of rest, fresh air and wholesome food. He also requires play activities wherein he can do something without fear or anxiety as to how it will interrupt. Mother's conversation which aren't really necessary, preferred materials, with rodien that is used for sports and beach clothes.

SPRING VOGUE IN WALL COLOURS

"The fashion this Spring is not just blues or just fancy for furnishing colors, but amounts to a passion for pigment. There is a very decided demand for color in everything, and many new shades are being introduced. To meet this demand the Imperial Varnish and Color Company have produced a complete line of enamels for Decorators blend for them into new lines, supplementing the regular line of Flo-Glaze Four Hour Enamel. The new lines are called Periwinkle Blue, Venetian Blue, Sapphire Blue, Antique Gold, Florida Green, Spanish Green, Sea Water Green and Rose. Although on the market you'll like a few weeks, they are proving extremely popular.

A dainty little booklet showing the nine new tints in their complementary and contrasting shades is being sent free by mail. It is worth having. The Company's address is 2-39 Morse street, Toronto.

Hot Sandwiches Now Form Appetizing Luncheon Dish

By Hannah Wing

It's a curious thing, isn't it, the way the sandwich has taken on new dignity of late? Once a modest, homely thing composed of two slices of bread with a bit of meat between whose purpose was merely to take the edge off the appetite and not hunger when time pressed, it has developed into many things from the delicate titbit to be eaten with the afternoon tea to the substantial affair made up of layers and layers of rich ingredients piled high on the most savory fillings between—a whole meal in itself, and a good one at that.

Fish sandwiches are equally good served as a breakfast or noonday luncheon sandwiches; they are also especially good in early spring when it is the crisp air. Make the fish cakes as follows: Flake enough salt codfish to make a cupful, pare and cut into dice about two cupfuls of potatoes, put together without soaking the fish until tender, then drain, mash well and add one well-beaten egg, and pepper to taste. No salt will be required, but a very little milk may be added, if the mixture seems too dry. Make into long finger-length rolls and wrap each in a strip of water-thin bacon. Arrange two of the bacon-wrapped fish rolls on rounds of buttered toast, set in a hot oven and, when the bacon crisps, turn the fish rolls to cook on the other side. Serve hot. If utensils are done, serve at once with chili sauce.

Spanish Sandwiches are especially inviting and piquant and make a delightful noonday luncheon.

Make a rich cream sauce as follows: Chop enough green pepper and onion to make one tablespoonful of each, melt in one tablespoonful of butter to a light brown, then add one cupful of thick tomato pulp and add simmer five to seven minutes. Add to one cupful of cream sauce and half a teaspoonful salt, a quarter teaspoonful paprika and one well beaten egg. Cook just a moment or two longer, stir in six ounces grated thickly on freshly made buttered toast.

Hot sandwiches are nice for supper when the Sunday dinner has been a bit too elaborate for dessert. Cut into very small pieces enough cold chicken to make one cupful and slice very fine half a cupful of celery. Add one tablespoonful of lemon juice and season with salt and pepper. Add enough mayonnaise to make a cupful of milk and stir till thick. Add the chicken, one well-beaten egg and a teaspoonful of chopped parsley and simmer for a few moments. Spread between slices of thinly buttered and then browned on both sides in a pan. If this part of the operation is done on the table itself, the sandwiches will be delicious by crisp and fresh. Serve with a glass of creamy milk or a cup of fragrant demon-flavored tea, garnishing each sandwich with a few sprays of water cress.

Modernized Version of "East Lynne" at Belle Theatre Today

"East Lynne" has come to the talking screen. And although it remains the same story of a young girl's heroic struggle to find happiness as the unlucky divorced and slandered wife of a conservative English nobleman, it has been so expertly produced and modernized, so beautifully mounted, and so sensitively interpreted by a distinguished cast that it emerges as fascinating and as interesting as the most modern of screen plays. As shown on the screen of the Belle Theatre at a private pre-release screening held this morning preceding the regular exhibition today and tuesday, matinee daily "East Lynne" is a superior photoplay, a sensitive, throbbing, human story that is lifted by the sheer artistry of the production far and beyond the level of the original play as most people remember it. No expense was spared by the producers in making "East Lynne" first rate, photo-play entertainment. And that the modernization is accomplished so completely and fully is a tribute to the makers of pictures and to Miss Ann Hardinge, Clive Brook and Conrad Nagel, who portray the leading roles.

There is hardly need to relate the plot of a story so universally known. Briefly, "East Lynne" is concerned with a lovely, laughter-loving young girl who, upon her marriage to a conservative English nobleman, retires to his estate in the country, giving up forever the gaiety of London society life. As the wife of a country nobleman, the girl, Isabel, finds her life dull and unsatisfying, and so much is she in love with her husband and later on, her baby boy, that she is willing to make any sacrifice to do those things which will make her husband happy. But she is unjustly accused by her husband's former lover of scandalous conduct with another man, Isabel, believing her husband's letters, runs out of the house, divorced and humiliated ever to see her child again. Her attempt to forget her unfortunate experience leads her to a succession of many countries with the man whose indiscretion cost her her reputation and security, finally, in desperate attempts to see her baby once again make possible a series of suspense-filled sequences that culmin ate in an impressive and highly dramatic climax.

Miss Ann Harding as Isabel contributes a performance of lasting tenderness, one of the screen's truly beautiful actresses. Miss Harding lends charm to a role which she interprets with distinction. Conrad Nagel as her stern, righteous husband and Clive Brook as the other man, are particularly well suited to their fine and creditable performances. Others in the cast who do good work include Cecilia Loftus, Beryl Mercer, New York stage character actress, Beryl Mercer, C. P. Heggie and David Torrence.

The beautiful settings were designed by that internationally famous artist, Joseph Urban, whose atmospheric backgrounds for "East Lynne" are among the finest yet seen on the talking screen.

Tom Howard in "African Dodger," a highly amusing comedy, Belle Sound News: "Hollywood Land" a humorous scenic review and a special program of Easter Music on the concert organ with Mr. Desmarais at the console will also be presented.

Delegates Say Outlook for Amateur Game Brighter Than Ever

The 13th annual meeting of the Ontario Amateur Association was held in Peterboro last Saturday. It was the most enthusiastic meeting that has been held in years a full executive being in attendance. Fred R. A. Elliott, was in the chair and delegates were present from all over the province. Mayor Denne opened the meeting and welcomed the delegates very cordially. Fred Elliott thanked His Honor for his kind words and pointed out that the meetings would be spread over the province in future years.

W. J. Smith, organizer of both the O.B.A. and the O.J.B.A., presented a gavel to the association and it was accepted with thanks by Fred Elliott.

Mr. Elliott in reviewing the past year emphasized the fact that there were an increasing number of leagues and clubs all over province, due to the fact of, interleague competition and the inauguration of the "C" series in the intermediate class. The latter causing a boom in the rural districts.

Secretary W. J. Snyder read the correspondence and in his report pointed out that there were ten senior leagues with 93 clubs, 10 intermediate leagues with 64 clubs, 18 intermediate "B" leagues with 75 clubs, 10 junior leagues with 45 clubs, 3 juvenile leagues with 46 clubs and 8 baseball leagues with 43 clubs covering over 1,200 players. Mr. Snyder in referring to the play-offs pointed that the association supervised 48 play-off games with a total attendance of 87,322, who paid a gross amount of $28,717.07. This being the net gain of 57 games over the previous year. The series winners last year were Senior, Oak, Intermediate "A" Ingersoll; Intermediate "B" Milton; Oak Juniors, St. George's, (Toronto) Juvenile, and Peterboro Senior "A" Ingersoll; Intermediate "B" Milton; Oak Juniors, St. George's, (Toronto) Juvenile, and Peterboro

CLEAR DEBRIS RUINED CITY

Abundance of Food is Arriving and Situation in Hand

Managua, Nicaragua, Apr. 2 (By Canadian Press)—With six hundred bodies recovered from the ruins, Col. Frederick Braiman in charge of relief work, today estimated the total dead from the earthquake at two thousand persons.

At Mayebaek hundreds of natives who precipitately left the city yesterday returned and poked through the ruins, salvaging their personal belongings and household furniture and carrying them by small carts, mules and trucks and trails into the hills.

The situation seemed to be well in hand, an abundance of food was arriving. Medical aid seemed sufficient to care for the injured. Virtually all the injured have been treated, marine doctors operating and giving assistance for fifteen continuous hours. Many thousands returned since the 150 major operations all the time working under the most adverse conditions. A third baby was born today in the field hospital just beyond the city.

To Relieve Catarrhal Deafness And Head Noises

If you have catarrhal deafness or head noises go to your druggist, and get 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength), and add to it 1-4 pint of hot water, and a little sugar, and take a tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the stuffed-up feeling, noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little, and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

RADIO FANS CORNER

All day yesterday the chief characteristic of the Radio was its extreme weakness but fortunately it cleared up as evening approached and we were able to get Chevalier, Bordoni and Sesh Parker, all the out standing ones on the network.

Guy Lombardo is going to introduce a brand new song tonight on his program that he composed, for an instant hit, in the near future. Tune in on the Radio if you wish to do so, the time is 10 o'clock.

The Rex Cole Mountaineers take the air at 5.45 tonight and the Buddy and Gold Room orchestra take their place on WEAF's wave length beginning at 6. Andy Sanella brings his saxaphone and his novelty orchestra before the Mike tonight for a pepp program starting at 8.15.

The Gypsies at 8.30 WEAF, and at 9.30 the male quartet under the direction of Frank Munn. The special Army Day program will be heard from this station tonight at 10.30 and Florence Richardson and her orchestra at 11. Phil Spitalny at midnight.

Mormon Tabernacle Choir at 8.15 WJZ tonight and that means Edward W. Kimball at the Tabernacle organ, Lambert at 7.15 and Roxy's program at 7.45. Ohman and Arden hit the ivory keys tonight at 8.30 in a fast stepping program and listen to sweet Sweetheart Sweeney their leader tonight, Rudy Weidoeft, the boy that taught Rudy Vallee all he knows and yet stands head and shoulder over all the saxaphone players on or off the air. Believe it or not, tune in and see for yourself. WJZ of course.

The Maytag orchestra at 9 and Ireene Wicker from this station at 9.30 bringing the activities of Chesebrough to our attention once again. The George Ku Tyto at 11.45 WJZ tonight. Ben Bernie's orchestra—Reisman and that smart orchestra of his will be heard at 1 tonight over WJZ and tune in. I'll be seeing you subsequently.

"He Was Left An Income Of $100 a Month for Life"

A man said, "If only somebody we didn't know would die and leave us a million dollars!" And his wife replied, "Yes, or even somebody we did know, and only half a million!"

It is a favorite day dream to "wish" that some remote relative we never heard of would remember us in his will, and that the good news would be announced by the gentleman on his next visit.

Yes, it would be nice to have the postman call every month at the same time, and leave a cheque for $100. Very welcome now, of course, but how much more so later on, when our energies begin to flag; say, when we reach age 50, 55 or 60.

Of course, if a man or woman has about twenty thousand dollars well invested, an income of One Hundred Dollars a month can be secured right away.

The great majority of people, however, cannot command any such capital sum, nor is it necessary if one wishes to plan now for the income to be delivered some time in the future.

If you want to pass the last third of your life in comfort and independence, or should you wish to guard against being totally disabled or unable to earn money, look into this suggestion now.

The coupon below is for your convenience. Fill it in and send it today. Do not let de ay rob you of the opportunity of finding out just how you can secure the income you know you will need later on in life.

CHOOSING SEED CORN FOR 1931

At the recent conferences of the corn borer inspectors in London and Toronto respectively, the Provincial Entomologist, Professor Caesar, stated that many farmers were not taking sufficient care to choose varieties of seed corn well adapted to their districts. He said he had personally visited that fall more than one hundred corn fields in Essex and Kent alone and also a good many fields in other counties, and could not help feeling that poor varieties and too thick planting had been responsible for a loss in 1930 to the growers than the corn borer itself.

He claimed that for the most part American varieties were not satisfactory for our climate, many of them requiring too long a maturing season or being too coarse in texture, or too inclined to break down in storms, especially if injured by the corn borer, and that it was much safer as a rule to purchase good, well tested Ontario varieties.

On being asked whether good Ontario seed was available, he said there was an abundance of excellent seed to be obtained, at least in Essex and Kent.

The sort of corn needed for the husking corn area, he stated, was one that had a strong, sturdy stalk which would not break down easily, either from wind or from injury by the corn borer, that had a moderately short maturing season, as late crops would be liable to danger of frost being injured by early frosts, and that if not planted too thickly—never more than 4 to a hill—would produce a good crop of well-filled ears. Several of the so-called yellow dents of the type of the better strains of golden glow, are good, but there are also good strains of white-capped yellow dent and of white dent. For those who prefer flints to dents, good varieties are also to be found in the same counties.

For ensilage corn in most of the Province and especially where the corn Borer Act is in force, he would not favor any tall varieties because they are too liable to be broken down before harvesting and therefore to cause the growers a great deal of extra labour in cleaning up his corn field, as required by the Act. In this field, as required by the Act. In this field, as required by the Act. In this

By Margaret Whiddemer

Ethan's car stopped before Helen's house ceremonially Tuesday evening. Ethan, in his evening clothes, tall and distinguished, rang Mrs. Birch's door bell to call for Helen.

Helen herself felt a little as if things were real. An engagement dinner at Nina's. And for herself and Ethan Kingsway.

In spite of herself Helen felt a little apprehensive as to how Nina would act. Nina could have a sharp tongue when she wanted to.

Tacy, unchanged as the Sphinx, tall and brown and solid, opened the door in place of Mrs. Homeward and greeted Helen with a warmth of affection—for her—which swept Helen along to Nina, warmed and encouraged.

But there was nothing at first glance, which needed warming or encouraging in the situation. So much had happened to Helen that she wondered half childishly if Nina would look like a different person. But the five months since Nina had gone away had added and taken away nothing.

Her evening gown, was of course, from Paris; one, Helen knew without being told, of a big trunkful, acquired of a "little dressmaker" who had a secret and immediate wire into three of the big show-rooms.

She rushed to meet Helen and Ethan with just her old staccato friendliness.

"My darling child! How clever of you—and how delightful to see me! Now I'll have my little cousin in the same town with me always. She's a housebold treasure as well as a bad little flirtatious, butterfly! Isn't she, Ethan? I know, I've had her two years—and then old Ethan, whose hand she held with the chat that wasn't finding Helen's, in a softer voice, "You don't know what it means! I am that you're going to be happy at last, dear Ethan!"

Ethan's quick and pleasant smile, his equally quick and pleasant words of thanks, showed nothing of what he thought or felt. Then, Dr. Gaynor, a little faded from what he confided to Helen later had been a hard day, smiled with real pleasure at the professional cheerfulness from behind his bold-lighted eyeglasses of two counts.

"I wonder if I wasn't present at the beginning of the romance," he said, leaning back and sipping his cocktail appreciatively. "When this young person looks so blooming as now stunned herself against Mr. Kingsway's walnut tree—"

"Oh, do tell me all about it!" cried Nina with enthusiasm.

"There isn't much to tell. I gathered that Ethan picked her up and carried her into Kingsway House, like a hero of romance. When I got there she was unconscious in old Mr. Kingsway's bedroom with the whole family gathered round her. I will only say I never saw anything prettier."

"It must have looked like a death-bed scene," said Helen with an uneasy flippancy.

"Instead of being the prelude——" began Nina lightly, "to——"

"An accident of fact," Ethan spoke across whatever Nina had been about to say, "but not much. My mother used to say, "you are a little wrong there, and little Patricia did fall in love with Helen then and there. But I'd begun before that."

"Now we're going to get dates and places," said Nina, with glee.

"Not one!" said Ethan cheerfully. "You asked us here, my dear cousin-to-be, to give us a good time, and we hoped because you loved us. We refuse to make a Roman holiday for you."

The amusement over this carried them into the dining room, where Helen, sinking into her old seat, found herself beginning secretly to keep an eye on Mattie's serving, so that Nina could be free to lead the conversation.

Nina did.

"And what have you been doing?" from Dr. Gaynor, elicited a stream of Nina's talk as its most amused.

"Well, there was a Russian count in the Riviera," she began.

"And I suppose there was a French one in France and an English baronet in England, and the doctor in a despair that was very nearly real. Nina shrugged her white shoulders under the genuine black satin bows. The evening gown was a dream of simplain, tight black chiffon, whose cut alone told what it had cost even Nina's little dressmaker.

"It's possible!" she told him, with a look that conveyed the secrets of the whole Burke's Peerage to good interest. Dr. Gaynor. "At any rate, you never saw anything as marvelous as he was. Our American men don't have that something. That is, of course," Nina added, with a flattering glance at her two guests, "except a very small minority——I choose my friends from that minority."

Dr. Gaynor looked flattered.

"We hoped so," said Ethan, with one of his most winning smiles.

Helen listened and wondered. Nina seemed to have shrunk, somehow. Her manners, her pharses, her methods, even her looks, seemed further off and less important than they felt like the little boy in the fairy-tale who felt that the emperor had no clothes on. She wondered again and suddenly realized that she was seeing Nina now through Ethan's more sophisticated eyes. His entirely charming "we hoped so" yet had a note of casually accepting Nina as she was, and not taking what she was seriously. Helen need never worry any more, she knew that, from Ethan whose there words, as to whether Nina's child could move Ethan's heart slightly. Dr. Gaynor believed in her. Not Ethan.

She went an about the Russian count.

"There was such depth, such tragedy in everything he said and did. Nothing left at all of course. He said to me, 'I live a living death of course as your would know, but you understand as you are wonderful'. . . . Isn't it, dear one? After all that are we but bubbles on life's stream?"

Was she really in earnest? Yes—she was. Or she was in earnest for the moment. Playing up to somebody Ethan or Dr. Gaynor or both.

"I hope you tried to argue him out of such an unhealthy frame of mind," said the good doctor.

"I did what I could," said Nina gently, and Helen knew that she was playing up to Dr. Gaynor. Well always: his confidante. You know something about him. I'm sure, Helen, Tell us, like a good girl."

Ethan looked at Helen attentively. She wondered if she was right in feeling that his face darkened slightly.

She had to put Ronny right with Nina, even if Ethan was hurt as her not saying anything to him before.

"I—I don't know," someone else that he was earning his living in New York City," she said. "I'm sure he's doing the very best he knows how."

It was Nina's face which darkened now—unmistakably.

"That boy spents his life trying to put me in the position of a cruel stepmother," she said, not quite as lightly as she intended. "And I really do not know how to control him. He forfeited all chance of graduation. He spent his money like water and refused to give an account of it—which is rather tragic, you know, in its implications."

Helen wondered if Nina would believe in the financing of the young poetry magazine, and decided she wouldn't. Nina really shouldn't tell things about Ronny to people who were no relation. But Nina continued interminably.

"Finally he brought a girl up to his dormitory. He picked out a little speak for her, I admit, and the friend told on him, of course. He wouldn't explain. I have done my duty by the boy, and after all he is no relation. As I told him, unless he changes his ways I am through—simply through."

"But, oh, Nina, he's so stupid about money——if he hasn't any till he's twenty-five it may make all the difference in the world."

"Yes for me," said Nina with her quiet firmness. "I am so sure that he is worthless that I feel I owe it to myself to explain to my friends that Ronny is no longer under my control, financially or personally."

"Oh, Nina, dear, poor boy's so impractical!" Helen pleaded.

Nina laughed lightly.

"Your incorrigible little flirt! I thought that was all over, now you were the captive of Ethan's bow and spear!"

Helen looked at Nina aghast. The inference was unmistakable.

And there was certainly any way of answering that would not make things worse.

Ethan's voice, quieter than Nina's even, took up the conversation. There was tennis in the air, and Dr. Gaynor, who felt something but did not know what, began to move a little uneasily, and crumble bread on his plate. Helen noticed mechanically that one of the candles was guttering, and that Tabi signaled to Mattie to get a fresh one.

"I hope you haven't made Kingsway's dear head jealous. I'm quite a pariah, Nina," he said carelessly. "That's the impression I seem to get from people."

Nina's voice was a little sharper and louder as she answered.

"I am not jealous of he does things which make him one. He is so far as I am concerned."

She had thrown him quite deliberately, then, into the hands of the Kingsway people, Nina, who owed everything she had or was to the boy's old father.

"He'll never be a pariah to me," said Helen, speaking on a passionate impulse.

Ethan looked at her steadily across the little luxurious dinner-table. He could not know that it was out of Helen's remembrance of how it felt to be humiliated in all Kingsway's eyes that she spoke. But it must have seem a championship built on affection—Ethan, who must be sensitive still, because of Nina's own treatment of him ten years before. Helen hated he would speak. But he said nothing. He only watched her out of those unusually expressive eyes. They could be cold eyes. They were now.

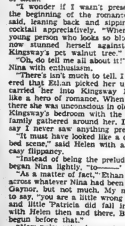
"Of course I'm child. Anybody knows that. Ethan will always have to make your peace with Ronny, I suppose, even if the first fine careless rapture is over. I never say you weren't warring, Ethan!"



Th buttons were nearly off the coat. Helen, hurt, realized that she did not know what to answer. "Sir, I love you" was the only thing to say.

Ethan responded swiftly to her call for help. His face changed to a curious expression of amusement, and he said to Nina as if Nina had been laughing over some vexed trifle.

"Naturally," he said. "I've decided that the only thing to do will be to keep the busy that she'll have no time to respond. Patricia is my scheme for encouraging the rest of the time I have to be gone, you see; and from now on I shall work out an intensive schedule for after hours. We're beginning with golf tomorrow afternoon."

RESTING AFTER THE BATTLE

Little Betty Carey pushed her hands deeper into the pockets of her coat, and beat her slim little figure against the sharp March wind New York was the coldest place in the world on a windy day, she had decided.

It was nicer, quieter than Nina's even, look up the conversation. around corners like that, could I?" her lips were trembling furiously. She hooped around. Perhaps if the manager had seen the accident, he would give her another cup of coffee. Only an attendant appeared with a fresh tray, transferred the cup and cake to it, and placed it for her on the table.

"The young man, his face very red, strode off and sat down at the next table, presenting to Betty right shoulders. Trembling and angry, Betty sat before the bowl of soup. It was very hard to swallow. Every spoonful stuck in her throat painfully, and the rims of her eyes burn and burn. It was getting more and more difficult to eat the soup—much less eat it. She gulped with an effort. It was terrible in this town. Men walked all over you. Nobody even saw you; but what could you expect in New York on $20.00 a week?

Suddenly the stiff young man sprang up and disappeared in the crowd toward the counter. Somehow his action made her lips begin quivering again. She was having real difficulties with all the muscles of her face when a gruff masculin voice said:

"Here!"

Glancing up, Betty saw beside her the nasty young man holding out a cup of coffee.

"You didn't have to do that," she had meant it to be haughty, even rude, but her voice failed woefully and, wanted to," he grunted efficiently. "I guess I ought to spoil my appetite. It was my fault."

"Isn't that funny? I'm on the 11th Loor," she laughed. "Crane & Crane, collection agency."

"I, too, say," the young man held the beavy door against the wind as Betty preceded him. "Do you know Bill Sailor?"

"Why, of course. He's our chief clerk."

"You just tell him Roy Holmes was asking for him."

Imagine being in the same building and you knowing Mr. Sailor. It's really a coincidence."

"It sure is," finally but gently, his hand on her elbow he guided her through the maze of traffic.

"Don't you love this kind of a day?" he asked excitedly.

His beaming silence was a cheerful assent. As they entered the building he slackened the pace he had set.

"I was jus thinking," he began, "but say, I don't know your name."

"Why, of course not, Betty—Betty Carey."

"Betty. What a nice name. Well, say Betty, I was thinking, if you aren't going to be busy tomorrow afte.noon—I suppose you have a half day?—would you like to have lunch with me?" he smiled that nice smile.

"I know a good place where we can eat and dance. And you can ask Sailor about me if you like."

"Oh, I'd love to," Betty was radiant. "I mean, I'd love to go."

"That's great, Betty, I'll meet you here by the elevators at 12.30."

Betty hummed gaily as she stepped off the elevator at the eleventh floo. It surely was going to be alive. Today was pay day and tomorrow she executed a little dance step in the marble corridor.

Tomorrow—a real luncheon date—luncheon date, music and dancing. And he did have such a nice name. After all, New York was a pretty good town, even on $20.00 a week.

"I Think Skidding's Fun Don't You"

"After all, there's nothing like a good slick pavement to have a little fun on. I like my brakes nice and grabby, my steering wheel tight. Then when I come to a slippery spot I can slow around and miss the other guy's ear. It's queer though, some folks object, they do— ain't that funny?"

If you object to being hit by the professor's car, like cars, not to be run down, protect yourself. Brakes that lock or slip are dangerous on wet streets. Let us adjust and equalize them for you.

IMMEDIATE SALES IMPRESSIONS ARE CREATED BY DAILY NEWSPAPERS

Buying Follows Close Upon Reading

Present day business conditions demand keen discrimination in the selection of advertising media. All other considerations are subordinated to that of---RESULTS.

Immediate sales are the goal. Every dollar must do a real selling job.

To-day, more than ever, manufacturers and retailers insist on direct cash returns from their advertising investment.

The daily newspaper stands out as the medium which best meets cash-register requirements.

Daily newspaper advertising spurs to immediate action.

It influences men and women to buy now the products advertised.

Response from daily newspaper advertising is assured. Business executives know that daily newspaper advertising moves to action vast groups of people quickly.

Manufacturers and retailers are analyzing their advertising investment more thoroughly to-day than ever before. They are insistent that their advertising must sell—and they know that the daily newspaper is the one sure medium for that purpose.

2 PAINTINGS PRESENTED

this church. In 1878 the portrait was presented by the parish of St. Alban's at Ottawa where Dr. Clarke had labored before coming to this parish. I feel that I am doing my duty in carrying out the wishes of the late Mrs. Clarke in presenting this gift."

Of the presentation of the painting by the late James Thompson, the rector said that Mr. Thompson was best known as a photographer to most of the people of Belleville, "but you may also think of him as an artist as you will see. He painted in a masterly style, he carved magnificently and he was a sculptor of no mean gifts".

Mrs. Thompson thereupon unveiled and presented the painting by her late husband of the solemn scene at Calvary, a fine study of the sad moment as the body of Christ was being borne from the foot of the Cross to the tomb. Mr. Thompson had caught a glimpse of the last events late on the day of the Crucifixion and carried his impression to the canvas.

Acceptance of the paintings on behalf of the congregation was made by the rector, "I accept these paintings for our church. May they ever help to preserve amongst us as a congregation the memory of those who labored for and loved Christ Church. We are going to sing a memorial hymn, No. 520."

During the sermon Mr. Clarke referred to the late Dr. Clarke and Mr. Thompson. "We have had unveiled tonight the portrait of Dr. Clarke, and it is fitting that it should take place on Easter for it was on Easter April 9th, 1882, that this church was dedicated and Dr. Clarke preached in this pulpit. We realize how such men must live far beyond their immediate circle. In this church, one of the most beautiful in this part of the country, will live on the influence of this man. You know I could not come into this church without feeling a sense of devotion. One may live on in memory for this church he builds, one may live on in the touch of a hand."

The minister went on in his sermon which was on the subject of the Risen Lord in contrast with Plato's thought of the Dead Christ, to point that far beyond the world of the living and the works man has done because Christ lives, by the boundless of time and place, and far beyond the tangible and visible world in the eternity of God. "Think of all it means to you to believe in God and in the living hope. We must see God in this Easter message the power that will ever grow. If a man were asked to what deeds are not curses but tears, he who would deny God on a starry night, or at the grave of his dead loved ones is the saddest of the sad and to be pitied. Religion, said Carlyle, had its strength not in its denials but in its affirmations. One another voice, clearer this time—"Help! Help! The cries came from near the ice in the Bay. I ran over to Bill Monahan's house and awakened him to get his boat. Told him there was somebody in trouble out in the bay. He got up and got into his boat. We both could hear the cries quite distinctly."

Ran to Station

"I ran to the police office over a mile away. There was no one there and the place was locked. I circled around for a few minutes and then started down the street. As I turned the corner at Front St. and Bridge St. White and Constable Miller coming down the street in the car. I stopped them I said someone was in trouble out in the bay. I had to shout it three or four times before they would hear me. I jumped in the back of the car and up we went to the Cooperage. The cries were very faintly now and at longer intervals apart. White and Miller left me I made all the speed a rooster crowing. Take me up to the police office and get my skiff and I'll go out myself," I told them. They drove on, home and left, the. While telling me to let him know if I found anything.

"When I got out to where I heard the cries coming from, I found a pair of floating oars and a boat nearly full of water. They were knocking against the edge of the ice. I recognized the boat as that belonging to Williams. I turned the boat back to Trenton and reported what I had found to Chief White who was at his home then. White, him first I believed Williams and Lamore were drowned."

Alter-phoning Jas. Lamore to see if Mr. Harris was home. Mr. White jumped in the car and went to the home of Harrison Harris where Williams boarded. Neither Williams nor Lamore had been heard from. Mr. White then notified Chief of Police William Ram.

Meanwhile Crozier together with Archie and Gorden Bowen had rowed back to the scene of the tragedy. Byerton Harvey had preceded them and had found a glove and the men a two-oars as well as a floating paddle. Archie Bowen located the route to the glove already found.

A little later Chief Ram arrived with grappling irons and started an intensive but unsuccessful search for the bodies. Some twenty-five boats as well as an aeroplane was employed in the search which was carried on until late in the day.

It is understood that a reward of $1000 has been offered for the recovery of the body of Arthur Lamore.

Jean Lamore, eldest brother, told the Ontario Intelligencer that he recognized the gloves and one of the oars as belonging to Arthur. "I was sitting in the kitchen reading a newspaper when they were getting ready to go. Art had the left glove and could not find its mate. He asked me where it was and then said 'Never mind, I got it.' and passed out the door."

TRENTON PAIR LOST LIVES

In conversation with the Ontario Intelligencer, Vernon Crozier told the following account of the tragedy: "I had reached a position near the C.N.R. water-tower in the examination of my pipeline. It was between three and three-thirty. Day had not yet begun to break. I was bending over examining a iron when I heard someone shouting for help. The sound seemed to come from out in the bay. I didn't pay much attention at first. The thought that "Art and Hank," as Williams was called, were in trouble never entered my mind. In fact, I imagined they had gone by this time as I had heard no gun reports."

"Then the call came again 'Help! Help!' A moment's silence. Then in the greatest affirmations of the Christian church is the belief not in a dead king but in a living Christ and living God."

JOHN ST. W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of John Street United Church was held in the church hall on Wednesday afternoon, April 2nd. The president, Mrs. Cook in the chair. The meeting was opened by Mrs. Gerrie playing very softly—"Breathe on me Breath of God". The devotional theme "Peace" was then effectively conducted by Miss Templeton who also read a story. After the hymn "Hail to the Lord's Anointed," very fine reports for the month were received from the Secretary and the Treasurer and the various other secretaries. After which Mrs. Terrance gave a brief paper on some principals of Christian stewardship. Mrs. Mirans followed with some extracts on Temperance education. Mrs. Bruce then sang a very appropriate solo "On the Peace the Sabbath Dawn Is Dear," the subject for the afternoon was "Honan" under the leadership of Mrs. Boulter. Some excellent papers were given by the following ladies "China and Its People," Mrs. Boulter—geographic and medical work in Honan, Mrs. Buchanan. The Honanese, Mrs. Bennett the Educational Work, Mrs. Robert Hall, after which Mrs. Bean, Literature Secretary read a beautiful letter by "My Easter Thanksgiving". The meeting was then closed with hymn "I Need Thee Every Hour" prayer said by Mrs. Boulter. Light refreshments were then served by the group and a social half hour enjoyed.

EIGHT PERSONS PERISH WHEN FIRE DESTROYS HOME

UNKNOWN MAN IS FOUND DEAD IN BARN OWNED BY F. McDONALD

Police Hope to Establish Identity Within a Short Time

INQUEST HELD

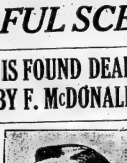
Had Requested Permission to Rest in the Building

An unknown man was found dead in a barn owned by Fred McDonald on the outskirts of the city late yesterday afternoon. So far he has not been identified, but it is expected that identification will be made shortly, from information which the police received late last night. The body was removed to the T. Hall and Browne Funeral Home, where an inquest was opened under Dr. W. W. Storey. After preliminary evidence was taken, the hearing was adjourned until Tuesday April 14th at eight o'clock at the police court rooms. A post mortem was performed on the body by Dr. J. J. Robertson shortly after the inquest closed, and death was found to be caused by the bursting of the aorta or the large vein leading to the heart. The jury is composed of W. H. Panter, foreman, George McLehean, Thomas F. Hartland, F. O. Diamond, Charles L. Walters, William Vallaury, W. A. Woodley and Phil Harrison.

One of the jurors called on the inquest, Charles L. Walters, gave an intimation that will probably lead to the identification of this man. When the jurors viewed the body, Mr. Walters stated to the coroner, that this man was in his sotre early Monday morning in search of work. He said were no papers or letters bearing his name found on his person but a tailor's thimble and set of bookkins was testimony, that he followed the occupation of a tailor. Mr. Walters also stated that the man had been in his store early last autumn looking for work and at that time showed familiarity of Kingston and Napanee. When this information was given, the police immediately notified their officers in those two centres and identification will likely be made in the near future.

This unknown man arrived at the McDonald farm early yesterday morning and inquired for permission to rest in the barn as he was tired. This was readily given by the owner, the last time he saw the man not to smoke. Mr. McDonald paid no more attention to the man till late in the afternoon. He went into the barn to visit with him, but he was surprised to find him dead. The body was carried into the granary. A hope of identification has taken place some hours before. Mr. Hartland viewed the remains and the body was brought to the city on orders from the Coroner.

The man is thirty-five years old, appeared to be well over the average mark in stature, he was five feet, eleven inches and weight about 150 pounds. The upper part of his head is removed and his hair is quite grey. The police have every hope of identifying the man through his statements made to Mr. Walters at various times with respect to Napanee and Kingston, and first. It was thought he could be identified by the "transient" book at the police station, but none of the officers could recognize the man. It is believed, however, that he has visited the city station at other times and has also received assistance in the way of food this winter.



CHICAGO GOES TO THE POLLS

Chicago, April 7—Chicago was deciding today whether Mayor William Hale Thompson can be toppled from the Mayor's chair. Perfect election weather promised for the entire day, the preliminaries having opened at more than a million the number of persons expected to decide if "Big Bill" or Anton J. Cermak, immigrant Democrat, shall rule the city for the next city. Thompson carried the Republican banner and Cermak the Democrat.

DETROIT TURNS DOWN ADVOCATE DEATH PENALTY

Detroit, April 7.—A proposal, backed by Governor Wilbur M. Brucker to re-establish the death penalty for murder in Michigan was defeated overwhelmingly in yesterday's spring election. The death penalty was abolished in this state many years ago, with life imprisonment remaining the most severe punishment for murder. In the contest for state office Republican candidates won over their Democratic opponents by large majorities.

NEWTON THOMPSON, PRESIDENT OF INTERNATIONAL Y'S MEN WAS SPEAKER AT BELLEVILLE CLUB

Points Out Duties of Individual Members and Clubs to Parent Body

Newton Thompson, International President of Y's Men's Clubs, was the speaker at the Belleville Club last night. His talk centred around "International," what it conveys, and what it means to individual members and to the club as a whole.

Mr. Thompson resides in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., but summer to Toronto. His present term as International President, and this is the highest honour that has been conferred on a Y's Man in history. Mr. Thompson is the controlling head of the whole Y's Men movement and his duties keep him on the road a great deal. He has visited practically all the many states of the Union and many provinces of Canada. That the Belleville Y's Men's Club should be the home of the International President is a tribute to this city and Dominion.

Mr. Thompson, while he is International President of Y's Men, is also Master of Harris Lodge, A.F. & A.M. of this city, a leader in boys' work, a director of the Y.M.C.A., a member of John Street Church Board, and is secretary of the Central Ontario Baseball League, all of which duties occupy a great deal of his time.

UNEARTH BONES OF PIONEER IN EXCAVATIONS

Brockville Health Officer Orders Remains Re-interred

Brockville, Ont., Apr. 7 (CP)—Excavations for cellar in northern part of the town resulted in the unearthing of a few human bones believed to be those of a Brockville pioneer who died in 1839. All that remained of the coffin had disappeared but a plate was found bearing their date and a name that was illegible except for the word "Thomas." The property was on early burying ground for the community and the bones were ordered reinterred in another box by Dr. E. B. Moles, medical officer of health and re-interred in the Brockville Cemetery.

Picturesque Ceremony as Willingdon's Successor Takes Post

Ottawa, April 7.—Welcomed by a glorious sun which warmed the city in a flood of warmth and reflected feeling which Ottawa entertained for them the Governor- General and Countess of Bessborough reached the Capital before noon today. After their long train journey from Halifax, N.S., the Vice Regi party came to the city and environment which lent themselves admirably for the brief but picturesque ceremony attendant upon the welcome to the new Governor General.

The station and entire route followed by Regal party was a riot of flowers, bunting and flags hanging and streaming from pillars and arches. Military regiments in their pre-war regalia formed the Guard of Honor and surrounded the station area. The Regal party was met by the Mayor and Premier R. B. Bennett, who was at station with his Cabinet accompanied by Premiers and representatives of Provincial Governments, attending the Dominion Provincial Conference today.

PANTAGES GOES TO TRIAL AGAIN

Prosecution and Trial Criticised by Supreme Court

Los Angeles, Calif., April 7.—The sensational trial nearly two years ago of Alexander Pantages, theatrical magnate, on charges of criminally assaulting Eunice Pringle, 20-odd dancer, will be repeated.

District Attorney Buron Fitts, whose conduct at the trial was criticized last week by the State Supreme Court in awarding Pantages another opportunity to clear his name, said today after a review of the decision that he intended to prosecute again. He refused to make any further comment.

Pantages who was convicted and sentenced to a prison term of one to fifty years and a fine of $100,000 bail, "if there is another trial," he said. "I am sure he will be fully acquitted."

In awarding Pantages another trial the High Court held the district attorney had prosecuted the case with prejudice. The trial court was criticized for refusing to permit the defense to introduce evidence concerning the character of Miss Pringle. The highest court record in Pantages' private office while Miss Pringle claims she was hypnotize about a vaudeville contract. Pantages charged she had attempted to blackmail him. Following the conviction she filed a million dollar damage suit against him but it has not been tried.

ANIMALS AND HUMANS DIE BY THE SCORE

Bombay, India, April 7.—Rgular despatch today said thousands of tithesent and other cattle are dying of thirst and starvation in the worst drought in the history of the Southern Irak district.

Wounds and babies are dying by the scores, the despatch said, while shepherd tithesmen resemble living skeletons. Lack of rain has stopped all growth and not a blade of grass is visible anywhere. Many sick men, cows and donkeys, sheep and goats are perishing from lack of water.

Nearly 8,000,000 sheep were slaughtered for freezing in New Zealand in 1930.

RESCUE EFFORTS

One Son, George, Though Seriously Burned Went For Help

Gallipolis, Ohio, April 7. — A father and seven of his children were burned to death early today when a fire destroyed the log cabin home on Swan Creek, ten miles from here. The father was James White and his children Mary 20, James 18, John 14, Ira 9, Mac 6, twin daughters, Nora and Dora, three.

One son, George 12, though seriously burned, succeeded in reaching a neighboring cabin and sounded the alarm. Neighbors rushed to the scene but by the time they arrived, the timber-like cabin was an inferno and they could do nothing to effect a rescue. The cause of the blaze was undetermined.

TRENTON RESIDENT MARKS BIRTHDAY

Trenton, Apr. 7.—A. B. Vanalstine, one of Trenton's oldest citizens, recently observed his 70th birthday by piling his trade as carpenter with all the vigor and skill of artisans two score years his junior. Mr. Vanalstine takes a deep interest in politics and other current events, and is a keen radio enthusiast. He is of U. E. L. stock, and possesses a prized wrought iron watch key which was carried by Major Vanalstine when he landed in Prince Edward County 15 years ago from Holland. The handle of the key measures one inch by one and one-half inches.

On the flag of the Chinese Republic there are five bands, one for each of the five races of China.

A new apparatus and method for analysis of gas mixtures has been devised.

TRIBAL RIGHTS OF INDIANS TO HUNT AND TRAP PROBED

E. J. Butler says "Stated Case Will Be Asked For

COUNT AMENDED

Mohawks Charged With Breaches Under the Game Laws

A stated case will be asked for from the Appelate Division of the Supreme Court, respecting the rights of Indians to fish and trap on the Reserve, according to E. J. Butler, K.C., who was acting in the defence of Chief Jacob Hill and Raymond Miracle, Indians, who faced three counts in Police Court today before Magistrate Mikel. The men are each charged that they trapped muskrat before April 15th, that they broke and destroyed rat houses and that they set traps other than five feet to the rat houses. The men were charged that these offences occurred in the Township of Tyendinaga on the 9th day of March and that took place in Thurlow Township and the Crown Attorney asked permission to amend the charge. The request was granted by His Worship. By the amendment Mr. Butler was not privy to proceed as he wished to visit the scene and has some first hand information regarding the lay of the land and the case was laid over till Monday next.

Defence counsel in addressing the court before the opening of the trial stated that Indians have been prosecuted while hunting and fishing on their Reserve not in conformity with the Game and Fisheries Act and there never has been a final disposition as to the rights of Indians to hunt and fish on their Reserve. A stated case said Mr. Butler, would clear the matter up once and for all and all officers in charge of enforcement would have a guide to go by. Crown Attorney Denman agreed with Mr. Butler in this respect. When the case came to trial it was found that the property on which the offences were charged is in Thurlow Township. The particular property was owned by James Geddes he reserving a seven acres in 1856 but the land has passed through several owners since that time. It is situated at the west side of Bell Ewemico River, while the Indian Reserve is on the west side of the Salmon River, while the Indian Reserve is on the east side of the river and in Tyendinaga township.

WOODCHUCK HIS YOUNG FRIEND

Lindsay, April 7.—Miss Ruth Hamilton, of Bethany, while out walking, was bitten by a woodchuck. The animal was sitting quietly beside the path, and Miss Hamilton noticed it, favourably regretting being left alone, it pursued her, and bit through her shoe at the back of the ankle. Dr. Hamilton treated his daughter and the wound is healing.

YOUNG INDIAN FACES CHARGE

Leo Green of Deseronto Was Captured Following Robberies

Deseronto, Apr. 7.—The thief who broke in and entered the hardware store of Loral Clement, the electric store of G. H. Harold, early Saturday morning and the jewelry store of F. E. Tunnicliffe, late Thursday night or previous, was captured on Saturday afternoon by Chief of Police Thompson of the town. The capture was proved to be Leo Green, who is but sixteen years old. The prisoner was convicted on the charge of grand larceny last August and since been hiding around Deseronto and the reservation.

THIEVES RAMSACK CHOIR QUARTERS

Quantity of Clothing Was Stolen From Robing Room

Port Hope, Apr. 7.—While evening service was being conducted at St. John's Anglican Church, Port Hope, here Sunday, unidentified thieves entered the robing room of the church and made away with a considerable quantity of clothing, including, coats, hats, gloves, etc. The local police are investigating.

While thefts were perpetrated while the service was in progress and the losses were discovered when the choir returned to the robing room. The losses were as follows: Rev. Hemming-ton and Ronald Emmet; two overcoats, Ronald Emmet and Merrill Lawson; coats, one each, Kennedy scarf, Malcolm Ferguson; gloves, Archdeacon Greene and Reginald Tom Murphy. Chief of Police Murphy was notified and scoured the town but no traces were found of the marauders.

SHE FINALLY HAD SOLUTION

New York, Apr. 7.—Peace came today to Mrs. Antonio Sclafani, whose life for the last year has been in jail cells, for suspected or answering her doorbell.

She lives in West 42nd Street, where, rumor has it, there are at the 'Hell's Speakeasy per hour by day and most of the night for months Mrs. Sclafani has been searching the doorbell panel there to convince unsteady gentlemen that this wasn't the place where they got that good rye two nights ago.

Today she thought hard, took fate into her own hands and passed the following sign over her door.

"This is not a speakeasy."

It worked, too.

CONGREGATION HONOUR MONSIGNOR NICHOLSON

Was Presented With Beautiful Ostensorium on Sunday

Rt. Rev. J. P. Nicholson, V. G., was presented with a beautiful ostensorium by the congregation of St. Michael's Church, Belleville, in recognition by the parish of St. Michael of which he is the pastor of his elevation to the rank of Domestic Prelate, at the close of Solemn High Mass which was celebrated at twelve thirty, a committee representing the congregation approached the altar and the presentation was made by J. J. Hurley. An address in honour of the pastor was read by A. B. Collins. Monsignor Nicholson, who was taken entirely by surprise, made a gracious response thanking the parishioners for their gift and calling attention to the splendid spirit of friendliness that exists in Belleville among all sects, a spirit that was greatly manifest at the visit of the Apostolic Delegate when all citizens united to do him honour.

The address to Monsignor Nicholson follows:

"Rt. Rev. Monsignor Nicholson, V.G., M.C.

Pastor St. Michael's Church, Belleville

"Within partaking of the holy joys and spiritual opulation of this Eastertide, we the parishioners of St. Michael's Church feel it incumbent upon us to express our appreciation of the honour conferred upon you by the Holy Father in elevating you to the dignity of Domestic Prelate.

CONSTRUCTION SHOWS DROP

First Quarter 1931 Shows $4,000 vs. $36,150 in 1930

Construction in this city for the first quarter of 1931 has fallen off down as far as building permit totals are concerned, for the first months only four permits were issued by the city engineer's department, with an aggregate of four thousand dollars in improvements and contracts. This stands against the 1930 record of $27,600 on fourteen permits for March alone and $36,150 for twenty permits in the first quarter of last year.

The only permit issued in March this year was for alterations to the store of William T. Parry, 225 Station Street for the amount of $800.

ARM FRACTURED.

Mr. Reginald Brockhurst, Coleman Street, had the misfortune to fall from a ladder on Front street yesterday, fracturing his left arm. He was erecting an awning at Hibbard Brothers' new store, formerly occupied by the Deily Intelligencer, when the bottom of the ladder slipped and the occupant was thrown to the pavement. He landed on his elbow. He was taken to the hospital where the fracture was reduced. He will be incapacitated for some weeks with the injury and will remain at the hospital for a few days.

REAL ESTATE CHANGE

S. A. Conklin, of the Conklin-Hepburn Motor company, has purchased the fine residence at the corner of Charles and Queen streets. It was announced today. No purchase price was announced. The property is known as "The Old William's Home."

SUCCESSFUL DANCE

A most successful dance was held by the Columbia Club at Tweed last night when it had the original "At Home" in the Opera House. One of the largest crowds to attend a dance in the northern village in years was present. Music was supplied by "Rick" Roberts and his Melody Men from Toronto. Programmes of the dance were: Mrs. James Gabourie, Mrs. James Ryan, Mrs. Moses Truesdell and Mr. Michael Horan. The committee responsible for the success of the ball was composed of C. H. Rashotte, B. V. Meraw, E. J. Boland, T. J. Gallagher and A. Meraw.

BROKE COLLARBONE.

NAPANEE GOLF CLUB DANCE.

Napanee Golf and Country Club members were hosts last night at a delightful dance. An eastern menu of fine crowd was in attendance for the affair. Music was supplied by Tommy Hamilton and his Troubadours of this city. A number from this city were in attendance.

TRAFFIC CASES

Two cases were heard in Traffic Court today by Magistrate Mikel. A young man pleaded guilty to driving his car with three other passengers in the front seat of the motor and was fined $10.00 and $3.50 costs. Magistrate Mikel in imposing the fine stated that when a car was standing still there would be no danger for four to sit in the front seat and under certain circumstances a driver could drive his car with that number, but if an emergency arose, the driver would not be in a position to protect himself or the passengers. Another young man was fined $1.00 and costs for failure to stop at a "stop sign" before entering a through highway. He pleaded guilty.

DOVES ARRIVING

Morning Doves, which have visited the Belleville Sanctuary for the past five years have again arrived for the season according to Walter Turner. Last year over two hundred of these beautiful birds nested at the Sanctuary and the soft cooing in the early morning is a pleasure not often privileged to students of nature. The Canada geese are now in full migration to the northern breeding grounds and many flocks have stopped at the Sanctuary then proceeding on their way. They do not stay as long at this Sanctuary as they do at the Kingsville Sanctuary of Jack Miner.

CELEBRATED BIRTHDAY PARTY

Last evening a great surprise greeted Mr. Richard Waddell at his home 152 1-3 Church street, when his children, grandchildren and great grandchildren entered his home to celebrate with him his 72rd birthday. Mr. Waddell received many presents with which he was much pleased and thanked his children for their kind remembrances. Music and games were played and a lunch was served which all present enjoyed. After wishing Mr. Waddell many more happy birthdays, all departed for their homes.

HELD BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Miss Marjorie Mclean, Alexander Street, entertained as a party yesterday in honor of her 5th birthday. Fourteen little guests were present and spent a delightful evening.

MEETING WAS ADJOURNED.

Last night the Belleville Horseshoe Pitching Association held its annual meeting at Lafferty's Garage on Pinnacle street. The meeting was held to elect officers and lay plans for the coming year, but as all members were not present, was adjourned until later in the week.

GETTING WARMER.

The mercury has been steadily rising for the past week. Yesterday at noon it touched fifty-one degrees above zero. Temperatures for the past two days were as follows:

ROADS COME THROUGH WELL

Marsdam roads have come through the spring so far very well, stated City Engineer Mott today. This is due to the fact that there was not much moisture in the ground.

GOLF COURSES BUSY.

Although the golfing season has not as yet officially opened, both the Country Club and the Belleville Club courses were crowded over the past week-end with enthusiastic golfers who could not wait for the club - houses to open. Both courses were reported as being in as good shape as is usual for this time of year.

NEW ELEMENT IN DIET

Indianapolis, April 6.—A new element in diet, a compound hitherto unrecognized in proteins, is on the verge of being discovered, it was disclosed in an address to the American Chemical Society by Dr. Wm. C. Rose of the University of Illinois.

Work toward this end has been under way for about a year, he said. He added:

"Already evidence has been obtained pointing to the presence in proteins of a compound which has not been suspected before.

"This material, the nature of which is not yet known, is certainly an indispensable constituent of the diet. If we succeed in its isolation, as we anticipate, we shall then be able to determine with comprehensive ease which of the remaining amino acids are required for normal nutrition.

The nutritive importance of the amino acids is in itself a vast field which must be thoroughly explored. Of the twenty known components of proteins, the indispensable nature of only four have been absolutely established.

"The importance of eight others is at present uncertain, while the remaining eight are absolutely unknown quantities in growth physiology. This paucity of quality information is due to the lack of available methods for the quantitative removal of single amino acids from the extraordinary complex mixtures obtained by the hydrolysis of proteins."

Professor Rose warned against "odd fakers. An unfortunate by-product of present day "food conscious-ness," he said, has been a marked increase in the number of dietary quacks and self-styled nutrition experts who exploit the public through sale of inaccurate advice, harmful books and worthless food products.

Discovery by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana of a synthetic substance—colored oil—which nature's product was disclosed in a report by four Indiana Standard Oil Company men, F. W. Sullivan, V. Voorhies, A. W. Jeffrey and Ivan C. Shaukland.

Oil Is Made From Paraffin

It is made from waste paraffin wax, an element in natural lubricating oil. Its understanding may mean millions of dollars have been spent in eliminating it from oil.

The reports says that the new oil stood a test in the cold climbing and extreme cold with less thickening "rather than any known natural oil." They are "rather expensive," but have found a market "well suited for many uses where ordinary lubricants are unusually severe."

"For instance engines, shock absorbers of automobile's gear shifts and other places where stability is very important the new oils have been found to surpass all previous lubricants and are hailed as a decided forward step in the art of lubrication," the report says.

Methods of "pure science" produced the material in a theory as to what would be the ideal oil.

Civilized man uses a great sporting quantity of lead, but need not be worried, according to Dr. Robert A. Kehoe, of the University of Cincinnati. He reported recent experiments showing that the body protects itself from any sudden influx of extra lead by excreting it as fast as it is taken in.

Dr. Kehoe said that lead was found in milk, bread, bran, crackers, frankfurters, sausages, meat, pork, beans, peas, spinach, and many fruits. He attributed the lead in bread, bran and peas to contamination of this element by growing grain. Lead gets into milk through the cow's feed. Candy and ice cream contain a little lead, according to Dr. Kehoe said, because of methods of commercial production. The lead in fruits he credits to sprays and canning.

OBITUARY

MRS. ALICE ELLEN SUTHERLAND

Mrs. Alice Ellen Sutherland, beloved wife of David Sutherland, passed away in St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto on Good Friday, after a short illness. The body was brought to the city interment being made in Belleville Cemetery yesterday afternoon. The late Mrs. Sutherland was born in Thurlow Township fifty-eight years ago, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wallace of the Bridge. She was educated in the Belleville schools but later resided in Penticton, Alberta, moving to Toronto a few years ago, where she resided until her death. She was a member of the Northern Church and leaves to mourn her loss a husband, three sisters, Mrs. George Hannon, Toronto; Mrs. David Lott, Englehart; Mrs. H. Bandy, New Carlo, and one brother, W. H. Dancerel of Charlton Station. The service took place from Tickell and Sons funeral parlors, to Bethel Hall yesterday afternoon, being conducted by Rev. Brooks, assisted by P. R. Peer. Many floral tributes testified to the esteem of the deceased.

The bearers were, George Sutherland, Amos Wannamaker, Mr. Mapes, Gilbert Lott, William Robertis and Raymond Lott.

ALFRED CHARLES HOGLE

The funeral of the late Alfred Charles Hogle took place on Monday afternoon from his residence, 34 Octavia street at 2 p.m. to Belleville Cemetery for interment.

services were conducted by the Reverend B. N. Nival, assisted by Rev. Willoughby. Bearers were: Fred Prentice, W. J. Quinn, John Hogle, Percy Judy, C. Hoyle, F. Treverton. Many flowers and a blanket of roses at the funeral testified to the esteem in which the deceased had been held.

DR. F. D. BLANCHARD

LOWELL, Mass., March 24.—Dr. Paul Drake Blanchard died this morning at his home in Arlington following a brief illness of pneumonia. He was in his 63 years of age and 38 days.

He had been ill at his home since Thursday of last week, and it was said he might recover until late last night. A consultation of physicians was held Sunday night, those present being Dr. Fenton Pillsbury, Jr., and Dr. John H. Lambert of this city and Dr. Chandler Bumstead of Boston. Shortly after the consultation a turn for the worse came and death followed at 2 a.m. today.

Dr. Blanchard was very well known here both as physician and surgeon and his deep interest in his patients had endeared him to many and his passing a comparatively young man he was raised highly among the men of the profession.

He was born in Springfield, Me., Sept. 25, 1868. His early school education was obtained in Foxcroft, Me., where with his parents he had moved in 1894. He later went to Bowdoin college, from which he was graduated. His medical studies were pursued at Tufts medical school. He came to Lowell in 1910 and for a year and a half thereafter was an interne at the Lowell Corporation hospital. In 1913 he took up practice here. During the world war he was in the medical service, serving at Camp Devens and at Allentown, Pa.

At the time of his death he was on the medical staff of the Lowell General Hospital and on the surgical staff at the Lowell Corporation and Lowell Corporation hospital.

In 1914 he married Miss Ethel Gibson in Melrose, Ont., and his widow is a daughter. Ellen, survives him.

He was a member of Star of Bethlehem Lodge, No 60 A.F. and A.M., of Oldtown, Me., and of Arlington Council and of Mt. Horeb Royal Arch chapter of this city. He was also a member of the Vesper-Country Club.

The funeral will be held from the residence Wednesday at 2 o'clock and burial will take place Thursday in Oldtown, Me.

us to express to you in a public manner our appreciation for your labors while in our midst and for the signal honour bestowed upon you and upon this parish by your elevation to the rank of Domestic Prelate by His Holiness Pope Pius the Eleventh.

"Long before your elevation in our midst we had heard of your many activities in your extraordinary active career. We had heard of your valor, your zeal and devotion upon the field of battle—valor so constant and outstanding that it was both the inspiration of the men in the ranks and the joy of the officers associated with you so that in due time His Majesty King George the Fifth was pleased to confer upon you the Military Cross, a decoration of the highest order given only to those who have performed deeds of exceptional bravery in the face of grim battle.

"In France and Flanders you spent your time ministering the spiritual and temporal needs of the men and upon your return to Canada you were ever ready to sacrifice your time, talents and means for the men who fought that we might live.

"You became Dean of Regiopolis College and for nearly ten years you labored quietly, unostentatiously and efficiently among the boys and students. Hundreds of young men have gone forth to occupy a higher and better place in the world because of the inspiration, guidance and instruction you imparted to them.

"When called upon to direct the affairs of this Archdiocese you were faithful to the call of duty. Great was the responsibility; exalted indeed was the office but we rejoice that you filled it with grace and eminent success.

"Last September, His Grace Archbishop O'Brien sent you to us as our Pastor and we hastened to greet you with an address of welcome and since that time your relations have indeed exceeded our most sanguine anticipations. Since your arrival you have radiated love and peace and contentment throughout the Parish. Your wide knowledge and profound erudition was a valuable asset in opening the new Academic season by our Solemn Pontifical Mass last Sunday and as a tribute to his memory, which we know is dear to you, you invited the representative of the Mayor to be our guest at the dedication of the new High School, as is our Parish, never before had it had the privilege of an official visit from the personal representative of the Pope and never yet had the Parish of Belleville seen such an outstanding demonstration of the unity of purpose of all classes and creeds as was gathered around you in the hall of St. Michael's Academy.

"During your brief residence with us you have labored incessantly, you know your flock and to spread the knowledge of God and of consecration in our community. And now as if to manifest to your labors of years and zeal, the Holy Father has been pleased to raise you a member of his household and to clothe you in the Roman purple. Great indeed is the consolation and joy of those who are stoked upon you and upon this Parish. We rejoice at the contemplation of it; We are deeply touched and inspired by the many signs of love and kindness towards us and we hope to merit in a still greater devotion to the See of Peter.

"Before it is, Right Reverend Monsignor, that we have the privilege of the greatest feast in the Church, to wit, the Feast of Christmas, permit me a material expression of our esteem for you, our Solemn Mass of our standing Priest honored by his Holiness, Pope Pius the Eleventh may pray that when our Eucharistic Savior is born again in this sacred vessel He may pour down upon you the choicest graces and blessings in your future spiritual and temporal welfare of this our Parish of St. Michael."

NEWTON THOMPSON

Since his elevation to the Presidency of the Union, plans have been organized in China, Japan, Estonia, Jugo-Slavia and other European countries, and recently it was announced that the movement has been started in British India and a flourishing club will shortly be established in England.

Started in Toledo

Mr. Thompson traced the history of Y'sdom, noting that it was started in Toledo, Ohio, in 1904, when a small group of young men gathered in a single room and formed a discussion. The founder was Paul William Alexander. It was not intended that it should be a federation of clubs but within two years seven clubs were formed and a District Conference was held in Ohio. Now there are one hundred and sixty-five clubs and eight different countries of the world.

The movement has received officials recognition from the United States and Canadian National Councils of Y.M.C.A., while the emblems, etc., are protected by Government patents. Mr. Thompson said that Y.M.C.A. MEMBERS ARE NOT recently returned from a Y.M.C.A. training conference at Silver Island Island, where the Y's Men's movement was outlined to the delegates.

Most Have International

He explained the advertising system which operates within International, and how finances are handled.

"The success of the club and of International will depend largely upon the interest which the individual member puts into his club" he declared. Attendance at meetings interest in committees and strict attention to financial obligations in the club are duties which every member should observe Mr. Thompson said.

One morning's mail at his home here revealed fifty-five letters from four different countries in the world all of which must be filed or answered.

He pointed out that it is useless for a club to hope to survive without the assistance of International. "Every

STORK LANDED SAFELY ON CAR

Winnipeg, Apr. 7.—Train conductors have long been the butt of the stork while cars were humming over the rails but it remained today there is a street car motorman who lost in a race to the hospital.

Motorman A. M. Williamson was driving along a downtown street, when his attention was suddenly attracted by a woman who had become ill on the car. He discovered her plight and speeded his car for the hospital. But a boundary was reached with blue eyes and fair, curly hair, was born in the car and the car before the hospital could be reached.

Doctors and nurses were summoned and mother and babe were given attention.

Sudbury, April 7.—The jury empanelled to investigate the death of Frank Murdock, pilot of the national air transport plane which piloted an airplane crash here yesterday afternoon, returned a verdict of accidental death and recommended that the proper authorities supervise the flying of passengers for hire and the proper altitudes over towns and cities.

The evidence of several witnesses was taken. Only two, Alcide Lauzon and P. C. Muirhead, saw the plane take the fatal dive. Murdock "Buck" Smith, student pilot, who was apparently taking spot landings at the time of the accident, is in hospital and unable to give evidence. Dr. H. M. Torrington, who is attending Smith, stated that the patient was unable to recall any details of the accident. "He does not remember being up at all," the doctor stated.

MILK OF MAGNESIA
GET RID of your dread of pain after eating. Be without fear of indigestion, sour stomach, disagreeable gas or headaches.
When your food ferments, "disagrees," lies like a lump in your stomach, it's a sign of too much acid. You need not resort to crude methods —take instead an anti-acid that will correct the condition. Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.
A spoonful of this pleasant-tasting, soothing fluid neutralizes many times its volume in acid. It restores the proper alkaline balance to an acid-soaked stomach and bowels—assists these organs to function as they should.
Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is what you need when a bad breath, coated tongue, headaches, nausea or biliousness indicates an over-acid condition. Take a spoonful today and for several days and see how it sweetens the system. You won't be nearly so liable to get colds or sick headaches. Genuine only in the Dominion sell it in 25c bottles.
Genuine Milk of Magnesia is always a liquid—never a tablet. Look for the name Phillips on the bottle.

WELCOME EARL BESSBOROUGH

Canada has welcomed the new representative of His Majesty as Governor General, the Earl of Bessborough, who is to act in a vice-regal capacity for the next few years. His coming and his welcome at Halifax were such as to arouse in the new office-holder an appreciation of the high post he is called upon to fill. His speech in reply to the welcoming words of Premier Bennett indicated that he was fully aware of the responsibility he had undertaken to interpret Canada to the Motherland, and the latter to Canada. Thus he becomes the living bond and mouthpiece of those tender and yet sturdy sentiments of national and imperial life.

This Dominion has been fortunate in the men who have been at the helm of late. Lord Willingdon was a business man and Lord Bessborough is likewise a man who has played no small part in "imperial" theme of business.

Step in Canada will be made happy because Canadians know what earnestness this new governor will put into his duties. He will be able to lend sage advice and to give direction to many movements in this day when the Dominion stands at the threshold of developments, probably greater than any of the past in point of financial and national importance, for an age of great growth is just ahead which requires the sagest counsel.

CHURCH ATTENDANCES

What percentage of the members and adherents of the churches in Belleville attended Easter services on Sunday cannot be stated definitely, but the fact remains that one of the largest attendances at most or all of the churches was recorded. The attention of thousands to worship on Sunday must have been gratifying to those who Sunday after Sunday and week after week carry the burden of the spiritual and social life of the people on their shoulders largely, the ministers and clergy. Easter Sunday marks the pivotal point of Christianity, the attendance was in its way a proof that the people realize that emotional impulses are not all the great statements of revealed religion, and is the desire of their hearts.

This attendance, however much be credited to the formality of attendance and custom, cannot but be interpreted as a sign that many people today are giving thought to things above the material and selfish. Some people went to no service on Sunday, but many others did and those who did are the leaven. Many of those who did not go were prevented by duties of homelife from taking part in the Easter ceremonies of worship. The large proportion of all who did attend and who might be said to attend formally on this day, the fact remains clearly demonstrated that the great mass of the people are safe custodians of Christianity and that the religion of the humblest man has not yet become irresistible to them. To them a religion (if it can be called a religion at all) so chill and lifeless as that of the humanists can never succeed. There are positive "rational immortalities' said Dr. Charles Francis Potter, of New York, in a sermon preached in Toronto Sunday. These rational immortalities are: Posterity, or biological immortality; corporate existence, or anatomical immortality; reabsorption, or chemical immortality; influence, society, or sociological immortality; choir invisible, or influential immortality."

These five are said by him to be "accept-able by scientifically-minded people." On the other side, he puts the mythical immortalities: "Reincarnation, or metempsychosis; unbelievable', he claims—heavenly, or geographical immortality; personal survival, or egotistical immortality; resurrection, or miraculous immortality; chosic immortality; ghostly or spiritualistic immortality; family reunion, or genealogical immortality; union with the ideal, or ideal immortality; union with God, or mystical immortality.

"But rational immortalities are cold and lifeless and will make no headway against the common people's sane view of life; they do not reflect much that the Christian believes. What Dr. Potter calls the "mythical and unprobable" varieties of immortality are to Christians and Moslems and to other faiths the actual realities. It matters not much that Dr. Potter for placing the situation so clearly for believers can now realize what an abstraction all the immortality of cause is. He throws down a challenge which Christians must take up.

While there are only a few who accept the frozen mental and intellectual burden which a humanist churchman bears, there are more who live lives of practical humanism", which amounts to indifference of the truths of life though mentally accepting the truths. There is a more serious menace of course than mere "humanism". It has always been the greater danger throughout history.

While no one will deny that man should take an interest in the future in biological immortality, and while he will not deny that there are such things as chemical immortality the immortality of influence or the importance of social ideals, his rational immortalities are a cold shrine at which few, if any, can worship; indeed, they are no shrine at all, they are just the lack of practically everything that personality means.

While congregations can still thrill to the message of Easter and personal immortality, and can still give expression to hallelujahs of praise, there is little chance for rational immortality to gain a hold and there is great leaven at work in the world to offset whatever there be of a pagan or agnostic or practically atheistic attitude to truth and facts.

PRAYER FOR THE JOURNEY

I stand upon these earthly heights
And mark with vision clear the way
My feet must tread I note the road
That I shall take till close of day.

Dear Lord I do not ask of Thee
That Thou lift up the veil and show
Unto my longing hungry eyes
The devious path my life must go.

I do not ask as travellers here
To know where foaming torrents lie
Or where the desert sands glare back
Hot fury to the cruel sky.

Yet, Lord, I ask a great boon.....
Whether in sunshine or in storm
Life's path must lie I ask always
The tender shelter of Thy arm.

I pray, wherever I may pass,
Through smiling land or dreary place,
That I may know unto the end
The boundless wonder of Thy grace.

FINDING A NAME

The Mail and Empire says that Canadians have as much right to the name "American" as the people of the United States. United States people are unfortunate in this regard as they have not a noun or adjective which can compare with the word "Canadian," and so on. Yet, the U. S. people have no more right to the name American than the people of France or England have to the exclusive use of the name "European." South America is likewise to have as much right to the name "American." The name "United States" does not lend itself readily to a noun or adjective form. The strangest thing is that a great country has so long been without a name for its citizens. Perhaps they should have followed Canadians though British Columbians and the Colombians might object.

There have been efforts without a country and here is a country not without a name but without an adjective to suit the people. Of course the U. S. A. gives the cue as to the use of the name of America just as the word Canadian comes from "Dominion of Canada." But unfortunately for the U. S. Canada is a part of the north continent of America. The whole trouble is due to the failure of Americans to find an adjectival noun or an adjective to describe the people.

Senator J. Ham Lewis predicts four political parties in 1932. No, no, Jim, we really haven't enough graft for the two we now have.—Hubbard Enterprise.

Instead of welcoming the great company together with an effusive smile the eminent financiers of Wall street scowled, blubber so damply that an enquiry was inevitable.

"Been pinchin' stamps," was the sobbing answer, "an' the boss is goin' to have me locked up."

The good company promoter stepped softly into the sanctum. "You're going to have your boy arrested, he tells me, he observed, after the office had been put together, borrowing half a million, and making an appointment for lunch. The eminent financier nodded.

"I shouldn't," said the other, in his best insinuating manner; "after all, we all started in quite a small way, didn't we?"

As a sign of his trade, a shopkeeper in Switzerland will hang a large fishing rod with an artificial fish at the end of it. Then one night a man who had been dining out passed to see the fish, and, going up to the door, knocked gently. "Who's there?" demanded the shopkeeper from an upper window. "Sh-h. Don't make a noise but come down as quickly as you can," said the man below. Thinking something serious was the matter, the shopkeeper dressed and came quietly and quickly downstairs. "Now, what is it?" he inquired. "Hist!" admonished the other man, "pull in your line quick —you've got a bite!"

You'll repent it if you marry,
You'll repent it if you don't.
So wherefore should you tarry
At "I will" or at "I won't"?
Sure your judgment is extraordinary,
Though you will or though you won't;
You'll repent it if you marry,
You'll repent it if you don't!

DRIVING TIME LIMIT

"No person owning, controlling, operating or managing any public commercial vehicle shall cause or allow any driver or operator of such public commercial vehicle to work as a driver or operator for more than a maximum of eight hours in any 24-hour period."

This is No. 22 of the 36 regulations respecting the licensing of public commercial vehicles, which came into effect on April 1, pursuant to provisions of the Public Commercial Vehicles Act. The intent of the department, of course, is to prevent unduly long driving hours on the part of motor truck drivers, a factor which is recognized as contributory to highway accidents from time to time.

Enforcement, as will be readily recognized, offers difficulties, in that drivers who desire to hold their jobs will be found unlikely to testify against employers. While the evidence of drivers is of primary importance in respect of such infractions it would appear that the department will have to avail itself of information from other sources, as by logging that additional means of control is provided by the regulations. Public commercial vehicles, when classified in four groups, must all be licensed, and if it is discovered or convinced that any owner is requiring driving by any operator for longer hours than the maximum specified, the licence may be suspended, without a court prosecution.—Woodstock Sentinel Review

UNLUCKY SIGNS

In California there have been established what are known as "scenic reserves, that is, stretches of highway where some near by artificial sightseer is a hot dog stand. In Paris they have a law, but not in the United States, recently in New Jersey a tax of three cents a square foot was imposed upon all billboards except those on premises where the business mentioned is conducted. New regulations have been issued by order-in-council to remove objectionable signs from sections of the King's highways in this province. Designated places of a business are limited to one sign. No advertising may be placed on trees, telegraph poles or buildings unless the advertising is for the business conducted or products sold on the property. The illustration of the sign is not obliterated. This is strangest thing is that a great country has so long been without a name for its citizens. Perhaps they should have followed Canadians though British Columbians and the Colombians might object.

There have been efforts without a country and here is a country not without a name but without an adjective to suit the people. Of course the U. S. A. gives the cue as to the use of the name of America just as the word Canadian comes from "Dominion of Canada." But unfortunately for the U. S. Canada is a part of the north continent of America. The whole trouble is due to the failure of Americans to find an adjectival noun or an adjective to describe the people.

Instead of welcoming the great company together with an effusive smile the eminent financiers of Wall street scowled, blubber so damply that an enquiry was inevitable.

"Been pinchin' stamps," was the sobbing answer, "an' the boss is goin' to have me locked up."

The good company promoter stepped softly into the sanctum. "You're going to have your boy arrested, he tells me," he observed, after the office had been put together, borrowing half a million, and making an appointment for lunch. The eminent financier nodded.

"I shouldn't," said the other, in his best insinuating manner; "after all, we all started in quite a small way, didn't we?"

As a sign of his trade, a shopkeeper in Switzerland will hang a large fishing rod with an artificial fish at the end of it. Then one night a man who had been dining out passed to see the fish, and, going up to the door, knocked gently. "Who's there?" demanded the shopkeeper from an upper window. "Sh-h. Don't make a noise but come down as quickly as you can," said the man below. Thinking something serious was the matter, the shopkeeper dressed and came quietly and quickly downstairs. "Now, what is it?" he inquired. "Hist!" admonished the other man, "pull in your line quick —you've got a bite!"

You'll repent it if you marry,
You'll repent it if you don't.
So wherefore should you tarry
At "I will" or at "I won't"?
Sure your judgment is extraordinary,
Though you will or though you won't;
You'll repent it if you marry,
You'll repent it if you don't!

Brings Actress Ashes Across the Atlantic

The ashes of Lillian Leitzel, circus star who died after a fall in Copenhagen last February, were brought home to New York on the Cunard liner Mauretania, by Alfredo Codona, her husband, also a circus performer.

While the Mauretania lay in quarantine an airplane circled over her and dropped three wreaths, one of which fell on the diretdeck of the liner. The wreaths, from John Ringling, Mrs. Tina Barrasso, Mrs. Leitzel's aunt and her first instructor in circus aerial work, and the Circus Saints and Sinners Association, paid tribute to Miss Leitzel as a popular star of the air.

When they were dropped, Mr. Codona was standing near the rail. He buried below to his cabin, while sailors from the liner retrieved the two wreaths that had fallen into the sea.

Mr. Codona does a trapeze act with Miss Leitzel. Lulu, who accompanied him on the Mauretania yesterday. He said that for three weeks after his wife's death he had retired, but he appeared again recently before departing for the United States.

Among friends of Mr. Codona who were down the bay to meet the liner was Courtney Ryley Cooper, who recently wrote a number of articles about circus life based largely on the careers of Mr. Codona and Miss Leitzel. Other admirers were on the pier with flowers when the ship docked.

Stares Kazan, The Lion Due Submission

The circus opened in New York City for what it is pleased to call an engagement, to begin officially with trumpets and a fluty sort of whistle and after that there were performers and animals appeared for several hours. There also was a great deal of fair crowd for the first afternoon, one third counterspace filled at least the lower reaches of Madison Square Garden.

Tragedy of some kind breathed about the place, however, for the Orlando-Mara act did not go on. Mr. Orlando who lives in Berlin, makes a precarious way by living with his wife «Miss Mara» on his back and then flinging into a chair from a height of fifty feet. But unfortunately for Mr. Orlando a young man, possessing of seasickness still, was experimenting with trapeze.

The other new feature appeared as scheduled, however. This is the ocean act of one Clyde Beatty and several lions and tigers. The bills said there were forty-six beasts in the performance, an expert of the subject thirty-six and actual count put the total number considerably above a hundred. Mr. Beatty came on with the cage and cracks a whip while his attendants change cages. The audience liked it, and that was that.

Kazan Is a Bit Peppish

Mr. Beatty, who knows the legend of the power of the human eye, makes one of the most impressive effects by staring a lion named Kazan into submission. Kazan is peppish, apparently put a little too much English on the breakfast coffee, but Mr. Beatty jammed in the trainer's stick and actual stared him down. It was a matter of atmosphere, for it was not done in the least like Svengali's for catalepsies and a thick mume.

People who have been about circuses for some time said this was a large wild animal act has not been seen hereabouts for years. It seems they are hard things to transport and to be yearning for lions, tigers, tolls and whips.

As to the rest, Con Colleano has returned with his vibrant Spanish costume and his wire. He turns both a forward and a backward somersault—from wire to wire—and does multiple turns of much the same way of dance steps. The Wollendas, too, have returned, in an act that is more terrifying than the old one. And Clarence Wortman sings delightfully, who spends his spare time at painting and taking shot from a gigantic cannon.

Clowns Rich in Decrepit Antics

In all worthwhile circuses the entertainment centre comes along about here a bit of comedy, or, if you need to say, interludes. There are some clowns in the circus perhaps fifty of them. Most of them seem to be parodies of decrepit old gentlemen, which smoke and then explode violently midway down the track. For the lovers of the old tradition, in clowns as well as in circuses, there is still the comic fire department and the red house which burns amid great enthusiasm.

Goliath, who eats his way through the side of a cage about as fast as white horses, seemed to be in a bad way. He is stabbed at night in a tank at the rear of the Garden, and some one youthful conceived the idea of calling Beatty in his tent. Goliath liked it for a time, because he found boats were reasonably digestible. But Thursday evening he tackled a large boat made of tin, and yesterday he had indigestion. He could hardly swallow his diet of ninety-three pounds of flounder.

There was one empty place in the show. Lucier failed for so many years by Lillian Leitzel. She was killed in a fall in Europe during the winter. Her husband, Alfredo Codona, following the circus tradition of carrying on, arrived on the opening night but could not get his riggins in place for the performance. He is leaving, however, with the rest of his troupe in an aerial trapeze act at Keith's.

FEED SUNSHINE

Cod liver oil, the sunshine substitute, is one of the most important factors in the poultry balanced ration, experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture advise. Where birds are confined during winter months, as is the case in many parts of Canada, they receive very little direct sunlight, and with the rations usually fed they do not receive all the vitamines they require. Calcium and phosphorous are two minerals specially required for laying hens and for the normal manufacture of eggs. The digestion and assimilation of minerals, especially calcium, require one of two things, an abundance of direct sunshine, or an abundance of vitamine D. Cod liver oil is rich in vitamine D, and is one of the best reliable sources at this type of feed.

MAKING MORE BUTTER

The current news letter of the butter production for 1931 has put out by the Dominion Dairy Branch reports an increase of 21.2 per cent. over the corresponding period last year. Saskatchewan reports receipts of butter-fat 56 per cent. ahead of last year; Saskatchewan shows an increase of 76.1 per cent. in butter production for the month of January; and Alberta reports an increase of 63 per cent. in the production of butter-fat received for February as compared with the same month last year.

FROM SICK BED TO LABORATORY

Pasadena, Cal., April 6—Critically ill from a nervous collapse but reported easier, Dr. Albert A. Michaelson, dean of the world's physicists, is under the care of two physicians at his home here while a staff of assistant attendance.

It was disclosed that he had broken under the strain of overwork in connection with many tests. The 79-year-old scientist has called his "last great experiment" in measuring the velocity of light. From his sick bed he has been directing operations at a tube on Irvine Ranch, near Santa Ana.

About six weeks ago a caller at the home was astonished to discover that Dr. Michaelson was not working until after midnight at the Irvine ranch on his light tests and had then driven back to Pasadena, arriving at 3 p.m. At that time he was reported as very tired. He had been making the daily round trip of more than fifty miles.

The experiment will be completed by Dr. Francis G. Pease, Mount Wilson Observatory astronomer, and Fred Rossini, of the University of Chicago. Dr. Michaelson's assistant. Results of the research will not be announced in the immediate future, it was said, but that Dr. Michaelson will recoer sufficiently to record them himself in The Astro-Physical Journal.

Dr. Michaelson was past 70 when, with receiving nurses on Mount Wilson and Mount San Antonio, twenty miles apart, he computed anew the velocity of light at 186, 213 miles a second, and, subsequently at 186,271, because of chances for error, he built the immense tube at the expense of the Carnegie Institution. The tube experiment, using six methods of measurement, has been in progress for the past month and will require another month.

Dr. Michaelson was one of the first men to have been honored in the latter's recent visit here. The Germans, pioneers in the theory of relativity was partly based upon Dr. Michaelson's researches.

Parachutes

Airplane operators here are much interested in the statement of Major Rogers that provision for air safety will have to have every passenger wear a parachute in the air, the Times. Representatives of operating companies in Los Angeles say the question did not feel that such a step was practical or necessary. Summed up, their reaction was that the invention of parachutes would only give time to operate in the ordinary crash and that passengers could not be evacuated from the plane in any orderly manner.

L. P. Sharpe of National Air Transport said:

"Parachutes wouldn't do any good —individual ones I mean. The time element in a crash is extremely brief. There is only a matter of seconds between the safety is by the closest kind of operation, assuming that the structural failure and human error have been eliminated in so far as it can be from any form of transport."

Major Rogers stated the company had been conducting experiments at Akron for many months on ways to prevent or reduce fire in crashes of planes and that these methods which he views promising indicating results, would first be applied to passenger planes and afterwards successful in this service, used with freight planes.

"As to parachutes," he added, "I don't think that it is practical to have a parachute to float down a whole plane than from the use of individual ones I have mentioned."

Miss Thelma Earhart, wife of Clin Palmer Earhart, son of Frederick of the New York Philadelphia and Washington Stock Exchanges, owns the parachute idea.

"In a crash ship they would be unused and probably useless," she said.

"Even with experienced professional fliers it would be difficult to get more than perhaps a couple of these chute-equipped personnel successfully out of a ship in the air, and even in serious trouble under fairly favorable conditions.

"Perhaps plane chutes—parachutes made a place in the equipment when become practicable, or the development there of a device which would make the safety factor of flying beyond any now obtainable with conventional aircraft."

Other operators did not wish to be quoted at substantially backed this analysis of the problem. They pointed out that crashes in transport ser- were rare—figures issued by the Department of Commerce yesterday showed that scheduled planes flew 51,452,021 miles in the last six months of 1930 with one fatal accident involving two passengers.

TYPHUS FEVER

Typhus fever must not be confused with typhoid fever. The symptoms of the condition we cause has definitely been shown, namely a louse-bite. In the case of typhus there is still—as there used to be the exact nature of the provoking agents. It is thought, however, to be brought about by the presence of the so-called Rickettsia bodies in the blood which are transmitted to human beings by the bites of a variety of parasite to which the name Pediculus Capitis,are also said to be due.

Typhus has been known under various names, such as jail fever, camp fever, spotted fever, hospital fever, pestilential fever, jail fever—ship and camp fever, and Rocky Mountain fever. In New York City, when in a child from the age of two months, it is disease. In Germany it is often referred to as "exanthematic typhus" to distinguish it from typhoid states. At any rate, this disorder has been one of the greatest scourges of mankind. Typhus fever is a disease of filthy conditions and persons can be kept immune even if they drink contaminated milk, water, vegetables, etc. In typhus the best way to prevent it is to keep away from the individuals. It is, of course, in overcrowded places and camps that Rocky Mountain fever where the disease gains a foothold. A typhus fever vaccine is now being worked upon.

Ireland has suffered greatly from typhus in the past. Epidemics existed there in 1817, 1819 and in 1846. No Europeans escaped the latter, nor is it entirely free from it. No widespread epidemic of typhus has ever occurred in the United States for many years. In 1881 and in 1882 there was a mild epidemic in New York and in 1843 there was an outbreak in Philadelphia. During the World War there was a most serious outbreak in Serbia. The disease may be of a mild or severe type in its appearance, as it were, after the fashion of influenza, however. It seems to begin abruptly with chills and fever, and the fever may become unconscious.

The fever is said to take place there is a crisis usually at the end of the second week, and after a second step, the patient thinks himself fellow much improved in every way. But the temperature comes down, the heart and pulse quickly grow weak. In some instances there are such crisis occurs, the patient becomes delirious and remains so until death closes the scenes.

Typhus is rare elsewhere, the mortality rate is from ten to twenty per cent. of cases. It is more fatal during the winter than grown-ups. After middle life. It is specially fatal. This combination of circumstances helps materially to swell the death rate in typhus fever.

This disease is of course, one for which man is to take charge of, and the best and most careful nursing is necessary. In some cases the baths may yield favorable results. But the most important is the prevention of prostration and general heart weakness and to prevent the onset of pneumonia and complications.

The height to which the temperature rises is one of the features of the striking features of this malady. It may rise to 107 degrees and even to 107 degrees Fahrenheit.

The disease may be summed up as a filth disease for carelessness in mode of living allows the pediculi to multiply. No disorder emphasizes so much the important of cleanliness as does typhus.

It is not the amount we eat, but the assimilation and variety absorbed from the intestinal tract by the system that makes for real health. Most of us eat too much. With a little planning, food would be and still be nourishing and satisfying.

WATCH THESE DANGER SIGNALS!

HEADACHES, dizziness, coated tongue, loss of appetite, lack of energy, a general feeling of "dopiness"—these are the most frequent danger signals of constipation.

Look out for them. Don't let them make your life miserable. Start tomorrow eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—a delicious ready-to-eat cereal. As pleasant as it is healthful. What a relief it will be after taking unnatural, habit-forming pills and drugs.

Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are guaranteed to prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. In severe cases, two or three times daily.

Milk or cream brings out the delightful nut-like taste of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. And with milk or cream, important vitamins are furnished. ALL-BRAN is equally tempting with fruits or honey. Sprinkle it over other cereals.

Use it in cooking—for making delicious bran muffins, breads, in omelets, etc. ALL-BRAN also has iron, the builder of good, rich, red blood. At all grocers in the Kellogg's red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario. The original All-Bran.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Fashionably Speaking
By Lucille

Dear Reader:

Paton has frowned upon the little hat of the past few years and insisted upon the sailor hat and the sailor type, which he has made a distinct failure of his premier collection for 1931.

The ten gown, too, has passed through the doorway labelled "Depends" leaving in its place the "first state gown." In this case, the mistress of the house, to accentuate the "home" atmosphere and informality of her party, wears such a gown ranging from the rather formal evening dress to the new pajama, depending on the degree of informality of the gathering.

Let Monsieur Patou tell you in his own words about the colors he has shosen this year. "For this spring," he says, "I've given Opaline Yellow and Opaline green," which, like their predecessor of last summer "Rose," have been copied from the old opaline shades, worn by our great grandmothers, and of which I am a collector. The green will suit blondes and auburns, the yellow brunettes and some ladies with copper-colored hair."

Both are fashionable,and when many houses are wavering between the black of the navy Blue sensation, he states definitely, "Black will continue to play an important part in the scheme of things this spring and all the colors of the rainbow will be used to enrich and adorn our beautiful women."

Correct Manners

HONOR THE SLIGHTEST WISH OF THE BRIDE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have a little niece who is going to be married in a few months. Her mother died last year. Her father is a minister. She wants to have a church wedding and wear her mother's veil. She wants her father to marry her, and wants my husband to give her away. My husband does not want to wear a dress suit. Would it be proper for him to wear a navy blue suit?

She has no other relatives living near. She has four brothers and one sister, but I believe only one brother will be present at her wedding, as the other brothers are not home in the summer. Her sister may not be able to be present at her wedding either.

She wants me to take her mother's place as much as I can. We have always loved the little girl, and would like to do my best, and do things right. We would rather she had a quiet (good) little wedding instead of a lot of fuss, and a formal wedding which she insists on having. Would it be all right for my husband to refuse to give her away as he does not want to wear a dress suit.

S.

This little niece's love for you and your husband, and her devotion to you both are most appealingly expressed in her wishing to have you both the male "attendants" in her wedding. I am sure that you are both very much touched, and that you will both go everything in your power to carry out every wish that she has about her wedding, during the time as you can. This great day is the Bride's Day, you know, and we should all make her feel that her slightest wish must be honored.

If she insists on having her wedding a formal one, and it does not make too much trouble for anyone else, do, I beg you, try to make this wish of hers come true. I know she is wanting to wear her mother's wedding dress—think of the lovely thoughts that she has had in making this sacred plan. And think of how sacred a thing this will be for the father, as well.

Please, please don't let your husband "refuse" to present this girl in marriage. She has given him the greatest honor that she can give him, and nothing should stand in the way of accepting this honor. After all, wearing a dinner jacket isn't very much to do if it will mean such great happiness to see this dear niece of yours. If the wedding could be in the day time, perhaps a gutaway could be stretched, and your husband could wear the dark blue business suit. Consult with your niece about this, and see if this will be all right with her. It would be very considerate if he wore this informal business suit in the evening, but, if the wedding is a day one, perhaps the formality of the attire would not be so conspicuous. The point is to have him at the wedding to present her in marriage.

Blessings on you all—this is going to be a lovely and happy wedding. I am sure, and I wish that I were to be there to give my blessings in person!

THE BRIDE'S GIFTS TO HER ATTENDANTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1 I am having a church wedding and reception afterward. Is it my father's place to have cars to take the guests to the reception, or is it up to the guests to get over the best way they can?

2 What is the correct time to give the bridesmaids and ushers their gifts?

3 Who pays for the use of the church?

Reader.

1. The guests supply their own conveyance to take them from the church to the place in which the reception is to be held.

2. At any time before the wedding. If the bride gives a party to her attendants, usually a luncheon, she gives the gifts to them at that time, and the groom gives gifts to his attendants at his bachelor dinner. If no parties of this kind are given, the gifts may be given at any time.

3 The parents of the bride, who are the hosts of the occasion, pay for the use of the church, as they pay for all other expenses connected with the wedding, except the few which are the obligations of the groom.

CANADIAN WOMEN THANKED FOR GIFT

London, April 6—In behalf of the women of Canada, Mrs. G. H. Ferguson, the wife of the Canadian High Commissioner in London, presented to the Countess of Willingdon yesterday at Canada House a tangible token of the generous donations in which the wife of the retiring Governor-General was held throughout the Dominion.

No chatelaine as Government House in Ottawa has been more popular than Lady Willingdon and her department, the Lending for India occasioned universal regret.

The presentation consisted of a set of "Earrings each comprising forty-four diamonds and one emerald as well as a hand moulded platinum ring with a large Oriental pearl, framed of solid gold and simply inscribed with the words "Presented to Her Excellency, Lady Willingdon, from the Women of Canada, 1931."

The collection of donations for this gift was undertaken in Canada by a small and representative committee under the aegis of Miss Mildred Bentley, the sister of the late Sir Robert. The response was immediate and widespread and the sum of over ten thousand dollars was contributed.

A competition resulted in the appointment for the making of the jewellery of a leading firm in Toronto.

The balance of the sum contributed is being handed over by the Countess of Willingdon to the Victorian Order of Nurses, in the names of which she displayed a keen and consistent interest.

FAREWELL, EASTER EGGS

The decree has gone forth. No more egg-rolling on the velvet lawns of the White House at Washington. For more years than most people care to remember this diverting pastime has been the inalienable privilege of the little folk of Washington, D.C. Each Easter Monday they have been given right-of-way to roll their coloured eggs upon the lawns, and each Easter Monday there have been assembled thousands to watch them and to cheer. It was something to which the children looked forward with intense eagerness and pleasurable anticipation every Spring. But fear of infection —unreasonably from the colouring on the eggs—has prompted the President's wife to decree folk-dancing and music instead. Well, folk-dancing is all very well, and the Marine Band is one of the world's best; but it is greatly to be feared that many a childish lip will grow tremulous, eyes and the lure of mushy motor strains, at the thought of last year Easter—and those delectable eggs.—Montreal Star.

BROWNS NEVER WON BUNTING

Little Hopes Held for St. Louis Team This Year

New York, April 7—The St. Louis Browns are the only major league team which never has won a league championship and there is no reason to believe they will break that record this season, although they stand a good chance of improving last season's sixth place performance.

Weak hitting and a general pitching collapse handicapped the Browns in 1930. That year they ran reasonably sure to get better hitting and more consistent pitching.

Manager Bill Killifer has called upon more than half of the Washington Falls Texas League team, a Browns' farm, in an effort to bolster the club.

Kress Back in Form

Three weeks ago it seemed that the entire Washington Falls infield would start the season as Browns' regulars. Since that time however, Gordon Rollo, regular second baseman, and Ralph Kress, shortstop, have been moved to third, have played ball of a certain to keep last in the Dog-up.

As a result the Browns are expected to start with Irving Burns, Wichita Falls recruit, at first base; as second, Gentry, another Wichita product at short; and Kress on third. Lin Woods second baseman man will be retained for relief duty.

This is a harder infield than ever field that the one of last year. Burns hit .366 in the Texas League last season and Kress, recovering from physical ailments, is a highly improved batter. Burns played both baseball and football for the Quantico Marines.

Bettencourt Returns

Larry Bettencourt, another Wichita Falls graduate, Goose Goslin and Fred Schulte will make up the regular outfield. Bettencourt, former all-American football center at St. Mary's burned up the Texas League last year, batting at will pitchers to run driven in, blasting 43 home runs and hitting for more than 100 extra bases.

Goslin is a American League batting champion, while Schulte, a fine fielder has .278 last season.

Tom Jenkins, a .345 hitter in the American Association last year, and Earl McNeely, former Washington star will understudy the regulars.

Walter Stewart, who won 20 games last year; Sam Gray, Bleshedder, Coffman and Collins, form the regular pitching staff. Chad Kimsey, Stiles, and Gallagher complete the staff.

Gray In Better Health

Gray, in bad health last year, won only four games and is certain to do better this year.

Rick Ferrell, brother of Cleveland's Wes Ferrell, will handle most of the catching. He is the only member of the 1930 staff retained and will be assisted by Rue Young, 1930 Milwaukee star, and Jack Crouch, Texas Leaguer. Both men hit better than .300 in the minors.

Soaks Right In And Limbers Up

STIFF JOINTS

New Discovery Limbers 'Em Up and Even the Creaking Ceases

Just rub on Joint-Ease if you want to know what real comfort is. It's for stiff, swollen, creaky or pain-tortured joints whether caused by rheumatism or not.

A few seconds' rubbing and it soaks right in through skin and flesh right down to ligament and bone—right where all the trouble starts.

It oils up and limbers up the joints, subdues the inflammation, stops the pain, and reduces the swelling. Joint-Ease is the one great remedy for all joint troubles and live druggists are dispensing it daily. Made in Canada—lube for the joints.

And remember when Joint-Ease gets in joint agony gets out—Quick.

LLOYD'S "EAST LYNNE" SUPERB HUMAN DRAMA

If the Belle Theatre yesterday and today establishes a new record for attendance it will be because Frank Lloyd's Fox Movietone production of "East Lynne" not only represents the fulfillment of the management's promise, but because the star, Ann Harding, assisted by Clive Brook, Conrad Nagel, Beryl Mercer, Cecilia Loftus and other notable players, gives the finest portrayal of a great theatre classic.

There is absolutely no doubting the fact that Ann Harding in "East Lynne" attains the highest mark reached by any emotional actress, by her characterization of Isabel.

Certainly "East Lynne" of the Movietone era is one of the most gripping entertainments the cinema has presented, and not only does it furnishes entertainment that, while making its strongest appeal to feminine interests, can not help but be undivided, the attention of every type of movie fan.

Rare Entertainment Qualities

The Fox production of "East Lynne" differs in many ways from other adaptations. Each scene seems to be exercised far greater analysis with regard to character qualities and entertainment value. The story has been altered so that the richest possessions of the original novel are used to maximum advantage.

The production of such a brilliant galaxy of popular stars as Ann Harding, Clive Brook and Conrad Nagel in a single picture is in itself an event that stamps the vehicle as one of exceptional merit.

Noteworthy portrayals are also contributed by Beryl Mercer as Joyce the maid, and Cecilia Loftus as Her Pea Pitt debut as Carlyle's spinster sister, Cornelia. Others in the cast deserving mention are Clara Heggie, David Torrence and Flora Sheffield.

Frank Lloyd, who has won two medals for directing, is certain to merit his third award with "East Lynne." It is his finest accomplishment. The adaptation from Mrs. Woods' story is by Bradley King and Tom Barry. The famous Joseph Urban created the magnificent settings.

Put "East Lynne" down as the season's most powerful drama, one that will grip everybody—a picture that is the new screen at its very best.

"East Lynne" is receiving its final showings at the Belle Theatre tonight. Three good features are also being exhibited on the same program.

Painful Piles

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves

It takes only one bottle of Dr. J. S. McKeown's Pile Remedy—HEMROID—to end itching, bleeding, protruding piles. This internal remedy acts quickly and gives lasting relief in most cases. HEMROID succeeds because it tones the parts, relieves the congestion and removes blood congestion in the pile area. Surgical operation is not necessary as internal medicine can do this. That is why salves and cutting fail.

J. S. McKeown's Drug Store says that you will get relief to end your Pile misery or money back.

ONTARIO CATCHER JOINS PHILLIES

PHILADELPHIA, April 7.—Geo. Milner, 19-year-old catcher from Kingsville, Ont., joined the Philadelphia Athletics today. He is a protege of Cy Cobb who watched him in the Detroit games last summer and tipped him off to Connie Mack. Milner got into practice before the Phillies-A's game today and will be given a thorough trial. As the A's are well equipped with catchers, Milner probably will be farmed out for seasoning.

LEW MASSEY WINS

Philadelphia, Pa., April 7 — Lew Massey, Philadelphia Italian, won the decision over Ray Miller, husky Chicago lightweight, in the 10-round main event at the Arena tonight. Massey weighed 136, Miller 132.

GRAHAM KAYOES FARR

Columbus, Ohio, April 7.—Bushy Graham 126, Utica, N. Y., knocked out Johnny Farr 126, Cleveland, in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round bout here tonight. Jack Dempsey refereed.

COAST BOXER WINS

Newark, N.J., April 7.—Frankie Stetson, 140, San Francisco, opened his eastern invasion tonight by defeating Tony Lambert, 139, Newark, in a scheduled ten-round decision bout at the Laurel Garden. Stetson's infighting completely baffled Lambert.

McKeown's DRUG STORE

On the Sport Trail

It is not long between now and the 24th of May. Doubt has existed as to the operation of the Central Ontario Baseball League this summer but from all accounts the league will flourish and some real ball played. There is still some missionary work to be done and an important announcement will likely come towards the end of the week. Peterboro will likely have a team in the league and Belleville is almost certain to start and if they do they will be looking for medicine for any team in the loop. Walter Gerow has his eating out to get a good team and with the old guard back on the job, they will be tough to take in the senior series. No doubt a meeting of the C.O.B.L. will be held in the near future and then will start the season's operations. It would be a shame after the success that baseball has enjoyed in other parts of the province to allow this league to pass out of existence.

The hockey season is just around the corner. Although the season has just been concluded plans are being laid for a bigger and better season next year. There is consideration went to be done and if it can only be accomplished by the wholehearted cooperation of every citizen. It is about time that Belleville was entering the feared class as regards their hockey team and next year should be the one with such a strong contender at the head of affairs. Stewart Pender, Bill Rankin and Harold Logan are entitled to all the first water bouquets having had leadership and the team that will be capably handled both on and off the ice. An effort will be made to interest every lover of junior ice to play hockey next winter, a league being formed from different sections of the city and from this material some fast teams will be graduated to the Junior O.H.A. squad. It is proposed to have a senior and junior team in the city next year. Players will be drawn and sought from the O.H.A. or if Queens comes in, they will be requested to play with the home team before leaving for the Christmas holidays.

The Belleville Fair Board have signified their intention to stage a harness meet on June 3rd this year and it is expected that one of the best will be held. Extensive improvements are contemplated on the track, the Parks Board endeavoring to put it in first class shape. There will be no dearth of horses as many of the Ontario horsemen are contemplating racing in Quinte this year and their meets open short by after the holiday here. There will be three races as in other years with no reduction in the purses. The local colony of horse men have nothing to race as early as they will be heard of before the season is closed.

One week from today the call of the umpire will be heard in eight American cities, the big leagues getting under way on that date. Most of the major clubs have concluded their training trips and in the southland and are gradually working north by easy stages playing exhibition games enroute. Who will win the American and National league flags is a mooted question and many arguments will be heard for this and that team. It looks as if the Athletics world's champions and Cubs will repeat in the American with Cleveland and Washington supplying the opposition and the Yankees in the swim if their pitchers round to. In the National many clubs have strengthened but Cubby Street and his Cardinals look to be the best bet with Chicago and Brooklyn right in the hunt till the last out is registered. There may be surprise but generally the team with the class comes through in the final analysis and the three mentioned clubs have class and will out over. It will be a merry race in both leagues.

In an exhibition game the Athletics took three points to Ananas one. In the afternoon Ananas bowlers were Mrs. Thomas for Annas and Mrs. Madden for Athletics. Features were Mrs. Thomas' 344 and Mrs. Madden's 312.

RISKO DEFEATS ANZAC BOXER

Toronto Crowd Not Pleased with Heavies Exhibition

Toronto, April 7—After waiting almost four years to avenge a defeat handed to Dietrich in 1927, Johnny Risko, the Baker Boy from Cleveland eventually matters with Tom Berry, the Hard Rock from Down Under at the Arena Gardens last evening, when he obtained the unanimous decision of the three judges. To the majority of local fans, who had been seated with a steady diet of flyweights, bantams, feathers and lightweights with an occasional clash between welters, the bout was not nearly as interesting as anticipated, but as far as battles between heavyweights of the average school go it was a tough affair, and Risko won by a strong finish over the last half of the route.

At times the crowd vented their disapproval at the style of action that was provided for them, but they forgot most of their disappointment in the last two rounds, when Risko apparently decided his respect for Heeney and made use of a flashing attack with both hands to the face that forced Heeney to break round. There were no knockdowns and as no time did either principal look to be in trouble. The pair were of a similar build and Heeney's reach was fought at close quarters, where the advantages at a distance did not get much chance to see the action.

Risko was content to be rather cautious and he did a lot of holding, being warned by Referee Jack Sharkey on more than one occasion the third man in the ring informed the Anzac that he would not stand him $100. This threat, along with the warnings that Heeney was also likely to hurt him, caused Risko to open up towards the last half of the bout he was much more aggressive than in the first half.

Close Quarters All the Way

The pair showed no desire to battle at long range, and for most of the time kept busy breaking them, although the Anzac's holding as much as it looked from a distance. Both crowded in, covered up and worked for each other to open up his guard a little, slightly more than half the bouts was action until they fell into another clinch.

Heeney fought from an upright stance, somewhat similar to the pictures of Jack Dempsey, while Risko hovered over his opponent's body with his fore-arms for his crowded attack. The New Zealander confined his punches to short-arm jolts and jabs, occasionally swinging to the body, but the crouch enabled Heeney to keep his head outside the range of Heeney's punches most of the time.

Neither man was marked as result of their thirty minutes of pounding, grappling and crowding one another but towards the end Risko punished Heeney quite heavily about the body. The latter was forced to back up by the strength of the younger and lighter man's attack. At times Risko let go with a looping left to the head that appeared awkward but at the same time it was discovered that it appeared to throw his shoulder behind the punch but it was not a damaging punch.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma started to bite on the other end of her pencil trying to think what to write in her diary, so I says, My goodness such an uneventful day, not a thing has happened to me worth putting down in permanent form.

I've had rather an eventful day, my self, pop sed. This morning, for instants a man came to Carters house into the office and payed me back 5 dollers that I had said the week or 2 years ago when I said goodby to Sanders. I was in hopes that he had to go down in history, pop sed.

But not in my history ma sed. If it had happened to me it would be a different thing, and it couldn't happen to me anyway because I dont bleeve Id ever lend anybody 5 dollers in a thousand way, not because I dont trust people but because I dont care to take a chance, she sed. I never could think of something for my diary. My mind becomes a total blank when I try to cast it back over the days events, she sed.

I can tell you something intristing that happened to me today, ma, I sed. This afternoon in school we all had to draw some kind of frost out of imagination picture from memory, and I drew apple and the techer sed it was one of the best drawings of a apple she ever saw and I got a pencil for a prize, when I got home a intristing event I sed.

I happen to be keeping my own diary, not yours, ma sed. What happens to other people is another horse of a different color and I wish you would be extremely grateful for a 3rth of silence so I can concentrate and try to recall something, she sed.

And she started to put her even harder, pop saying I had a marvelous clean of liver and onions for lunch but naturally that hasent the same significance for you as it has for me, and ma sed, I know what lit Id and that will be something anyway. Id write down, Owing to constant interruptions I was unable to think of any entry for my diary today.

Wich she did.

REDUCED FREIGHT RATES

The Hon. Robt. Weir, Federal Minister of Agriculture, has announced an arrangement concluded with the Canadian Pacific Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railways under the terms of which farmers in the Province of Provinces buying feeder cattle direct from producers in the area are given a special reduction of 50 per cent. in the normal freight rate between the shipping and receiving point on such cattle. This special concession is only to cattle bought for bona fide feeding purposes and not to finished fed cattle shipped to the stockyard or market. Full information can be obtained on application to the nearest railway agent.

CHILDREN ARE ROTARY GUESTS

Kiddies Present Pleasing Program and Attend Circus

Yesterday was indeed a gala day at the Rotary Club. Scores of kiddies were guests of the service club at the annual "Children's Day" and they certainly enjoyed themselves. There was no speech-making or not care for speeches—but there was a splendid entertainment programme presented by the children themselves, and then they were all entertained by attending the matinee at the Belle Theatre.

Rotarians usually have their lunch on a private floor, but yesterday all stairs in the Quinte Hotel, but with the additional young guests, the boys and girls, the large dining room on the main floor was filled to over flowing.

During the luncheon, favors were distributed to all children. These favors were kindly supplied by Charles Hall, druggist, and Leon Walmsley, wholesaler, both prominent Rotarians. Past President "Al" Stillman was chairman for the luncheon and Fred Hunter, chairman of Boys' Work and secretary of the Y.M.C.A. here, was chairman of the meeting. Entertainment was presented during the luncheon hour:

Vocal Solo, Stanley Stillman, young son of "Al" Stillman; Piano Solo, Jimmy Burt; Vocal Solo, Jack Groves; Violin Solo by Bill Harvey, young son of the chairman of the Board of Education, accompanied by Stanley Burt; Vocal Solo by John Clarke. Dance by two talented young people, Margaret Mitchell, Mary Yoe Thomson and Barbara Parker, accompanied by Miss Doris; Vocal Solo, Spencer Mitchell, accompanied by pupils of the Ontario School for the Blind. Mr. Petterjey led the luncheon with Mr. Petterjey; Vocal Solo, Spencer Mitchell.

The famous "Pirate Song" was contributed by Mr. and Mrs. Petterjey and Mr. Gerald Scott sang the "Children's Prayer" and "Lullaby" and entire gathering. "Sandy" Burrows was song leader and Leo Riggs pianist.

MANY ATTENDED RAILWAY PARTY EASTER MONDAY

George Wade and His Cornhuskers Were at Johnstone's

With the Lenten season over, the younger set flocked to the places of amusement to relieve their pent-up enthusiasm and many delightful post-Lenten season functions were staged last night.

The rendezvous for the largest number was the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers' frolic held in Johnstone's Academy. The magnet which drew the large crowd was the presence of George Wade and his Cornhuskers from Toronto, who are heard weekly over Station CFCO in Toronto in old time numbers and square dance tunes, the calling for the sets being done by George Wade, the leader of the orchestra.

Those who attended and there were over five hundred present, were not disappointed and very much in favor the hall when the strains of the National Anthem brought the delighted evening to a close. At intermission, Mr. Wade and his artists gave an entertainment, that has justifiably fame over the breadth of Canada and they will be welcomed back at any future occasion. George Urquhart be of the ninety fingers, played a number of old time tunes on his banjo, and delighted songs and solos. Individual little children giving a recitation. George Wade played harmonica, as he called over the radio and expressed his pleasure in being in Belleville. The party enjoyed the numerous square dances played and by Wade in a clear, distinct manner "calling". The many sets swayed to the time music in perfect unison, when it came to the "hoe down" an elderly young man of eighty-nine and three years was a liveliest man on the floor. The younger set of the city also enjoyed themselves as the dancers and were soon in the centre of activity.

Only old-fashioned tunes were played for the greater part of the evening and the fox trots were even more beautifully executed than in the time of the more popular airs of the day. The committee consisting of Messrs. Cooper, chairman; C. L. Ackerman, secretary-treasurer; Percy Kerr, A. H. Foster, Harry Reeves, George Hannan, Percy McTaggart, A. W. Jordan, W. Weese, H. Smith, W. J. Hamilton and W. Purvis are to be congratulated on the success of their functions. The hall was prettily decorated for the occasion and a dainty luncheon was served at the midnight hour. Dancing was concluded at two o'clock.

JILTED

By Margaret Widdemer

Nina answered him in the same light key, and the evening ended in a pleasanter note. Nina had said all she had to say, and was her most amusing self till the end; which Helen made as soon as possible. There was nothing out of the way in the farewells. Ethan was silent after the door had closed behind them. Silently he put Helen in the car. It was not for full five minutes after they were alone that he spoke —urgently, angrily.

"Helen promise me to have no more to do with the boy."

"Ethan, I can't quite promise that. I'm the only person he has to turn to for sympathy or help. And if what it's like myself to feel that nobody has sympathy or belief for you. Ronny needs that in me."

"And he's not in love with you."

Nina's virtue had worked.

"Oh, Ethan, no!"

"You haven't any way of knowing that," he said curtly.

Helen couldn't betray Doris and Ronny. She was silent. After a few moments Ethan spoke, with an obvious effort at control.

"Look here, darling. You say he needs belief and sympathy and help. If you'll leave the boy alone—and him over to me when he's in one of his scrapes next time—I promise to take over the charge of him. A man a little older than he is can do a lot more with him than a girl. I promise to be everything that is kind and understanding to him."

It seemed a simple promise to make. Helen felt a distinct relief, indeed.

"I promise," she said, smiling a little. "It's not treat to me, Ethan, except that I am fond of him. I've lived in the house with him on and off for a long time, and I can remember him a bottom little boy of seven when I was sixteen and Nina was brought home to visit mother."

"You can remember me as a forlorn little boy of seven," said Ethan an more lightly. "Mother and Martella are always giving you data—I've heard them. And trust me to handle young Ridgmon."

He kissed her, and they laughed about it, and the problem passed over. Helen felt a burden drop with a light heart, fiercely, after so many years of taking care of people who was entitled to be taken care of a little herself.

She was beginning to learn to know Ethan better, and in the next days she discovered even more than the man she had married she knew. But he was very different.

The steadiness, almost coolness of manner, was there in the case, the real Ethan. As he had told her once, it was simply a method of managing a very headstrong and emotional temperament. Under the control there was a too great intensity of feeling—a tendency to clash to extremes and take things too hard, which he had in check only by his ability to laugh at himself, and his knowledge of the necessity of control.

And so the happy days went on. It was nearly decided now that Helen and Ethan would be married in the spring.

In the middle of this a letter came from Helen's sister Jessica. Jessica had planned to come up for the wedding, but was now in distress about that it seemed she'd got mixed up about the baby—it was coming two months earlier than she'd thought—it was like Jessica even to be inaccurate about that!! And wouldn't Helen come down and stay with her? She was all alone, and so frightened. She thought it would be only fair, as she wouldn't be able to come to the wedding after all.

Helen went to Mrs. Kingsway about it.

"I know there's Patricia," she said, "but it wouldn't be only a week—two weeks' vacation for her. And I can be sewing while I'm down with Jessica."

"Oh, course, no, child," Mrs. Kingsway told her. "We'll all miss you horribly. But I can see that Ethan will have to go on lending you to people in trouble all his life and he might as well begin learning now. Only—the kindly red-brown eyes lost their gloom for a moment and became wise—" your little sister will have to learn sometime that you can't depend on you all her life."

"But this isn't the time," Helen said ardently, "she's so little and so scared—I can just see how she looks, and when she wrote—and I've always mothered her."

"Oh, my dear, I didn't mean to suggest that you shouldn't go. You must. As for the sewing, leave that to me."

Helen demurred at that.

But backed up by Mrs. Kingsway and Ethan's own sense of fairness, Helen made arrangements to go to Jessica with very little protest. Jessica's husband but Patricia, who was frankly unwilling for Helen to feel affection or care for anybody outside the Kingsway family, and said so.

"I'll have run completely wild by the time you get back," she predicted.

"No, you won't," Ethan put in, "I shall put in all the time missing you. I'd otherwise spend missing Helen!" She thought this over for a little while, and then suggested going down to Bellaire with Helen herself—which was also vetoed.

Nina was left as a matter of course. They stood on the little platform waiting for the train. It had been silent a moment, looking down on her as she stood, slim and graceful and greenish in the same tailored coat Jessica had sent her so many months ago. She was counting over the things she was to take Jessica.

"Do you think I ought to have remembered a pretty nightie?" she asked him earnestly. "Jessica loved them so, and I know she won't have spared enough money to buy a new one. And she'll be so unhappy if she hasn't any."

He looked at her, as she stood, innocent and unconscious, her whole mind on what her sister would want her to bring, and a fierce pang of tenderness for her—only remember that I'll duplicate every pretty thing you give anybody else as soon as we're married!"

She laughed. "Why, Ethan, you set me as if I were going forever! I'll be back in a fortnight."

"Not as if it were forever!"

"So do I," she said softly.

There was a click of brisk footsteps behind them.

"Oh, Helen, I'm in time to say good bye," said Nina. "I'm so sorry—and here are some things of mine for Jessica. She'll like them, and it reminds me now and again. Give her my love."

The train was coming; Helen just had time to take the small parcel Nina, and turn to go. Nina spoke again, scarcely heard in the noise of the train.

"By the way, I heard some gossip. It seems Tommy Delamater has settled in Wisconsin for good after all. He's coming back to marry Lesley."

Lester met her at the station—thin, anxious, bright eyed Lester, carefully groomed that you didn't notice for a minute that his overcoat was rubbed at the cuffs' edges and seams, and his perfectly polished shoes had been twice resoled.

"Gosh, I'm glad to see you," he said, shaking hands with her. His hand was hot through its glove. Helen looked at him with a little pity. Lester was taking things hard. Money worries, probably.

"You've been keeping too much. I can see, Jessica's such a baby, you haven't half enough help at this time over with. After supper we'll put her to bed and I'll take you home, and everything, and it won't seem bad a bit."

Lester, signaling to a street-car did not seem to hear. Behind once they were out of the dull chilliness of the day, nestled between two well-set men on the street-car. He answered her with gratitude, his black bright eyes intense in his thin face.

"If I can't talk to somebody pretty soon I think I'll go nuts," he said. "I just been milling round and round."

Confidences were difficult in mass through the din of the street-car, so she only nodded and smiled sympathetically.

The tiny new apartment in a newly new apartment house was high up. Three flights. When you got there, of course, there was a good deal of Spanishness, not much else. The bare, orientalness simplicities of the jerry-builder who knows how to trump brides. The living room, with its alcoves that were everything in the world one needed—very inadequately—locked spacious till you found it was practically all there was of the apartment. The year-old furniture had been wonderful for the price but one its essential shabbiness gave the lie to an effect of Colonial mahogany. There was a gaspipe radio, an elaborate phonograph, and a pathetic upper where evidently big bed-a-brac grand. Indeed ,its setting in that room became the rough cast wall.

Helen had scarcely time to take this in when Jessica heard her, and flew out of the ornate door—of her box-like bedroom, to throw herself in her sister's arms, crying and laugh ing hysterically.

"Oh,Nell, I thought you'd never come! I thought you'd forgotten all about me!"

Helen lifted Jessica's round brown face, with its big liquid eyes, and kissed it, stroking the silky blue-black curls.

"My darling! You know Helen would never forget her own only little sister. I'm going to stay with you as long as ever you want me, and take care of things for you. You haven't a thing to worry over. Now what's the matter especially?"

Helen sat down in her hat and coat, just as she was, on the davenport whose line were much better than its brocaded covering or its material, and pulled her sister down by her. Jessica, nestling close, in the gasping relaxed relief of a lost baby who had stopped crying because its mother comforted her, put her head curls on Helen's breast.

"Oh, everything. I can't manage Sadie. She takes home so much that we don't even have enough to eat. I picked her out because she was just my age, and a bride, too. And I'm afraid to speak to her, for fear she'll be cross. And the horrid installment men keep coming all the time, and they won't give us back what we paid on it and I think Sadie's got the beastly of them, because it's a lot more than it's worth and they have to—and all my clothes and Lester's need mending—and I'm way behind and it makes my head ache, and—"

She began to cry in earnest.

"My, there's nothing really wrong. Don't worry, now." Helen slipped back completely into her attitude of the old days, half laughing, half watchful, wholly motherly.

"And she's impudent because I won't let her have her own way. I can't tell Lester, because I spent the money for last month on something we simply had to have. I thought—"

She looked up at her sister, expectantly, completely relaxed now. Helen waited a little for anything.

Helen tightened her arms around her, and said in a matter-of-fact way.

"I'll straighten it out. I'll go see her." And where do I put my things?"

"Oh, Lester ought to have told you! He will say I'm always so much, though he known I need him ... I suppose he's gone home."

"Child, you didn't make him leave his things at your apartment, just to meet me?" Helen looked down, half amused, half aghast.

"Half the time there's nobody coming to lift you to your feet," Nina's pouting. "Well, never mind. Why there's a closet over there! ETAOI Lester's always got his things in that you'll have to sleep on the davenport. It's the open-out kind. And if you could keep your things, part in the bedroom and part in your suitcase? You won't mind, will you?"

"Why, no, dear, indeed. I don't see where else I could keep them. Here—" Helen cheerfully, getting up and beginning to put away her possessions, and emerging from the closet with a clean face and over her dress."Now go back and finish your bath, and get a bath and be dressed when Lester comes in. I'll look after things."

"Would you mind tidying the bedroom, too?" Jessica begged. "Sadie leaves it so so dreadfully; and she's out marketing now, anyway."

Jessica was happy by now, and flushed with the excitement of having Helen. The things over in Helen established her on the davenport, and went on, flinging open the room's only window to air the beds before she made them. The rest of the room would take time. Tomorrow Jessica would get up early and help. It seemed like old times to be putting Jessica in order! Presently it was 6:00, and Lester and she and the twin beds.

"Come in, darling," she said, and established her young sister on the bed with a cup of tea and a cake and an amazing prettiness which emerged only a little soiled and chapped about the edges, from the room which had been such a tousled, unappetizing place. Jessica had perfect taste. And she was one of those unfortunate people who look pretty at the end of a day and leave a trail of disorder behind them.

Jessica sighed with happiness at the delight of her bedroom.

"Oh, how adorable!" she said. "Only see my new negligee, I'll match it, darling! And the powder. I shook it on among her pillows and began to set herself in order, like a stay-at-home kitten.

Presently, powdered, brushed, dainty in the rose negligee—Helen might have known Sadie would be cross—Jessica curled back on her pillows, and went to sleep peacefully, a warmed and fed Persian pussy-cat.

Helen let her, and after she had rested ten minutes took stock of the situation.

The BEST Gray Hair Remedy is Home Made

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It will gradually darken streaked, faded or gray hair and restore it evenly. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

A BEAR FOR WORK—AND THEN

John was a bear for work, everyone at the office said that. He came down early, was always the first to arrive and the last to leave. He figuratively ate work. He lived it so well he spent himself without regard to consequence and then the inevitable breakdown came.

Don't be a John! Watch your health. It's your most valuable asset. Build up the body resistance now—don't wait for the breakdown. Heed Nature's warning when you feel out of sorts—and by a persistent supplying those needed Vitamins you get BY WAY OF THE New Day Tonic. Take it regularly until you are feeling way up above average. It's the thing to do today. You cannot run the gamut of this age with the same energy of your grandparents. You body requires Vitamins. VITALEX will supply them at a small cost. JOAN CRAWFORD IN GRIPPING ROLE

"Dance Fools, Dance," Story of Chicago Gangsters, Gives Star Great Opportunities

Joan Crawford presents two extremes in her new picture-Gulliver-Mayer talkie, "Dance Fools, Dance," which will be the feature attraction at the Belle Theatre tomorrow and Thursday, matinee and night.

In this graphic cross-section of Chicago's underworld, the glamorous star receives both the highest and depths of the social plane, enacting a thrilling, erratic, and gripping role of her career. It is in every sense a fresh triumph for Miss Crawford and reveals her capabilities as a dramatic star more than any other role she has essayed.

Harry Beaumont Directed

Harry Beaumont directed the new Crawford talkie from the story by Aileen Crawford that has for its title by being perhaps the most fascinating motif of all the gangster plots yet to reach the public.

Lester Vail, a reporter, plays opposite Joan with charm and a splendid appreciation of his role. Rosco Bakewell is cast as Joan's brother whose life a tragic sacrifice, and Clark Gable is the master mind, chieftain. Cliff Edwards lays aside his ukulele to specialize in a few straight dramatic part. Others in the cast who offer splendid performances are William Holden, Earl Foxe, Purnell B. Pratt, Cissy Hamilton, Natalie Moorhead, Joan Marsh and Russell Hopton.

The whoopee scenes that open the picture dazzle the audience and send up with a daring midnight swimming orgy reminiscent of Joan's earlier dancing-daughter role.

"Love Fever," a highly amusing talkie comedy, and Pathe Sound News with its gist of important happening garnered the world over, and "Hamburger and Horse Radish," a clever Novelette, will be exhibited as similar organ concert will be presented matinee and evening, with Mr. John Denmark at the console.

sore throat

Relieve that sore and aching throat by rubbing the outside throat with BAUME BENGUE (pronounced Bo-Jay) and swallow a little.

The penetrating quality of Ben-Gay brings quick relief by stimulating a flow of fresh blood to the congested parts, relieving soreness pain, soothes irritated nerves and reduces congestion. Use "Ben-Gay" for chest colds, rheumatism, sciatica, lame back and everypainful nerve and muscle.

Externally or Internally, it is Good.—When applied externally by brisk rubbing, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil opens the pores and penetrates the tissue, touching the seat of the trouble and immediately relieving pain. Taken internally, it is a tonic, it will still the irritation in the throat which induces coughing and still relieves affections of the bronchial tubes and respiratory organs. Try it and be convinced.

GIVES HIS BLOOD
FOR 98th TIME

Buffalo, N.Y.—Joseph W. Lynch, 38 years old, was the sixty nearer his goal, the hundredth gift of his blood in seventeen years to save the life of another.

Mr. Lynch submitted to his ninety-eighth blood transfusion to save the life of a friend, William J. Culley, who is seriously ill. The transfusion was to have been made a week ago, but Mr. Lynch was injured in an accident and laid up in the hospital in which his friend lay ill. Mr. Lynch wanted to be present with the transfusion, but physicians refused because of his injuries.

STORE STAFF ENJOY PARTY

Easter Church "Thank Offering" was Well Attended

Picton, April 4 (By Mail)—Three young men, Donald Dalrard, Streeter Trumble and R. Vannott will appear before Magistrate A. E. Calnan on Thursday, April 9, charged with a serious offense against a young girl under 18 years of age. They were granted bail. Dalrard is a married man with one child.

It has been learned that Constable Morley Durnford, of Toronto, will be the new officer here. Provincial Constable W. Chisholm goes from here to headquarters at Toronto.

On Thursday evening members of the local C. D. S. staff and their friends, numbering around fifty, enjoyed a bary tyme party at Woodville hall. Music for dancing was furnished by Cooper's orchestra. Refreshments were served.

Mr. A. M. Platt was in Toronto this week.

Miss Freda Healey, of Notre Dame Ocuvent, Kingston, is spending Easter holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Healey.

Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Wilkins, who recently came from Toronto, are settling in their new home on Lake street.

The Easter Trank Offering An Home of the W. M. S. of Picton United Church was well attended. Mrs. F. M Wootton, in her inimitable manner, told the Easter story. Mrs. Clare Bowen sang sweetly, "Easter Bells," accompanied by Mrs. Roberts. A duet by Misses Bowen Easter service was given. Rev. F. M. Wootton very kindly showed lantern slides depicting the Resurrection. A social time was spent and refreshments were served.

Miss Jean Kelly, of Peterboro Normal School is with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kelly for the holidays.

Mr and Mrs. Clifford Colliver, Mrs. H. S. Colliver and Mrs P. Rodd motored to Detroit this week-end and are spending several days there.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Vanderstine are returning to town after an absence of several weeks at different points.

Miss Ruth Shaver, Kingston, is a guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Shaver.

On Good Friday a service was held at St. Mary Magdaline (Anglican) Church in the morning, and in the evening Stainer's Crucifixion was presented.

At St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church there was an appropriate service in the morning. At the Methodist Church there was a service in the morning. In which church the choir gave a concert under the direction of Mr. Percival Prest, F. C. W. Green. At the Baptist Church there was a service with both morning and evening. At St. Mary's Anglican Church there were masses and other services.

All the services were in keeping with the day and were unusually well attended. Beautiful Easter lilies and other flowers were used in decoration at each of the places of worship.

Holy Communion was celebrated at the Church of St. Mary Magdaline on Thursday morning at ten o'clock

CLAIMS DOYLE SPIRIT LINK

London—Lady Doyle, widow of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, famed occult and spiritualist leader, said she had "one hundred per cent proof" that she recently had been in communication with her husband.

Lady Doyle, who expressed the belief after her husband's death last July that he was speaking to her from earth in order to help those still living, in discussing communication said that "any one can see it is genuine in light of the evidence."

FEAR OF CAMERA TRAPPED SLAYER

Menominee, Mich., April 7—Stricken with fear at the sight of a camera being used to photograph a dove-cote, near which his 35-year-old son, Stanley, was found fatally injured, Frank Cholewa, 50, a few days ago confessed that he killed the boy, Ward Reindl said.

Reindl's investigation followed an inquest into the young man's death. A post-mortem examination had revealed skull fractures, and neighbors had informed the authorities that the Cholewas frequently quarreled.

Without questioning the father, Reindl went about the Cholewa farm, snapping pictures of buildings and implements. Cholewa, puzzled and fearful, followed.

Suddenly, Reindl said, Cholewa confessed he quarrelled with Stanley because of the son's fondness for pigeons and expenditure of money for magazines dealing with their raising. He admitted waiting for his son when the young man climbed into the pigeon loft Sunday and clubbing him over the head, the sheriff said.

DRAPERIES MADE NEW

"When we resumed housekeeping a month ago I found my draperies had become crusted from packing. I hung them out on the line, hoping to remove the creases. Then I forgot them. The result was they became badly faded and sun-spotted.

"I was heartsick until the happy thought struck me to dye them. I just dyed them a deeper green, and as I used Diamond Dyes they look gorgeous and new. I have never seen easier dyes to use than Diamond Dyes. They give the most beautiful colors—when used either for tinting or dyeing—and never take the life out of cloth as other dyes do."

MILLIONTH CANADIAN FORD COMING

ONE-MILLIONTH FORD CAR MADE IN CANADA WILL BE DISPLAYED IN BELLEVILLE THURSDAY

The one-millionth Ford car made in Canada is to be displayed in Belleville next Thursday according to announcement today by S. A. Conklin, of Conklin-Hepburn Motors, Ltd., Ford Dealers.

The historic car will stop here for a short time before continuing a tour of eastern Canadian cities and will be exhibited for a short time at the salesrooms of the local Ford Dealers. The millionth car is a new sedan finished in maroon.

During its stay here a number of prominent citizens will be given rides in the car, which also will head a parade about the city of a number of Ford models from the local showrooms. The route of the parade will be up Front, down Pinnacle, up Victoria, down Bridge and Coleman. The cars in the parade will include Town Sedan, Victoria Coupe, Deluxe Tudor, Deluxe Roadster and other models, including trucks.

The completion of the one-millionth Ford car made in Canada was made the occasion of a celebration at the plant of the Ford Motor Company, Limited, at East Windsor, Wallace R. Campbell, president, sawed the last hammer and punch, stamped the serial number "CA-1,000,000" into the engine block and then drove to the completed car off the final assembly line.

In announcing the coming visit of the car Mr. S. A. Conklin said that the manufacture of 1,000,000 Ford cars in Canada had been of tremendous benefit to the economic life of the Dominion.

"The Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, which has been in business in Canada for 27 years, spent in Canada during the last ten years a sum aggregating almost $300,000,000," he said. "Of this huge total, $65,000,000 was paid out in payrolls to our thousands of workers.

"Another $170,000,000 we spent in the purchase of materials and services going into the manufacture of the Ford car in Canada. This amount furnished employment to other thousands of workers in many industries. The company also paid in the last ten years to the government a total of $40,000,000.

"In addition, the manufacture by the company of Fords for sale in the British overseas Dominions brought new wealth into the country. This trade last year resulted in expenditures in Canada of more than $4,000,000, including $3,200,000 for salaries and wages, $4,175,000 for materials, $200,000 for taxes, $700,000 for freight and $600,000 for ocean freight."

SALVATION ARMY EASTER PAGEANT WAS A SUCCESS

Characters Excelled in Presentation at the Citadel

Last night the Salvation Army Citadel was filled, people coming from all parts of the City to see the Easter Pageant "From the Gates of His Garden' which was presented by the young people, of the Belleville Corps under the direction of Mrs. Ensign Howlett.

The young people did splendidly, it would be very hard to single any one character out. But we could mention the two main speakers Miss Mary McCoy (Faith) and Mrs. J. Johnson (Easter). The singing between the speaking parts was well rendered. Miss Dorothy Mitchell, pianist, surely excelled last night in accompanying the singing. There were eighteen characters and a group of small children in the Pageant. The comment from the congregation after the pageant was very encouraging.

They Relieved A Pain She Had Had For Years

Saskatchewan Lady Used Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mrs. F. Mountney Recommends Them to Other Sufferers

Rosanville, Sask, April 6 (Special) "I suffered for years with a pain in my side," writes Mrs. F. Mountney, a resident of this place. "I would be awakened in the night with such terrible sensations, I did not know what to do. I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and sure felt a relief; I continued taking them whenever I felt the burning feeling start and now I am free from pain I keep them in the house all the time and have recommended them to other sufferers on many occasions."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely and simply a kidney remedy. They act directly on the kidneys, strengthening them and putting them in condition to do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills have been in use in Canada for nearly half a century. They demonstrate their worth in the most serious forms of kidney disease, such as rheumatism, backache, bladder and urinal troubles.

Nine countries were represented by cars at the 1931 auto show in Berlin, Germany.

RADIO FANS CORNER .

Hope the reception tonight takes a decided turn for the better because last night's performance was terrible. Fading in and out all evening and that gets tiresome after the first half hour. It was clear enough as far as that goes but the programs didn't stay with us, sort of faded out of the picture all the time.

Stick around the sets tonight fans because at 9.30 Little Jack Little goes on the air as guest artist of the happy Hoosiers' program from WEAF and that means something. Frank Black's singing violins that give one the impression of human voices humming will play a novel arrangement of the popular number of a few years ago, namely "There O'Clock In The Morning" and it will be good.

The C.G.E. hour tonight will feature familiar melodies from the well known light opera "Mayfime" when they come on the air at 9.30 from Cheerio station. You notice the time has been changed from 8 as it has been for the past few weeks. "Jump Jim Crow", "A Windy Day in the Battery" and "Will You Remember" are included in "Mayfime" numbers and many more will be played by the orchestra.

From WEAF at 8 we can tune in on the program of Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit and at 8.30 same station Coon-Sanders orchestra claims our undivided attention for half an hour. B. A. Rolfe takes the air at ten from WEAF and Cab Calloway broadcasts the Cotton Club, Harlem, at 11.45.

Gus Van entertains us from WJZ at 7.15 with songs and dialogue for fifteen minutes and at 8 Paul White man and His Pain Men brush up in on new and old pieces. Landt Trio and White at 8.30 and the Celebrities program at 9. Gene Austin, crooning, at 10.45 and at 11.45 a mandolin soloist, Anton Dounis. WABC offers the Philco Symphony orchestra at 9.30 which is a program all music lovers should tune in on.

Re: Bovine Pasteurization

Dear Sir,—I am in charge of the Mountain Sanatorium and we have a dairy farm which supplies practically all the milk used in the institution. At the present time we have a pasteurized, but our Board felt that we should at least see to it that the milk was free from infection with tuberculin bacilli as at the outset we had a local veterinary test our herd.

At one time we had the hard fight of tubercle bacillus but in making purchases later, my thought was to have looked the picture of health and before we discovered that he was tubercular, he had returned our several other animals. We later purchased another animal with a very fine record but found that she was riddled with tubercle bacillus, and we came to the conclusion that the problem of keeping the herd free of tuberculin was more than we could manage in this way, on account of having to purchase so many cows from time to time.

The accredited herd scheme was then getting under way and we were very glad to have our herd placed under the supervision of the Dominion Government. They soon cleared up the herd but through various things chiefly the latter purchases we lost our certificate for a tuberculosis free herd on three occasions, but we have had no serious outbreak in recent years.

In so far as tuberculosis is concerned, we would not consider going back to the old conditions under any circumstances, not only because of the risk to human beings but also because of the financial returns from the herd.

In regard to the pasteurization of milk, we felt for quite a long time that this was unnecessary for we had the idea that pasteurized milk destroyed the vitamins. This question has been very thoroughly studied and we finally came to the conclusion that practically no destruction of vitamins occurred through proper pasteurization of milk and that any supply lost in this way would be more than made up by use of orange juice for children. Finally two years ago the question of pasteurization and some of the adults developed a fairly acute epidemic of septic sore throat, which after thorough investigation we felt came from the milk. The epidemic was a rather disastrous affair for some of the children had rash which suggested scarlet fever. We had so much trouble and embarrassing outs of the institution and with the extra care of pasteurization we decided that the only proper thing to do was to install a pasteurizing plant and so has protect the milk both by tuberculin testing of cattle and by pasteurization.

This plant has now been installed for a year and we are very sure that we are having less throat infection than the usual number from milk born bacteria than we had in the raw milk.

This will give you a fair summary of our experience and while one year under pasteurization is not sufficient to use as absolute proof of the necessity of pasteurizing herd, we would not be willing after our experience to do without either procedure. We also know that failure to pasteurize milk is responsible for much more trouble outside of institutions than it is within institutions, and if asked to express an opinion as to the ultimate value of tuberculin testing of herds and pasteurization of milk I would say that tuberculin testing of herds is of more value in protecting the farmer from financial loss through tuberculosis in his cattle but that pasteurization of milk is of far greater value in protecting human beings against tuberculosis and also against non-tuberculous acute infections that can be conveyed through milk.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) J. H. Holbrook,

Medical Superintendent.

ZION

ZION, April 4.— A number from this line attended the Pleasant Point Church at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wilson of Halloway on Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Bronsons and daughter of Stirling were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Lloyd on Sun day.

The play at Zion Church, entitled "Prince Chap" put on by the Holloway Street talent on Thursday night was very much enjoyed by all who attended.

Mrs. Mary Sills was taken to the Belleville General Hospital, on Wednesday. Her many friends hope for a speedy recovery.

Several in this neighborhood attended the Holstein Sale at Belleville on Wednesday.

Mrs. Harry Ketcheson has returned to her home after spending a few weeks with friends at Stirling.

One thousand years ago, in England, cattle were largely used as money.

More than one-third of the emigrants from England last year went to countries other than British.

More than half the people in Japan now are engaged in agriculture.

CENTRE W.M.S.

The Centre W.M.S. met on April 1st, at the home of Mrs H. Adams, president. Mrs. M. Pulver, vice president, had charge of the meeting, which opened with the singing of "Crown Him with Many Crowns". The secretary then gave the minutes of the last meeting, and Mrs Audrey Brickman gave a pleasing solo. Mrs. Roy Giles gave a reading, "Our Easter Garden" and Miss K. Giles piano solo, "Selection". "Remembrance," Mrs. Cyrus Giles then gave the Scripture reading, and all joined in singing hymn 577. Mrs. Frank Townsend gave an interesting chapter from the Study Book, after which Mrs. Roy Giles offered prayer. Mrs. D. K. Reuter read a letter she had received from one of the two missionaries with whom the auxiliary corresponds. The letter was from Miss Mulley, W. Africa, and was indeed very interesting. Mrs. H. Pulver and Mrs. L. Brickman then sang a duet and the meeting closed with the hymn "Solemn is the Christ Arise," and prayer. The Easter thankoffering envelopes amounted to $9.45. The collection for the month, previous collection 38c.

A social half hour followed light refreshments being served by Mrs. Cyrus Giles, Miss Minnie Howell and the hostess, to all of whom a vote of thanks was given. The May meeting is invited to the home of Mrs. Melvin Pulver, Victoria.

ANDERSON WILL LIKELY TAKE ROCKNE ROLE

Conjecture as to Who Will Succeed Famous "Rock"

Chicago, April 7—There are two very good reasons why Notre Dame isn't likely to name Knute Rockne's successor until after the 1931 football season:

(1) The capable coaching staff he assembled.

(2) The excellent material available for next season.

The Notre Dame coaching staff is composed of Heartly (Hunk) Anderson, Tim Moynihan, Jack Chevigny, Ike Voedisch, Clarence Kaplan and Manfred Vesis, all of whom learned their football under Rockne.

Anderson, guard of the 1920 team was line coach and Rockne's chief assistant last year. Although Anderson has said that he doesn't want to be considered for Rockne's place, it seems inevitable that he will be asked to carry on for him until a successor can be named.

In this connection it is well to remember that when Rockne was confined to his bed with illness in 1929 Tom Lieb, then his chief assistant, guided the Notre Dame team throughout several tough games.

Logical Successor

After the 1930 season Anderson was entrusted with a group of all-star players sent to the coast for a charity game by Rockne. Anderson is the logical man to be Rockne's temporary successor.

Rockne had a lot of respect for Anderson's ability. In 1926 Rockne remained in Chicago for the Army-Navy game and sent his team to Pittsburg for the Carnegie Tech game in charge of Anderson. When the score of the game—Carnegie Tech 19, Notre Dame 0—came over the wires someone said something about that "dumb Swede Anderson".

"Never mind that," said Rockne, quickly coming to the defence of Anderson.

Last season Rockne left the Notre Dame team in charge of Anderson for the Drake game while he attended the Northwestern-Wisconsin game.

There is a possibility that Frank Carideo, all-American quarterback may return to Notre Dame in the capacity of assistant coach when ever the next Notre Dame coach is named.

Jesse Harper, who preceded Rockne as Notre Dame coach, has been prominently mentioned for the job, but he has told several Notre Dame men that he has been out of touch with modern football so long he wouldn't attempt to step into Rockne's shoes.

Good Prospects

Although Notre Dame has a hard nine-game schedule for next season, the prospects are bright for a winning team. There are 19 letter men, including six regulars on the 1930 team, returning.

The most prominent men who will not be back are Carideo, Brill, Conley Metzger, Kasis and Mullins.

The line is all set with Koslo at first at center, Oliver and Rooney at tackles, Greeney, Harris, Pierce and Fortuna at guards, and Captain Yarr at centre. Al were regulars last year.

THE SMARTER WAY

Once upon a time it was "the thing" to be always very formal. Especially about visits and writing letters. Modern methods—the telephone—it's smarter, more intimate, infinitely more convenient.

PROFITABLE HOG CABINS

Practical equipment is best suited to the raising of hogs experts of the Dominion Experimental Farms find, and the essential characteristic of the new type of portable hog cabin which is recommended for general farm use is essentially practical. It is portable, durable and strong, cool and comfortable for summer use yet capable of providing adequate shelter for winter; it accommodates four or five brood sows, and is economical and easy to build. UNANIMOUS VERDICT "GREAT" GREETS BARBARA STANWYCK AT THE CAPITOL

Every incident in "Ten Cents a Dance" now playing at the Capitol Theatre could be dissected and analyzed and the same pleasure experienced by yesterday's audience would be equally felt. Not a moment is wasted in the careful and sustained appealing way in which the story of this drama is unfolded.

We see a girl, head dancer in a palais-de-danse, hating the motley crew of patrons, who for one dime are entitled to manhandle these girls. In her desperation to get out of the sinister atmosphere of her work, she rushes into a marriage with a young ne'er-do-well, who even then is sneaking out of his boarding house.

Through a wealthy friend she gets him a job. He loses his head and robs his employer to the tune of $3,000. The girl is disillusioned and in a measure pities the worthless husband. To help him the secret girl from her wealthy friends, and waits for him at his apartment for almost the whole night. She obtains the money, gives it to her husband who restitutes to his employer via the safe. Then he shows his true worth by accusing the girl of being immoral. What happens then is a quick shifting event ending up in one dramatic climax.

Enough cannot be said of the superb performance of Barbara Stanwyck—she is positively wonderful, be it amusing, dramatic or romantic. In fact she has that rare quality of being abandoned in her entire portrayal—she just lives her part.

The programme is exceptionally well balanced by the inclusion of a vagabond travelogue, this time dealing with the head hunters of Africa. Favourite stars are featured in the "Voice of Hollywood" and how to get a dinner cheap is amusingly explained in "A Tight Squeeze" where "Smiling Jerry" utilizes a towel for a tuxedo vest.

"Ten Cents a Dance" and the accompanying programme continues to day and tomorrow daily at 2.30, 7.15 and 9.15.

Commencing Thursday for the remainder of the week, Sir Gilbert Parker's "Right of Way," will be seen picturized. Loretta Young, Conrad Nagel and Fred Vohler are the chief stars of this drama of the North.

Health Service

OF THE

Canadian Medical Association

Edited by GRANT FLEMING, M.D. — ASSOCIATE SECRETARY.

Disease germs are the cause of a large percentage of all illness. If we could keep these germs out of our bodies, they could do us no harm, because all the mischief they do is to occurs after they get inside our bodies. They usually gain entrance through the mouth. In other words, we eat them or drink them.

Our ability to keep out disease germs lies very largely in our own hands and is meant literally and not figuratively. Our own hands are, unless we take proper care of them, the means whereby germs are carried past our lips into a nice warm moist cavity where germs delight to be.

As we go about our daily work or play, our hands are sure to become soiled. Because of the use to which we put our hands, it follows inevitably that they become dirty or soiled. They are contaminated with germs, some of which may be disease germs.

There is no harm in having germs on your hands so long as they stay there. The unbroken skin prevents any germs from entering in this way. The danger of having germs on your hands is that they may be carried into your mouth or nose.

This happens if you put your unwashed hands to your face, bite your finger nails or moisten your fingers with saliva to turn the pages of a book or magazine.

If food is touched with the unwashed fingers and then eaten, the effect is just the same as if the germs had been put directly into the mouth.

We can avoid practically all of the very real dangers that confront us from these causes by paying attention to two simple but very important points.

The first is that we should keep our hands away from our faces. The only time somebody hands need to go near the face is when the handkerchief is used. Some people keep their hands away from their hands and so there is danger. Watch your self and how often you put your hands to your face—then make up your mind to stop the practice.

The second point is that before you touch food, before you eat, your hands need to be thoroughly washed. This washing, remember to use your own towel, is just as important as is the washing. Common towels spread germs from one user to the next, and they should never be used. Washing your hands before eating is one of the most practical and simple ways of preventing disease.

Questions concerning health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 Collece Street, Toronto will be answered personally by letter.

MRS. SHOEBRIDGE SUFFERS BURNS FIGHTING SIDNEY FIRE

BARN TOTALLY DESTROYED IN SIDNEY FIRE

Fred Shoebridge Suffered Serious Loss in Blaze

WIFE BURNED

Bucket Brigade and Belleville Fire Department Saved House

Suddenly and without warning, the large frame barn owned by Fred Shoebridge situated on the second concession of Sidney was totally destroyed by fire early yesterday afternoon. It was only with difficulty that the home, close by the barn, was saved, as the wind was from the northeast; quarter and the sparks and flames were blown towards the roof of the house. The cause of the fire is unknown and the loss will be heavy as the property was only partially insured. Mr. Shoebridge also lost three head of horses, four veal calves ready for shipment, 100 hens and a full line of machinery besides a quantity of hay and grain.

Mrs. Shoebridge was home alone at the time of the outbreak and in saving the ten head of cattle in the barn was severely burned about the right hand to the elbow and parts of the face. Her clothing caught fire several times in her attempts to save the horses from the raging inferno. A detachment of the fire brigade under Chief Lynch reached the scene and succeeded in dimming some of the flames with chemical solution. Neighbors, passers-by and those drawn to the scene assisted in preventing the house from catching fire, a strong bucket brigade being formed. Mr. Shoebridge left for the city shortly before one o'clock and there was no sign of fire at that time according to his statement. Mrs. Shoebridge was following her daily occupation about the home when her little grandchild, Rose Shoebridge, ran to the house shouting "there is a bonfire in the hay stack granny."

So sudden was the warning that when Mrs. Shoebridge got to the barn it was completely enveloped in flames and the blaze was being fanned by a strong northeast wind. She has the

NORTH BAY BALLOT ON MUNICIPAL ARENA

North Bay, April 8—Answering the request of the Citizens' Committee the North Bay City Council, reporting the meeting of the Committee with the Whole which considered the proposition last week, declared they are in favor of submitting the by-law to the people providing for a municipal arena. However, the Council was unanimous in its opposition to the use of Wallace Park, originally as a site. The Citizens' Committee will have to concur with Council before consideration of alternative sites. Mayor Rowe said that the use Wallace Park would be as much money as would buy another site. The present graduated rink would have to be torn down, the grounds would be interfered with, new rinks and a building would have to be constructed.

McGILL AS CENTRE OF BIRD LIFE STUDY

Montreal, Apr. 8 (By The Canadian Press)—Possessing as it does a wonderful library, and being closely combined with the intense interest that Canadians have towards bird life, McGill University has a wonderful opportunity of becoming a leading centre for the study of bird life in America, Dr. Arthur A. Allen, professor of ornithology, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., stated during an illustrated address, "The Call and Mating Call of Birds," at the annual lecture meeting of the Montreal Audubon Society for the Protection of Birds, held recently.

The speaker's remarks were most significant as the establishment of a chair of ornithology at one of the Canadian universities is being planned in certain quarters as an intelligent means of aiding the conservation of bird life in the Dominion.

Golf courses in New York State are being utilized for bird sanctuaries, the speaker said. Certain colored sides of Dr. Allen showed birds of different species perched on golf club, and even golf balls, placed at various points used by them to broadcast their message of possession of a certain nesting area. Every bird has some characteristic method of appearance, the speaker declared, be it really is, the speaker said. He added that steps were being taken to have other states adopt the principle of providing more sanctuaries for the conservation of bird life.

The blood of a human being is ordinarily free from germs.

New Ruler Says He Will Clean up The Gangster City

Chicago, Apr. 8. — William Hale Thompson glumly, but gallantly for all that, conceded election as mayor of Chicago last night to Anton J. Cernak, perhaps his bitterest political enemy.

"The people of Chicago have spoken," said Thompson in a small office at the city hall, where returns from Tuesday's election showed that he had lost by about 163,000 votes. "I cheerfully abide by their decision."

"I appreciate the confidence reposed in me by the men and women who voted for me and supported the principles for which I fight.

IMPROVEMENT IN CONDITION OF KING GEORGE IS SHOWN TODAY

His Majesty Still Attends Official Duties in Windsor Castle

Windsor, England, April 8 (CP)—Slight improvement in the condition of the King who is suffering from sub-acute bronchitis, was noted in the official statement at Windsor Castle today. His Majesty's physician Lord Dawson of Penn, again motored to London and called at Buckingham Castle this morning. He saw the Duke of Kent, Prince George, archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Henry Marlyn, recently assigned to the court, lancy.

The physicians theorized that the King contracted the illness on the motor trip from Buckingham Palace to Windsor. The King remains in his bedroom and still attends official business.

Authoritative quarters pointed out, however, a condition like that of the King must take time to clear up at least several days. Presupposing his continued progress it should be well in next week before he can look to restoration to good health.

SENATE PASSES POWER PLANS

Hydro Development on St. Lawrence to Cost $170,000,000

Albany, N. Y., April 8.—The Democratic Governor of New York, Franklin D. Roosevelt, today won his water power fight with the Republican Senate, the Upper River development measure in the form he desired.

Three of the majority of 33 voted with a solid Democratic minority of 22 to strip the bill of an amendment taking from the governor the power of naming the five trustees who will have the $170,000,000 hydro-electric project. The senators who left the Republican fold represent the section of the state in which the electric plants will be built.

The amendment brought a threat of a veto from Governor Roosevelt who also had planned to take the water power controversy to the electorate.

Communities in Jefferson and St. Lawrence counties, fearful that the capitol squabble would defeat waterpower legislation in this session of the legislature, threatened to send delegations here to argue the matter with their representatives. A hurried conference of Republican leaders in New York, it was decided to drop the amendment fight.

FARM BOARD'S MOVE SCORED

Accumulation of Wheat Has Been Mistake, is Assertion

Chicago, Apr. 8—President James C. In an address before the Chicago Association of Commerce he declared the farm board's operations "have only resulted in accumulations which are a menace to the coming crops." The agricultural marketing act, providing for a program, he said, has not only "controlled the futility of interference with normal action and the reaction to supply and demand.

GUILTY WOMAN FOUND DEAD

Was Convicted of Abandoning Babies in Quebec

Montreal, April 8—Death relieved the law of the punishment of Mrs. H. Dorion, who was found dead in her home yesterday afternoon only a couple of hours after she had been found guilty in the Court of Sessions of abandoning babies in Three Rivers' quiet. She was to have been sentenced Thursday, Mrs. Dorion who conducted a private maternity hospital, was charged with wholesale abandoning of infants to the number of 28 at different times last summer in the Towns of Three Rivers, St. Hyacinthe and Granby. She was found guilty on one of the charges only.

It was expected an inquest would be held. The accused woman had been suffering from a disease of the heart. Thoughout her long trial she had seemingly exerted no interest.

The babies were left on the steps of orphanages, in isle, on one occasion five children having been found in one group.

Mrs. Dorion's death was discovered by a neighbor who called at her home shortly after noon. It was believed that she succumbed to the heart weakness from which she had been suffering and had been under treatment for some time.

BERENGARIA RUNS AGROUND IN FOG

Passengers Taken Off—Ship is Later Dragged Off by Tugs

Southampton, Eng., Apr. 8. — The Cunard liner Berengaria ran aground in a fog approaching Southampton last night. She was in no danger, the passengers were taken off and landed here in tenders, arriving about midnight.

The big ship rammed her nose into a mud bank a few miles east of Nab Tower and jerked to a stop. For two hours her engines were reversed and her crew tried to pull her off, but the liner lay like a log, apparently aground for the night.

A call for tugs went out to Southampton and they came to her assistance, but the fog was so thick they were obliged to proceed slowly and it was some time before they reached the Berengaria's side.

When they did arrive they put lines aboard and tried to swing the stern off, but their first efforts were futile. The liner was not in danger, however, and the authorities gave given the option of remaining aboard or going ashore by tender. All but 75 chose to go ashore. Two more days went in the liner's hull and she was floated with the high tide.

MAYOR REID ISSUES REPLY TO HYDRO COMMISSIONERS; READY TO MEET THEM ON PLATFORM

Says Hydro System as Much Servants of People as City Council—Denies Seeking Increase of Salary for one Employee of Hydro—Touches on Question of Securing Legal Assistance by Other Commissioners in Regard to Publication of Statement to Council—Challenges Commissioners to Public Debate Over Differences

Mayor Reid has issued, through the Intelligencer, the following reply to a public statement of Messrs. Hubert Fairfield, Belleville Hydro Commissioners:

Editor of The Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ontario.

Dear Sir,—In reply to the letter appearing in the issue of your paper of April the 4th instant, under the hand of Messrs. Hanna and Fairfield, Belleville Hydro Electric Commissioners, I desire to make the following observations in the several charges made against me in this letter respecting the administration of Hydro Electric matters in this city, which have been the subject of considerable comment in the Press of late.

I think that the statement attributed as having been made by me and as appears in this letter that the Hydro Commissioners are under the control of the City Council is too ridiculous to warrant any further comment. I am well aware and have been that the Commission and the Corporation of the City or Belleville are separate and distinct.

What I desired to impute in my letter was, that the Hydro Commission in this city are the servants of the people as much as the City Council.

Further, in connection with salaries, I repudiate the statements contained in the letter of those gentlemen that I requested an increase in salary for one employee of the Hydro Commission in this city. I absolutely deny that I requested an increase of salary for one or any employee of such Commission. Such a suggestion has no foundation in fact. On the contrary I objected to all the salaries being increased at the time and certainly I objected to any in-

MONTREAL OUSTS MORALITY SQUAD

District Inspectors of Police Take Over Cleaning Up of Vice

Montreal, April 8—Following his announcement that he will condemnate and demolish the city of vice-infected areas, Chief of Police Duffus today formally abolished the immorality squad and placed the work of cleaning out gambling houses and disorderly houses and "sound pigs" up on the inspectors in each police district.

This reorganization, one of the most sweeping acts since Chief Duffus assumed office as successor to Chief Langevin, will mean that the 22 officers who constituted the morality squad will be placed on other work in the department.

From now on, the inspectors from each of the police districts will be responsible for the assigning of officers to round up keepers of blind pigs, gambling houses and other vice centres.

Chief Duffus today expressed the belief that better results are expected under the new system.

'Dance Fools, Dance' High-Powered Talkie, Mixes Society With Gangster Thrills

Beautiful Joan Crawford In Finest Role of Her Career

Gangster's bullets mix with high society in "Dance Fools, Dance," Joan Crawford's new starring vehicle which received private preview and screening at the Belle Theatre this morning, where it is the feature attraction today and Thursday, matinee daily.

Joan's achievement as a dramatic actress in the recent past is overshadowed by her vivid portrayal in this sensational Chicago gangster story that penetrates deep into the heart of the underworld and finds in its core a drama fraught with tragic.

Joan plays the part of a madcap society debutante who turns to newspaper work after failing into financial and romantic reverses.

Another Crawford Hit

Like her role in "Paid", Joan plays a straight dramatic part although she enlivens it with festive moments at once reminiscent of "Our Dancing Daughters," and the more recent companions, suddenly and mutual. Her dance scene where the Joan of old but her potent emotionalism in the pulp of the plot are seen more revealing in showing the depths of her human understanding of drama and tragedy.

Harry Beaumont, who brought Joan to stardom, directs her here in the daring new talkie and has done ample justice to the assignment given him by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Many Lavish Scenes

As usual, he was shown a lavishness in his whoopee scenes and the midnight swimming party when the young folk jump overboard from the yacht wearing their glitter and glamour; he has conceived before.

That dashing newcomer, Lester Vail, plays opposite Joan as the chap who took her "on approval," but decided in the end to keep it. Vail has appeared to good advantage in several children's pictures, playing a straight role without any sign of a whistle. He brings a punch into the film that will strike you under the heart with his merciless killing at the hands of gangsters.

Clark Gable, as the gangster chieftain, gives an excellent performance as the racketeer, and William Bakewell does the work of his career as Joan's wedding brother who becomes so enamored of the murderous underworld activities.

Others who offer outstanding performances are William Holden, Earl Foxe, Purnell B. Pratt, Hale Hamilton, Natalie Moorhead, Joan Marsh and Russell Hopton.

Joan is magnificent in a bewildering array of costumes and it is perhaps unnecessary to remark that her dance number will bring demands for encores.

HOCKEY PLAYER HERE.

Albert "Toots" Holway, defenceman for the London professional hockey team of the International league, who was retired in Belleville today and has assumed his duties at the Old Indian Service Station which he and his brother "Bounce" Holway control. "Toots" states that he is in good shape this year all round and that the London team should do well, better than they did. A number of players were with the team during the season but at the end, London had one of the best teams in its history, even when they were not clicking, they being able to beat the defence of the opposition but could not beat the goalie with loose work inside. The defenceman has not taken on any more work as he expects the open air to bring him back in a few weeks to his normal self. The sporting fraternity is glad to have "Toots" back home for the summer and no doubt the service station will be a place that many a fanning bee will take place.

SUGARING OFF PARTY.

At the farm of Mr. Frank Knight in the Township of Thurlow on Monday afternoon about twenty of his friends motored out from Belleville and New York City were guests at a sugaring-off party. Lunch was served in the house and the afternoon and early afternoon were enjoyed by the company. The party concluded with a target shooting competition.

SENDS BIRTHDAY CAKE.

Mrs. Gibson, 34 Hillcrest Avenue, is receiving a cake from Toronto a piece of birthday cake which was cut at the dinner hundred and third anniversary of the birth of Mrs. Hannah Gibson, celebrated recently. The cake was accompanied by a number of other gifts which had been on it. Mrs. Gibson is very appreciative of the gift and of the thoughtfulness of her friends in sending this token of their friendship. Mrs. Hazlett is nephew of Mrs. Hazlett helped to survey Belleville streets.

CLEANING UP STREETS

The city has shown a laudable example to the private citizens of Belleville by clearing up the streets. Gangs are at work cleaning up the streets of the city during the winter.

ROADS COMMITTEE MET

The Roads Committee of the County Council met in Belleville on Haggerty, the county treasurer's office. Getting the roads in shape for the coming tourist season was discussed as well as other business. James Moore, chairman of the committee, and Simeon Fox, roads superintendent, were present at the meeting. The meeting adjourned this afternoon.

CHAPTER NIGHT

Musical Night was celebrated by Moira Chapter I.O.D.E. No. 7 last night at their monthly meeting. First Principal William McIntosh was in charge and with his officers conferred one of the degrees on a number of waiting candidates, which was brilliantly executed and done in a dignified manner. Lunch served to the fourth degree, where Companion Leo B. Riggs and Comp. Al Shannon the musical committee had arranged an exceptionally programme. There were no addresses, only the fun of music being drunk. Frank Howard gave a cornet solo, Al Shannon a solo and Everett Smith a number of Scotch characterizations all of which were thoroughly appreciated. Community singing was led by Al Still with Comp Leo B. Riggs presiding at the piano. A number of boys were slated to appear were unable to attend on account of sickness.

THE TEMPERATURE

The mercury took another upward shoot today and at noon registered fifty-six degrees, the warmest day so far this year. Yesterday it touched forty-nine above and although there was no sun shining at noon it was comfortably warm in the city with even spring overcoats on. Readings for the past two days included:—Yesterday, 49, 31; Today 56, 32.

NOT YET IDENTIFIED

The unknown man found dead in Alfred McDonald's barn, Ameliasburg has not been identified as yet. Information was sent to Inspector Kingston officers of the Provincial Police and they are working on the case but nothing has come to light. In the meantime Inspector Lougheed has asked a doctor to look at the deceased and a full description obtained. Inspector Kent sent out the circular form to all police officers in the Province. A number of enquiries have been received by the Provincial Police but the description given by the callers does not in any way apply to the man now in their possession.

OBITUARY

MRS. FRED SMITHER

Word was received in the city shortly before noon today of the death of Mrs. Frederick Smither, Nanter Avenue, in Hamilton. Mrs. Smither who has been ill for some months, was taken to that city for treatment, but her condition took gradually grown worse. Previous to her removal to Hamilton, she was a patient at Belleville Hospital. Her husband Mr. Fred Smither is a well known painter and proprietor of the old Smith Inn. Besides her husband, several children survive. The late Mrs. Smythe was a member of the Roman Catholic Church.

WEDDINGS

HALL—LIDSTER

A very pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized at the Carmichael Parsonage on Saturday, April the 6th at two o'clock when Sylvia Irene Mae Lidster daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lidster, of Thurlow, became the bride of Mr. Ward Elgin Hall, the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hall also of Thurlow.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. R. Merrin in the presence of only immediate relatives.

The bride was attired in a gown of shell pink georgette and lace and wearing the gift of the groom, a white gold wrist watch set with sapphires.

The happy couple left amid showers of confetti and good wishes by motor for Toronto, St. Catharines and other western points, the bride travelling in a blue crepe dress with navy broadcloth coat and hat to match. Upon their return they will reside in Thurlow.

MURRAY—SMITH

An Easter wedding of much interest to friends and community was solemnized today, April 8th, at 10 o'clock at Bayside, the couple met by motor for Toronto, Chatham and Detroit. The wedding ceremony served at Hotel Gilbert, Trenton. The groom's gift to the bride was a white gold wrist watch. To the bridesmaid a sapphire necklace, to the groomsman a pair of gold cuff links. What many friends wish them a long life of health and prosperity. (Trenton papers please copy).

AGREEMENT ON ALTERATION OF THE B.N.A. ACT

Premier Bennett Says Course of Action Outlined

Ottawa, April 8—Agreement on the course of action to be pursued in respect to the proposed Statute of Westminster which embodies the recommendation of the last Imperial Conference was announced at the conclusion of the Dominion Provincial Conference here today. A brief statement announcing the decision was handed out shortly after noon.

It was agreed status quo should be maintained in respect to the repealing, altering or amending, Canadian Constitution British North America Act.

A repeal of the Colonial Laws Validity Act insofar as Canada is concerned was subject to the provisions of the British North America Act.

Premier R. B. Bennett announced that at some future date the constitutional conference for the consideration of amendments which British North American Act may be necessary, will be held.

The action applicable to Canada for the inclusion in the new statute of Westminster, as approved, but no final acceptance was left over until the Imperial Conference. The Dominion Government have the opportunity to consult their colleagues.

SAYS BUSINESS IMPROVES SOON

Changes Necessary For Permanent Advance

New York, April 8—Business conditions will improve in the next two months, but considerable retardation must be expected, Dr. Emanuel Nadler, Professor of Finance in the New York University Graduate School of Business Administration, declared in an address last night before the Downtown and Uptown Textile Credit Group.

The world-wide depression which set in in the middle of 1929 has run its course and it may be confidently stated that business is now scraping bottom; the worst is over," Dr. Nadler said. "The seasonal revival of business has already begun and many lines of industrial activity reflect this revival. It should be noted however, that the most optimistic views are to the effect that the improvement is only seasonal. In all likelihood business will continue to expand during the next two months, but considerable retardation must be expected during the Summer months.

"Whether or not a real recovery will set in the Fall depends upon many factors, particularly the rapidity with which we can readjust our present economic structure to the greater purchasing power of the dollar."

Dr. Nadler asserted that changes must be made in the tax assessment and by business itself if a more stable future is to be assured. He said that the changes which should be made by the government included reduction of tariffs; liberalizing of anti-trust laws which are outdated antiquated; the adjustment of taxation, particularly local, to the purchasing power of the dollar; expenditure of raids on the Treasury and a vigorous attention on the part of the government to social problems, particularly unemployment.

MRS. REV. NEAL SPEAKER AT MASSASSAGA

MASSASSAGA, April 7—(By Mail) About 34 attended the C.O.I.T. banquet at the school on Friday night. A splendid supper was served and a wonderful talk on World Friendship was given by Mrs. (Rev.) Neal of Belleville. The Toast to the King was responded to in the usual way. The Toast to the Mothers, proposed by Marion Weese, was responded to by Mrs. J. Hillman. Mrs. Hillman and Mrs. Harry Wallbridge. The Toast to the Visitors, proposed by Ruth Brummel and responded to by Mrs. Neal.

After community singing Mrs. Neal gave the talk of the evening, using World Friendship instead of Missions as her talk. She says the term World Friendship has a closer, more interesting sound to the young than the old toned missions. She began by saying that in the early life of man, each man lived for himself, counting each other man as his enemy and prey, and how gradually enmity was overcome among tribes living close together and the only barriers to friendship were rivers and hills and mountains. Man overcame these until they no longer were barriers. Roads were built which overcame distance, ships lessened distance between continents and now with telegraphs, cables and radio, a happening in one country is known very shortly after in other countries great distances away. Mrs. Neal told the story of the "Christ of Andes", the statue which stands on the highest peak of the mountains on the boundary line between Argentine and Chili.

This was set up at the suggestion of a priest who had pleaded with his people to keep peace with their neighbors. The figure is of Christ with his arm outstretched to the two countries as if in blessing.

Mrs. Neal also told the story of a despotic Japanese ruler who made a law that all people were to be put to death. One young man delayed as long as possible, but after preparing some food he carried his aged mother to the top of one of the mountains and after making her as comfortable as possible, started to go back. Going up the hill she had marked the path with piece of broken sticks so the old feet men that he could find his way back by following the sticks. He could not bear to part from her so he carried her back by the hill to his home and hid her. One day the ruler asked that a rope of sand be twisted for him. No one knew how to do this but the young man whose mother was hidden went to her and she told him how to do it. When the ruler came and saw it he asked where he had learned how and in great fear the young man confessed that his old mother had told him. The ruler repeated his law saying "I see we need the wisdom of old age as well as the strength of youth."

Mrs. Neal told us of how the work of the mission schools is bringing about a better understanding of each other west and west for east and urged the girls to give a part of their meetings to the study of other lands.

Wilma Simonds told the story of a girl, who though she died at the age of twenty had made a host of friends by being friendly. Ruth Brummel acted as toast mistress for the evening. A vote of thanks was tendered the speaker and the meeting was brought to a close by singing Auld Lang Syne and prayer was led by Mrs. Neal.

THE BACKYARD

This spring with the early breakup and the lack of moisture ought to make conditions more easy for the cleaning up of premises as ordered by the Belleville Board of Health.

There is plenty of room in this city for work of this kind, not only in the residential sections, but in the business section of the city where the debris of winter has collected in many yards.

The appeal of the gardens will soon be felt and here likely there will be early compliance with the orders of the board. In other parts of the city where there is not the same interest in farming in the gardens the backyard may be allowed to go a little longer before it is cleaned up. Busy backyards are about in order henceforward.

DANGER OF FIRE

Owners of backyards in which long grass has dried out or of vacant lots on which dried weeds and grass create a menace today owing to the drought should see to it that these risks to adjacent property from fire are removed by the collection and destruction of this refuse.

There was a fire the other day which is said to have started while children were out in the long dry grass in a vacant lot and which might have destroyed buildings.

A little thoughtful action on the part of those who have properties where such a menace exists would be appreciated.

THE KING'S HEALTH

Subjects of His Majesty King George who is suffering from a cold, hope for his speedy recovery. Some years ago the empire and the world were anxious for his return to health from a grave illness which he finally conquered in the early off. Memories of this trial were only too much in the thought as the people heard of his recent indisposition.

His present illness, however, is one which all will hope to see soon conquered and His Majesty about again as usual. The King plays a great role in the world of today where the stability of his throne and the manly attitude he bonnets to world trends have a great influence in holding the nations from breaking into the risks of untravelled courses and ways.

The King is honored within and without the Empire, both as ruler and as man.

MACHINE GUNS IN JERUSALEM

In Jerusalem on Easter Sunday machine guns were placed at vantage points to prevent outbreaks of trouble as members of three faiths were celebrating at the spring festival, Moslems, Jews and Christians.

The world has not yet reached the stage of peace where misunderstandings do not exist and where many may hold the faith he will in safety.

Some day and surely it can not be long off, even Jerusalem, the religious centre of the world, may find men of different faiths worshipping without fear of attack. If religion should bring anything it should bring the right to worship n freedom and safety. He who cannot meet and worship without becoming a menace to others, has not yet realized the real element in religion.

DEMANDS ON PUBLIC MEN

The Toronto Globe presents the situation of the smaller city in this province which does not pay its council and which sometimes loses good men from the council as in Chatham where the mayor has for personal and business reasons felt called upon to resign. The Globe says:

"Herein lies an example of one of the troubles in public life. Too often the demands made on men are unreasonable. Smaller cities and towns do not pay their members of Council, and yet the services involve a large portion of a man's time.

"It may be argued that no one should seek such honors unless prepared to give all necessary time to the work. If the tasks were confined to the duties of administration and legislation, no one could complain, but there are in request for public meetings and other celebrations and events, until a public man has barely a minute undistributed, even for the study of his municipal problems. In recent months the pressure of relief work has invaded the domain of the public representative to an unbearable extent.

"No one need be selfish or hard-hearted to argue that much of this work has no proper place in the time of the Mayor of a city. The expense of Chatham in losing an apparently excellent municipal leader, should cause the public to pause before making unreasonable and selfish demands on its representatives."

Sugaring-off is a festival for young and old. All can find pleasure in this peculiarly Canadian affair. Those who attended the sugaring-off program at Mr. Willet-C. Ketchen's bush last week and Kiwanians who took in the affair at Mr Frank Knight's a few days before, cannot fail to remember such functions for the spontaneity of the good fellowship.

SIDELIGHTS

Grave and Gay

(Conducted by the Lamplighter)

AFTER THREE DAYS

By Grace Noll Crowell
in The Christian Herald

What did that Easter morning mean to Him!
I think of it. Oh, often, and am glad—
His earthly lifetime past—its grief and pain,
With all the sore temptations that He had.

All of it past—the last long hillside climbed,
The last cry uttered, and the last tears shed,
And never a grave to close on Him again
Within the darkened garden of the dead.

And now the folded napkin laid aside—
And all eternity before Him there,
While those He loved were coming—and the dawn
Was on the hills—the birds' song on the air.

How beautiful it must have been to Him,
After the dusty roadways He had known;
How strangely sweet the garden flowers were,
How cool and colorful the dawn light shone!

No morning of the earth means more to me
Than Easter morning—but it takes my breath
To think what that first Easter must have been
To One, new-risen, after days of death.

"THE GREEN PASTURES", a biblical play with the various parts portrayed by negro actors is still going strong in New York City where it has played every day but Sunday for more than a year. The play is supposed to represent the negro's conception of heaven, and Moses and most of the old patriarchs are represented, while the Lord God Jehovah, a part played by Richard Harrison, native of Ontario, who stepped into the part by accident when Mr. Harrison had always had a hankering for the stage but beyond giving dramatic readings never made much progress. A two weeks' holiday in New York City changed his whole life and made him famous. "The Green Pastures" company was organized with the exception of the principal character, "Lord God Jehovah" and the promoters, after trying many applicants, despaired of filling the part. Harrison heard of it by accident and applied for a part. He was a find and has been playing the part ever since. On March 23, Harrison was presented by Dr. Stephen Conor Lehman with the Springarm Medal which is awarded each year to the American negro who in the opinion of the judges has made the highest achievement during the preceding year in any honorable field of human endeavor. Mr. Harrison is in his sixty-seventh year. It is interesting to note that the promoters wished to organize a No. 2 company to play "The Green Pastures" in Chicago and western cities but thus far have been unable to secure an actor for the part taken so ably by Mr. Harrison. Folks who go to see "The Green Pastures" to get a laugh come away deeply impressed by the religious fervour of the story and the earnestness of the actors.

THE DAUGHTER of our California correspondent will graduate from the Ontario Wiggins School of Art next June. Following is an item taken from "Trade Winds," the school paper:—"Miss Ruth Cole, whose young lady has inherited the talent of her mother, Mrs. W. S. MacDiarmid, a clever portrait artist whose pictures still adorn many walls in Hastings and Prince Edward County, as well as Toronto:

"Kay MacDiarmid of the Commercial Art Class designed the cover design for the advertisement of Easter hats in this edition of Trade Winds. The Millinery Department under the direction of Miss Cole made some very clever hats, and planned to advertise them for sale in the school paper, giving the girls at Frank Wiggins the first chance to buy. So Miss Paulus was notified that an original drawing from one of the students' work would be chosen. Drawings were then submitted by nearly every girl in the class, and by a process of elimination, Kay's design was chosen. It was judged the best because of the charming originality, the clever layout and the clean-cut crispness of the lines."

Grey entered a bar and found one of his friends ordering a drink.

"Hallo," he said, "I thought you said you weren't going to take any more whisky."

His friend raised his glass and took a generous sip.

"That's right, I did," he replied.

"But you are drinking as much as ever," Grey reminded him.

"Well, that isn't any more of it?" said the other.

MODERN ETIQUETTE

Q.—Is it proper for the host or hostess to specify the length of time covered by an invitation for a visit?

A.—Yes; it often avoids misunderstandings and embarrassment.

Q.—What are the only circumstances under which a woman is presented to a man?

A.—When the man is a royal personage, the President of a Republic, or a Cardinal. Otherwise, the man is presented to the woman.

Q.—Who heads the procession into the dining room when a dinner is given in honor of a couple?

A.—The host or hostess with wife or husband of the honored couple.

"A BAS LES CLASSIQUES!!"

The modern trend in the American University often finds expression in rather startling manner. The latest sample of this comes from Professor Clarence Ward, of Oberlin college, who has just gone on record as saying that Americans would be more cultured if their museums were not filled with collections of dead art, and that world-famous museums are valueless because of an erroneous mental feeling for the Old Masters.

"Away with your ultra-modern Sonical with a vengeance. Pitch the horrible Titians, Corregios and Velasquez; trample upon the Botticellis; loathsome Rubens and Van Dycks; and bury the Christian martyrs underground. "A Bas Les Classiques!" We want to see and hear the same cry before. But the trouble is that the class of people to be buried, and that the Old Masters stay dead. They persist in continuing to live — in the imaginations of those who are appreciating beauty in art.—Montreal Star.

GREATEST BLESSING

An American philosopher says that the greatest blessing in making his countrymen think which is about the greatest blessing that can descend upon them at this time. But many Canadians will be some to the conclusion that they have thought enough and would prefer to be back at some congenial occupations.—Mail and Empire.

AUTOMATIC POWER

A very ambitious study is shortly to be made by Niagara Power interests. This is no less than the study of the problem of harnessing atomic energy. Dr. Arthur H. Compton, Nobel prize physicist, is to supervise the experiments. Dr. Compton has studied for many years. The first aim of the experiments will be to release the high voltage in the electrons of X-ray. Scientists hope in this way to increase the voltage to between 10,000,000 and 20,000,000 volts, a power that can be done. Dr. Compton believes that this power is entirely possible. But this first goal is no easy one to achieve. We can appreciate the vastness of the task when the objectives of the Radiological Research Institute established in Toronto last year. This objective is to develop rays for therapeutic purposes more powerful any now available. At present X-ray tubes produce from 200,000 to 250,000 volts. The institute is trying to for them as high as 500,000 volts or even 4,000,000 volts. This would mean that they could produce what are practically radium rays from an X-ray tube, and it is believed that the results of using artificial radium rays would be better than radium itself. It is the most ambitious aim of the Radiological Research Institute is to produce 1,000,000 volts of penetrating pressure available. In Chicago, they are going to try and get a pressure of 10,000,000 volts. Ten million volts is, forty times as high as the present maximum.—Hamilton Spectator.

SUMMARY ACTION AGAINST BATTERY THEFT

Calculated on the experience of service stations in Toronto, it is estimated that the 3,000 service stations in the province lose $250,000 a year through the dishonesty of a small minority of motorists who borrow batteries for their cars and who neither return them nor pay rental charges.

The mobility of motor cars and the frequency with which they may change hands makes it difficult for the stations to locate their rented property. And when they have located the car, it is impossible for them to remove the vital spark, except on consent of a court order, without incurring costs or penalties. Should the owners of the batteries, who disappears into court they accept the risk of running up a bill of costs and getting a judgment which is valueless against offenders who are not financially responsible.

It is apparent that the service stations and the battery manufacturers whose credits and good faith are unknown qualities. Unless motor's are to be expected to have their batteries at all times the rites of a new privilege, it seems only reasonable that stations should have the right to summary procedure against those who unlawfully retain borrowed batteries. In Manitoba service station operators enjoy the protection of an Act similar to the bill recently before the Ontario Legislature. Since the only person it affects is the dishonest motorist, the principle does not ultimately prove acceptable in the form of the bill which died at the session which has just closed.—Toronto Globe.

INSTEAD OF A TITLE

Folk of the prairies are considered democratic. It is doubtful that many of them would favor the return of titles to them. But in Calgary a man's a man for a' that," no matter what his birth or name.

They may not be able to confer titles in Alberta, but they still a keen sense of values. Today the Commonwealth Club of Calgary will offer a high honor on Mr. Patrick Burns. His achievements entitle him, Mr. Burns is a business man in the true sense and works may be seen all over the place. His industries have provided employment for great numbers, his charities have been large, and he has displayed practical interest in many projects for Calgary's well-being.

When he is honored at the Canadian Club's luncheon he will not be told "Arise, Sir Patrick," but he will receive a medal and on it will be inscribed: "For Meritorious Public Service."

Calgary has something to tell the world.—Toronto Globe.

Dance of the Electrons Caught By Camera

Pasadena, Cal., April 7—The gyrations of electrons in metals have been photographed, Dr. Jesse W. Mc Mond of the California Institute of Technology told the Astronomy and Physics Club.

He disclosed experimental evidence of the dynamic nature of the atom and of motions of electrons in solid bodies, stating that the time electrons caverted between the atoms at a speed of 1,826 miles a second, while the bound electrons more orderly in fixed orbits, had speeds up to 90,000 miles a second.

This happens in all materials, he continued, steel, copper, wood, in fact every solid, all having as much life in them, so to speak, as the sea with these electrons darting hither and thither like light-speed fish.

There has been much theoretical discussion of this electronic activity but Dr. du Mond, with direct photographic proof, reveals that speed of movement by electrons is much greater than hitherto estimated.

Dr. du Mond's photoreraphic proof is spectroscope by means of special X-ray spectrographic device upon which he and Harry Kirkpatrick of the Institute have been working for two years. He uses X-rays to bombard the metal structure examined and then takes spectrographs. The X-rays bounce off the electrons, and this effect, known as scattering of light by electrons, reveals the strange facts.

The scattered radiation assumes a new wave length, longer but not so sharp, with broad lines. The meaning of these lines tells the story. For instance in Beryllium, a white, hard metal, it was proved that the velocity of the free electrons was 1 per cent of that of light. There are very few electrons per atom in beryllium and molybdenum has five per atom.

It is these free electrons that conduct electricity, the greater the number of free electrons the greater the conductivity of the metal.

Professor Mond was manifested among the scientists that he seems to hear presentation of evidence by Dr. du Mond, which gives direct photographic proof, reveals that speed of movement by electrons is much greater than hitherto estimated.

Externally or Internally, It Is Good.—When applied externally by brisk rubbing, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil opens the pores and penetrates the tissue, touching the seat of the trouble and immediat ly affording relief. Administered internally, it will still the irritation in the throat which induces coughing and will relieve asthma and bronchial tubes and respiratory organs. Try it and be convinced.

What Happens in Sleep

It is rather a terrifying thought that if you have lived for sixty years an unconscious condition. For, though at times you may be doing with as little as seven hours' sleep, these remnants that during the first years of your life you slept as much as eighteen hours out of the twenty-four, writes the contributor of this article in London Answers.

Few of us trouble to think much of sleep time. The healthy person undresses, goes to bed, and is asleep within five or ten minutes. He does not dream much, and the whole period of sleep is simply a blank.

Now, what happens when you go to sleep? First, the action of the heart slows, the eyes close, and the sense of sight sleeps; apparently the sense of smell sleeps next, then that of hearing, and lastly that of touch. WHEN SLEEPER TURNS.

Here it is worth mentioning that an elderly person should never jump out of bed the moment he wakes. Since the heart's action is so greatly diminished, there is a danger of at least a minute or two to readjust its action.

But you are never quite so much asleep as you have been when you recently mentioned in the "Lancet" that the normal person, unless heavily drugged, changes his position many times during the night. Experiments have carried out on more than 100 different persons prove that a person changes his position from twenty to forty-five times during the night, and the odd point is that the more comfortable the bed the more often the sleeper shifts about.

Now, if a man is accustomed to sleep on his right side he will, however, turns on the left, and the person whose habit it is to sleep flat on his back mainly sleeps in that position.

What is the best position for sleep? Some doctors say on the right side, others flat on the back, but all agree that the worst thing anyone can do is to "curl up and bukle in the middle." Yet many folk do sleep tucked up in the most extraordinary positions, and seem none the worse for it.

Cold Weather Hint

The advantage of sleeping on the right side is held to be that it is good for the heart. But it is the stomach that suffers if you sleep on your left side. The aperture between the stomach and the intestine is on the right end of the stomach, and while the stomach takes only three and a half hours to empty itself when a person lies on his right side, it takes six hours when he lies on his left.

Nothing is more foolish than to take too little sleep. It has often been stated that Napoleon did with four hours' sleep. It is not true. Six hours sleep is the minimum for population, but, like many other men of note, he was able to go for days on end with very little sleep and recoup later by a long nap. Once he is reported to have slept for thirty-six hours at a stretch.

The art of your sleep makes a big difference. Five hours' sound, refreshing sleep is better than ten of sleep broken by worry or indigestion. Eight hours' sleep seems to deaden the senses and soften the muscles. Nine hours our ancestors said: "Six hours for a man, seven for a woman, eight for a child, and nine for a fool". But the fact is that each person must study his or her own requirements in this matter. We say that, as a rule, one requires more sleep in cold weather than in warm.

Simple Life's Dangers

Berlin, Apr. 8.—Having found that the "simple life" is fraught with too many difficulties and dangers, Dr. Cecil Ritter, ex-German Consul-General, whose yacht was visiting the island.

"I offered to carry the couple back to civilization, but Mr. Marshall replied, "but they refused to leave the island. They have suffered all sorts of hardships, but are determined determined to carry out their plan."

Dr. Ritter received the couple's supplies of food, provided them with a motor launch and then conveyed to the mainland Dr. Ritter's letters to Berlin.

In one of these letters he explained his reason for remaining on the desolate island.

Since them all sorts of things have happened to the "paradise." The lagoon was found to be infested with sharks, and Mrs. Marshall and his arm so badly that he was incapacitated for months. And Frau Korwin fell ill with malaria.

The latest news is that Dr. Ritter has changed his mind and has made arrangements to be conveyed back to his native land.

The Poet's Corner

FOR SALE

Four hundred years this little house has stood
Through wind and fire, through earthquake and through flood;
Still its old beams, though bulged and warped, are strong
In spite of gaping wounds both deep and long.
The doors are low and give such narrow space
We must walk humbly in this little place.
The windows here, no longer square or straight,
Are also now, from their fantastic state,
To guide down their own walls, and see the flowers
That get peeping dripping from the eaves than showers.
Six hundred pounds, for all this precious stone!
These little quaint old windows squinting down;
This orchard, with its apples' last appeal
To dumpling or sweet cider, this well, this well,
Whose little eye has sparkled from its birth—
Four hundred years in sixty feet of earth!

William H. Davies.

BLOOMFIELD

Bloomfield, April 7 (By Mail)—A number from here attended the entertainment given by the Melson Band under the auspices of the W. M.S. in the Sunday School room of Bloomfield United Church on Good Friday evening. A basket was given by the ladies, also a fish pond. Supper was served, commencing at 5 p.m.

Our mail courier didn't arrive on Good Friday, it being a public holiday.

Mrs. Jack Wallace is entertaining her sister from Oshawa.

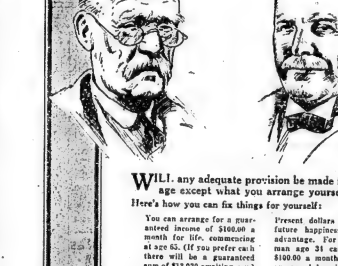
The school children are wearing happy faces these days owing to the holidays they enjoy at the Easter period.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Broadbridge spent Easter with the latter's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George Tossell, Wellington.



Mr. and Mrs. Peter Cave, Mr. John Cave, and Miss R. Cave visited with Mr. and Mrs. Odell Cave, Ameliasburg on Easter Sunday.

Glad to report Mrs. Samuel Plaiford is continuing gaining her strength back again after her recent operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Leavitt, Mrs. W. Broadbridge and Mr. and Mrs. Saunders spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Broadbridge.

The Chinese train cormorants, a species of bird, to catch fish for them.

At 65 what Tired or Retired?

WILL any adequate provision be made for your old age except what you arrange yourself?

Here's how you can fix things for yourself:

You can arrange for a guaranteed income of $160.00 a month for life, commencing at age 65. (If you prefer it, there will be a guaranteed sum of $13,020 awaiting you.)

From the moment you make your first deposit, your family has $10,000 life insurance protection.

Present dollars cannot buy future happiness to better advantage. For instance, a man age 31 can procure a $100.00 a month pension by an annual deposit at the rate of $25.35 a month.

Annual dividends greatly reduce the premiums or increase the benefits.

If you have to provide for your own future out of present income you owe it to London to investigate to meet your particular requirements without obligation.

Fashionably Speaking

By Lucille

DEAR READERS:

Correct lingerie is more important than this season than it has been for a long time. The variety of fashion in outer wear naturally fosters a variety of foundations, for the effect of the frock depends to a great extent on the garments worn under it.

Pitied lingerie is being featured by the Paris lingerie creators with all the fervor of inventors, who all design undergarments that aid in achieving the lines they desire.

Most of the new afternoon frocks are worn over slips. Mme. Cadole, noted for her corsets and foundation garments, is making princess slips that fasten along the seam on the shoulder and has they can be smoothly fitted to the upper part of the figure. The princess slip is cut in the form of the waistline of the frock may be almost anywhere, and if the waistline of the slip is at a level different from the waistline of the frock it is generally cause an slightly bulky, which may ruin the entire effect.

A separate slip for each frock is, of course, desirable, slips with circular skirts being the choice of vogue among those who are women of fashion; but those when income limited find the comes no more limited find the straight slip best, for it can be worn under a circular or bias slip as well as under a straight frock is impossible.

Crepe de chine, crepe satin and triple or quadruple voile are the materials most favored. Vionnet and Lelong both use considerable satin, while Worth and Molyneux prefer printed chiffons, shadow patterned mousselines and marquisette.

For trimmings, wide-patterned lace cinc lace of a rosy beige tone is very much used, often forming so much of the garment as the silk or chiffon. Rose Bertin make a specialty of convent embroidery and embroidered real lace. Alencon ruffures laces dyed to match the silk. Vionnet, Lelong and Helene Trouhi, on the contrary, prefer simple-seaming lingerie, depending upon texture and fabric contrast for the desired effect—for example, incrustations of shining or crepe-mirrored satin, or satin and mousseline, joined by hand-tailored embroidery or hemstitching.

Many smart women are wearing the fitted slip with smooth culottes or very brief pantalons, completely abandoning petticoats.

Helen Yrandis, liked here for her original lingerie, says she is making special step-in pantalons to wear under dressy pyjamas. These silk pantalons are always cut very smooth about the hips. They may be plain or finished with a flat flounce of lace or with several rugiers of Valenciennes or Chantilly edging.

Fashionably yours,

LUCILLE.

Some Spring Touches for Dishes of Winter Vegetables

By Annah Wing

For a few weeks longer we shall have to depend largely on the staunch Winter vegetables. This is a healthy old age and it seems fitting that cabbage can still be cooked tender and delicious and appetizing and served at least give color and good cheer to any menu. Summer may come now and then it will to try new ways with these old friends. We suggest the following:

Cabbage Creamed With Green Peppers

2 tablespoons minced onion.
1 minced green pepper
1 1-2 tablespoons butter
1 cup milk
1 pint cooked shredded cabbage
Salt, pepper
2 tablespoons flour

Saute onion and green pepper in butter. Add flour, salt and pepper, and one cup milk, and cook five minutes. Add cabbage, mix thoroughly and heat in double-boiler fifteen minutes.

Beets and Anchovy Salad

3 large boiled beets
3 hard cooked eggs
6 anchovies (drained).

Cut beets in halves discarding round ends. Marinate in French dressing and chill. Remove the yolks from the eggs and press through a sieve. Chop the egg whites fine. Make a ring of the chopped whites around the edge of each side of beet. Fill in the centre with the egg yolk and place an anchovy on top. Serve each slice on a small crisp lettuce leaf and garnish with Mayonnaise dressing.

Carrot Cakes

Cook carrots in boiling salted water until quite soft. Mash. Season with butter, pepper, and salt, and form the mixture into small flat cakes. Saute these in butter. Old carrots may be successfully utilized in this recipe. Time in cooking is dependent on age of vegetable—about one hour. Each cake will take about half minute to saute.

Holland Cabbage

1 cup boiled cabbage
2 tablespoons butter
1-2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt, speck pepper and paprika
1 cup mashed potatoes.
4 slices crisp bacon.

Chop the cabbage and place in frying pan with the butter, Worchestershire sauce, and seasonings. Stir until heated through. Add the potato and stir well. Have in a greased mold and steam for one half hour. Serve on a hot platter with surround with tomato sauce. Garnish with the bacon. Serving 4.

Cabbage Scrapple

1 quart chopped cabbage
1 cup chopped boiled beets
1 cup grated horseradish
2 cups mild vinegar
1 cup sugar
Salt

Combine the cabbage, beets and horseradish in a deep saucepan. Scald the vinegar, dissolve the sugar in it and add it to the first mixture. Cook until tender. Use particularly nice relish to serve with mutton or roast beef.

WATCH-FIRES

Love was you given the human heart
For careless dealing,
Its spark was lit that man might know
Divine revealing.

Heaped up with sacrificial brands,
Its flame, in mounting,
Enkindles other hearts with love
Beyond the quenching

Reflected back into each life,
Feeds vast fires, glowing,
Do then become the perfect love
Of Christ's beckoning.

Fashion Fancies

By Alice Alden

The loop is round again as a trimming, bet in novel form. A demure evening frock of pink chiffon has a bodice tier, and two tiers on the hips made entirely of beaded loops in the exact color of the model. These beaded loops hold the chiffon skirt at top.

The gray mouse creeps into the fashion picture. Mouse grey is very smart again and is the color used for a lovely ensemble. The jacket is of flat carcaul cut on Directoire lines. The frock, of georgette, has fine pleating kept in place by horizontal stitching and is fagoted.

It's nice to be blue when that color is so popular. Spring there is a frock of pastel blue, thin wool crepe, accented by deep blue buttons and leather belt. The skirt has a circular movement and there are three quarter sleeves.

You mustn't refuse to wear one of the new lace and chiffon frocks over a new model combination which belongs silk Alencon lace with rose petals and is worn over a brown satin slip. Also there is a brown velvet jacket with bands of fox, in a tone to match the dress slip.

Look into the bag for new and chic ideas. The latest afternoon model is a reason of black satin with a carmelian clasp. Also there is a gorgeous rhinelon beaded which revives to douciese a mirror.

Shadows come stealing over the tresses of the large brimmed hats that are seen in the South. But the shadows are soon forgotten as they are cut by the big brim of a black Milan straw with a bandeau made of masses of tiny yellow flowers. The same flowers are used on a gorgeous rhinon band which finds the crown.

Douglas' Egyptian Liniment makes a fine home killer known. Invaluable for stock. Leaves the hair roots in natural and healthy condition. Hair comes back. No war remains.

EQUAL RIGHTS FOR SISTERS

By Constance Cureton

Dr. Lucier, aged 19, had been head boy of his class at high school. He had entered college and won a B. A. But when Easter 1931 arrived for the same graduate her sisters face was pinched and drawn. Give a young girl freedom to choose her companions, and come on all hours of the night! Well, I guess not!

Little Sister was enraged. She was pitied with whom she was going. What time she would be back? She was told. "Oh, no, don't worry your pretty head; the boys will look after to this affair." She was pated by telephone in the night time hour and she was not yet under the parental roof. Big Sister decided to take over the reins with the perfectly human reaction to being "policed." Why, Sis ter couldn't have the telephone call without telling who phoned and what he said!

Wasn't sister a girl? And don't girls have to be shielded and guarded?

Well, what about the boys? Aren't they potential husbands and fathers? Doesn't their subconscious mind and character deserve the same attention that Sister's does? I think so.

Brother shouldn't be allowed to run "wild." Neither should Big Sister be so hedged in by questionings and a motherly fussiness that she wilfully and consciously decides to taste still of the forbidden in simple defiance.

Again it shall express the wish that we might consider children as people and as people having equal rights regardless of sex.

If you have given your girl and boy proper instruction regarding sex —if you are open-minded and ready fresh air, between into a brisk walk, warming the flesh surface with energy and exercise. Brooding, worrying, discontent—they are the arch enemies of youth and good health; no woman can afford to indulge in unpleasant emotions. Digestive organs suffer, the action slows up, the whole physical structure takes a turn on the chin. No need of coddling troubles, hanging to them. New ones are always on the way. Man and Wife Gagged and Robbed at Night

A Finger Print Jails Robbers

Two men broke into a little shop in London, Indiana, one night. They crept upstairs to a bed room where they knew the shopkeeper and his wife kept their money at night.

The man and his wife heard them, but before they could give an alarm or hide their money the robbers overcame them, tied them up with bed clothes and rendered them helpless. Then the robbers rifled the cash box and got away.

Long afterwards the two men were arrested on a totally different charge. Their finger prints were taken and the right thumb of one was found to be identical with a faint finger print that had been found on the cash box of the shopkeepers. Both men were sent down for long prison terms. The finger print had done it work.

Your Finger Prints

Your prints are dangerous in another way. They are not criminal prints of course but they may wreck your health. You leave them on everything you touch. Those prints are full of germs — disease germs of all kinds.

Where did you get them? Everywhere. From things that other hands have touched — a public telephone, a street car strap, dollar bills, books. People handled these things before you did — perhaps they were ill and coughed or breathed germs upon their hands.

So these germs get upon your hands. Then you touch a piece of bread, a candy, cake, or fruit in taking it to your mouth. The germs on your finger prints enter your system and make you ill. According to the Life Extension Institute there are 27 germ diseases that may be conveyed in this way.

It kills germs

We must avoid this danger. We must use a soap that will kill these germs or make them inactive. We should wash with it often — and always before meals. Any good soap will not do. Lifebuoy is the soap that makes us safe. It contains a germicide. Laboratory tests have proved its value.

A safe way — a luxurious way

Washing often with Lifebuoy Soap makes one safe from germs but it does more than that. It is a luxurious soap, based on two palm oils and its creamy lather is a delightful beauty treatment for the skin and complexion. Millions have found this to be true. They get all the joys of an exquisite skin soap. Protection from germs is there too.

Use Lifebuoy in the bath and you will be safe from body odours for many hours. No perfume in it — just a mild, refreshing, zetoleum scent which disappears after use, but tells you that you are safe and protected.

Children need Lifebuoy's protection. At school and at play they encounter disease germs.

Keep Lifebuoy on the wash basin so that all the family can benefit by its protection against germs. It will beautify their complexions and keep them healthy. Your dealer has Lifebuoy ready for you. Order a supply today.

TOUR OF MANITOBA HOCKEY TEAM IN EUROPE AIDS GAME

London, Apr. 8 (By the Canadian Press)—"We have had a great time in Europe," said Dr. Mackenzie of the Manitoba hockey team in the course of an interview with the sports editor of Reuters recently.

The team are just concluding a strenuous time on the continent where they did not lose a match and while they are in England they are meeting — and defeating —the pick of England's teams.

Although Canada has once again annexed the world's ice hockey championship, the members of the Manitobas team were greatly impressed by the quality of the ice hockey played in Europe and more particularly in Berlin and in Switzerland. Dr. Watson, a member of the Canadian team, said, however, take a great deal of credit for this improvement, for he has played ice hockey regularly during his residence in Prague and, as he intends to spend all summer in Edinburgh, it is hoped that his influence upon ice hockey in Great Britain will also have its effect.

Dr. Mackenzie is also returning to Europe to work in one of the Swiss hospitals, and he doubtless will carry on the good work begun by Canadian teams on the continent.

Dr. Mackenzie and his team mates spoke very highly of the quality of ice hockey played in England and paid tribute to the splendid rinks which are subsidized throughout the country. Interest in skating in England is keen, Dr. Mackenzie said, good gates which the Canadians and various European teams are drawing in England are sufficient proof that interest in the fastest game in the world is developing quickly with British spectators.

The fine sportsmanship of the Canadian and British players and the fact that they play for no other motive than their sheer love of the game appeals to the sporting instincts of the public in England and while the British born players realize that they still have to learn they are gradually improving under the very expert tuition of the best players of Canadian resident in England.

OWEN DECLINES TO PLAY FOOTBALL

Cambridge, Mass., April 8—If any invitation to participate in the Harvard Spring football practice is extended to George Owen, it will be respectfully declined, the former Crimson all round athlete and star Boston Bruin defence man said today.

The report had it that Owen would visit the stadium late this week and join Eddie Casey players a taste of real football by scrimmaging against them.

"If it were tennis or golf, I might be ready to play, but I can see no good reason for risking a broken leg in a football scrimmage."

After visiting the Harvard rum or, George was asked to comment on the Montreal report that he intended to retire from professional hockey

"So far as I know," he said, "I'll be with the Bruins next season. My arrangements with the club has been from year to year and I haven't talk ed about the 1931-32 season with the management. I got a great deal of enjoyment from the game this winter and I'll enjoy it again. If I do, it depends on arrangements."

NIAGARA FALLS MAY GO SENIOR

Niagara Falls, April 8—It is probable that Niagara Falls' present junior O.H.A. championship team will blossom out in senior company next year if plans being made by local sportsmen are successful. YOUNG LOVER TOOK LIVES

Dodge City, Kan., April 7. — Because their parents frowned on their school romance, Margaret Reamy, 17 and Lyndl Canady, 18, decided suicide was preferable to separation.

The bodies of the two were found today, after they had been missing since noon Sunday. Margaret was dead, Lyndl was unconscious. The boy apparently had killed his young sweetheart and then shot himself. The pistol was found in the car park ed on a farm.

Shortly before the tragedy, both the boy and the girl wrote notes to their parents on pieces of wrapping paper. Both said "Good-bye." One note written to Canady's father, a deputy sheriff, gave him directions for finding the bodies.

The two were anxious to be married, their parents said. Margaret's father wanted her to finish high school next year, however, and Canady's parents wanted him to attend college.

The parents of the two said they had no objection whatever to the two keeping company, but thought they were much too young to think of marriage.

Young Canady's condition remains critical.

WINDSOR CLINCH HOCKEY LAURELS

Buffalo Held to Scoreless Tie by Border City Players Last Night

Fort Erie Arena, April 8—Windsor won the International Hockey League championship here last night when they held Buffalo to a scoreless tie in an overtime game. The Bisons needed a victory over the Bulldogs to capture the Teddy Oke trophy. Buffalo finishes in second place in the play-offs, one point ahead of Cleveland.

On the play last night the Bisons deserved to win, but their unquestionable attacks met a stubborn Windsor defence, and Smith in goal was unstoppable. He turned aside many shots labelled for the net, while his scrimmaging which there were many—his cage bore a charmed life. The Bulldogs played a defensive game throughout, and with the exception of about ten minutes in the second period seldom made any concerted attempt to score.

Both teams played a fast and hard checking game, while combination play was mostly confined to two men attacks. Taugher had only about half as many shots to stop as Smith, and the Buffalo goalie had longer spells to turn aside.

Windsor on Defensive

Windsor played purely defensive hockey, and much of the time relied on lifts and clearing the puck the length of the rink to avert the steady pressure of the Bison attacks. The Windsor forwards back-checked steadily and effectively throughout remaining as many often by Buffalo in three or four scrambles in front of the Windsor cage Smith emerged with the puck when the players were umpired.

Buffalo jumped into the fray in the first period, and never let up in their attempt to score. It was a pretty tired Windsor team when they left the ice when the game was over to stand up under such a persistent drive as Buffalo unleashed. The Bisons never quit, but with Windsor packing the centre zone their every else line it seemed impossible to make any headway in closing in on the Windsor citadel.

YOUNGSTER DROWNS ON FATHER'S FARM

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Apr. 8.—Stanford Dale, aged 8 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Dale of Sylvan Valley, was drowned in the river running through his father's farm late yesterday afternoon. The boy, with his brother and a cousin, was playing along the creek banks. Stanford had a sling-shot and it flew out of his hand landing out on the ice of the creek. He ran to recover it and the ice, rotted by the sun, gave beneath water. The current drew him down the ice. The body was recovered 2½ hours later by the father, who had gone away a portion of the ice.

On the Sport Trail

The baseball season is just around the corner. President R. A. Elliott of Deloro, of the Central Ontario Baseball League, also president of the O. D. A. A. has called the annual meeting of the C. O. B. L. for Saturday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. at three o'clock. Invitations have been sent to delegates from Kingston, Peterboro, Oshawa, Port Hope, Cobourg Belleville, the ninth member point to a successful year if the towns mentioned will come in and back their team. Baseball is popular in this section of the province and if this six team group could be organized it would bring back fond memories of other years. At least the four major cities in Eastern Ontario should enter the league and record a very interesting season for the provincial playdowns.

The O. B. A. A. practically assured the future of the senior series a trip to the Olympic games in Los Angeles, in 1932 at their annual meeting held in Peterboro. This is a question that has to be fully considered because it will require considerable money to send a team that distance. It is a big trip for any club and for that reason if no other the C. O. B. A. should operate. Some missionary work has been done and it is expected that at the meeting on Saturday that Peterboro, Belleville and Kingston will signify their intention of joining with Oshawa the doubtful member. As the motor company in Oshawa is now working at full capacity, there are no doubt many players that could make the grade. Oshawa has lost a real ball player in Gordie Young.

If Peterboro manufacturers all the players in one pool to form a senior club, they will be a team to be feared. There is a wealth of fine material in Peterboro and they would have one of the wisest leaders in "Shiner" Johnson in the league. Kingston has practically the same team as last year that should be good enough to give all the boys a battle. Walter Gerow, the best manager in the C. O. B. L. has the makings of a fine squad with additions that will bring new faces and real ball players. Mecaffrey, the new accountant at the Royal Bank, is a basketball player and baseball player of note and he would be available under the residence rule, while there are many others who will make the team not mentioning the old standbys, who will form the backbone of the organization.

MILLS PITCHED WELL FOR LEAFS

Indianapolis, Ind., April 8—Pitcher Arthur Mills won the route against the Indianapolis Indians here yesterday afternoon but the Toronto Leafs could not do any effective hitting behind him and he had to accept a 4 to 0 decision. He was the first of three exhibition games which the Leafs play at Washington Park here this week.

Mills permitted the Indians eight hits, four of which were bunched. A smart double play in this frame ended Mills for, following it, Emmet McCann, making his first appearance in an Indianapolis uniform, doubled a home run over the left field fence Mills yielded four hits in the next six frames but the Indians clustered their hard singles behind an error by the usually reliable Rogell to get the winning runs in the fifth.

Five Hits for Leafs N

The Leafs collected only five hits off the combined offerings of Letty Hall and Leslie Barnhart. Hill, the starting pitcher, is a sturdy youngster obtained from Quincy in the Three I League. The Leafs bunched three of their hits off him in the fourth for their only counters. Barnhart, a right-hander, worked the last four innings and held the Leafs to one hit, a single by Mills.

The Leafs garnered seven all fans but it was a listless contest, almost devoid of features. The weather was much more suitable than that experienced in Louisville and Mills requested that he be allowed to pitch in the opener. He looked strong for at the finish the ball do the Mart.

The eight hits made off Mills included a home run and three doubles one of the doubles was an ordinary fly to left field which art Rubic misjudged badly. He ran in to catch the ball and it sailed a few feet over his head.

Speedometer tests of a quality light indicate that fifty-eight miles an hour is a top speed for three hands, and forty miles is the average "cruising" speed.

Clean inside-well outside!

"THIS business of being well, is not as difficult as most people make it. According to the doctors, the rules for most of us are few and simple—rest, exercise, and sleep right; keep yourself internally clean.

Doctors pretty well agree that (barring germ diseases) most illness and headache, are due to failure or inability to keep "clean inside."

In blaming this condition for most of our sickness, so they agree on the safe way to relieve it—keeping clean inside by the Nujol method of treatment. Crystal clear Nujol is not a medicine. It contains no drugs.

Two things you have to remember if you want to enjoy Nujol health at all times.

One: Don't expect results overnight.

Two: Be sure you get Nujol. Your druggist has the drugless product in a sealed package, trade-marked "Nujol" to protect you.

INSIST ON NUJOL REFUSE SUBSTITUTES

JILTED

By Margaret Widdemer

Of course, on Lester's salary, there was small excuse for a maid. But Helen could see what had happened: a more and more helpless, hurt and tangled Jessica, a more and more bewildered, irritable and desperate Lester, who finally got a maid whether or no, and left to see any other way but cutting the knot. And Jessica wasn't handling the maid any too well, or seeming to; wasn't the type Jessica could handle.

She stood, presently, a large, plump, slatternly cream-colored nine teen-year-old, elaborately primped and waved hair in the bob-cover of pink silk that Jessica had given her, found to be her usual headgear even when waiting at table. Her paper bags she pulled out of her string-bag and spread on the porcelain table-top, without a look at Jessica—that's top, were all obviously delicatessen-bought.

"I am Mrs. Stanley's sister, Miss Heather," she said, flat and flip, as in charge now till she is well again."

Sadie greeted Helen with great amiability.

"I hopes you had an enjoyable trip down," she offered with the unconsciousness of the state of the house which a change might have brought. She rocked off into the other room to hang up her coat, and down in the well the ready roasted chicken, the bologna, the salad, the bought cakes nuts and the cream she had brought in, Helen left her, and returned to the other room.

These babes in the wood would be her have a free hand in managing, she knew, only too gratefully to have her submit the responsibility of straightening things out for them. She went down and down a flight of expensive secretary. It was furnished with a blue feathered pen, a striped bridge score and a pile of unpaid bills. She dug her own stationery and fountain pen out of her bags and sat down again with a sense of blessed peace and relief at the set, to write Ethan.

Jessica called her from the kitchen door.

"Her week's up tomorrow," she whispered. "After you've paid her, do discharge her and get another one! It will serve her good and right. Why one night she's going to a ball, and she hid all the roe for her horrid husband, and Lester loves roe!"

Helen snatched the opportunity. She went out to Sadie, who was singing blithely over her work of laying out "cold cuts" on a platter and told her paid and discharged in ten minutes. Sadie's sensibility was up against any such small thing as this.

"I been thinkin' of goin' anyway," she remarked. "I'll oblige you till tomorrow, though."

"Of course, you will. You're paid till then," said Helen, at which Sadie looked surprised then grinned politely and said, "Yas'm. Of course."

Lovey's young wrapped her fade round to such an extent that she had indeed put away rather more than half of what she bought for dinner in a cupboard she had found in the row of box cereals on the shelf. As it was carefully wrapped Helen had no objection to disinterring it and putting it in the refrigerator while Sadie was setting the bridge-table in the living room for three; and Sadie only stole back into that of it when she went next day.

It was not till the next evening that Helen found time to talk over things with Lester. They had put Jessica to bed with the new novel Ethan had given Helen to read on the train and sat down in the living room with a tray of bits and fruit for builder of self-respect known as a budget.

"I don't know where it goes," said Lester irritably. We started with a big budget—"

He hauled out a dusty, blue silk bound booklet with The Bride on it. He found two others, one not but cutting the corner, and all across to Helen, "but it never seemed to mean anything different," she said, "she's such a baby."

Helen nodded. "She was a baby And she always" would be. And—Helen fared the fact, with that clear-eyed attitude born of the complications with Ethan had given her—Jessica's attitude made her more appealing as it was kind she was going to have a baby, and Lester was pleased.

Things were as bad as they well could be financially. The going of the maid was not so much, Jessica break down and demand Helen.

She loved that phrase," said Lester, "and as she said, it was only fifteen dollars a month to pay on it——"

"You still have the radio and phonograph," Helen pointed out, feeling like a monster of harshness. "Now let's count up what you're paying out in installments——"

Things were not so bad as Helen had feared, Lester was living beyond his means, but not badly and the installments on various things were keeping him from doing anything but get further behind. But a hundred dollars—quarter with the advance of the baby grand——would put him out of it for the time being. He would have to borrow on his life insurance to manage the hospital bill. But he had expected to do that anyway; and there were prospects of a raise.

"If you could explain to Jessica," he said, his face flushing, "that I can't come home in office hours, even if I'm passing near with a bunch of pep—you know, girls don't understand about such things. They're like it, you know—and we do need the raise——"

Helen nodded, smiling a little to herself. To Lester, Jessica was all the girls in the world....Helen's heart hurt her pride a little to come to Ethan with less than an absolute tenderness; but Jessica's needs came before that.

"I have more than that—fived," she said, "and then flushing, "that I can't come home in office hours, even if I'm passing near with a bunch of pep—you know, girls don't understand about such things. They're like it, you know—and we do need the raise——"

Helen nodded, smiling a little to herself. To Lester, Jessica was all the girls in the world....Helen's heart hurt her pride a little to come to Ethan with less than an absolute tenderness; but Jessica's needs came before that.

KIDDIES COLLECT EASTER EGGS

Little Hope For Baseball in Picton This Year

PICTON, April 8.—Following the custom established for many years the Picton Public Schools made their annual Easter collection of eggs for the Richmond Hill Orphanage, which was formerly located in Picton. This year 138 dozen eggs were collected from the various grades.

By Car

Keith Snider, four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Snider Simcoe was severely injured on Monday afternoon when hit by a motor car on Main street. Snider, Mr. and Mrs. Snider were in Dr. Alyea's office, the little boy ran across the street in front of a car coming from the east, after having first stopped to let a car from the west pass by. The lad was picked-up and carried to Dr. Alliston's office where he soon regained consciousness. He was severely bruised and it is feared suffered a broken collar bone and other injuries.

Baseball

It is unlikely that Picton will have a baseball team of any kind this season. A team was entered but there was not supported well enough to make it a success financially. Soft ball is taking the place and is very much all over the county. A league is being formed soon.

Than Military Tailor

One of the largest crowds on record was in attendance at the annual meeting of the branch of the Canadian Legion.

Major Stephen Bingham was elected President for the third successive term. Lieut. Jas. Imrie continues as first vice president and Major E. A. Adams as second vice president. Secretary-Major Jas. Mennie continues as secretary-treasurer an office which he has filled in a most creditable manner for some years.

A drive for more new members is being made and it is hoped to have most of the returned men as members.

Vice President Imrie reports that a large number of plans are in stage a military tatoo as an evening entertainment at the Armories. Five bands had been communicated with, including the Kilties Band of Toronto of 40 members the Kiltie Band of Cobourg and the Picton Girls' Band.

Dr. Gerald Allison, chairman of the Property Committee, suggested that money might be raised toward the purchase of a veteran's home through sponsoring a table at the Canal Bazaar, to be held next month.

A social time followed, refreshments being served. With 400 present at the piano, the veterans enjoyed some old-time songs.

The meeting was on April 14, when Rev. G. M. Scott will be the speaker.

A dance was held in the Oddfellows Hall on Wednesday evening and largely attended. Music was furnished by the Quinte All-Star Eight Robert Greenfield conductor, Whitney Bell.

The Armouries is being decorated for the fourth annual Military Ball of "C" Company, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, to be held on Thursday evening, the anniversary of the Battle of Vimy Ridge. Music for dancing is to be furnished by Bruno Parent and his orchestra of Kingston. The affair promises to be a brilliant one with guests coming from Belleville, Kingston, Madoc, Trenton, Cobourg, Bancroft, and other points outside of the county. With many Easter holiday visitors in town the affair will be graced by many out-of-town people.

At the Kiwanis Club meeting held last week, Prof. Iva Martin, head of Educational Training at the Royal Military College, Kingston, Prof. Martin was associated with the R.M.C. for 22 years and for a portion of this time was Director of Studies.

Mrs. Jessie Ramey was a guest of the Club on the occasion.

As the meeting this week, Mr. Spafford of Belleville is to give a talk on australia.

Mrs. Chas. Price is visiting her daughter Mrs. Finkerton and Rev. F. A. Pinkerton at Springford, Ont.

Miss Margaret Graves is a guest of Miss Fleurey, Lindsay.

LOAD TAKES FIRE

Consecon, April 8.—When Ray Slider, a farmer, was driving a load of straw along the Williamsburg Road, he heard a man shouting at him. Turning, Slider saw that his load was a mass of flames. He slid down on front and unhitched the horses before the flames touched them. It is believed that the straw was set ablaze by a spark from a cigaret. The Armondale Relief Association will pay Slider $60 for the loss of his wagon and straw.

DREW TRUE PICTURE OF AFRICAN CONTINENT BEFORE BELLEVILLE KIWANIS CLUB

O. Alyea Discusses Habits and Customs of Natives

"We are lead to believe that the African is degenerate but we could take a lot of lessons from him," declared O. Alyea, mining engineer, who has spent some years in that country,—yesterday, when he addressed the Kiwanis Club at their regular luncheon. Mr. Alyea explored that country looking for iron and gold ore and was in a position to study the native African in his native country and at close range. The address was quite interesting and very timely and the appreciation of the club was ably expressed by Harry Greenfield, Major Saunders moved the speaker, President George Cole presided at the luncheon, James Bankier was song leader and Frank Donnelson, Sergeant at Arms. Lee B. Riggs accompanied on the piano the community singing while Harold Barrett delighted with a solo and encore. Many guests were present at the luncheon and the welcome was extended to them by the president.

In opening his address the speaker expressed admiration for the work done by Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs and that there was a place in the world of pep for such organizations. Speaking of Africa as the dark continent he was wrong inasmuch as the speaker stated he had never been in any part of Africa, where the sun did not shine on everything visited. "Probably the figure of speech originated out of the darkness," said Mr. Alyea. He censured those who in advertising the new moving picture houses representing scenes in South Africa. Many of these originated in Hollywood excepting the pictures taken in Johannesburg. These were in the main true to life. Enlarging on this phase of his address Mr. Alyea said, "Rider Haggard's 'Africa Speaks' where a lion stood motionless while a shot was fired into the camera. "If these were wild lions the cameraman would be dead instead. He cited for a lion from stationary can not be done. He told of a lion invitation that jumped an eight foot palisade with ease. He told how he could rate the ox was on the inside at night and was outside in the morning and there was no evidence of any lions being in the vicinity.

Dealing with the men in his area interested with lions and for some months never saw a lion, Mr. Alyea said seeing one. The speaker told of the natives and their habits, their physical actions and also of rhinoceros, which was nearly killed through his quarry by scorn and was insane to a certain degree. Speaking of the natives the speaker stated that the native was a keen living man, lived his own life and to himself and they are willing to play four square if the white will do the same. This is true of the interior but not so the coast where the native has come in close contact with the white and learned his many tricks and how to be overcunning. There are many dialects in the country with within a range of five miles there is a change and natives living in one area cannot talk to those in the next. However, they rate from the lowest type of existence to the highest intellect. The complete vocabulary of any tribe is from 300 to 500 words, and by no means complex. There sense of justice is keen. The native law is rigidly lived up to and in all cases the word is taken as the bond. The hospitality of the native is unbounded the only request they have that you leave their food in the same condition as found.

DISTRICT DEPUTY IS HERE TO NIGHT

Rt. Wor. Bro. W. McClung, District Deputy Grand Master for Prince Edward district, will make his official visit to Eureka Lodge No. 283 this evening. A delightful programme has been arranged for the fourth degree, while the officers in the lodge room will confer one of the degrees for the edification of the District Deputy. The programme will be short as many of the brethren have other engagements tonight and Eureka Lodge has always made it a practice of holding not too lengthy meetings. Rt. Wor. Bro. McClung is a gifted speaker and will no doubt have a real message for those who attend.

FIGHTING FLAMES AT CAMPBELLFORD

Campbellford, April 8—Fire is threatening a large portion of Ferris Woods on the south boundary of the town. Owners, assisted by others, fought the flames for several hours and though the fire brigade was called at 2 p.m., the flames gained headway. Much damage has been caused to the privately owned extensive wooded tract which for many years has been opened generously to the public. It is one of the beauty spots of the Trent waterway system.

"The Right of Way" Opening at the Capitol Tomorrow is Famous Novel

"Amongst the names entered in the register of those taking charge of services during Dr. Barnardo's time is that of Gilbert Parker (now Sir) who preached on the 19th of November, 1882. At this time he was a perpetual deacon of the neighbouring town of Trenton" . . . vide the Story of Christ Church, Belleville.

Sir Gilbert Parker, as the older residents of Belleville will recall, was born near Frankford and for some time resided in this city. During that period he taught at the Ontario School for the Deaf and Dumb, was editor of the Anglican Church at Trenton and later was professor of Elocution at the Trinity College of Toronto.

During the war he was chairman of an important committee in the House of Commons, and being a member of the Privy Council is now a baronet in London, England.

Those living in Belleville are fully acquainted with the many books of this famous author, who, incidentally, was the pioneer of Quebec stories.

One book in particular, "The Right of Way", has now been transferred to the silver screen and will be the presentation appears at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow for three days.

Gilbert Parker, in creating the famous character of "Beauty" Steele, presented a man who has no equal in characterization of ruthless yet loving, snobbish yet understanding; all interwoven in his quaintly as a criminal lawyer.

The story is laid in Canada and we see "Beauty" Steele just home from defending a murderer in court and his accusation of unfaithfulness on the part of his wife.

He discovers his brother-in-law, Billy, has stolen $10,000 from his safe and uses him in a humiliating manner. Billy confesses giving the money to a notorious gambler. He refuses promising to repay the money, "Beauty" is clubbed and thrown into the river, he is rescued by a grateful murderer but loses his memory.

In this mining town in the northwest Steele goes under-the name of Jim Carmichael and is in love with his landlord's daughter. His mind gradually clears and—

It would be unfair to complete the resume of this story, it spoils the interest of the greatest picture-goer.

Loretta Young is cast as Rosalie Eventsurl; Conrad Nagel as "Beauty" Steele and Fred Kohler as Joseph Portugals. In addition there is a distinguished cast in the minor roles.

Preceding the feature, the Audio Review, "Crazy Jazz" (sextet), "The Office Scandal" (a vaudellian) and "It Happened in Hollywood", an all-talking comedy, will be shown.

MAN HELD IN U. S. IS WANTED HERE

Accused of Using Name of General Mitchell In Cheque Frauds

St. Paul, Minn., April 8—Cheque frauds in Canada and the United States were attributed by police to a man who said he was Daniel Kingbury, of Rochester, N.Y., today.

Kingbury, 32, a surveyor, was in jail without charge, after, authorities claimed, he attempted to cash a bogus $100 cheque.

They said he posed as a "doctor" and as a "general" in cashing $5,000 and $1,000 cheques in Toronto, Montreal, Boston, New York, Chicago, Detroit, and other cities and that he had confessed. He was accused of using the name of General Claudius Mitchell, dean of the school of applied science and engineering at the University of Toronto, the police said.

In other cases they said he used names taken from the 1925 year book of the "Engineering Institute of Canada.

STRUCK BUGGY AND INJURED OCCUPANT

TRENTON, April 8.—George Bonter of Redneersville, aged about 60, driving a motor car along the Carrying Place Road about two miles south of Trenton, crashed into a horse-drawn vehicle driven by Richard Humble, of Carrying Place, this morning. Mr. and Mrs. Humble and their son, Ernest, were thrown clear of the wagon, but the horse was hit and badly injured. Mrs. Humble suffered fractures of the collar bone and three ribs, while the others were badly shaken up. The owner of the car was unhurt, and will appear in the police court at Brighton, charged with reckless driving.

Guelph, Apr. 8.—His whereabouts unknown for 42 years, William Bolt, of Saginaw, Mich., gave his sister, Mrs. Robert Boyce, of Rockwood, a pleasant surprise when he paid an unexpected visit to her home. Such a lengthy period had elapsed since the two had met, that Mrs. Boyce was unaware of her brother's identity until he gave his name. He was born and brought up in Eramosa Township but left for the States 50 years ago. During his absence he has been successful in business in Saginaw, and is the owner of 11 cars,—as he states.

SHOTS WOUND TWO IN CHICAGO STORE

Cornered Thugs Fire Guns in Panic-Stricken Crowd

Chicago, April 8—To the crescendo of women's screams in Marshall Field and Company's Loop department store late today, two robbers wounded three men, slugged a woman and threw the first floor and basement of the famous store into pandemonium.

One of the robbers escaped. The other was captured in the crowds of hysterical women after he had shot Kasimir Krasinski, Powell Townsend and James Dewey, employes of the store, and had slugged Mrs. Sarah Hedberg, a clerk.

The robbers had grabbed a wallet containing $1,176 from John Gallagher, restaurant manager, outside the store. Gallagher chased the robbers into the store. When they saw that capture was inevitable, one of them started to shoot Frederick Miller, a floorwalker, jumped on the gunman knocked away his pistol, recovered the money and held him captive until police arrived.

IS CHARGED WITH CAUSING HEAVY LOSS

KINGSTON, April 8—Harry Doyle aged 44, was taken into custody by Provincial Constables P. W. Barrett and D. B. Wagar, of Napanee, on a charge of setting fire to a barn belonging to his brother, Michael Doyle in the Township of Ernestown on Sunday night. The barns were totally destroyed along with 27 head of cattle. Arraigned before Magistrate Graham, of Napanee, the accused was remanded for a week. At the time of the fire, it was reported that the deceased had helped to rescue some of the cattle and had suffered from shock. This is now denied.

CITY MAY SEIZE LOTTERY FORTUNE

Buffalo Family May Lose $850,000 Under Law Passed in 1829

BUFFALO, N.Y., April 8—A law passed in 1829, providing that overseers of the poor in this state can use the proceeds of lotteries for the money they won, may deprive Clayton C. Wood and his family of the $800,000 they won, may deprive Clayton C. Sweetman on the Grand Island Strip, Steeplechase.

Joseph A. Ambach, director of the city welfare department, admitted today he has asked Corporation Counsel Charles L. Feldman for an opinion on the almost forgotten law. He said the "fairly well-known Buffalo citizen" was prepared to appear before the welfare board tomorrow and demand that Woods turn over to the poor his winnings.

Ambach declared Feldman's opinion had not reached him yet, and emphasized he personally was not pressing action against Woods. Counsel merely was preparing himself in event "the citizen" appeared and demanded action.

"PRINCE CHAP" WAS PRESENTED

Successful Play Was Given at Holiday Entertainment

"The Prince Chap", a charming comedy drama produced by the Young People's Society of Holloway Street, United Church under the direction of Miss Jessie B. Tuite which was given with much success in the Collegiate auditorium earlier in the season was presented last night by request, in the church hall. A very large crowd attended and enjoyed the interesting play, cleverly presented by the talented cast.

The same players took part in the performance as when it was first given. Between the acts during the curtain rose there was music. The Misses Salisbury played a piano duet and Miss Helen Brown recited. After the play the members of the cast were entertained at a supper by the ladies of the church. After the very tempting repast a hearty vote of thanks to the ladies for their kindness was proposed by the cast.

Dusty Armor

BY ETHEL WILLIS HEWITT

Daniel Blake stopped, suddenly, near the lake. The eyes of the late afternoon sun streaked across the water and caught a glint of gold in the woman's hair at a small boy, intent on the launching of a tiny sail boat. That might be Bobby—for he knew. Any one of the little boys sailing in that park might be his son. The thought was tinged with bitter self reproach. It was the hope of getting a glimpse of Bobby that had brought Dan to the park every day for a month. He felt a sudden crushing urge to gather that little golden figure in his arms and pour his soul with a touch of thous baby love. A tired smile curved his his straight mouth, and the gaunt, haggard face, molded by lean years, significantly if not materially, settled in determined lines. He turned abruptly and stumbled down the path toward the lake. As he approached, the boy glanced up, a startled look in his blue eyes.

"If you were having trouble with the boat, Perhaps I can fix the sail," Dan said huskily.

The boy continued to stare at him. "I hope I didn't frighten you, Sonny," Dan added hurriedly.

"You bet you did on the boat.

"You can fix it if you want to. You look as if you couldn't frighten me, I'm a big boy now," boasted the proud little voice.

"For a minute you took me by surprise, I — I thought you was the doctor," he continued, leaning down on his sturdy little arms and regarding Dan with serious eyes.

Dan thrilled to that wide, clear gaze, and lowering his arms he drew the sail into place and fastened it securely.

"And who is this prince you're expecting?" he asked, meeting the blue eyes with steady scrutiny.

"Why, he's my father. My mother and the princess, too, know. They were happy at first, until the prince rode away on his fiery steed, by his shining armour 'n everything. It made the princess awfully unhappy," he said soberly.

"Course I was very small then. I never knew about it 'cept when dad Nora read it off the back of the picture on mother's dresser. It says, 'Thy my princess whom I love better than the world.'"

Dan felt a strange numbness about his heart.

"It was silly for Mummy to cry and the unhappy—it is all right there, that he loved her better than the world. He'll have to come riding back soo and then he'll be happy ever after. 'Course Mummy didn't know Dad's back so I suppose it is here, she—" the childish voice went on, but Dan lost the thread of words.

The flushed eager little face before him, blurred in a vision of riotously happy years, before money had been his god, and success. Years when he and Betty had shared everything, struggle and hardship, and the coming of Bobby with all the torture and utter peace and ecstacy of his advent. Then Uncle Peter dying, leaving them his estate, his business and a generous fortune, and the curse of sudden wealth. Betty, the gracious mistress of a lordly estate, and his possessed of a sudden dislike for work. He refused to take charge of his uncle's business. Why should he work? He wanted to travel, to see the world. At times when he wasn't himself, there were ugly scenes and finally he had gone off on his own, had sailed the seven seas—seen the world, and it had taken three years for his soul to sicken of the husk on which he was feeding. Then he had come home, not to the fatted calf but to Betty, who had stood back in the glimpse of Betty or his little son, while he played magnificently out of that tered life, the semblance of their former home. Now that he was face to face with his boy, he dared not touch him. On a bench, in the distance, he saw Nora. He felt sure that his identity was safe, even at close range his gaunt shabbiness would deceive her old eyes. But she showed no signs of moving as he didn't hurry.

From that day a certain warmth crept into his bleak life. He didn't work was too hard nor too difficult, for only it ended in a quick hour with Bobby. They became fast friends. Nora sat always at a distance, with a watchful eye on them. Each day there was something to learn to delight the heart of his little son, and in return he, Dan, became with him the feel of soft arms about his neck, kisses on his cheek, a wet little kiss on his lips and the whisper,

"If you was the prince you'd never ride away and make the princess unhappy would you?"

And Dan had hugged him fiercely and rumpled his hair and told him that the princess was under a spell and couldn't help himself, but that sometime he would come riding back as, sure as anything.

Then Dan had begun to see Bobby waiting. Instead, Nora came down the path to meet him.

"Oh, Mr. Dan, there's been an accident Bobby's been hurt."

Dan went white under his tan.

"Hurt," he gasped in a choky voice. "Don't know how bad, sir. But you'll come. Miss Betty might be there," she pleaded, wringing her hands.

Dan saw her dazedly.

"Bobby my God" — of course I'll come, we're wasting time."

He bolted down the path the panting Nora as close behind as the walk would permit.

"Of course I knew it was you, sir, but I thought you'd be wanting Bobby all to yourself—"

But by that time they had reached the house and in two bounds, Dan was up the steps. In the upper hall he saw Betty come out of Bobby's room and close the door softly. The mere sight of her made him weak and giddy, like rare, heady wine. She looked up and met his gaze. Its took a step, blindly, stumbling against the railing for support then she was in his arms. He heard her dear husky voice whisper his name over and over and he knew, somehow, that his pilgrimage was over.

"Is—is he hurt badly?" he managed out of the staggering confusion.

"Not hurt at all dear, only dazed and a bit frightened from the fall." For a moment she was sobbing against him, her wet face close to his. Then she drew him through the door to Bobby's bed.

"Darling, he—the prince did come riding back," she leaned down and kissed the boy.

Bobby scrambled up on his elbow regarding Dan with reproachful eyes. "You—you didn't like the real prince all the time? I—I don't think it was very nice of you, not to tell me," he said in a hurt, injured tone.

Dan smiled into the serious upturned eyes.

"Well you see, I was on my back from a long journey and my armour needed shining up—I guess I had to be careful about all that you know. Then today when you and dad got yourself knocked down, I have to rush over without even a spear or a sword." There was a light and in his shoulder and his gaze held Betty's across the little white bed.

"Well, do you 'spose that not having the armour shined up, you are a little happy ever after?" Bobby asked with much concern.

Dan went around and gathered Betty in his arms, through blinding tears he saw her dear face and somehow, unworthy as he was, he, kissed it.

Bobby grinned at them knowingly. "Now you're sure up old man. That's something like," he announced in a swagger tone.

Dan felt Betty start.

"Where ever did you hear that Bobby?" she asked in a shocked voice.

"Why, I heard the prince say it. 'The park one day, so I guess it's all right,' he added calmly.

Dan smiled into Betty's eyes.

"Oh my dear, my dear——you'll have to watch yourself. Little ears, you know," she whispered against his cheek.

His arms tightened about her.

"Darling, I don't deserve the chance, but," his thoughts stopped suddenly, against the blur of the sweet scented intimate little room and the glorious confusion of Betty in his arms—Betty— his birthright that he had so nearly sold for a mess of porridge.

To think of a clever but cutting remark and then not make it—there is a sign of nobility.

Local Shoe Salesman Completes Special Training Course in Orthopedics

Mr. Robert Turner, well known member of the sales staff of The Haines Shoe House, has just returned to Belleville, from Toronto, where he has been taking a special course in Orthopedics and Scientific Shoe Fitting at the Scholl Orthopedic Training School.

The advantage of taking this special course is due to the fact that today the shoe salesman faces problems that his predecessor, twenty years ago, did not. Cement pavements and other conditions of human life have so changed the human foot that seven out of ten persons are suffering from foot trouble of some sort.

To relieve these people has come to be a necessary part of advanced shoe service. To provide such a service means a training in the scientific fitting of shoes and handling of foot troubles. Mr. Turner, and those other shoe men who attended this special course at Toronto, were taught shoe fitting by first going through special studies on the anatomy of the human foot, symptoms and causes of the different types of foot weakness; finally, the best methods of handling these abnormal foot conditions. Practical demonstrations were given of how even so-called good feet were gradually being thrown out of shape by wearing the wrong type, or last, of footwear.

One of the features that Mr. Turner found particularly interesting, was the correct way to make a print of a foot on a Dr. Scholl Pedograph Machine, and how to read this print or chart so as to find out the true condition of the foot and type of footwear or corrective appliances required to assure foot comfort.

The accompanying photograph shows the class while in session. Mr. Turner may be seen sitting in the third row.

The Haines Shoe House extends an invitation to all t heir customers and friends to call and secure a Pedograph print of their stockinged foot, whether or not they are having any trouble with their feet or footwear.

JEDDO COAL
Aristocrat of Anthracite
JEDDO COAL comes from a small, restricted basin in the heart of the Lehigh Anthracite Region. By some freak of nature, the coal in the small basin runs tougher in structure and higher in content of pure carbon than in any other place in the Pennsylvania Anthracite Field.
However, no matter how inherently pure a coal may be, it must be prepared with painstaking care if the final result is to be satisfactory in every way. JEDDO COAL is prepared in a "Chance Cleaner," the most efficient and modern method known.
And what is the resulting prepared JEDDO COAL? It is a tough structure, long, even burning Lehigh Anthracite, of outstanding purity.
At this time your coal supply is probably low. 'Phone CONGER LEHIGH for a load of JEDDO, 'the Arhstocrat of Anthracite since 1858.'
Order JEDDO COAL by name, and look for the Certification Stamps on your delivery ticket, one for each ton of JEDDO COAL delivered. This is the producer's guarantee to you.

IMMEDIATE SALES IMPRESSIONS ARE CREATED BY DAILY NEWSPAPERS

Buying Follows Close Upon Reading

Present day business conditions demand keen discrimination in the selection of advertising media. All other considerations are subordinated to that of---RESULTS.

Immediate sales are the goal. Every dollar must do a real selling job.

To-day, more than ever, manufacturers and retailers insist on direct cash returns from their advertising investment.

The daily newspaper stands out as the medium which best meets cash-register requirements.

Daily newspaper advertising spurs to immediate action.

It influences men and women to buy now the products advertised.

Response from daily newspaper advertising is assured. Business executives know that daily newspaper advertising moves to action vast groups of people quickly.

Manufacturers and retailers are analyzing their advertising investment more thoroughly to-day than ever before. They are insistent that their advertising must sell—and they know that the daily newspaper is the one sure medium for that purpose.

EASTERTIDE IN MADOC CHURCHES WAS CELEBRATED

Madoc, April 8 (Special to Ontario Intelligencer)—A bright, beautiful Easter Sunday morning brought large congregations to all the churches in Madoc Village on the 5th of April In Trinity United Church as early as 6.30 a.m. congregation was assembled for the quarterly Communion service Rev. C. W. Rowe conducted the service, and a good attendance of the choir members were assembled to take part in the songs of praise and rejoicing. In the absence of the organist, Miss L. Ramsay, the organ was presided over by Mrs. L. Ashley. The Anthem chosen for the morning service was "Easter Morn", and a beautiful solo was contributed by Mrs. W. Hulin, "Will Never Forget." Easter hymns were chosen, and the morning's subject chosen by Rev. Mr. Rowe was "Easter and the Commonplace." The church was beautified by Easter lilies, and the morning's service was closed with the communion service in which a large part of the congregation took part.

The evening service was also Easter hymns and Easter message, "The Living Saviour" and special music and was well rendered by a large choir. The Anthem was "Christ is Risen" and Mr. Scruton contributed a beautiful violin solo. The Ladies' quartette, Mesdames Whytock, Hulin, Ashley and Miss Fair, sang "Now the Day is Over" and effective benediction, instead of the Vesper hymn "Christ, the Lord, is Risen Today" was sung.

Easter services at the Church of St. John the Baptist, Madoc, were made bright and gladsome for the celebration of the Resurrection of the Christ, as a conclusion to the series of services of Lent which were closed with the morning and evening services of Good Friday, and the long hours of intercession and Litanies during the hours of one, two and three o'clock of Friday afternoon.

The altar of the church bore the beautiful calla lilies and reading desk, lectern and pulpit were surrounded by Easter lilies, and bright scarlet and crimson geraniums, with their typical colours, and glorious promise of nature's resurrection. Potted plants were also used to decorate the windows, so the glow of color, the mystical music and the earnest Easter message all told of the living Saviour, and the glad and thrilling gospel of the "Risen" Lord.

The congregation was the largest gathered there since the Easter of 1921. All the hymns were telling of Easter, and the lessons were from Col: 3, and St. John's Gospel, 20: 19-28. Rev. T. Bayley Jeakins took for his text, Mark 16, verses 3 & 4. "And they said among themselves, Who shall roll away the stone from the door of the sepulchre? and when they looked they saw that the stone was rolled away, for it was very great."

"I do not wish on this Easter morning to overlay the one sacred thought of the Saviour's Resurrection from the dead with other and lesser thoughts, or to hide from your eyes the one central figure in the Easter picture by drawing your attention to the other figures around it. But the Scriptures give such a blessed prominence to the Holy women on this great festival that I would like to say a little about them. Women are inseparably associated with the story of the Resurrection. It was to a woman our Blessed Lord appeared first on that first Easter Day. It can hardly be wrong then to dwell for a moment on the lessons to be learned from the women at the Sepulchre. Those women disciples teach us a lesson of self-forgetfulness and unselfish devotedness that is very touching. They are forgetful first of all of their own grief and sorrow—of that dread weight which has been lying on their hearts ever since their Master was taken from them and the sad Man from their sight. There is but one wish in their hearts, that is to perform those last sad offices for the dead Christ which has been impossible to perform before, and full of this one thought they forgot their own sorrow, their fear, and disappointment, their cherished hopes. Then they are wholly forgetful of the danger they run in thus openly showing their love to one who had been crucified as a malfactor and they are entirely forgetful of their own weakness. It is only when they are well on their way to the Sepulchre that they think about the matter and say: "We shall roll us away the stone, that there is no question of going back and so they come to the Sepulchre.

"And here is another point which I cannot refrain from touching upon, and that is the unquestioned truthfulness of the whole Scripture narrative of the first glorious Easter morn. We know that some in their eagerness to assail the Christian faith, and to deny the Lord's Resurrection have been put to strange shifts to explain away that blessed fact of Christianity, but the strangest thing they say is this, that because the disciples were expecting such a Resurrection, they were perceived into believing it. Now if there is one thing clearer than another it is this, that such a Resurrection was the very last thing they expected. Look at these Holy women. Why, the very question, "Who shall roll us away the stone?" shows clearly that all their thoughts were with a dead and not a living Christ. No, the disciples never invented the Resurrection story. They could never have been brought to believe it.

"And yet," went on the preacher, "if Christ be not Risen, then ye are yet in your sins, and they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished. Then listen to the Easter message. Be not afraid." "Fear not, He is risen" and our loved ones will rise again for them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him." We may look in the graves of those we have loved, with aching hearts and streaming eyes, but our search if we believe them to have died in Christ, is not for them, but for our own loss and bereavement."

They asked their question, but received no comforting answer, but only because it was already answered. They found, not a dead Christ but a living Saviour. So we, seeking very may find a living and a guiding Saviour. He calls us to work for Him. Our difficulties and our fears vanish, as we find Him as a personal Saviour. We look at the Risen Christ, and in the stone, of fear and difficulties is rolled away. Christ is risen from the dead, and our loved ones and we also shall rise again. "Be not afraid." It was the declaration of the Angel of the Resurrection—it was the salutation of the Risen Master on the first Easter morn.

The Hallelujah Chorus was rendered by the organist as the organ Prelude, and a full choir joined in the Processional hymns as they marched to their places. After the Communion service, the Benediction used was "Nunc Dimitis" and the congregation dismissed to the strains of St. George's March.

Evening service found a good congregation, and again the Procession-al hymn was of Easter, "Christ the Lord, is risen today" sung in the clear sweet notes of the younger choir. Easter Psalms were used, being Ps. 113 and 114, responsively. The Rector's text was from Col. 3:1, "If ye then be risen with Christ seek those things that are above."

The message was earnest and searching. Rev. Mr. Reynolds spoke of the message of Easter Day, the wonder of redemption and salvation. He said that God raised up Christ to be the first fruits of them that slept. Death is swallowed up in victory. The gates of Hell cannot prevail. The church calls all to join in the shouts of praise and hallelujahs. We deck our churches with flowers in token of the Resurrection. This is not only a fact to believe in, and to assent to, but to direct our lives. We may be partakers in the Resurrection. This was Paul's earnest desire, can we do without it? We cannot truly realize that that gate of eternal life is opened to us, and not walk through it. In order to enter into the joy of Easter, we need to feel within us that we are in truth buried with Christ, that we have crucified all our evil affections. The secret of the church's joy is this! that in the risen body of Jesus we have the stamp of eternity visibly put upon this human life of ours—it was not merely that His rising proved the work of redemption complete, it did more than that. It put the stamp of eternity upon the individual life of the man, Christ Jesus. It means He ever liveth to make intercession for us. In the resurrection of Christ we have the pledge and proof that His teaching was divine. This reflects on our future, of all who would enter within the veil. If we wish to truly participate in Easter joys, we must be content to live here, and we must gain practice. You and I must do our very best to-day as well as day. We must love the world a little less, love the world a little more. We must "set our affections on things above."

Are you anxiously wanting to know the risen Saviour? Why seek Him among the dead, or earth? Earth certainly is built on the reality of the resurrection, for lives would be full of despair but for the hope of the resurrection from the dead. If risen with Him, our affections will be turned above to the Saviour. We shall live unto Him, set Him in our hearts and minds. Light sprang up in the grave of the Saviour on that first Easter Day. The Angel's message was "He is risen."—a living Saviour, and a living faith. He sitteth on the right hand of God.

There is now no death, Jesus abolished death. We see Him above. Take a high view of life. Rise to a life of righteousness. The Risen Saviour is ever pleading. He is the open gateway of life that man may enter by the glorious inheritance. Death is swallowed up in victory.

Success in life does not consist in owning something but in becoming something.

RADIO FANS CORNER

Reception was perfectly terrible last night and the exact outstanding fault of course was its tendency to fade and how it did follow its inclination. A number of the stations were coming in on the same wave length and that didn't make things any better for the public at large.

Several notable guest stars are heard on the networks tonight including the "First Lady of the Screen," Ruth Chatterton, and she is heard at 8:30 during the presentation of the musical cocktail program — WABC carries this program.

Fritzi Scheff, who immortalized Victor Herbert's "Kiss Me Again" from his opera, "Mlle Modiste" will be mother of the guest stars tonight and will be heard over WEAF at 8:40. A medley of Victor Herbert's melodies will be included on the program and the chorus will be sung by Fritzi. She also sings the famous "Kiss Me Again."

Clarence Budington Kelland is interviewed by Grantland Rice tonight at 10:30 from WEAF and other numbers on the program will include vocal selections by Chester Gaylord and Leonard Joy's string orchestra will supply the usual musical program, or should be say, "unusual" musical program?

Wednesday night and we can again listen to Uncle Abe and David at 8:45 WEAF and later Amos 'n' Andy if Andy doesn't hurry up and get rid of those tickets some way we'll be tempted to throw them in the river or sample. The Varieties are on the air tonight from WEAF at 8.15 but no Sammy Herman. Sammy I'm afraid has departed from this program for ever but he's not forgotten.

Oliver Palmer and the Revellers at 9:30 from WEAF and at this same hour from WJZ Otto Gray and his Oklahoma Cowboys are to be guest artists during the Pleasure hour presentation. Vincent Lopez and his orchestra is heard over WEAF tonight at 10:30 while Richardson at midnight. The Crusaders tonight heard over WJZ at 8.30 take us to the north of England for their songs. The Cathedral of Yorkminster will be visited by the Crusaders. Guy Lombardo at 11.30 from WABC. I'll be seeing you.

POLICE CONVINCED ROBBERY MOTIVE IN GORDON MURDER

FIVE ALABAMA NEGROES PAY FOR ASSAULT IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

CHICAGO'S NEW MAYOR PLANS FOR CLEAN-UP

Cermak Already Pondering Over City Hall Clean-out

TO SMASH MACHINE

King George May Rest in Peace British Papers Assured

Chicago, Apr. 8.—Mayor-elect Anton J. Cermak hailed as "modern Savior," went to work tonight on his stupendous self-appointed task of redeeming Chicago's reputation, chasing away the gangsters and ridding the city of Thompsonism."

He was immersed literally by thousands of telegrams of congratulation concerning "Chicago's re-birth" and a "new deal for Chicago."

Some of the messages suggested that Chicago set aside the day of his election as one of "thanksgiving". Others foresaw a business revival for the city. All looked upon the "business administration" Cermak organized as a turning point in Chicago's hectic career as America's second largest city.

While the sober Cermak pondered over which city official he is to "fire," he be prepared to move Friday into the City Hall offices occupied for the last four years by the "circus mayor," William Hale Thompson, as London newspapers put in transatlantic telephone calls to Cermak's headquarters.

The British journalists all wanted to know whether Cermak felt like "Thompson, starting off by shooting King George on the snoot." They were assured that the King need fear no harm after threats from Chicago's chief excoriator.

High political office is nothing new to Cermak, the Bohemian immigrant who became successively coal miner, wood sawyer, real estate dealer and politician.

In his 38 years of public life in Chicago he has built his connection zealously of Cook County and became a multi-millionaire as a dealer in real estate.

Wreck Thompson Machine

He said he planned to resign the commissionership and plunge immediately into the wrecking of the famous Thompson political machine, the reorganization of the police department, the refinancing of the city government and the chasing away of Chicago's multitudinous gangsters.

"I have said in my campaign that I am going to give Chicago the best administration it ever had," Cermak explained. "I mean just that. It will not be necessary for anybody to apologize for me or any of my cabinet four years from now.

"It was not my personal popularity that resulted in my unprecedented victory," Cermak said. "It was an expression of faith in my ability to right the wrongs from which we have been suffering."

Although Chicago's new mayor was born in Kladno, Czechoslovakia, in 1873, and his education practically stopped with grade school, he speaks without a trace of accent even though he does stumble on "jaw-breaking" words and often ignores punctuating emphasis.

"I am no orator," he once explained. "A business man does not need to be an orator."

He is a fatherly sort of man, wears rimless glasses, dresses conservatively, has a full, ruddy face. And he smiles more often than he frowns. He is a "fired-up" fan and a frock coat, he'd pass convincingly as an old-time parson.

He believes that the prohibition laws are at the root of all Chicago's gangster evils and he thinks "it is a shame that our citizens can't have their beer and have it legally."

After singing Hymn 118 the meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. S. C. Gay.

Joan Crawford's Latest Fast Newspaper Drama

Star Seen as Reporter in "Dance Fools, Dance," Story of Chicago Underworld

Joan Crawford turns newspaper reporter in "Dance Fools, Dance" her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star vehicle which opened at The Belle Theatre yesterday.

In assigning Joan to this colorful role the producers have supplied a new angle to the gangster story. They have made her the heroine of as sensational a Chicago crime picture as might be pleased from any drama based upon the prevailing crime situation so familiar to newspaper readers.

Joan does the best work of her career in this role and couples with it some of the glamour and brightness of her "dancing daughter" pictures.

Gay Yacht Sequences
Indeed, she dresses almost all the very ostentatious and plunges overboard for a midnight swim in a gown a dazzling sequined one, and forms a dazzling dance in an unforgettable night club.

Harry Beaumont, who directed the new Crawford picture, has done so with a liberal and understanding mind and his treatment of the news paper scenes and actions will be appreciated, we are sure, by every member of the Fourth Estate who sees the picture. The newspaper scenes might have been filmed in any great metropolitan daily as far as true color and detail go.

A surprising newcomer, Lester Vail, plays opposite Joan in her new triumph and acquits himself with considerable distinction. William Bakewell, as Joan's weak brother, offers an admirable performance and Clark Gable, as the gang chieftain, renders a portrayal that will linger long.

"Dance Fools, Dance" will be exhibited for the last times tonight.

FRANKFORD BLOCK FIRE
Fire broke out in Frankfort village early Tuesday in the J. J. Macauley block and gained considerable headway before being seen. Within a few minutes the motor pump on the scene was streams into the blaze. The interior of the frame building was completely gutted. The Bell Block, adjoining, suffered slightly. The fire equipment, which has been over-hauled, worked well. The building, which was occupied by Frank Wannamaker and Fred Harrison, barber, is a total loss. Both are fully covered. The damage is partly covered by insurance.

SAGACIOUS DOG RECOGNIZSD SIGN AND PARKED NEAR IT

"Rin," Well-Known Police Canine is Home again

German Shepherd dogs better known as police dogs are renowned the world over for their sagacity and almost human ability to think. This was proved right here in Belleville during the past week. E. W. Rowsome president of the Stewart-Warner-Alemite corporation is the owner of a fine shepherd known as "Rin". Rin disappeared from home last week and Mr. Rowsome spent several days frantically trying to locate him. He visited the dog pound more than once; he advertised in various newspapers and told all his friends of his dog's disappearance and asked them to be on the look-out for him.

Rin has been found.

Mr. McCauley who is a garage keeper at Marysville informed Mr. Rowsome of the dog's presence. Now Mr. McCauley advertises an Alsatian service at his garage and dog building displays a large sign advertising that product. Rin evidently recognized the sign from being at the Alemite plant so often and for two whole days sat down in front of the billboard confident that his master would find him. He it later again and Mr. Rowsome is more than glad to have him back. It is believed he was taken to Marysville by motor.

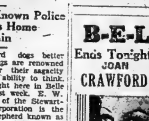
OBITUARY

OSGOODE S. LATTA
OSHAWA, April 9.—Heart failure was the cause of the sudden death of Osgoode S. Latta, aged 51, which occurred at his home this morning. A native of Belleville, from which city, he came to Oshawa four years ago, Mr. Latta had been employed as a machinist by the Pitting Limited. He was a member of the Eureka Masonic Lodge. No 293 in Belleville, and a member of the Albert Street United Church here. Besides his widow, there survive three daughters, Mrs. O. Wakeford, Port Hope; Mrs. C. Kersting, Belleville, and Marjory Latta, Belleville; three sons, Clarence, Lawrence and Frank all of Oshawa; two brothers, George and Prem of Toronto, and one sister, Mrs. Maude Hall of Thurlow Township.

CHARLOTTE ELIZA SMYTHE
The remains of the late Mrs. Fred Smythe arrived in Belleville today from Hamilton Ont. where she passed away yesterday. Mrs. Smythe leaves to mourn her loss her husband three daughters Margery, Joan and Dodie at home, and one son, Bernard, also at home. She also leaves one brother, William Rose, of England. Burial will be made here.

HUMAN SEISMOMETER PREDICTS 'QUAKES

SHAUNAVON, Sask., April 9.—(By The Canadian Press)—This town possesses a human seismometer in the person of Carl Viberg, who predicts earthquakes 24 hours ahead. Just about the time something seismic is taking place in the world Mr. Viberg declares he "feels" it and calls his friends to watch for the announcements in the newspapers.



On February 14 Mr. Viberg told friends an earthquake was taking place and that they shortly would hear of it. The following day newspapers carried accounts of an earthquake in Alaska. Last week, it is said by Mr. Viberg "felt" unusual movements in the earth and the report that the country was shocked with detailed accounts of the New Zealand earthquake.

He also foretold earth disturbances on Persia, Japan, Italy, Texas and Mexico.

Asked to describe his "feelings" Mr. Viberg was unable to give any idea of it. A certain trembling comes on, he states, which he cannot account for. This is always followed by news of earth movements having taken place.

New York's Woolworth building, one of the latest to today rise in the air, is among the city's high buildings.

ANNIVERSARY OF VIMY RIDGE IS CELEBRATED HERE

Fourteen Years Ago Today Canadian Troops Wrote History

Memory of the overseas veteran turns back today to Vimy Ridge in France, where Canadian troops left an indestructible name up the history of the world. It was in the cold grey and bleak dawn 14 years ago, that the order came as five o'clock to "go over the top". For months back in the line and back in reserve, Canadian troops had rehearsed this assault on one of the most impregnable parts of the German line. Every training and contour of the land was discussed and the best means of making the raid. The officers and men of Vimy Ridge was mined with thousands of tons of high explosive, the Germans being unaware of the presence of the Canadians, and the latter knew their location to advance to, while the Reserves had their orders to follow on further, while the mopping-up troops came in from behind to clean up anything that was left. An air of expectancy permeated the whole force and when the general order came, Canadians sprang to the assault and the dire simply carried the Germans off their feet. The ridge was blown to atoms, the front line, second line, and reserve line of the German Army was pierced and Canadians thrused into enemy territory, in fact further than they anticipated.

When night fell the Canadians were nearly two miles past their first objective and the rout was complete. Many counter attacks were thrown against the Canadians but they withstood all such charges and several again did this straggetic point pass into German hands. Both sides lost heavily in many of the attacks which had indelibly printed their name in the heart of the country with decorations for bravery. Comrades of long standing were separated by death but their valor goes marching on. Tonight at the Armouries in Belleville a Vimy Ridge dinner will be held by the 39th Light Infantry and as before many of these 39ers present, regard that evening as a reunion.

English Want Shorter Hours

London, April 9—English women are evidently not going to fight with the dress designers who wanted to lengthen the skirts a foot for evening wear.

English dressmakers were strongly for long, trailing dresses for both day and evening wear, but fashionable women generally have refused to be excited only for dress wear. For the day time they have kept their dresses just below calf-length were the smartest wear while those dipping to the ground were dowdy and easily broke into the category of frumps.

At a recent dress show in London, fashionable women commented favorably on the fact that for once there were no full length afternoon frocks displayed. Generally, shoe clubs below the knee was the limit of the day dress and suits.

Among the evening clothes, however, was a sensational gown with a wide skirt of black georgette, a bodice of orange and black georgette and a most daring V back cut to the waist and supported by a vertical strapping of diamonds.

Large hats were shown in considerable number but the general effect favor the back-of-the-head turbans, many of which knelt only one corner.

FORD PARADE SEEN TODAY

One Millionth Car Made in Canada on Exhibit

Belleville citizenry glimpsed the millionth Ford today when it was run through the principal streets accompanied by all the latest models now manufactured at this company. They was also in the parade the 72nd car made in Canada. It was Standard Coach. De Luxe Roadster, Town Sedan, Roadster, De Luxe Phaeton and Cabriolet, while in the commercial and delivery class were a light delivery truck, standard truck with cab, dump truck, De Luxe delivery, standard dual truck, 1 1-2 ton express and 1 1-2 chassis. At the close of the parade the cars were all exhibited in a local service station yard and many viewed the cars more closely. The millionth car was a town sedan.

About 7,000 tons of rouge and 4,000 tons of face powder are used annually in the United States, according to the chemical division of the United States Department of Commerce.

LOST LINK IN HISTORY OF QUEBEC IS TRACED

Montreal, April 9—A large gap in the history of the French race on the North American continent was filled recently when R. Z. Masisotte, Court House archivist, announced completion of what is virtually a Who's Who of the names, dates and destinations of over 15,000 hardy voyageurs who left the Montreal district under the French regime with working contracts that sprinkled them from the fur-bearing "pays d'en haut" of the Northwest, through Ohio and Illinois and down the Mississippi to the Gulf of Mexico.

Months of labor on the mellowed documents of forty-two old French notaries royal have given this information to the world. Every time a voyageur "signed up" with a trader or with the Crown for a summer, for a year or two years, the agreement was drawn by a notary, signed by the contracting parties, then registered in the notarial files The result bares the tripe of 15,000 Canadiens legally engaged; but, as Mr. Massicotte emphasized, to that total must be added the hundreds of outlaw fur traders, the coureurs de bois, who sneaked into the fur-bearing country in defiance of the Crown monopoly without legal engagement. Of them records says nothing, for they usually remained far out of reach; they could not safely return to Montreal.

Mr. Massicotte modestly gave the opinion that this work is one of the most considerable he has contributed to history in years. "It will explain the origin of thousands of families spread through the routes the voyageurs took," he said. "It will point to their settlements in various spots at the end of their engagements; the scene of the voyageurs sent for their wives, others married Indians, and from them sprang families now spread all over the continent, and whose genealogies lack their roots for, up to now, no records have been published which would aid the historian in showing family sources. And for French-Canadian historians of this region, I think, too, the record will be valuable. How many times do we find the record of the arrival of a family from France, then suddenly, the line disappears! The list of contracts will show that many a young man left Montreal as a voyageur and never returned." In a word the record demonstrates to what extent the lust for travel and adventure, always a characteristic of the Canadian of New France, drained the area around Montreal, centering and recruiting centre for the voyageurs, and departure points for the Northwest and West.

Random excerpts from Mr. Massicotte's work show how complete is the guide for the genealogist and historian:

"1622, May 20—Contract on Nicolas and Charles de Montaignerat Pre to the Sieurs Francois Hazeur faire le voyage des Otawats (Ottawas)"—Maugue records."

"1704, April 25—Contract of Michel Lemay, of Batiscan, to the Gentlemen of the Colony of Canada, to make a trip to Pont Chartrain Port on Lake Erie—Adhemar records."

"1704, April 30—Contract of Francois Benoit dit Livernois et d'Longueuil to Mademoiselle Marguerite Messier, wife of Pierre Le Sueur, to make a voyage to Fort de la Mouille, on the seashore in the lower Mississippi—Adhemar records."

In each case the first name is that of the voyageur, the second that of the individual or firm employing the voyageur, oft-times holding a fur-trading permit from the King of France who monopolized the fur trade. The last name is that of the notary before whom the contract was drawn.

The Massicotte paper is being published in the Report of the Archivist of the Province of Quebec for 1929-30, distributed through P. O. Roy, of Secretary. The 1929-30 report contains but one half of the contracts; the balance will be published in the report for 1930-31 to be issued next spring.

WITTY SHAW UPON AFTER-DEATH MUSIC

London—The last words of famous people are treasured things. Every schoolboy knows those of Nelson and Rabelais is credited with lying with dying with a joke on his lips.

Recently Dame Nellie Melba, world famous prima donna, sang Ave Maria in her last moments and has revived interest here in death-bed utterances.

A newspaper canvass of a number of prominent English people elicited the following opinions on what music they would like to hear during their last moments.

George Bernard Shaw: "I should be the blushing on music if I knew that I would be dead within a few hours. After I was dead I should like to hear music and then I would choose Handel."

Gordon Selfridge: "I would rather hear a good tune than a tune, and it would be a story which would end in a hearty laugh."

Charles Chaplin: "I don't like things about dying, but the 'Hallelujah Chorus' from Handel's "Messiah" would be all right."

Although residing in an unbroken forest tract, a tribe of Indians in Alaska purchased an automobile the members taking turns in driving it back and forth over a quarter-mile track which they carved through the forest.

Booth Tarkington's Immortal Story of Youth

STRANGE JOBS IN FAR-AWAY PLACES

London—No job is too weird if a good living attaches to it. There is a man in London who makes his livelihood out of a punch-proof face to be used as a target for boxers.

He is an ex-light weight champion of a Welsh town. He has been doing this for years, in fact, as mediator between black men and white. It is no joke being daddy to 150,000 blacks, and as Mr. Ballenden says himself, it is a twenty-four hour job.

Curing M.P.'s of Shyness

The in-house of the Nine Books is in Chelsea, and is the home of Mme. d'Esterre, a lady whose pupils are politicians and M.P.'s whom she cures in a few lessons of shyness, hesitation, or stage fright. More than that, she teaches them how to speak.

In Japan crowds still gather around the professional story-teller. English people rarely become proficient in Japanese, which is a most difficult language, yet one of the most celebrated of Japanese story-tellers is an Englishman named Black whose knowledge of the language is so perfect and his wit so brilliant that he is more popular in Tokio than most native professionals.

Violins and 'cells belonging to well-known players are usually very valuable and heavily insured. There are a few men in this country—perhaps six in all—who make a living as "instrument porters." These are so well known and so dependable that a great artist will trust one of them to take his $5,000 violin from London to Edinburgh. If need be. Naturally, they are well paid for their services.

Their Secret Art

We all know that the United States holds most of the world's stocks of gold and silver. There are vaults at the Philadelphia Treasury which contain millions in minted coins. The coins are kept in bags, each holding one thousand dollars. It is said that there are only two men in the world who thoroughly understand the art of piling these dollar bags ceiling high so that there is no risk of their falling.

A man named Toughill originally invented the method of piling these bags safely, and before he retired he took a pupil who, in turn, taught the secret to another man. Thus, there are always two men, and two only, who can do this particular job An important job, for the bags of money heavy, and any fell-somesne would probably get badly hurt.

ARE YOU "HITTING ON ALL SIX?"

Liver —Stomach —Bowels —Nerves—Brain—Heart — Are They All 100%

Folks, the human body is just like a good car, everything must be in perfect working order if you expect to get the best performance out of either.

You can't expect to feel 100% if your liver is out of order, your stomach upset, nerves jumpy or bowels tied up. You must build up your vital forces and you weak, weary despondent women and women who have been doctoring for ages trying to get back the vim and endurance of earlier years will be astonished, delighted and amazed to see how quickly ambition, energy and vitality come back through the use of Tanlac.

Mr. James Burns, 418 Bay Street, Toronto, says: "TANLAC restored my health completely and I feel as active and energetic as I did forty years ago."

Go to your druggist now and get a bottle of Tanlac. Millions of folks have started back on the road to health, vim and happiness with this world-famous tonic and there is no reason why you, too, can't begin today to rebuild your worn-out tissues and revitalize your entire system.

Your money back if you are not satisfied after the first trial of this world-famous medicine.

Dundee, Scotland, April 9. — The senate of the ancient St. Andrews University today unanimously conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws upon Edward W. Beatty of Montreal, chancellor of McGill University and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

SOVIET CRUELTY AGAIN TO FRONT

Edmonton, Alta., April 9—Fifteen families were banished to the Arctic by Government from the little village of Provelanski, in the province of Chernoska, in the Ukraine territory of Russia, to Siberia in September, 1929. Four women returned three months later." The remainder had died. The younger men had been shipped off to the island of Solovetchi, on the White Sea and were never heard of again. This is the story told by Antone and Mary Kosbach. Antone 36, and Mary, 23, age proprietors of a little store in this city, left the region of the Soviet prison in 1930, arriving in Canada late in July.

Mary, who came from the province of Chernibiaska, told of the reasons that caused them to leave for Canada. "At first we had a farm of 21 acres," she said. "But we were taxed and taxed. You people here don't know what taxes are. It took our whole crop just to pay the taxes and then we were sometimes behind. We had lost everything in 1928. We had to go some place. Beside that we found that they were going to send the people of the village to Siberia. In September, 1929, there were 26 families living in Provelianski. Of these, 15 were sent to Siberia. From the Ukraine, 100 trains loaded with Ukrainian families were sent at that time. They were put in huts and made to work. They got a little bread and some soup every day. They had no warm clothes. My parents wrote that from five to 10 children would die every day."

J. B. DOUGALL DIES

MONTREAL, April 9—A popular figure in the railway life of Canada died here Tuesday in the person of James Robert Dougall, Special Representative of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. He was 59 years of age and was born in England. Mr. Dougall lived some time in Blairmore Alta., Winnipeg. His widow was formerly Miss Alice Walker of Georgetown, Ont.

There are about 340,000 Indians in the United States today.

Alchemy Never Dies Still Scientists Dream

LONDON, April 9.—The alchemist is still with us. Heinrich Kurchaidgen has been transmuting the metals in the Dusseldorf offices of the German Nationalist party; he was able to make gold—and has just been sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment for it.

A few months ago a certain Hans Tausend, alchemist of Munich, after he had been in prison for 9 months made gold in the Bavarian Mint in the presence of the director, another official of the Mint, two police officers and the presiding attorney.

His defence very naturally is that, as conjurors say, deception was impossible. Despite all that he is today awaiting his trial as a fraud.

Alchemy never dies; and this man of science, though he rarely admits it, still dreams of the philosopher's stone. There is still an intriguing air of mystery about the case of Dr. Emmens, the alchemist of New York, who between April and December 1927, sold to the New York Mint of "Argentaurum gold", the product of his gold-producing machine. In monthly lots, of a total value of $7,545.

Emmens was an alchemist in the best mediaeval style:

"The gold-producing work in our Argentaurum laboratory" he wrote in a letter to Sir William Crookes, F. R. S.) is a case of sheer Mammon seeking. It is not being carried on for the sake of science or in a prospecting spirit. No disciples are desired and no believers are asked for."

But at least his gold convinced the American Mint.

Sharp-Tongued Scientists

Emmens's process remains obscure. Crookes began to investigate it, but soon lost his temper. Both men were distinguished scientists, both old, both sharp-tongued. Their discussion, prolonged through a weary correspondence, ended as most discussions of alchemy seem destined to end, but not before Crookes had made an experiment in which gold seemed to be produced. "Not enough to enable me to form an opinion on," said Crookes, "as it is within the error of experiment," Emmens thought differently.

Emmens had one outburst, which would not seem so significant in the vicinities as it does now. He wrote in a letter to an admirer:

"I hardly know why I tell you these things. I think it is because you have been broad-minded enough, and bold enough, to acknowledge the existence of my Argentaurum paper, No. 1 which is regarded with fear, anger, and horror by the Gravity-cum-Ethereum-Contraction worshippers."

So many things have happened to the Gravity-cum-Ether worshippers in the last few years that one wonders what would be the effect of Argentaurum Paper No. 1 on them now.

No Money In It

The original assumption of the alchemists is still plausible. That there is a prima materia, an ultimate substance from which all things are made (so long as you use the words materia substance in the appropriate one of twenty different senses), does fit in with many of the variants of the atomic theory, or with the theory of radio-activity, and is daringly with the quantum theory itself.

Some chemists are transmuted all the time. Radium changes its nature ceaselessly. Moreover, elements can be transmuted artificially. Rutherford using radium as a sort of machine-gun, found that it was possible in certain elements to knock a proton from its nucleus, or in other words, to disturb one atom and form another. It is an expensive process; all the alphat rays from one gramme of radium, costing about $100,000, would transmute about two-ten millionths of a gramme of nitrogen in a year.

It is no wonder that chemists turn to other methods. It is still believed that nothing would bring us so near a true understanding of the atomic theory as a successful transmutation of the elements. Modern chemists have finally come to the conclusion that the most likely elements for the job are to quote from "Encyclopaedia Britannica" "the heaviest of the non-radio-active elements, name ly the following, the atomic numbers being given in parenthesis: Gold (79), mercury (80); thallium (81), lead (82), bismuth (83). On account of the apparent ease of purification mercury has been a popular choice."

Is Gold Any Use?

That is, to my mind, an astonishing sentence. It is a fine testimonial to all alchemists and astrologers of the Middle Age. It ought to make Roger Bacon turn in his grave, and Paracelsus bless the name of Boddy.

What was it made those ancient greybeards feel that the most likely thing the event which was always on the point of undergoing the formality of taking place, was the transmutation of lead or mercury into gold? They knew nothing of bismuth, or thalium, but did their best with sulphur and salamanders. The so-called Dark Ages are a good deal nearer to us than we used to think. The alliance of astrologers and alchemists (both impostors, as we used to be told) is curiously like the alliance of the astronomer and the physicist in our own day.

Newton believed that gold could be made from mercury; Boyle (father of modern chemistry) believed. Leibnitz and Spinazn believed that Helvetius the physician to the Prince of Orange, has been given a minute crumb of the philosopher's stone by an unknown stranger at The Hague in the year 1666, and had made gold. Robert Boyle, too, was given some of this strange powder by "an ingenious foreigner" he had never seen before who was even then seeing the country. With it he made gold.

This unknown stranger walks all through the history of science, distributing now here, now there, a few grains of the magic stone. It is a much-travelling stranger. (In 1923 a gentleman founded a company for the manufacture of gold in South-end). There are some who still believe that there exists a secret catalyte which has strange power; that its secrets have been known to a few men in the past; that it has been discovered—or its effects have been observed—occasionally by accident.

It is true that there have been odd accidents. In 1924 Miethe, a German scientist, found gold in the black deposit inside mercury-vapour electric lamps in which too high a voltage had been used. The will-o'-the-whip still beckons.

MISS EARHART SETS RECORD

Flies to Highest Altitude Ever Recorded in History

Willow Grove, Pa., April 9.—Amelia Earhart, Wednesday, added another outstanding performance to her brilliant flying record by taking an autogyro to a higher altitude than has ever been done before.

She made two flights, and it was announced she had reached an unofficial height of 19,000 feet or more on the second attempt. On the first flight it was announced she attained approximately 18,500 feet.

She carried up with her a sealed barograph, which will be sent to Washington for official examination.

Miss Earhart made the flights in the presence of her husband, Geo. Palmer Putnam, of New York, and a crowd of about one thousand persons at the Pitcairn field, north of this place.

The intrepid flier said she enjoyed both trips into the blue and hoped to be able to make another try later for higher altitude than she attained on Wednesday.

Miss Earhart said that when she reached the ceiling she tried hard to send the ship higher, but it would go no further. She had plenty of gas, she said, and the motor was working fine.

Miss Dorothy Quincey is in Toronto spending her Easter holidays.

Mrs. Nina Poole of Brighton spent the Easter holidays with Mrs. H. S. Clark, 57 Station street.

Mrs. Harry Reynolds, 333 Charles street has returned home after spend ing two weeks in Toronto.

Mrs. Frank Norris and son, Howard, of Detroit, motored to Belleville to renew old acquaintances and spend the Easter holiday.

Many from Belleville attended the annual Easter Ball at the Parish Hall in Marysville last evening. A large crowd was present and had a most enjoyable time.

Miss Athol Crozier is visiting Miss Isabel Stewart, Oshawa.

Master Bobby Stewart, Oshawa, is visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Stewart, Coleman.

Magistrate W. C. Mikel is in Toronto on business and will return on Saturday.

Mr. Jack Tebalt left today for Montreal where he has accepted a position.

Mr. M. Morrison of the Public school staff, Picton, is spending his holidays at his home here.

Mrs. A. F. Stillman is spending a few days in Campbellford.

Mrs. John Spencer spent a few days in Toronto this week, a guest of the Westminster Hotel.

Mr. Earl Allen is confined to the Belleville General Hospital through illness.

Dr. T. H. Irwin and Mrs. Irwin of Montreal returned to their home after spending the holiday season with Mrs. Irwin's sister, Mrs. C. N. Aselstine, 9 Murray street.

Yellow daffodils and purple iris made a lovely setting for the menu tea held yesterday afternoon in St. Thomas' Parish Hall by the members of Mrs. Lyons' and Mrs. Tickell's groups of the Women's Guild of the Church. The guests were received by the Guild president, Mrs. J. J. Thiffault and Mrs. Arthur Jones. Tea was poured by Mrs. J. Lyons and Mrs. Edward Cross. Those assisting during the afternoon were Mrs. Harris, Miss Gorman, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Davison, Mrs. Percy Cook, Miss Pybock, Miss Howie, Mrs. Blackburn, Mrs. Tilley, Miss Wallbridge, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Juby, Miss Hall, Misses Helen Lyons, Isobel Lyons and Aileen Mackey, Toronto. Mrs. A. G. Neale acted as treasurer for the afternoon. In spite of the rainy weather the tea was well attended. The dainty menu cards used were painted by Miss Betty Brouwers and were greatly admired by the guests. Miss Patrick Jones entertained the guests telling fortunes after their tea.

SHANNONVILLE W.M.S.

On Thursday, March 26th, the ladies of the W.M.S. gathered at the home of Mrs. Wm. Woodburn, Shannonville and quilted three quilts.

Four tables were set at noon and all enjoyed a sumptuous dinner served which all contributed something.

The Mission Band autograph quilt was presented to Mrs. Philip Wright by Mrs. (Rev.) Clark for which she expressed thanks. Three prayers were done and the kind hospitality of Mrs. Melburn was much appreciated by the ladies.

The W.M.S. of S. United Church held their regular meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Harry Sine, April 2nd.

After the opening hymn and the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison, Scripture was read in prayer and Mrs. Kenneth Vine read the 23rd Psalm responsively. Mrs. (Rev.) Clark, Mrs. W. S. Dies and Mrs. T. J. Reeder, Jr. gave the report and minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Mrs. R. Gilligan our Supply Secretary read a letter received by her with regard to our allocation which was most encouraged that any who have clothing or material to donate to bring it to her at next meeting. Mrs. Gilligan expressed thanks to all those who had done so since the last meeting. The secretary then called the roll by responding with a verse repeating a verse of Scripture. Mrs. T. F. Morden our Temperance Her. said then led in a discussion took part in by Mrs. W. B. Dies, Mrs. Robertson, Mrs. Philip Wright and Mrs. Harvey Shetler. All joined in singing hymn 377 and Miss Flora Stickney, Mrs. (Rev.) Clark, Mrs. M. D. Robertson, Shannonville and Mrs. Harry Sine gave readings with reference to Government Control comparing it to a hole in the wall. Mrs. (Rev.) Clark then took up part of the next chapter of the Study Book which was very interesting, telling of the first Christian missionaries of Japan and their converts. Meeting closed by singing "Stand up for Jesus" and the Mizpah Benediction. Collection $2.56 and for flowers had 50c. Lunch was served and a very pleasant social time enjoyed. Mrs. (Rev.) Clark was presented with a very pretty quilt the blocks of which were donated by Mrs. Emmons, Sr., an aged life member for which she expressed many thanks. Next meeting is at the home of Mrs. C. Keirl, May 7th.

Tips For Becoming Bigger and Better Pie Maker

There always have been and there always will be those who long for the perfectly made pie. Pie lovers, it is generally believed, are masculine but long observance in restaurants and tea rooms leads one to believe that the hankering may also be experienced by females divers.

A pie is of course no better than its crust, but the finest of pastry cannot make the lack of filling or dryness of filling palatable, therefore the perfect pie must be a combination of flaky, crisp and rich, juicy filling. If your pies are not the stronghold of your reputation as a cook you can fortify their reputation and make our holiday menu a success by observing the following points.

Pie crust should be handled as little as possible. Too much zeal and over working make a tough leathery crust that is the base of many jokes about the young bride's cooking.

The flour and salt should be sifted together—and the baking powder, if you find that the use of it gives you a flakier crust. The fat must be thoroughly mixed with the flour either by rubbing lightly with the finger tips or by cutting it in with a knife or knives. And don't be content with the mixture until fat and flour are so well combined that they resemble a fine soft meal in texture.

If the fat is cold so much the better. The water must be cold—ice cold is better although one occasionally finds a cook who by some trick or tricks has better success with hot water.

Only enough water should be used to give a paste that will hold together in a mass and leave the sides of the bowl clean. When this has happened do not mix the pastry further. The more fat used the less water will be necessary.

If the paste is chilled before it is rolled it will be much easier and the pastry will be lighter and flakier when baked.

When flouring the board and rolling pin rub the flour into the wood—if these tools are wood—as thoroughly as possible. Sometimes a stiffly woven cloth called a pastry cloth is used as a cover for the board and the flour is rubbed into it. The mesh of the cloth holds the flour and fat so that it is evenly and slowly as needed by the dough.

Before patting the dough on the floured board or cloth sift a light coating of flour on it and toss the dough lightly on the board, pat it lightly into shape to roll, but do not knead it. Use a light quick motion with the rolling pin. A heavy pressure will make the paste stick to the board and will also tend to make the pastry tough.

To keep a juicy filling safely with the pie, flatten the lower crust with water and press the edges of the upper and lower crusts well together. Blind a strip of muslin dipped in a little water around the edges of the crust lapping the ends of the muslin well. A few sticks of macaroni placed in the upper crusts will let the juices bubble up and down without over flowing.

Baking may spoil an otherwise perfect crust. The oven must be very hot so that the fat will be cooked into the flour without browning oily. This latter will make the pastry hard and tough instead of flaky. The oven should be from 450 to 500 degrees F. to start with and then lowered to 400 F. Pastry should bake in fifteen to twenty minutes.

Externally or Internally, it is Good—When you have a severe cold, brisk rubbing, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil opens the pores and penetrates the tissue, reaching the seat of the trouble and immediately affording relief. Taken internally, it will aid the irritation in the throat which induces coughing and will relieve affections of the bronchial tubes and respiratory organs. Try it and be convinced.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beckman

AT LUNCHEON WITH A YOUNG MAN

Dear Mrs. Beckman:

1 When a boy asks a girl to lunch with him, what should the girl say if she accepts?

2. Where entering the dining room should the girl walk with the boy, or should she walk ahead, following the waiter?

3. Is it proper to fold the napkin after eating?

4. Should the girl take her coat off before she sits down or wait until she is seated? Should she take her scarf off also?

5. Should she put her purse on her knee, or leave it on the table?

Senorita.

1. "Thank you so much. I should love to," or "Aren't you nice to ask me. I'd love to lunch with you," or "Thank you. Indeed, I'd love to be with you."

2. The general custom is for the girl to follow the head waiter, and the man follows the girl. This is the order (as I have said many times in my columns) but it is not always very much sense. I admire men who "masterfully" follow the headwaiter, themselves leading the girl to what they would like to have as to the situation of the table, and so forth. If the girl goes first, the waiter usually looks for her answer his "for how many?" and then, having no preference, has scattered by the situation of table, he assigns them any table he wishes to. The man in hand, is the accustomed host, having an idea of what kind of service he desires for lunch, follows the waiter and sees that he gets this kind of service, if it is possible.

3. Not in a restaurant. When you finish eating fold your napkin as it is not folded, on the left of your plate.

4. The girl usually waits until she is seated to take off her coat, as a matter of fact she gentleman with whom she is launching hold her chair for her, and stands behind it to help her with her coat and see that it is comfortably seated on the back of her chair. He should never take his seat until he has done this, or until the girl tells him that she is not going to remove her coat.

About her scarf—she should do as she wishes about taking it off.

5. It is not good, form for a woman to leave her purse on the table. And she should be very careful not to do this.

NEVER USE "MRS" IN DIRECT SIGNATURE

Dear Mrs. Beckman:

When writing a young man friend, what signature should a married lady use? Should she use "Mrs." as "(Mrs. Kevin Smith) or her own husband's name?

Reader.

If she knows the young man well, and if he knows her husband's full name then her signature would be:

Yours sincerely yours,
Helen Smith.

or

Cordially yours.
Helen Matthews Smith.

If she does not know the young man, and if she is not sure that he knows her husband's name, the signature would be:

Very sincerely yours.
Helen Matthews Smith
(Mrs. Henry Smith)

The last may be by the way, is the form that you should have used in your letter to me. A married woman should never use the title Mrs. as part of the direct signature of a letter, but only after, social or business. She signs her informal name, and then, in parentheses, if it is necessary, the name by which reader of the letter her husband's name, she writes her formal name.

GIRL RESCUES CHILDREN FROM PATH OF ENGINE

Wellington, March 30.—The fact that Wanda Horton, aged 15, of Crow Island rescued three boys in the Michigan Central Railway lines at the Avery Drive crossing Monday and rescued three little girls who were watching a train go by, the girls might have been killed. The children were unaware of the approaching engine coming in the opposite direction. The Horton girls threw themselves on the boys and the girls and the child jumped. She herself was able to jump clear barely in time.

Fashionably Speaking

By Lucille

Dear Readers:

Styles in nightgowns are becoming more extreme, that is to say, elaborate models are simplified, and those of tailored cut are softened. Both are fine in detail, with lines that repeat the accepted mode in dress and refinements of trimming. Embroidery, drawn work and lace are in favor; the lace is appliqued to accentuate the silhouette, the embroidery is done in floss that matches the material.

A princess gown from Paris has the high waist line of the Empire, which some of the couturiers are showing in evening gowns. It is mode of pale pink crepe de chine embroidered with tiny clusters of flowers. The material is cut on the bias which gives the gown elasticity and permits it to fit the figure snugly. Double folds of pink georgette finish the neck and bottom of the gown. Lending it an airy daintiness.

A blue and pink harmony is shown in a semi-tailored gown of pink crepe eyelet embroidery. The gown is finished in blue piping to match the color of the embroidery.

Fashion which in its effort to be romantic has sought out the medieval for costume, has carried the note into nightgowns. A medieval model is one which has a round fairly high neck and long Vionnet sleeves wide at the armholes and tapering at the wrists.

New nightgowns are made of rows of silk and lace, others are finished off with narrow lace frills. The bodices have the off-the-shoulder cut line and are made with circular ruffles to match the skirt. They come in blue, pink, white and even black. The mid Victorian influence is further found in a nightgown with a surplice neck and three ruffles around the hips.

Fashionably yours,
Lucille.

Shall Boys' Learn to Do Daily Household Tasks

By Constance Campion

The mother of two young sons had been very sane in her training of the boys regarding household work when they were tiny lads. When they had been interested in the mixing of a cake, each had been given a small portion, allowed to stir, grease individual pans, and even help with the desserts. The little boys had wielded dust cloths at Mother's heels, they had learned to pick up their clothing, and to make their own beds.

All this had been natural, done without comment and was working beautifully until the older boy began to pence to tell a companion that he had to go in and peel potatoes for his mother. "That's a girl's work," scorned the he-man of eleven. "Only sissies help go housework."

And, like many another mother, this one discovered that her years of routine, training and sane thinking had all resulted shattered in a few seconds by the casual remark of another child.

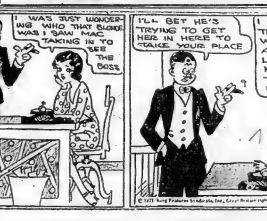
The lad reported the conversation to his mother and said "I guess I'll go on out and play with the gang. I don't want them to call me a sissy."

The mother looked at him as though he were a stranger, who had wandered into her kitchen, but all she said, was, "Very well, go back. I don't want them to call you that, but I don't feel that it is being a sissy to help with the work in your home."

Mother peeled potatoes alone and did a lot of thinking while her hands were busy. Finally this plan came out of the chaos of her disturbed mind:

That night she asked the lad if he would like to "have a stag dinner." What did she mean? Well, next Thursday night she and Dad were invited out, and he proposed that the two boys prepare a dinner for two of their friends, plan and execute it themselves. This was announced on with great enthusiasm. The meal was planned by the two boys and part of it prepared at noon. And before Mother swept away, she footed in on the party in the kitchen.

The "he-man" who had denounced cooking was in a heated argument with the older son over the proper way to broil steak, and, winning the debate, was pressed to take charge of cooking it!



Those "sissy" dinners occur once a month now in that home and the younger boys of "sissy" ages are more than eager, not only to partake of the feast but to help prepare it.

Wise mothers to enlist a potential ally—something she's built up. And once a —protester—is enlisted that way, he usually turns out to be one of the mainstays of an idea.

A recent radio program was directed to three special audiences, one for underground in Mammoth cave, one in the air in a dirigible, and a third in a submarine out in the Pacific.

ST. GEORGE'S, CHRIST CHURCH, BRIDGE, WON CAGE FIXTURES

Anglicans Maintain Un-Beaten Record in Church Loop

By winning from Judeans in the opening game of the Church League programme at the Y.M.C.A. Gym last night, St. George's were able to maintain their standing in second place in the league. The game itself was rather listless due to the fact that both teams were content to rest somewhat largely to long shots for baskets instead of working the ball in close. Also Judeans failed to put nearly as much punch into their game as they did in the week end fixture against the Bridge Street team. Both quints were off in their shooting as indicated by the low score.

Judeans—A. Dobe; 1; Dobe 4; Good man 4; L. Yanover; B Yanover; B. Samuels—Total 9.

St. Georges—Embury: Gardiner; Burney 2; Martin 2; Hagar 2; McLean; Churchill; Pepper 5—Total 12.

Christ Church 18; Holloway 14.

Holloway St. team gave the Christ Church boys a real argument in the second game played, bowing the winners to a three point advantage. The Coleman Street Quint obtained their lead in the opening half and although hard pressed throughout the second period they were able to stay on even terms with the losers and protect their early lead. The win for Christ Church sent them into third position in the league standing.

Christ Church—Hartiger 4; Edwards 6; Thomas 1; Scott 5; Saunders 3; Scott, Adams—Total 18.

Holloway Street—Sinfield 7; Harris 3; Langsbeer; Twiddy McMurray 6; Phillips, Jones—Total 16.

In the Mens' Bush League the fast travelling Maple Spillers caught the unfortunate off their stride and won 4 points. High singles were P. Paul 254, O. Lynch 253. Other good scores were made as the following will show.

The first to score in the night cap fixture against Bridge Street, their advantage was not maintained for long in obtaining a comfortable lead and continued to draw away from their opponents throughout the game.

In scoring twenty five points A. (Gumboat) Cole compiled the largest individual contribution of any player in the series to date. Donald Campbell was another high scorer for his belt who was high scorer for his team made good use of his foul shots when he counted six of the nine chances awarded to him Foul shooting on the whole has been very weak and if the players hope to get anywhere in the indoor game they must improve considerably in this department.

St. Andrew—Campbell 16; W. Mcleary 3; Ritchie 4; Millar 1; A. MacleaY 2.—Total 26.

Bridge Street—Cairns 18; Henry 2; Cowan; Cole 25; Morgan 6; Bell 2; Coumlrymen; Lazer. Total 50.

Y ALLEYS

In the Ladies Afternoon game the Smile and Try and Aviators broke even with two points each in an interesting game. High bowlers were Mrs. Wotten for the Aviators and Miss Kerr for S. and T. Outstanding singles were Mrs. Skinner 221, Mrs. Wotten 187, Mrs. Law 185 and Miss Kerr 187.

Yesterday's Ladies Afternoon League match resulted in a win for the Hustlers over the Ever Readys score 3 to 1. Mrs. Scott's 200, and Mrs. Gorsline's 206 were noticeable singles.

In the Mens' Bush League the fast travelling Maple Spillers caught the unfortunate off their stride and won 4 points. High singles were P. Paul 254, O. Lynch 253. Other good scores were made as the following will show.

YANKS ARE RATED TO FINISH THIRD

Athletics Favored to Repeat in American Senators Placed 2nd

New York, Apr. 9.—The 1931 American League campaign will be a battle all the way between the Philadelphia Athletics and the Washington Senators, with New York and Cleveland fighting for third place, in the opinion of the eight United Press correspondents attached to the various American League Clubs.

The Wrath of the Ruth. In the opinion of the correspondents who have been with their respective outfits since the first day of spring training, will be: 1, Philadelphia; 2, Washington; 3, New York; 4, Cleveland; 5, Detroit; 6, Chicago; 7, St. Louis; 8, Boston.

This, save that St. Louis finished ahead of Chicago, is exactly the way the clubs stood at the close of the 1930 race.

Mack Gets 5 Votes

Philadelphia, seeking its third successive league championship, was given an edge over Washington, receiving five first place ballots and three for second place, against three first, three second and two third place votes for the Senators.

Those who looked for the Athletics gave the same old reasons. Connie Mack, Grove and Earnshaw; Cochrane, Simmons, and Foxx. Those who selected the Senators explained that the Athletics never have won three flags in a row, their pitching strength is also shaky on defence, and ready to be taken by a club with Washington's well-rounded all-round defence.

The Yankees, thanks to two second place votes, nosed out the Indians for third place honors. The Yanks also received two ballots for third place, three for fourth, two for fifth and one for sixth. The two voters who saw the McCarthymen as runners-up conceded them a chance to battle with the Athletics; the correspondent who could see only fourth place for the Yanks than the top of second division said they were "all shot."

No Argument Here

The correspondents agreed almost unanimously on the second division. Detroit received three votes for the fifth place and one four fourth position. Chicago, St. Louis and Boston were unanimously assigned their low berths.

Some of the comments, complimentary and otherwise, on the various clubs, follows:

New York—All shot. Given one more pitcher might batter down Athletics.

Cleveland—Up and coming young club but not yet ready to challenge leaders.

Detroit—Pitching still a problem. Outfield not so hot. Has lost punch but what it gained in pitching should cause lots of trouble.

Chicago—Should improve on 1930 performance.

St. Louis—Too few pitchers. Shaky club and does not figure to cut much ice.

HOCKEY PLAYER'S FATHER BUR

Chicoutimi, April 8 —The funeral of Joseph Gagnon, father of Johnny Gagnon, star wing man of the Montreal Canadiens, world champion hockey team, was held here this morning. Hundreds of telegrams and numerous floral offerings, coming mainly from the cities represented in the National Hockey League, reached the Gagnon home, expressing sympathy for the young hockey player whose father died while he was engaged with his team in the Chicago games of the world series.

Joseph Gagnon was 68 years old and the father of a family of his sons and five girls. The six sons were the chief mourners at the funeral, which was largely attended.

When advised of his approaching death Mr. Gagnon heard for a night of his brilliant son, but was so proud of Johnny's success with the Canadiens that he would not permit him to be taken away from the team, which was then engaged in the final series with Chicago. News of his death was sent to Chicago while the game was in progress last Sunday night but was withheld from the bereaved son until after the game.

Johnny Gagnon will leave for Montreal tonight and hopes to be in Montreal in time to line up with his team for the third game with Chicago to-night.

ORILLIA CURLER J. ED. HINDS, DIES

Orillia, April 9.—J. E. Hinds, one-time president of the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association and prominent curler, died at his home here yesterday in his 80th year after a month's illness. Mr. Hinds was well known sportsman as a sportsman and follower of sport and his death comes as a surprise to his many friends. "Eddie" Hinds was the foremost defence player on the Orillia lacrosse team that won the Ontario interclub championship in 1904 and were runners-up on several occasions. As a curler he was popularly characterized as "the mighty champion of bonspiels" and had followed the game with breezy interest since boyhood. For 25 years he was a member of the Orillia Tankard rink, and this year successfully captured the coveted Burden Trophy. He was past president of the Elwanis Club. Horse racing was also a pastime of this premier sports man and many were the ribbons that trotters from his stable brought home.

PENNANT HOPES

It is apparent that Bucky Harris expects big things of his Detroit Tigers this season and that Jewel Ens feels the same about his Pittsburgh Pirates, judging from the following:

By STANLEY HARRIS
(Manager Detroit Tigers)

I am more enthusiastic over our chances for the coming season than at any time since being associated with the Detroit Club. The chances of great improvement lie in the outfield play. In the Walker brothers, Shirley and Dejack, we have four men each of whom has a fine chance of making good. Johnson, Stone and Funk are hustling, realizing the danger of losing out and as a result they show improvement over last year's play.

The case of McManus is puzzling. He was operated on late in January for the removal of a sarcilage from his right knee. I think it will be all right eventually, but I fear he will be last at the start of the season. We are fortunate to have picked up Marvin Owen. He really has class and in my judgment has the making of a fine infielder. Also he can hit.

We are lucky to have Wally Schang He not only looks good but has the much needed experience so essential behind the bat.

Barring sore arms of Uhle and Wyatt, the rest of our pitchers look fine. In fact I am well pleased with our pitching staff. It is the least of my worries.

By JEWEL ENS
(Manager Pittsburgh Pirates)

According to present indications, the National League is facing the usual hard fought pennant race with five strong contenders.

The club which goes through the season with the least number of injuries to its players and has dependable reserve strength will be the winner.

I do not see where either Cincinnatti or Philadelphia has improved to any great extent since last year. But the Boston can develop unexpected pitching strength that team will be better than it was in 1930.

The Pirates look exceptionally good and I am confident they will be in the thick of the race, but it is too early to make predictions.

ROCKNE LEAVES $125,000 TO FAMILY

South Bend, Ind., Apr. 9.—The will of Knute K. Rockne was filed in probate court here yesterday, but no valuation was placed on the real and personal property of the late Notre Dame coach. The entire estate was left to Mrs. Rockne and her four children.

Although attorneys for the estate did not reveal how much insurance Rockne carried, it was learned that it was in the neighborhood of $125,-000. Victor E. Jones, attorney for the estate ,said that outside the insurance the estate is "very modest."

Because Rockne was killed in an airplane there may be a suit to determine whether the estate will receive single or double indemnity.

Mrs. Michael Mulcahy, vice-president of Notre Dame and chairman of the board of athletic control, said that Rockne's successor would be named next week. Rockne's successor as head coach of football, however, is not expected to be made for several months.

CHANGE OF SCENERY

Stan Burgoyne, who coached the Truro Bearcats two years ago and last season handled the Belleville teams in the O.-R.A., is slated to take charge of the Fredericton, N.B. squad for the 1931-1932 Maritime campaign.

A club-a-year for Stan. Nothing like having a change of scenery.

Burgoyne is said to have designs on Tubby Ryan and Frank Lavigne, who played for the Bearcats against Hamilton in the Allan Cup semi-finals.

GABBY STREET "WATCHED"

Huntsville, Ala., April 9.—Gabby Street, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, National League champions, was greeted by a brass band and a parade of several hundred citizens here today and presented with a gold watch. Twenty-five years ago Street began his baseball career here with a kid team, the Milligan Sluggers. Dr. Robert Murphy and Carlock Rand, members of the Slug ters, were i nthe welcoming delegation.

GERMANY LEADS IN ATHELTICS FOR EVERYONE

Athletics for the Masses in Germany on Scale Not Approached Elsewhere

LONDON, April 9.—(By the Canadian Press).—Master of Athletics and Master of Arts will in the near future, be the meaning of the old and familiar title of a German graduate's name, Germany's athletic prowess will soon stir the world to thoughts on methods of training and there is little doubt that many and then, Great Britain included, will have to revolutionize their systems of preparing athletes. Athletics are now a national issue and they are intimately bound up with political issues in that the highest prizes of man power often determines a nation's fate in peace as well as in war.

Dr. Theodor Alaertz Jordan, the German girl javelin champion, who came here to teach English girl athletes, possesses an interesting title and a German view of athletics. She is surprised that the British Government is not interested in the fitness of its subjects because of their military obligations. How different are these things done in Germany. Government money builds and equips athletic fields, pays the coaches, teachers trainers and pays them, when qualified to train on scientific lines all assisting sister athletes. At the German Academy of Physical Education men and women are taught on the same lines. Even the Germans will always come first until a system of training similar to that adopted by Germany is used in England. "Natural" is her word for the description of the British system of training and she points out that not only the present but the future depends on the re-organization of the system.

MELROSE W.M.S.

The April meeting of the Melrose W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. R. E. Sandiford on Wednesday afternoon with nineteen members present. Owing to the absence of the president, the vice-president Mrs. S. Demille presided. The meeting opened with the hymn "I Love My Life for Them", followed with prayer by Mrs. Frank W. E. Clarke. After the Scripture reading the minutes were read and approved. The roll call was responded to by the "Arise". During the business part of the meeting it was decided to have a play entitled, "Beads on a String", in the near future. Readings were given by Mrs. F. Bennett, Mrs. H. Sandiford and C. Bruton. A chapter from the study book was read by Mrs. A. McGillivray. The May meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. J. Weese.

JILTED

By Margaret Widdemer

She was blazed—lovingly, though —when she stepped from the car at Kingsway into Ethan's arms

Ethan established her in the car. She had forgotten how handsome Ethan was, how strong and slim and how kind! But he was scolding her a little, none the less.

"My darling, you've tired yourself all out!" he said. "What have they been letting you do?"

"This is the man who used to look at me sometimes as if I was only half a wild and useless flapper," she teased him. "Ethan, what an extremely nice sex, my dear! Either I'm a bit fierly or a shrimp!"

"You're a dozen girls in one," he told her as the car drew up at her new home. "I'll never understand you Helen, darling, here's your house, and I know I've finished talking to you. I haven't begun. Let me come down tonight."

"Why, weren't you going to?" she asked him innocently and then laugh ed....

He laughed with her.

"Helen, I'd forgotten how to be gay since you went away. I'll be over at eight, darling."

She ran upstairs, glowing. She had not known it was possible to miss anybody as she had missed Ethan. "To be back in my home—Patricia and Ada Kingsway tomorrow morning, and the estate of Kingsway way to wander in; seeing beginning to edge about the trees for late winter; and marriage to Ethan com ing closer!

That was the only thing she did not like to think about. Being married to Ethan—that would be wonderful. But the thought of the actual marriage, and the possibility of her frightened her a little.

"If I could only go to sleep and wake up married," she thought. But that was silly, Ethan knew. Be cause things had happened that way once, they never could again. The thing to do was not to be a scare-cat; to go ahead and set a day as Ethan wanted, and—and—Ethan, please be the sort of Helen that Jessica and Doris thought she was.

Accordingly, she did. When Ethan ever promptly kissed her goodnight in the little Birch parlor, she went down to him with her mind made up. And when he said ardently, "When are we going to be married?" she laughed and told him to take out his pocket calendar and she'd figure it out with him.

He produced the calendar promptly, and said, "Do you think we'll be the first of March?"

"Very soon, Ethan. March first."

Ethan thrust the tiny calendar back into his pocketbook, and caught her to him with a cry of triumph.

"I thought I'd never manage it! You're the hardest bird to snare I've ever had, Helen. You've played me a good deal."

"Well, I always knew it had to be sometime," she said naively, "only—"

"Well, only—"

"Only I was a little frightened."

"I'd suggest your stopping work with Patricia, if it weren't that I see you like that!" he said.

"Oh, no. I'm marrying Patricia along with you," she said gayly. "Not the least in the world," Ethan said peremptorily. "You are marrying Ethan Kingsway, nobody, nothing else. Helen, I've told you I'm jealous. I couldn't even divide you with the child, fond as I am of her."

She looked at him wonderingly; Helen had never been a very jealous person.

"But you know you'll never have to," she said wonderingly.

"I don't know anything of the sort! As far as I live I mean to be with you. Now, I'm marrying Patricia along with you," she said gayly.

"Not the least in the world," Ethan said peremptorily. "You are marrying Ethan Kingsway, nobody, nothing else. Helen, I've told you I'm jealous. I couldn't even divide you with the child, fond as I am of her."

She looked at him wonderingly; Helen had never been a very jealous person.

DISTRICT DEPUTY VISITED EUREKA MASONIC LODGE

Large Number of Visitors Heres—Rev. Nickle Speaker

Rt. Wor. Bro. W. R. McClung of Trenton paid his official visit to the Eureka Lodge, A. F. & A. M., No. 363 last night, when he came from Trenton accompanying the distinguished guest, supported by many members from the sister lodges of the district. Wor. Bro. Percy Thompson, Worshipful Master of the lodge, with his efficient staff of officers, exemplified the first degree of masonry in a masterly and dignified manner and brought praise from the District Deputy. Rt. Wor. Bro. McClung also addressed the members in the lodge room, congratulating them on the decorum of the lodge and the sound business ability that was manifest.

Wor. Bro. Thompson presided as chairman of the fourth degree but even more notable star for the whole proceedings and when he left immediate Past Master Wor Bro. Howard Asselstine took charge of the Eureka Lodge orchestra was in attendance and rendered a number of popular and classical selections.

There was no musical programme. The toast to the Grand Lodge and Grand Lodge officers was proposed by Wor. Bro. Asselstine and responded to by Rt. Wor. Bro. McClung, while the District Chaplain Rev. Nickle of Trenton addressed the gathering in "Masonry." The toast to the visitors was proposed by R. E. Sandy senior warden of the lodge, and a number replied in a happy vein. The toast to the newly-initiated candidate was ably proposed by R. A. Wor. Bro. Charles J. Symons and the candidate replied in a few well chosen words. It was a memorable night in Eureka lodge history.

BYNG RETURNING TO POLICE DESK

London, Apr. 8 — Lord Byng of Vimy, chief commissioner of Metropolitan Police and former Governor-General of Canada, will return to Scotland Yard Sunday after several months' sick leave. He is still weak after an illness but will not contemplate retiring until after he has carried out some of the most desirable reorganizations that have ever affected the London police.

WHAT A MAN WANTS

BY ETHEL WILLIS HEWITT

Stifling a yawn, Marie slipped into a pink gingham dress and brushed her hair. She had overslept.

Keith emerged from the bath room freshly tubbed and shaved.

"Say, honey, can't you chuck the house and go up with me this morning?" He rumpled her hair as he passed.

"Silly, you know I can't. Saturday, and marketing and everything to be done. As for a thrill, what's an old airplane compared to this for getting a thrill." She looked at him with adoring eyes, and smiling a little slipped her arms around his neck.

Keith took the hint, caught her up close and kissed the pretty flushed face.

"Oh, of course, I get that too, but you're broke off suddenly and went on dressing.

But Marie had caught that little difference in his manner. The keen edge had worn off his eagerness.

Oh, I wish I could, dear, but it's just impossible—all I have to do."

"Don't bother, I didn't expect you'd go." he mumbled, lighting a cigaret.

Below in the kitchen, Marie hurried about breakfast. Men were different after they married. Buttering the toast she recalled the exquisite thrill of their short courtship. Keith was instructor at the Central Airport, and had been his pupil. Then had been hours and hours in the air together, then, finally, her first solo flight. Keith, the young instructor had grown tense, and she saw him go white beneath his coat of tan. Then that first landing. They had been the only persons at the time. Keith had leaned weakly against the ship, his tense muscles relaxed, his eyes shining.

"Gosh — you're a spunky little devil. Cool as a cucumber. You'll make a crack flyer all right," he breathed in admiration.

If she was as cool as a cucumber, Marie knew that he wasn't. She had reached over and lifted her out of the cock pit, — and well, what would you expect, when a woman, just out of perilous danger, finds herself in the arms of a man who had suffered a thousand deaths on her account.

The answer is pretty certain. Their case was no different. It started a series of causes that led straight to the altar. For months past, Marie had lived to fly. Now she was a different woman. Nothing existed in her home and her handsome husband. Interested her. Love was a glorious thing — those first months taught Marie that.

She turned about in a jiffy getting breakfast on the table. Then Keith was smiling at her across the bowl of zonquils.

"I'm doing a brand new stunt today — some thriller," he confided, but one glance deep in his blue eyes. He reached for the toast.

"I mentioned the latest pupil didn't I? Cute kid—and nerve. Reminds me of the way you used to go after flying." There was a wistful note in his voice, and that old eagerness in his eyes. It always caught Marie's heart and held it, for a moment, flopping like a fish out of water. But he wasn't thinking of her now.

"I believe she'd go up with me today" he went on.

"She'd be knocked cold by the time I brought her down, but you couldn't let on — she's that kind, you know — spunky! Keith gave a low chuckle. The hall clock struck nine.

"Great guns, and I've got to get over the ship with Duval before ten! Can't leave everything to a mechanic on a day like this. See you on flight, merry - go - round honey," he called back as he went out the door.

Marie stood still. It wasn't the first time he had gone without kissing her, but, each time the tiny hurt went deeper. She sighed. Wasn't the usual thrill about their house work that morning. Or that she was not allowed to go inside little groups gathered at the corners. There was the room of Keith's plane to fuss up against the blue.

That's the instructor out at Central — some dare-devil," someone replied as the plane came down in a hair-raising dive.

Somehow, with each loop of the yellow ship, Marie could feel the wild beat of Keith's heart against hers. Her breath came in almost too eagerly to bear — alone. That was the feel of it, as if you gave a little gasp and caught it. She reached for the toast.

Marie's thoughts shut off suddenly. That was what Keith wanted of her. Wanted her to cling to him, like that was his life. He had married her for that — and what had she given him?

Why hadn't she seen it before? A whole year and she hadn't flown with him, not once. He must feel like a person who kept a canary, guaranteed to sing, and finds it won't even chirp.

As the ship circled down and out of sight, Marie went about her marketing. She bought radishes and early ripe tomatoes, those first offerings of spring, in a dull, half hearted way What did all this amount to. She was awake to the sweetness of life. So much so that something had to be done about it—and done quickly.

She hadn't been in the car for a year. She wouldn't even let Keith see her attempt it. She'd go down to Brandon airport and get Captain Craig to put the wind in her sails again. Gordon would understand.

The next month was crammed with hurried housework and much loving. Often Keith would come in before she reached home.

"You're getting to be a little gad-about, honey," he teased, but Marie would give him a hurried little smile and rumple his hair.

One night they were talking shop —at least Keith was, Marie was brushing her hair with long, even strokes.

"The Company's going to put on an assistant instructor for two hours a day, Good idea. The last month's been a pain. Good Lord, I've gone air minded," he reharked, casually

"How about taking me on? I could manage two hours a day, easy."

Keith laughed.

"You—I wouldn't trust you off the ground, not on your life. You haven't touched a plane for a year." He lit a cigaret and blew a ring of smoke ceilingward.

"Yeah, is that so?" Marie asked in her amused, husky voice.

She opened the cigaret drawer and handed him a card.

"Take a look at that, king of the air."

Keith did.

"My stars—a pilot's license! what the—"

"Oh, it's just that housework does pall, after a while, I didn't dare let you see me bunk in first thing I went to Gordon. Now—I'll meet you in the air any time you say." She smiled at him sharing the thrill that shot along his nerves.

In a sudden gust of exercness he pulled her down on his lap.

"Oh, gosh, honey, you've made me happy. Think of being up there again, with you, knowing that when my heart's going flit to kill, you're feeling it too, gee it's great!" His arms were about her tight, his cheek against hers.

"It's been heaven, having you this way, but——"

In a little rush of tenderness Marie caught his head down against her shoulder.

"Yeah, I know. When a man marries he knows what he wants—he wants what he marries. Then the girl turns into something else. It's—staggering. I don't see how they stand it. You married an air minded woman and from now on, we fly." She laughed softly.

"And let the house—go hang?" Keith whispered delightedly.

"Honey, it's already gone. There isn't a thing in the house for breakfast. I was that hurried" She met his glance, adoring, eager, drowning her in a sweet confusion.

"Oh bother breakfast, What's the corner delicatessen for?" he brushed into her hair.

Funny, that old saying about the way to a man's heart. Well, when it didn't hurt Marie discovered, just short of heart break, what one man wanted, and she was going to get that he got it.

ANNUAL EASTER DANCE SUCCESS

Members of the Y's Men's Club of Belleville played hosts to a large crowd at Johnstown Academy last night at the annual euchre and dance Despite the fact that the weather man had not in a congenial mood, nevertheless a number of guests from outside districts attended. The affair was voted one of the best in history of the club. The members of the young and flourishing service club left no stone unturned to provide the utmost entertainment for the guests.

The orchestra of the popular Commodore band supplied a delightful program of dance melodies and the hall was appropriately decorated with the Y's Men's emblems and other color arrangements. During the evening favors in the form of miniature boxes of candy were distributed to the ladies. The balloon dance created unusual excitement and a wild scramble ensued when the cluster was unloosed from the ceiling. At midnight lunch was served by the committee. Mrs. Robert Allen was the lucky number prize while Mrs. Harry Poste and Mr. Robert Wales found the lone ace and Mr. "Al" Walters won the spot prize.

The patronesses were: Mrs. R. L. Brown, Mrs. E. Richardson, Mrs. N. Thompson, Mrs. M. Blanchard, Mrs. J. Short, Mrs. Percy Thompson, Mrs. C. Spencer, Mrs. S. Licence, Mrs. O. Pauley, Mrs. R. Morden, Mrs. A. Boggs, Mrs. J. Marsh, Mrs. H. Poste, Mrs. J. Shurie.

At 65 what— Tired or Retired?

WILL any adequate provision be made for your old age except what you arrange yourself?

Here's how you can fix things for yourself:

You can arrange for a guaranteed income of $100.00 a month for life, commencing at age 65. (If you prefer cash this will be a guaranteed sum of $13,020 awaiting you.)

From the moment you make your first deposit, your family has $10,000 life insurance protection.

Present dollars cannot buy future happiness to better advantage. For instance, a man age 35 can procure a $100.00 a month pension by an annual deposit at the rate of $28.25 a month.

Annual dividends greatly reduce the premiums or increase the benefits.

If you have to provide for your own future out of present income, you can get a London Life proposal to meet your particular requirements without obligation.

FAIRY TALE VINDICATED

Teachers were told at the Ontario Educational Association that the fairy story occupies a real place in the education of the young.

Modern pedagogical science has not displaced the fairy tale because it recognizes that imagination as a part of the human endowment requires development.

Does not this prove in its own way that science is no foe of the imagination or of religion? In fact how could science discover truth when it deals with the search for facts? Is not the latest scientific invention the very gateway to romance?

The child lives in a virtual fairyland in his early years. Things that be and things that pass in the mind are equally facts. The fairy story is in reality true for it deals with life truths.

POPULAR SPORT

"The open season for fly-swatting is approaching, and it behooves all householders to do their best to organize swatters. If they are of an economical turn of mind, or to order new weapons, if the old ones have worn out," says Hamilton Spectator. "The pursuit of the elusive fly is not only one of the most widespread of sports in civilized countries, exceeding golf in the number of devotees; it brings to the individual relief from personal annoyance and the sense of duty done. The fly as the carrier of disease and dirt continues to make a strenuous fight for existence despite the campaigns which the population as a whole wages against it, but its continuance as a pest must be ascribed to those lethargic people who think that they have played a strenuous game when they have lazily waved their hands or a duster a few times in the air. They are, however, storing up for themselves and others a lot of trouble in the way of sick children and adults, besides becoming centres of the spread of circle. The presence of flies in a home or a store is something which is noted, but to which people do not draw attention at the time of observation. It is one of those things which furnishes a topic for conversation with the neighbors on the back stoop.

"Of the many ways in which flies may be destroyed, swatting is the most popular. Flypapers are a useful adjunct; the wrapping of garbage is a deterrent to breeding. We remember once seeing an electrical flycatcher, and our impression was that the flies used to go to it for electrical treatments, buzzing around thereafter with renewed vigor. Perhaps electrical flycatchers have been improved since then. Down in Texas they have made a drive on the flies which do damage to the live stock. In one season the number of flies in an acre of 200 square miles have been reduced, it is estimated, by 36 per cent. The way they set about it by means of traps. The trappers used about two pounds of fresh meat, two gallons of water and eight cubic centimeters of nicotine in each trap for bait and poisoning. The bait was renewed once every fifteen days in summer and once every twenty days or so in the spring or autumn. One trap was placed in every 400 acres. In seven and a half months they caught 8,533 quarts of flies. The sport was carried out by a flytrapping association in conjunction with the department of agriculture. It might be a good idea to try these flytraps up north. The black fly has not been very bad since 1928, when it drove the animals out of the bush. But weather conditions or its cyclic return, if there is such a thing as a cycle connected with its prevalence, may make the black fly nuisance as intolerable as it was three years ago. The authorities would do well to investigate this flytrap business in the interests of the development of the northlands."

REFORESTATION

Reforestation in Ontario has taken a grip of the people as has the same in the United States. Both Canada and the States have seen their forests shrink at an alarming rate and have taken up seriously the matter of reforesting. The Christian Science Monitor says of the U.S. efforts in this regard:—

"With five-eighths of the 820,000,000 acres which the United States originally had in forest land exhausted by lumbering operations and forest fires, the remaining one interest in forestry in America is not difficult to understand. Following the example of European countries, where for many years have been restoring their denuded forest lands by scientific reforestation and a discriminating harvesting of timber, many American states are now launched on gigantic reforestation projects, from which much good may be expected in overcoming the bad results of previous wasteful policies.

Joyce Kilmer sang:

'I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree.

Many are coming to feel that they will never see a monument as appropriate as a tree."

"Has your daughter done well at college?"

"Well, we think she's safe for honors in cosmetics."

JUST BEFORE DAWN

By Aline Michaelis

Just before dawn the wind grew still
That all night long had raged,
And with the lull a sense of calm
My fears assuaged.

It was as though light, yet unseen,
Had flashed its promise on,
Revealing by my doubts and dreads
The coming dawn;

A promise of bright days to be,
When those dark hours would seem
No more than dim shadow-shapes
Of some vexed dream.

Just before dawning, courage flowed
Into my soul again,
And the best tides of peace crept in
That will remain.

For nevermore will hope's bright ranks
Be from my heart withdrawn;
That hour is memory's amulet,
Just before dawn.

SWEET SLEEP FROM SWEETS

There is just as much science as poetry in the expression "sweet sleep." This is shown, we are told in a bulletin issued by the Colgate University press bureau, by the record of an inter-collegiate slumber contest recently conducted between men students at Skidmore College in Saratoga Springs, N.Y.

The contest, conducted on a scientific basis jointly by Dr. Donald A. Laird, director of Colgate's department of psychology, and Dr. Linus W. Kline, Skidmore psychologist, ended in a runaway for the girls, and indicated that the most restful and refreshing sleep was the reward of those who went in for diets rich in sweets and other carbohydrates. We read:

Furthermore, the sweet-eating girls were said to be much sweeter and prompter about arising in the morning than is Colgate gate men and their sister students who went in for more ascetic eating. Most of the young men at Colgate had to be called at least twice before they could be aroused from their slumbers. The Skidmore girls bounded out of their beds at the first note of the alarm clock.

Each of the 136 Skidmore students and 140 Colgate students who participated in the experiment reported daily over a period of two weeks on 225 items of data which had to do with their mode of living, their emotional states, and their reactions to physical exertion.

A classification of .this data .showed that the two groups having the perfect sleep scores were girls who consumed the largest quantities of sweets. It also showed that the girl students in general slept about 15 per cent. better than men students.

"Thirty-four girls who consumed the most carbohydrates either in their coffee, on their cereal, at the college drug store, soda fountain, or from boxes of candy," Dr. Laird said in reporting the contest, "had the least trouble falling asleep and were bothered less by dreams than their more ascetic sisters, indicating a greater ease of muscular relaxation. The general sleep index, consisting of 11 factors, also showed decidedly better sleep for the heavy carbohydrate eaters.

"This is due to the carbohydrates supplying the muscles quickly with glycogen, or blood sugar, which is the primary muscle food. It also lessens the instable chemical condition of the muscles, which otherwise interferes with relaxation, essential in promoting good sleep."

Over a period of seven years Dr. Laird has been making a study of sleep and fatigue, particularly as they are effected by various foods, habits of living, noise, heat, and the various other elements and influences which affect the average person.

MODERN ETIQUETTE
BY ROBERTA LEE

Q. In what form are invitations to luncheons usually issued?

A. By short, personal notes from the hostess.

Q. Is it ever permissible to reprove servants in the presence of guests or other servants?

A. No; they should be talked to singly and considerately.

Q. What is the greatest help for a young girl to gain self-control?

A. Contact with people who are somewhat older and who have gained a proper perspective.

GETTING TOGETHER

One of the most interesting and significant items of news that have come over the cable for a long time is the announcement that the German Chancellor and Foreign Secretary have been invited to London for an official conference with the Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, British Foreign Secretary, regarding armless still awaiting settlement between the two countries.

It is of course quite impossible to dream of treating Germany always as the world's bad boy. For it is anything but futile to continue to talk about the guilt clause. That many lost, and she has paid in part and is still paying, and will doubtless continue to pay for a long time, though nobody really believes that even the Young reparations scheme will ever be carried to fulfillment, though no amount, however huge, could ever compensate for the terrible loss of the flower of the "combatant nations' youth. — Montreal Star.

MODERN EDUCATION

The old idea was that the teacher should keep his pupils as a distance, but times have changed and ideas have changed with them. There has been a noticeable improvement in the companionship between instructors and pupils; a noticeable tendency to rule by love rather than by fear. This is as it should be. Pupils can be led faster and further, than they can be driven.

There has been a change also in the curriculum—a greater number of subjects, somewhat, and in the advanced grades a greater choice of subjects. It means a greater opportunity for the individual pupil to secure the training which best suits his tastes and his capacities. There still persists in some quarters, however, the old idea that all attention should be concentrated on the "three R's." Undoubtedly these are highly important, but it does not follow that all other subjects are "frills and fads". On the contrary, an education confined to the "three R's" "Rifling and "Rithmetic" would be a poor preparation for modern life. An education which prepared for life only those who show an aptitude for learning would also be a poor and inadequate thing. One of the great advances during the present century has been the provision made, especially in the large centres, for pupils who are handicapped physically or mentally, and who require, as a consequence, particular and particular training in order that they too, may have a fair chance in the struggle for existence.—Toronto Star.

DANGER OF GRASS FIRES

The danger in these grass fires lies in the fact that, once they are once started, there is no telling how far they will spread. Wooden fences, frame garages and other buildings in their path might quite easily be set on fire and serious losses caused. The only safe plan is to refrain from setting such fires unless there is ample provision made for keeping them in check. It is true that in some districts the fires are set by thoughtless boys, and for such lads the surest safeguard is strict parental control. In other cases they are set purposely or unconcernedly by persons wishing to clear long grass from an unsightly backyard or vacant lot. But the onus in the greatest of care must be taken to prevent the fire from spreading, and they should never be set when there is a high wind on the flames. The best advice is to refrain entirely from setting fires of this kind, for it is much better to be safe than sorry.—Chatham Times.

A BOY AND HIS DOG

The pure humanity of the Scarborough family is indicated by the high regard they entertain for "Chunky." "Chunky" is a dog, breeding not announced; but that does not matter. Anyway, he missed the "Lady's night cart" at the installation ceremonies in Hollow on Saturday. "Chunky" found himself in a strange land, and, following his canine instinct, he set out on a tour of investigation and examination. "Chunky" evidently is unfamiliar with the ways of cities, for just as is the experience of many humans, he got himself lost.

There is a boy in the Beaborough family, and the boy owns "Chunky." The boy is a Viscount; but—often a boy's pet dog is less a title-deed to mean anything. "Chunky" had to be found before the Viscount's party started for Ottawa, even if the plans were held up. Headed by a Captain of the Canadian Mounted Riders, a Police, a search party set forth to scour the streets of Halifax.

As might be expected, "Chunky" had found a friend—another boy, of course—and no doubt thought that he was being very cordially welcomed to Canada. After some persuasion the lad was induced to accept the lost new-found companion. Through it all "Chunky" wagged his tale, and the motion was somewhat accelerated when he resumed his station with the young Viscount's parents.—Globe.

ONE KILLED, TWO HURT IN CRASH

Orillia, April 9—Loose gravel on the shore of Lake Couchiching today caused a car containing Eileen Prophet, 17; Mary Sullivan, 16; and Lloyd Webb, 17, to overturn on the lake-shore stretch on the No. 11 highway, one mile west of Orillia, killed almost instantly. Mary Sullivan was instantly killed and Lloyd Webb, the owner of the car was badly injured. An inquest has been ordered.

LINKED WITH TECUMSEH

Sarnia, April 9.—Edward Jackson, grandson of the Indian Chief Shawanoe, and an aged resident of Walpole Island, who figured prominently in the discovery on Walpole Island last January of bones believed to be those of the Indian Chief Tecumseh, died Tuesday at his log cabin on the island. He was 84 years old. Mr. Jackson was a lifelong resident of Walpole Island Reserve and was the grandson of Shawanoe, the ally of Tecumseh, and one of the Indians who was instrumental in burying the body after he was slain in the battle of 1813. Nearly of the details of Tecumseh's life was furnished to historical researchers by Jackson, who, as a boy, heard his grandfather Shawanoe tell of his experiences with Tecumseh. He is survived by one son.

RATEPAYERS FIRST

Cobalt, April 8.—On the ground that the interests of the ratepayers of the municipality came first, Cobalt Township Council has decided to curtail unemployment activities to work on township roads alone. The municipal plow has been rented to different persons to keep open roads to Silver Centre, Latchford and New Liskeard.

LUMBER-CUT HALF

North Bay, April 9.—The lumber cut this year in Nipissing district will be only about half the normal. Logging operations have already been greatly curtailed. The present low wages in Lake Nipissing is partly due, similarly to some of the lumber operations. The spring freshets are eagerly awaited.

CUT MAPLE SUGAR OUTPUT

Quebec, April 9—A decrease of about 40 to 50 per cent in the maple sugar production this year, was the estimate made today by Cyrille Vaillancourt, head of the Provincial Maple Sugar Service, himself on reports already on hand.

CHILD IS INJURED

Ingersoll, April 8—Falling on the sidewalk while roller skating, Thames Street, Beatrice Yaron, aged eight years, broke her right arm below the elbow.

OLD-TIME LONGING FOR LENO WHIMSIES

London, April 4—St. John Irvine, dramatic auinor and critic, in The Observer, expresses a longing for the old days of Dan Leno and Marie Lloyd, and says he is sick of jazz and jazzers. He says almost as regular intervals as Greenwich reached the town this, the old-fashioned music hall is to be revived and the variety artists are to be brought back to the stage, and, confessing himself "old-fashioned," he feels the cockles of his heart warming at such tidings, but he is always disappointed.

"I am sick with a great sickness, sick of jazz and jazzers and of sexy young men with flashy eyes, who come out and sing a lil' song entitled, 'She's Ma' Sweetie But a Hasden't Got No Money' or 'She Kidded Wanna Play With Mee-e' " St. John Irvine says. "If I hear another overbrilliantined, under-aired young man announcing in that tone that he wants to go, he wants to go, back to the shank where the pop-eyed Bolas grow, I shall say 'For God's sake go, and don't trouble to return.' I would sacrifice the whole herd of jazzers for 20 minutes of Dan Leno; I would give all the rag-times in the world for a chance to hear Marie Lloyd again and I can still listen to songs about Dixie and Alabama. I would prefer to hear them from Eugene Stratton than from the moon eyed beaters who now hold the stage." Further Mr. Irvine says:

"How can one hope to make those who never saw him realize what a comedian Dan Leno was, or infect them with our enthusiasm for those who never heard Marie Lloyd? That little funny man, Leno, with his small voice and his air of being lost and his whimsical eyes dreply set under high arching eyebrows and his long straight-line of a mouth and the jolly dimples that deepened as he aged—was he not the most amusing creature we had ever seen? How little was the effort he made to be funny. He walk on to the stage and stood immediatel behind the footlights and opened his mouth,—and was funny.

"I shall remember Dan Leno when I have forgotten more pompously - eminent men, and I can visualize Marie Lloyd that saucy comedienne, with ease, but I have difficulty in visualizing solemner people. She was gay with the sprightly wit of the London child, and could fill the largest hall with her personality. A smallish woman with a round face and bright, humorous eyes, and fine teeth that glistened prettily in the limelight, and handsome legs, that was Marie Lloyd to look at. But, goodness me, what she was to hear. She had the pre-war Cockney's love of bright colors, that gipsy love of gaiety that seems to have gone from the Cockney who is resolved to be such a gent."

MELBA NOT KNOWN IN SOUTH AFRICA

Cape Town, South Africa, April 9—Dame Melba was only known to South Africa through the gramophone. She was just a marvellous voice to a person to most South Africans. She was a woman of genius, but she was a womanly and human woman. She would talk to you ecstatically about her art, yet she would also plaudder about your ringaleium. In her West End home she was never without her South African grey parrot—a most remarkable bird that took part in her practices. "Poll's a wonder," she once said. "He'll be a singer yet. Why, he joined in perfectly when I was singing 'Chanson Triste' yesterday."

She confessed once that she felt an ever-increasing need of singing "serious things." She said: "I always prefer that which is grave and even tragical, like that of Verdi's 'Otello,'" she said. "I want to express greater and greater depths of feeling. A singer must get deep into the hearts of others." She added, with a characteristic flash of wisdom.

SOME SEX PHYSCHOLOGY

The masculine point of view of love is a more selfish one than is woman's. He finds in it a conquest, a material pleasure, a sort of sensual enjoyment. Woman, on the other hand, finds in love an opportunity for duty, sacrifice, devotion and self-effacement.

Man is proud of the fact, that he has made some particular woman his wife, has such and such children, and has managed to carry on a household of such and such pretensions. With him it is largely ego. Woman is proud, too, but more because she has found a single love object to which she may be able to give her entire life. Rivalry with other women enters into it in the beginning but soon she submerges her personality for the good of the husband and family.

Women, in fact, like to attract but do not actually like to conquer and subjugate as do men. A woman wants to feel she has attracted a man but if, after that, he becomes too docile, she is apt to lose her respect for him. She admires in the male a certain ruggedness and domination. He, on the other hand, is most flattered when he considers himself the master.

To man, sex may be something quite apart from love. Woman, however, never succeeds to separate the two. In fact, sex can readily become sordid and vulgar to the female of the species because, deep down, it is connected with her maternal strivings which always take on an idealized and even hallowed meaning.

Men, are not, of course, incapable of sacrifice. He tends to sacrifice, nevertheless, in the spirit of the conqueror. He will suffer privation, work incessantly, and do or dare to keep his family going. His pride does not permit him to do otherwise. And he will risk his life for a particular principle, and willingly, because he is motivated by the impulse to protect his women-folk and the born.

For one he loves he will dare anything, still and all, he gets a great kick out of it. In other words, he does not accomplish these unusual things for his beloved alone, as a woman usually does for her man. He does it partly for himself and because through such accomplishments he attracts his beloved object and holds her at one and the same time.

Women are willing to sacrifice anything and everything for love. Men are not. What they will hold on to tenaciously is pride. They will empty their pocketbooks but stop on their pride and love receives a decided setback.

Men also tends to over-idealize women much more than women over idealize men. In their dream, to be sure, girls dream in very colorful ways about members of the opposite sex. They soon learn, however, to correct their fancies and by twenty-three or twenty-five, they know the character of the males pretty thoroughly. Man, on the other hand, never seems to get over the possibility of "making a fool out of himself" over some woman. No matter what disappointments he may have suffered, he always starts all over again believing that the new feminine personality is the ideal he has always been looking for.

Yes, women view men quite differently from the way men view women. All of which undoubtedly helps to keep up the interest and attraction, and, in the last analysis, this is about as it should be.

CORRECT EATING

A great deal of thought and consideration amount of attention are given, in many homes to the selection and preparation of the meals. This is as it should be, and it is desirable also that the food, as it comes to the table, be eaten in such a manner that the body will be able to derive the best possible use of it.

Meals should be eaten quietly, and there should not be any hurry and rush in the dining room. Food is not readily digested when the body is tired. If the individual is tired, a rest before eating will aid digestion, as will also a meal that is eaten quietly and calmly.

Arguments or scolding should never be carried on at meal time. Emotional upsets, anger or worry interfere with digestion. Meal time should be a cheerful and happy time.

The body is better able to digest food when meals are taken regularly. The regular meal time gives the digestive system the periods of rest which it requires. If meals are taken at all hours, or if there is eating between meals, there is no time left for the organs of digestion to rest.

Food should be thoroughly chewed before it is swallowed. Do not be afraid to use your teeth. Using the teeth is one of the best ways of keeping teeth and gums in a healthy state.

There is no objection to the moderate use of beverages with meals, but they should only be taken when there is no food in the mouth — never used to wash down food before it has been thoroughly chewed.

When sitting down to the table, it is not wise to drink cold water before the meal begins. At that time, the blood vessels of the stomach are dilated and the gastric juices are active. Under such conditions a dash of cold water is undesirable as it causes the blood vessels to contract, and checks the secretion of the gastric juice.

Cold water or milk should be drunk slowly and taken during the meal, not before solid food is taken.

Moderation should be practised at all times. It is harmful to over eat. Excess does harm; it throws an undue strain on the body and so wears the tissues out early. Premature old age is the result. In fact, moderation has not been practised.

Eat moderately, eat slowly, and make meal-time a happy, restful time—that is the way to eat.

BRITISH PLANES BUILT IN CANADA

Toronto, Ont., April 9 — British planes and engines are being built in Canada by commercial companies now engaged in turning out civil and military equipment for the Royal Canadian Air Force. The latest company to undertake manufacturing operations is the Toronto factory of a well-known English company. These machines, intended to perform a diversity of duties, are essentially the same as the famous seaplane flown by the Prince of Wales, but possess a variety of equipment according to the work they will be called upon to do. The craft ordered for military flying are to be employed mainly in training pilots to fly closed-cabin type aeroplanes. They will be fitted for use in special navigational courses of instruction and three of them will be arranged for equipment with a new type of visual indicator for tuition in flying by radio directional beacons. One model is completely fitted for "instrument" or "blind" flying with dual control, a special instrument board, and screens to placed that the pilot under instruction may have his view out of the aeroplane completely blanketed and thus be obliged to steer and control the craft entirely by the instruments. The instructor has unrestricted outward view and acts as "safety pilot" correcting any mistakes his "blind" pupil may make.

Worms are encouraged by morbid conditions of the stomach and bowels and so subsist. Miller's Worm Powders will alter these conditions almost immediately and will sweep the worms away. No destructive parasite can live in contact with this medicine, which is not only a worm destroyer, but a health-giving medicine most beneficial to the young constitution, and as such it has no superior.

The end of Christianity is to perfect the human nature by a participation of the divine—Bishop Wilson.

AIRMAN WILL GET COURSE IN ENGLAND

London, April 9—Airmen of all nations, and in particular officers serving in foreign air forces, will be able soon to come to Great Britain for a complete course of instruction in practical aeronautics—comparable in many ways with degree courses of the leading universities—at a new flying school which reproduces in a certain measure every phase of training used by the Royal Air Force.

This new "University of the Air" one of the first of its kind in the world will be opened at Hamble, near Southampton, on April 14, by Air Service Training, Limited, a company headed by Air Marshal Sir John Higgins, who until recently was Air Member for Supply and Research of the Air Council. The courses of instruction, both theoretical and practical, are devised to cover the field most thoroughly.

Four types of land planes and three types of seaplane are included in the fleet of school aeroplanes the pupil who takes a full course will similarly with instruction on a flying seaplane or a service training plane and progress to the more complicated craft and fighters. In addition to full instruction in every branch of aerial age and navigation the Service course will the school receive instruction on engines, rigging, meteorology, aeromatchips and the theory of flight. A special course in "instrument" or "blind" flying may be taken, which commercial and private pilots and flying instructors have choice subjects for specially suited to their needs.

Preliminary discussions indicate that many future pilots from foreign countries may be expected to take extended courses of instruction, some of them in military aviation. The staff and administration of the school is planned therefore, mainly with the object of providing the most complete possible instruction in service flying. The commandant of the school is Group Captain R.J.F. Barton, an officer of high rank with a distinguished record in the Royal Air Force, and the chief instructor is Flight Lieutenant H. F. Jenkins

MOUNT PLEASANT W.M.S.

(Contributed by the Press Sec.)

On Easter Sunday at Mount Pleasant the W.M.S. under the direction of their president, Mrs. Joblin put on a special morning service. The pianist, Miss Olive McConnell rendered suitable Eastertide music and the choir gave an anthem "Haste Ye". Mrs. Edgar McKeown sang a solo "O Glory Sweet," Mrs. John Holmes sent a beautiful Easter lily to grace the altar. Mrs. Joblin made a plea for more members to the W.M.S. and gave a splendid message to those present. Mrs. Percy MacMullen recited "The Drowning sinner," with Mr. Ourger McConnell leading the solo part in this rendition. Mrs. Will Potts read the Easter lesson and the W.M.S. Thanksoffering was taken by Mesdames Thurlow and Hubble and amounted to fifty-five dollars and eighty-one cents and the Mission Band was seven dollars and seventy-one cents.

The pastor gave a splendid Easter message full of inspiring thoughts.

On Easter Monday group three of the W. M. S. with Mrs. Thomas McKeown as captain held an open meet at the Rev. Joblin presided with Mrs. Ross Hoard, Misses Olive McConnell and Edna Thrasher as piano accompanists. Twenty-one ladies answered the roll call and a short outline of the year's work was given by the secretary treasurer. During 1930 we had eight life and seventeen honorary members and they contributed $250.00. Mrs. Thomas McKeown gave a reading dealing with "The Life of Dr. Grenfell of Labrador," also an Easter message. Mrs. Joblin sang very sweetly, "Open the Gates of the Temple". Little Marion Rose recited with her doll a lovely missionary reading. Mrs. Ross Hoard rendered "Humoresque" by Dvolah. A play in two acts "From Small Beginnings" was given depicting how the first W. M. S. auxiliary was organized sixty years ago. The stage with old furniture and the ladies wearing costumes popular in 1871 made a pleasing picture of by-gone days. Those in the play were Mrs. Thomas McKeown, Mrs. Elwood Johnson, Mrs. Arthur Phillips, Mrs. Oswald Vickery, Mrs. Percy Sharpe, Mrs. Blake Sharp, Mrs. Geo. Weaver and Mrs. Florence O'Connell.

From that small beginning sixty years ago we have W. M. S. Auxiliaries all over the land and the ladies raised nearly a million dollars for missions during 1930.

Miss Olive McConnell sang a lovely solo "The Heart of God". Percy White recited "Your Part" dealing with the duty of tithing then the collection when counted showed the sum of $11.45. At the close a delicious lunch was served.

Little Benny's Note Book

Just before supper it started to rain like anything, and the telefone rang and it was pop saying he was around the corner in. Wites dog store, and I started to waste around under my umbereila carrying pops umbereila in my empty hand and the rain was coming down faster like about 3 rains at once, and some lady was standing in somebodys verteruble out of it, and she saw me going pasted and called out to me. Boy boy, if you want to make a dime just let me go home under one of those umbereilas.

Me thinking, O, a dime. And I red. Where do you live?

So scarcely 3 minnits from here, the lady sed, and I sed. All rite. Thinking, Geah a dime.

And I went up the steps and handed her pops umbereila and she opened it and came down the steps under it and started to keep on going with me walking in back of her under my umbereila, thinking, O, good nite look what way she's going. I hope she dont wawk pass Wites drug store.

Being just what she went and did with me still in back of her, and pop was standing inside the door looking out through the glass, and he saw me coming pas muted of wawking in, and he started to make sines and I quick pointed at the lady under his umbereila and kept on wawking after her under my own, and it was the biggest 3 minnits awaj I ever saw, being more like 10 and she gave me the dime and went in her house and I hurry up ran back to Wites drug store, saying to pop, O wize, pop, she asked me to lend her the umbereila, I couldent tell her I would ent could I?

Sho that prize gallantry? pop sed, and I sed, Sir? and he sed, How much did she give you?

Sir? A dime. I sed, and pop sed, Thats just what Im going to charge you for the privlege of escorting me home. Hand it over, he sed.

When I did, and when we got home pop made me get my bank, saying, Now, just for punishment Im going to make you save it.

And he dropped the dime in, not being as bad as not having it at all but securing almost worse.

MEN WHO KNOW STEEL PREFER THE VALET—MEN WHO KNOW FACES PRESCRIBE IT

ONE clean hit after another is scored on far-off targets when sights are trained with mathematical exactness. In gunnery—as in every other important field of human endeavor—far better results reward extra care and precision.

The new Valet blade is built to almost incredible standards of excellence. Here's why it is prescribed by men who know faces—preferred by those who know steel. Dermatologists and metallurgists—impartial and discriminating—select this blade for perfect shaving results.

Valet manufacturing methods are painstaking and modern. Valetite steel, triple-hardened—is finished to an edge of marvelous keenness. Every operation is controlled with utmost nicety.

The Valet blade is made exclusively for the Valet AutoStrop Razor. Delicate adjustments to meet the requirements of your beard and skin are possible in all de luxe models—and the blade can be cleaned and stropped without removal.

Learn what a difference precision manufacture can make. Shave with a blade that soothes your skin—helps keep the face young and the skin clear. Buy a package of Valet blades today—and the razor if you haven't one.

The new blade can be identified by the word "Valet" cut through the steel

Painful Piles

Be Quick—No Cutting—No Salves

If taken early from holder of Dr. E. Leonhardt's prescription—HEMROID—for itching, bleeding, protruding piles. This internal remedy acts quickly even in old, stubborn cases. HEM-ROID succeeds because it heals and restores the affected parts and removes blood congestion in the lower bowel—the cause of piles. Only internal medicine can do this, that's why salves and cutting fail. J. S. McKeown's Drug Store says HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile misery or money back.

Circus Clown-Who is He? What's He Do With Time

That business about the clown and his spare time has been exploded—as far as is consistent with sentiment. He does not write melancholy verse or paint depressing landscapes and the less entertaining still lifes. Rather he collects stamps, goes to the movies, reads Western stories or broods on the future of his career. And at least one of them, uses his waking hours to the invention of gadgets for automobiles—at least he was so accused yesterday.

The circus now here has hair a dozen ray, which run without rhyme—and discharge salvos of common and painted bowns. For years they have done so and still they are popular. They are an achievement of one Monah Baker, known, even on the payroll, between the quotation marks of "Bush".

Dressed in his white and red spotted suit with the chalked-in hot cork face of generations of clows, the inventor entered yesterday how it is done. There is first of all the automobile that runs along smoothly and then suddenly rears on its hind legs and goes on about its business in that fashion. This is a matter of proper weights, and Mr. Baker's car drew diagrams reminiscent of the more intricate phases of calculus to prove it.

The weights, three of them at 200 pounds each, are attached to levers like devices at the rear of the cars Mr. Baker and his assistant get in and tart out. When the cars gain speed the weights go down and the hind engine, driver and all go up like a see-saw. Mr. Baker's associate climbs on the hod, but that doesn't bring it down again. This is done by just throwing the engine into reverse. That returns the weights to their normal position.

This particular arrangement kept Mr. Baker busy all Winter, until he finaly got it just right. It still mystifies him, he says, and he assumes the car is some sort of a freak. It is quite a car, however, being used in three acts during the show, and each time with a different body. It came into the hands of Mr. Baker back in 1919. It has various other attachments for squirting wet, shooting blank cartridges and the like.

Other cars coming under the principles of the inventor are the small one driven by a monkey and the taxi that isn't driven by any one at all. Mr. Baker's companion, Harry Ashley, has also invented many gadgets for automobiles—at least he was so accused yesterday.

Mr. Baker ten years ago built the steam roller which trundled around the track and over clowns. John Ringling one day suggested that spectators might like to see clowns flattened out, and the steam-roller was the result. And finally, he has a letter from Henry Ford saying something to the effect that he is the only man able to get more out of the car than was put into it.

TO HUNT IN AFRICA'S WILDS

London, April 9—Two debutantes are leaving London in April to hunt lions and elephants in East African jungles. The Hon. Diana Fellowes, only daughter of the late Lord de Ramsey, and Miss Marjorie Leigh, daughter of Sir John Leigh, M.P., two sportswomen barely out of their teens, have accepted an invitation to go on to Safara in Tanganyika Territory with Baron and Baroness Ehken, two noted big game hunters. They hope to shoot lions and elephants.

Baron Ehken owns a large tract of country in Tanganyika Territory, where he has a coffee plantation about 4,000 feet up in the highlands, some 40 miles inland from Dar-es-Salaam. Lions, elephants and other big game are plentiful in the district. The Baron and Baroness are arranging for the big-bore elephant guns and other hunting equipment. Both girls are expert with a gun. Miss Leigh has won 29 cups, and the two are excellent cross-country riders.

LIFE IN LUMBER CAMPS OF QUEBEC

Montreal, April 9—Life in a modern lumbering camp was recently described by Peter Aylen in the Montreal Gazette. Mr. Aylen wrote:

If a modern Rip Van Winkle were to wake up in Montreal after a nap of 21 years he would probably be surprised at what he saw. If, however, he awakened to find himself not in the midst of a noisy city but in a little settlement somewhere in the great timber limits of Quebec, he would most likely be more surprised at what two decades of progress had accomplished there. Instead of the miserable conditions he had known in lumber camps back in 1910 he would find, much to his astonishment, that many of the comforts and conveniences of the city had penetrated to the once isolated camps at one time cut off from civilized communities and now really forming a part of them. What would the genial old Dutchman's successor say if he were to walk into one of the comfortable log cabins in the heart of the woods, and hear the cheerful strains of an orchestra from some gay New York night club, or see a motor car racing up the good road from the station bringing the day's mail? Few people realize the immense changes which have transformed the life of the lumberjack within the last few years, and it was with the idea of showing the real conditions in modern lumber camps that the Northern Logging and Contracting Company recently organized a tour of inspection of its logging operations on the limits of the Canadian Power and Paper Company along the Flamand river in the St. Maurice Valley. In this large area, which will soon be flooded by the developments of the Shawinigan Water and Power Company at Rapid Blanc on the St. Maurice, the Northern Logging Company was "making logs" for the Canada Power and Paper Company under contract. During a visit of several days the party, which was composed mainly of representatives of the press, visited many of the camps in the vicinity of Flamand, a station on the C.N.R. transcontinental line about 150 miles from Quebec.

"The physical nature of the district is fairly typical of northern Quebec—low, rolling hills everywhere covered mainly with jack pine, spruce and balsam. This particular area included in the trip was pretty well cleared for some distance on either side of the railway, and as it was burnt over some ten years ago, presented a rather desolate and barren appearance. On every side, however were evidences of the handiwork of man. A good gravel road, owned by the paper company, runs for more than 10 miles down through the limit, flanked by a row of telephone wires, connecting the several depots or "headquarters" with the rest of the world. Surprising as it may seem this road is kept open for motor traffic all winter.

Perhaps no single undertaking has contributed so much to improve the lot of the woodsman as has the building of good roads into his lonely fields. The meats for one thing that fresh meat and vegetables can be brought in with ease, and this is the small consideration to those who once lived on beans and salt pork all the year. Then, again, it has made the country so much more accessible, enabling it possible to bring in countless commodities, and even luxuries which are perhaps but little add so much to the enjoyment of life. But more than all this, good roads have meant continuous and frequent contact with the rest of the country. Once an isolated commodity, where the lumberjacks lived and worked under miserable conditions, forgotten by the rest of the world, lumbering operations are carried on under the watchful eye of humanity controlled by public opinion and strict government regulations, requiring that everything shall measure up to a high standard, comfortable and healthy.

One of the strongest impressions left upon the visitor on a trip is the pronounced effects of efficient organization. The logging business is no longer run on hit-or-miss principles. Every detail which has been introduced everywhere and a compilation carried out to date. All the camps are in close contact with one another and with the headquarters, and the work is carried on under the strict and never-relaxing supervision, of the company and government officials.

There are government fire rangers throughout the district, from their headquarters at Roberval, are always full eye over the forest and seeing that regulations for the prevention of fires are observed.

Reforestation operations are another thing which are much in evidence throughout the country, and all along the line which runs up the road along this line is beginning to bear fruit. Trees, which are the result of growth of trees, six healthy trees are left standing on every acre, not to be touched by the woodman's axe under any circumstances as seed trees, and are left to grow unmolested in order to seed the neighbouring ground and every year a section in the vicinity of Smith Lake an experiment in reforestation is being carried out, awaking considerable interest. Two years ago a section was marked off by side and one cleared of half its trees. The remaining trees were tagged and measured and some years hence will be measured again to see their growth compared with that of the trees in the neighbouring plot. The trees in the latter section are also marked with a whitewash band and the plot has been allowed to grow "natural" by the natives on account of the ghostly appearance of the white trees.

BUSINESS OF LOVE

By N. FLORENCE LEECH

By N. Florence Leech

"That will be all now, Celeste, thank you."

"Oui, madam." The maid disappeared noiselessly, and Kate Harker jumped up from the chaise lounge and turned the key in the bedroom door.

It had been after two o'clock when she returned from the Granger's dance but she was up early, for she had been unable to sleep. Her affairs, she realized, had reached a crisis. She was a modern Cinderella, she thought bitterly, and the clock was about to strike twelve; but unlike the original beauty, no handsome, desirable prince was pursuing her, fortune in hand.

Unlocking a dressing case, she took out Tommy Proctor's picture and gazed at it downward on the bed. She next opened a bill fold, and counted the few notes it contained. No need to look up her bank balance, for she knew what it was. Then she swallowed another pill. The bottom note was a five not a fifty. Now indeed she faced a crisis.

Kate was 25 years old, and without near relatives. She was supposed to be well off by the world of smart society in which she lived, but the stock market crash a year before had swept away the huge fortune left her by her father, and she had only a small annuity from her mother's estate. One of two courses was open to Kate; but hoarding her few thousands as best she could, she put off the inevitable; a rich marriage or a job.

A clock struck musically, and she realized it was time to dress for her ride in the park. And afterwards there was a bridge luncheon at the Raleigh. Well, in three days Connie would return from Europe and Kate would have to vacate her friend's generously loaned apartment and do without the exquisite French maid.

She had no fear for work and couldn't make good in a job; on Saturday she would go back home to Atlanta—and Judson. Judson of the cold gray eyes and hard cash, who had loved her for years. With a sigh she replaced the flat millfold and the cheap photograph in the dressing case, and locking it, rang for Celeste.

Hours later as she was setting out for the luncheon, the phone rang.

"Hello, Kitty." It was Tommy Proctor's voice.

"Oh, hello, Tommy." She tried to sound casual.

"Will you have dinner with me tonight?" He spoke abruptly.

"It's rather important. And afterwards we'll go out to Marshland and dance."

"Imogene's asked me to an informal party, but I can easily beg off," she answered, breathless in spite of herself.

"Then I'll see you at seven."

Kate played and looked unusually well that afternoon. Her amber children frock accentuated the gold lights in her brown hair, the golden glints in her hazel eyes Her color was high and her voice richer and deeper than ordinary. And Tommy's voice, speaking a dozen sentences over the telephone, had done this! Well, in three days she would have settled out of his life forever.

But it was all for the best, she assured herself, for she had to marry money, and Tommy had shown clearly by his coolness and indifference that she meant nothing to him. For Tommy, unfortunately, was poor. Not old or ugly or stupid or wicked; all that might be excused in a man of wealth.

Tommy was frankly poor, and all the girls adored him—but none of them married him; and it was like her silly self, Kate thought, to fall in love with him at first sight. She had accepted Connie's invitation to use her apartment and she had come the winter in New York, simply and only to be near him. It had become her heroine and that was for the more she tried not to love him, the dearer he became. He had never hinted at love in words; but when they were together there was something between them like the beating of invisible wings.

Kate couldn't persuade herself that he didn't care for her, and that was why marrying Judson would be so hard. But there would be this evening together to remember; and that was why her eyes sparkled and her cheeks were crimson.

There was a dreamlike quality about their dinner Sophisticated woman of the world though Kate was, Tommy's reserves unnerved her. The room seemed a kaleidoscope blur of soft lights and bright colors; music and voices beat faintly on her ears, like distant surf. Mechanically she picked at her food, so Tommy could not see that her hands trembled. He was talking about himself, telling things she had never suspected.

"And after I crashed the second time, the doctors said I must never fly again. Heart, you know. So I went into banking. And I'm the world's worst business man," he was saying.

She murmured a reply.

"Everybody was sorry for me, and I hated that. Then I fell in love with a rich girl, and I was afraid she would think I was after her money."

Kate's heart dore crashly, did a tail spin, finally righted itself. Now he understood why he had never cared for her.

"Don't you know how love her?" she asked, softly.

"No," he admitted. "That's why I'm telling you this now."

Worse and worse! Perhaps like John Alden he wanted her to intercede with the girl. But he was John Alden with a bite; at least as between sinkers.

"But I invented what I had in Airplane Preferred Stock, and it soared. I got out at the peak, and now I've got a tidy little fortune sailed down in Liberty bonds for her," he said, and his fork and looked at her square-ly. "I feel I can support a wife."

Kate's cheeks were scarlet and her throat was choked with tears. Suppose she'd been boondoggled!

"Then, for heavens sake, Tommy, tell her," she muttered, thickly.

He looked faintly surprised, then reached over her hand. "I am telling her," he said. "Will you—will you marry me, Kitty darling?"

Again her heart did a tail spin, but she clung to his hand for anchorage. She leaned very far aside to be fair with him.

"Tommy, dear, Dad's fortune is gone; I'm practically penniless."

Tommy laughed aloud. "I'm glad," he cried. "Now I'll have to be a better salesman than ever. You love me, Kitty?"

She looked at him she did not need to speak and Tommy was satisfied.

EXPERTS FIND METHOD LIMITING EXPENDITURE ON ARMS AND MATERIALS

Geneva, April 9—An important stage has just been completed in the preparation for the General Disarmament Conference. The Committee of Experts on Budgetary Questions, united together by the Preparatory Commission for the purpose of making detailed proposals for the execution of the limitation of armament expenditure and for publicity, provided for in articles 16, 34, 32 and 38 of the Draft Disarmament Convention has just finished its work by adopting a unanimous report in which it presents a system that, in its opinion, can be made to work satisfactorily.

The idea of limitation or publicity with regard to armament expenditure was first raised in 1927, when it was the subject of a report by the Committee of Budgetary Experts. That report, however, went little beyond an examination of the mechanism for publicity, and it was not until 1930 that the Preparatory Commission included definite provisions for the limitation of expenditure in the latest draft of the Convention. In this draft, limitation of expenditure forms the only method of limiting land war material, and forms an necessary method of limiting naval war material and of limiting the total of each of the three forces.

DIFFICULT PROBLEM

Doubts have been expressed on the subject of the application of the principle of limitation of expenditure. It is said that nothing is easier than to camouflage armament expenditure by hiding such expenditure in unfamiliar parts of the budget, by making use of funds, or by applying to armament purposes funds which have been voted for other purposes. On the other hand, very considerable differences exist in parliamentary and accounting procedure regarding the budget in the various countries, and in the extent of the publicity which this procedure attracts and of the audit which is applied to it. It is plain therefore be thought that the limitation of expenditure would be fully effective for some countries, but illusory for others. Finally, as there are various causes which make expenditure fluctuate from time to time, e.g., purely accidental causes or variation of prices, it is held be feared that every government would demand an outside limit which would therefore be practically without significance.

The committee of experts has clearly realized the difficulties, and its hope is that the system which it proposes will not only prevent camouflage for all the difficulties and hitches it may offer, but will also provide for watching the general effects of the system in case that they should reach serious proportions.

Main Proposals

The main lines of the committee's proposals may be summarized as follows:

1. The limitation will bear, not on parliamentary votes (the significance of which is very different according to the country), but on the payments made during the financial year, as shown in the appropriation accounts published and audited in each country. The budget, or parliamentary votes, will of course remain all their importance for public opinion within each country, and the governments will in practice be advised to explain publicly how the estimates contained in their budgets are to be reconciled with the limitation of their actual payments which they have accepted.

2. The committee has suggested that the governments should undertake not to instalge in the purchase of armaments any device in any way to increase the armaments which they could otherwise have obtained within the limits of the convention.

Annual Returns

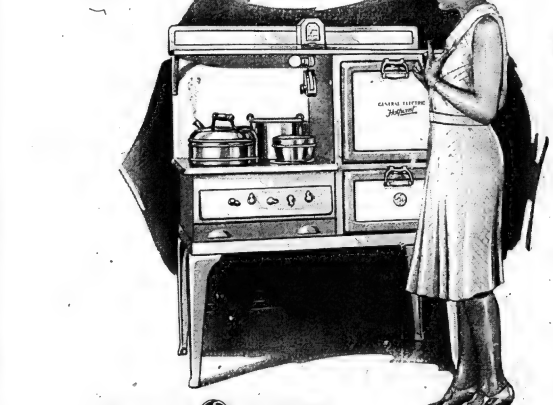
3. The draft convention provides for an annual return of expenditure in a common form. Although these returns will not provide any basis of comparison of the currents of armaments between the different countries it has always been considered that a reasonable degree of uniformity was necessary for the general comprehension of the system of publicity and limitation. The committee has drawn up this common form and has given detailed instructions as to the items of expenditure which are to be given in each of the eight to ten heads into which it is divided.

4. It may be that not all governments will be able to fill in this form strictly in accordance with the instructions, and the committee has therefore proposed that each government should be allowed to fill in the form in a slightly different method if necessary in its account of procedure may require, provided that it explains that method to the conference at which the convention.

Include All Expenditure

5. The committee's proposals provide that all armament expenditure is to be included from whatever source the funds are obtained — e.g., from the budgets of the forces, from the civil budgets, from the funds of individual authorities, or from entirely different sources.

6. Carefully considered when any marginal cases are involving either difficulties of definition or doubts as to whether they really affect the strength of armaments, the committee has proposed that doubtful items of expenditure of this kind, if excluded from the returns of expenditure, should be made the subject of publicity.



7. The committee has also made proposals regarding the steps to be taken if a marked variation in the purchasing power of currencies given rise to the need for adjusting the limits of expenditures. The committee has also proposed that the limits of expenditure should in fact apply, not to the expenditure of each year, but to the average expenditure of each consecutive four years, the expenditure of any one year being allowed to exceed the limit to an xtent to be fixed by agreement.

DEAD TWO DAYS

Sidney, Australia, April 9—While her companion went about her daily household tasks, Mrs. Annie Solomon, aged about 60, lay dead in a chair. When her body was found there were evident signs that the old lady had been dead for two days. At this time the dead woman's companion who had known her since a child, was working about the house. When asked why the police had not been informed of the death she said it is stated, that she did not think it.

HOMES RESTORE WAYWORD GIRLS

Toronto, Ont. Apr. 9 (By The Canadian Press)—Qualified homes of seven redemptive homes in Canada in their annual reports to the Board of Evangelism and Social Service of the United Church report progress in the mission of mercy and justice in the various institutions. The havens are located as follows: Elizabeth Home For Girls, Truro, N. S.; Interprovincial Home for Young Women, Moncton, N. B.; Bethany House, Montreal, Que.; Cedarvale School For Girls, at Georgetown, Ont.; United Church Home, Winnipeg, Man.; Mountview Home, Calgary, Alta., and the United Home, Vancouver, B. C. The Truro and Moncton homes are cared for co-operatively by the Anglican, Baptist and United communities, while the other five are under the United Church auspices. To round out the service by opening a similar institution in the province of Saskatchewan is a proposal now being before the Board.

There were 171 inmates of these homes when 1930 opened and 166 girls and young women were admitted during the year. The average age was 18 and 61 of the cases were of delinquencies under 18 years of age. Of the total received, 84 were neglected children, indicating the broken home as a large factor. In the year, 68 were restored to their parents and 61 sent to safe positions. The number making profession of Christian faith while in the homes last year was 27.

The Gospel Mission, St. John's, Newfoundland; the Earlscourt Children's Home, Toronto; the Farm, Gordon's Boys, Puleton, Ont.; the social service worker at Toronto; the McLean-Maitpas Memorial Institute, Foronto, Ont.; the care of Armenian orphans in Ontario and now the Ida Grafton Gage Home for Ladies in Toronto complete a remarkably varied and gracious ministry," the report says.

Women Fyers Hospital

The United Church, through her Board of Evangelist and Social Service, spent $10,000 on the work redemptive homes last year, "getting folk a new start, a real chance to make good." Commenting on the help fulness shown by church women, a superintendent says: "The way in which they have helped the girls at that critical transition period of facing life again under new conditions means more than can be expressed. A year ago the problem of placing the many girls to be released during the summer seemed insurmountable. That problem melted away with the snow, for there were more applications than could be filled. One lady waited five months for one of our girls. Another waited two months."

Accounting for 46 girls who have left its care in the last five years, one Home reports as follows: "Ten were sent to other institutions. Twenty-one are in domestic service. Eight have married since leaving us. Two have died. Five went to their own people. One is nearing the end of her second year in training for a nurse. One who was released last summer has a fine situation as office attendant with a doctor in a distant city. Her unfortunate history was known to the good people who are making possible for her a higher scheme of life than was even dreamed of two years ago. She developed from a defiant, forlorn sort of girl to one of the most capable and valuable."

TEACHER OF DOYLE SAYS SPIRITS FAKE "TELLS ALL"

Reason for Giving Up Business, Not Enough In It

SEANCES A RACKET

NEW YORK, April 9.—Nino Pecoraro, the medium who was credited with confirming the spirit belief of Conan Doyle's belief in spiritualism, broke down last night and told all, including the fact that he not only had tricked Sir Arthur but had fooled believers in spiritualism for more than eleven years. During that period he has made his living giving more than 2,000 "spiritualistic" seances.

No longer a medium, Nino said he was undecided about his future and announced he would spend the next week in deciding whether to become a portrait painter or a content salesman. He told his confidences to Joseph Dunninger, the magician employed by the magazine Nichen and Dunninger to expose fake mediums in the manner of the late Harry Houdini.

"People want to be fooled," Pecoraro declared, admitting that during his career as a "medium" he had been doing just that. The "mystic" whom Doyle admitted had won him over to spiritualism, went on to declare that his seances "were all fake".

Never Saw Ghost

"I've never seen a ghost and I don't believe anybody else has," Pecoraro asserted. "I'm sick and tired of giving seances and having spiritism rap up the profit. When ghosts appear, at my seances, they are Nino Pecoraro in the flesh."

Dunninger summoned the press to his studio last of Broadway and revealed that Nino was now ready to do his tricks under the glare of electric lights to show how he had let Sir Arthur to believe the spirit of his son had returned to earth.

"I might say," Dunninger began in introducing Nino, "that $3,000,000 is paid every year to mediums in New York City. Gentlemen, let us say millions— of persons are interested in spiritualism and when word goes out to the universe that Nino Pecoraro has recanted and pronounced spiritualism a fake, the result will be sensational.

"Conan Doyle had implicit faith in Nino," Dunninger added, "and wrote that spiritualism would stand or fall by him."

Not Enough Money

Nino then took the floor. The trouble with the medium business he said, was that there wasn't enough money in it. Why, he could make big money in a month selling secret that he could in a year of producing spirits.

"I will now," announced Nino, "give the first seance ever presented after the electric lights."

Nino was bound tightly with rope, tied to a chair, gloves were sewed onto his hands and a curtain was drawn in front of him. A table, with an accordion on it, was placed in a pencil on it, was placed in front of the curtain.

In ten minutes he band, bearing a suspicious resemblance to Nino's, emerged from the curtain, seized the paid and wrote something on it. The message was handed to Dunninger, who read:

"I still live—Houdini."

"The signature resembles Houdini's very closely," said Dunninger, explaining that Nino had practised for months to perfect it.

Nino's hand reached out again and grabbed the accordion which began to emit what Nino Paladino, a spirit who comes back and gives Nino her message, began to say. In the middle of Paladino's conversation Nino thrust his head from behind the curtain and said: "See, it's only me."

Then the curtain was lowered. There sat Nino. The guitar was gone, the accordion was gone.

So was Paladino.

GROWING DEAF WITH HEAD NOISES? TRY THIS

If you are growing hard of hearing, and fear catarrhal deafness, or if you have roaring, rumbling, hissing noises in your ears, go to your druggist and get 1 oz. of Parmint; double strength and add to it 1/4 pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy, and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to take. Anyone who is threatened with catarrhal deafness or who has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

EARL BESSBOROUGH IS NEW CHIEF SCOUT

Ottawa, April 9 — Boy Scouts throughout Canada and the many supporters of this movement will be pleased to know that one of the first acts of the new Governor-General of Canada, when he arrived in Ottawa today was the acceptance today of the office of Chief Scout for Canada, which was tendered to him by the executive officers of the Canadian Council and Council of the Boy Scouts Association. In his acceptance of this appointment his Excellency is following the precedents which was set by five former Governors-General: Earl Grey, the Duke of Connaught, the Duke of Devonshire, Lord Byng and Viscount Willingdon, each of whom accepted an office Scout for Canada and entered most heartily into the work of the Boy Scout Association in all parts of the country.

Night fishing for sardines is to be started in Portugal and will continue the rest of the year.

19 INCHES OF SNOW BURIES U.S.A. TOWN

Boston, April 9 — While Southeastern New England was getting acclimatized to warm spring weather, Northern New England today was buried under snow ranging in depth from 8 to 19 inches.

Highways were blocked by snow and fallen trees, communication and other electrical facilities were disrupted, and trains delayed by the most disastrous storm of the year.

Sweeping down on the northern portion of this group of States last night the storm caused heavy damage and isolated several towns. The utilities companies restored communications as rapidly as possible today and tonight.

New Hampshire made claim to the deepest snow, 19 inches, at Nelson, which adjoins Keene. Keene itself was cut off from other communities and without electrical service of any kind until late this morning. The railways serving the State rushed plows into the districts affected. Berlin and Jefferson reported 7 to 10 inches of light snow.

KING PROGRESSING TOWARD RECOVERY

Windsor, England, April 9 — The King is making satisfactory progress in shaking off an attack of bronchitis, aided materially by spring like sunshine

The improvement in his Majesty's condition reported yesterday has been maintained throughout the day and last night, is was officially stated.

The Queen left Windsor Castle for a short automobile ride, while the King looked himself with matters of State.

Physicians in attendance are issuing official statements instead of signing bulletins, doing much to allay the anxiety felt concerning his Majesty's health.

Last evening Viscount Lascelles and the Hon. Gerald Lascelles motored to the castle with their parents, Princess Mary and Lord Harewood.

WEEK END CUT RAILWAY FARE

Both Railways Issue Return Tickets With Great Reduction

Montreal, April 9—Drastic cuts in fares on Canadian railways for the summer week-ends were announced by C. P. Riddell, Chairman of the Canadian Passenger Association, after a series of conference. The new scale will go into effect May 1, and will continue through June and July. The new round-trip fare from Toronto to Montreal is $20.70 as compared with the new week-end round-trip fare of $14.40.

The reductions will apply between all stations in Canada, and will commence with the first week-end in May.

Estimated Rates.

DAILY MEDICAL SERVICE

TOO BIG AND TOO LITTLE

Hydrocephalics and; microcephalics are both feebleminded cases but judging from the physical appearance, they might be said to be the opposite of the other. For the striking characteristics of the former is the enlarged skull while in the latter, the decided smallness of the head at once attracts attention.

In a hydrocephalic case the skull may grow on growing until it has a circumference of from twenty to twenty-five inches, while in microcephalics the head may even be less than seventeen inches.

The fontanels in hydrocephalic are usually late in closing. These are the so-called "hole in the head" in front and in the rear. The fontanels in microcephalics, on the other hand, usually close before the normal period, as two months for the posterior one and eighteen months for the anterior.

Hydrocephalus means, of course, "water on the brain". The condition is due to excess accumulation of serum in the brain spaces, the ventricles and sometimes between the membranes covering the brain. For this reason, when a hydrocephalic skull is gently tapped it emits a peculiar sound, as does a cracked earthenware jug. This is what doctors called the bell sound.

The hydocephalic skull gives one the impression that there is not enough skin to cover it. It is very globular, as though being under even pressure all around from the inside, and the scalp covering is thin, stretched, and shows veins. Contrary-wise, the skin on the microcephalic skull lies, in thick folds and it can readily be picked up with the fingers.

It is still a moot question whether the delayed closure of the fontanels produce water on the brain to the one, exclusive, and the premature closure a decreased pressure, respectively, form the inside are primarily responsible. The argument is very much like that about whether the hen or the egg came first. Chronic meningitis, brain tumor, etc., may produce increased pressure. At any rate the important thing about all hydrocephalic skulls is always whether the skull is continuing to increase in size or not. For there are many arrested cases, so to speak, and an enlarged skull may exist without the mentality being impaired.

Usually, however, in both hydrocephalic as well as microcephalic states the mind is decidedly defective. It may be as low as that of an idiot. It may be that of an imbecile or intelligence. It may even be higher, that of a moron.

While the hydrocephalics are slow in movement and thinking, the microcephalics are quick, alert and restless. In fact, the little-headed fellow often seem so active as to delight in their comical appearance—which is accentuated when the stature is of normal height, say over five feet—and they decidedly create a amusement by funny postures and grimaces especially when they are in institutions. Mimicry is marked in all the microcephalics. They like especially to imitate the sounds of birds and so sometimes they are called "bird men".

In both disorders the brain itself is automatically impaired. The nerve cells are coarse or misshapen. In hydrocephalic, the brain itself gives the impression of being loosely knit together. In microcephalics, it is not only decidedly small as a whole but also poorly formed and flat.

Operative interference in these defective mental states never seems to yield satisfactory results. Generally speaking, also, medical treatment is of little avail.

DR. BISCH'S DAILY HEALTH HINTS

Wet feet may readily become a source of danger. Rubbers and overshoes are not to be despised in bad weather. And if the feet do get wet, be sure to dry them as soon as feasible and change, if possible, to dry stockings.

SEEKS KINGSTON AID

KINGSTON, April 9.—A request is made by the Trustees of Queen's University for the city to make a grant of $150,000 to the university to assist in the rebuilding of the new Arts Building, which recently suffered by fire and thereby to help to reduce the risk of another serious outbreak of fire and at the same time to avoid the necessity of restricting the attendance. The request was made by Dr. William F. Fyfe, Principal of Queen's University, on behalf of the Trustees, and was referred by Mayor Wright to the Finance Committee.

BOY ELECTROCUTED

BRUSSELS, Ont., April 9.—Lloyd McKague, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Newton McCauley of Brussels, was electrocuted here when, climbing to the top of a 80-foo pole, he took hold of the wire. He was with his brother, Lorne, at the time, the latter escaping injury.

CANADIAN MISSION LEFT WARM FEELING IN THE ARGENTINE

Buenos Aires Herald Stresses Importance of Canadian Missions

Buenos Aires, Apr. 9 (By The Canadian Press)—Declaring the Canadian goodwill and trade mission had splendidly performed its ambassadorial task of bringing a message of goodwill to the Argentine, and that much good result from their visit, The Buenos Aires Herald published the following leading editorial on the day of the Canadian departure:

"If the presence of H. R. H. the Prince of Wales has been the outstanding feature of a fortnight of unprecedented publicity for the Empire, it would scarcely be an exaggeration to say that the visit of the Canadian delegates has been second in importance.

"When Canada decided to participate in the Trade Exhibition, she also determined that her participation should not be on any niggard scale. Her pavilion in the exhibition grounds is a model of what such a building should be. Several days before the opening ceremony, the Canadian pavilion was in readiness, and the delegates were able to view, with some degree of pride, a commodious and well laid showing that the Dominion was about to make in an exhibition such as Argentina had never previously seen in her history.

"Nor did the Canadian effort end with participation in the display at the Rural Society's grounds. A strong delegation, headed by Sir George Perley, was sent down to Buenos Aires. Not only did that delegation contain representative men, but it was also accompanied by gentlemen who knew and understood the importance of publicity. The announcements in the Canadian visit has been extensively advertised in letter-press and photograph in every newspaper in the city.

"Realizing, too, that Canada's purpose in exhibiting at Palermo is to strengthen Anglo-Canadian trade ties, the members of the delegation have sought contact with the Argentines. Their visit has meant a crowded programme; but that would seem to have been what, for opportunities have been afforded for meeting the Argentine authorities, for seeing something of Argentine industry, and for studying the life of the nation and its people. Rarely, indeed, have representative visitors been able to cover so wide a field in so short a space of time.

"Of the probable after results of the visit, it is difficult to speak. The similarity of the products and trade of the two countries makes the development of trade on that map be more or less of the major scale a matter of some difficulty. But the Canadian pavilion shows clearly that Canada is something more than a land of wheat. She is developing her industries, and like the industrial nations she is seeking to develop an export trade. Argentina, on the other hand, is mainly an exporter of raw materials; but much of that material is required in Canada. It would seem, therefore, that the commercial interchange between the two countries could be materially increased, with benefit to both. That was also the opinion of the Canadian delegation and of the Government of the Dominion goes without saying; and it would appear obvious that the delegation has been successful in the way of greater magnitude than that of representing Canada at the Trade Exhibition. Rather has it enjoyed the status of an ambassadorial mission, engaged in the task of bringing a message of goodwill from Argentina and spying out the land from the angle of the commercial traveller and trade. The Canadian visitors have performed their task splendidly."

SAVED IMPORTED DRESS

"After a little wearing, a lovely green voile—an imported dress—lost color so completely that it was not wearable. A friend who had admired it asked me why I didn't wear it any more. On hearing the reason, she advised using it and remodelled Diamond Dyes To make a long story short, it turned out beautifully, I have a lovely new dress that really cost but 35c—the price of one package of Diamond Dyes.

"I have since used Diamond Dyes for both tinting and dyeing. They do either equally well. I am not an expert dyer but I never have a failure with Diamond Dyes. They seem to be made so they always go on smoothly and evenly. They never spot, streak or run; and friends never know the thing I dye with Diamond Dyes are redyed at all!"

NARROW ESCAPE IN LINDSAY SMASH

Lindsay, April 9—Mr. and Mrs. D. Lee of Hamilton, and their baby had a narrow escape from serious injury this morning when their car turned over at the Pottery Corners, one mile east from Lindsay, trying to make the turn, the car piled into a deep ditch, which was half full of water. Mr. and Mrs. Lee were cut by flying glass, and the baby was almost drowned when it was taken from its mother's arms and fell to the bottom of the car, which was rapidly filling with water from the ditch.

TO EXTEND HYDRO LINE

Lindsay, April 9—P. E. Resor, manager of the Lindsay Hydro -Electric System, stated that the Hydro line from Lindsay south will be extended a mile or so into the rural district and coupled up with two farms. It is also expected that the system will continue from Omemee to Reaboro in the near future.

ROGERS ARRIVES WITH RELIEF FUND

Managua, Nicaragua, April 9.—Will Rogers, cowboy comedian, arrived by airplane today and at once gave $5,000 to help relieve earthquake sufferers.

The city generally is calm. One looter was shot last night.

A Curtiss airplane crashed in Corinto harbor this afternoon. Lieutenant Fugh, the pilot, and his fellow-flier, Private Conrad of the machine corps, were unhurt. Still which the plane was carrying was lost.

TRADE REVIVAL BY END OF YEAR

Sir Josiah Stamp, British Economist on Way to Ottawa

New York, N.Y., April 9—Sir Josiah Stamp, British economist and chairman of the board of directors of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway, arrived yesterday on the White Star liner Homeric, on his way to Ottawa to participate in the deliberations of a royal commission on dealings in grain futures.

Sir Josiah said he would be in Canada for three weeks, at the end of which time he expected to submit his findings to the Canadian Government, by whose invitation he has come.

The question to be decided upon, he said, is whether speculative dealings in grain futures is a good or bad thing for agriculture. There is considerable feeling among farmers, Sir Josiah said, that speculation in wheat and other grains is harmful to prices.

Speaking of economic conditions at home, Sir Josiah said there are very, very slight signs of any permanent improvement. One or two things are improving—the weather, for instance, and unemployment, which has not been quite so bad for the past several weeks.

Sir Josiah's Trip to America

"I think that everyone is looking to this side of the Atlantic to find the way back to better times. The underlying causes of the depression are the same here as abroad."

The basic causes of the depression he said, are enormous overproduction but generally speaking, the chief trouble is the fact that the world situation is "out of gear" with production and consumption. Some policy of costs must be found, he said.

The determination on the part of many United States industrial leaders to keep wages up at a certain ceiling, he said, provided prices can be kept to a proportionate level. But high wages cannot be paid unless enough is earned to justify them, he said.

Sir Josiah said he does not think any immediate economic improvement is yet in sight. Probably by the end of this year, he said, there will be a bettering of the upturn in trade. Britain is hoping for a gradual increase in foreign market business, Sir Josiah said, and for an improvement in home industry, he said.

Sir Josiah was accompanied by Lady Stamp and their sons, Arthur and Josiah C. Stamp.

LOUGHRAN WILL MEET JACK SHARKEY

Philadelphia, April 9—Philadelphia promoters announced today that Tommy Loughran, former world light heavyweight champion has accepted their terms to meet Jack Sharkey in a ten round bout here on June 22.

ASK FURTHER RELIEF

Sudbury, April 9—It is possible that the city will enquire an additional $25,000 for relief work. Mayor Peter Penman is in Toronto to confer with J. A. Ellis, controller of the provincial relief appropriation, and with Hon. Charles McCrea.

CARRIES SUNSHINE TO ARCTIC REGIONS

Noted Explorer Inspects Sub's Equipment

Sir Hubert Wilkins, who recently started on his venturesome submarine voyage to the North Pole, is here shown in his craft, the Nautilus, which is completely outfitted with the most modern electrical equipment. Although the submarines 24 hours a day in the Arctic Circle at certain seasons, the Nautilus carries a General Electric sunlamp so that the submarine crew, who will spend very little exposure to natural sunlight, may keep in good physical condition. The Nautilus also carries a G.E. refrigerator into the Arctic Zone, which is used for the preservation of food rations.

RADIO FANS CORNER

Reception last night was bead and shoulders over Tuesday night's performance and we certainly made the most of it. Not that it was perfect, by any means, but fading wasn't quite so pronounced. Plenty volume last night, too, which brought in the long-distance stations very well.

Tomorrow night from CKGW at 9 a brand new program goes on the air entitled "Canada on Parade", the program originated in Toronto and the Seven Steps Tenor, Ernest McMillan and his concert orchestra to Louis Muny, of the Opera Comique, Paris. He has been recruited for the inaugural broadcast so we really should listen in if we want to be royally entertained.

Nothing of really outstanding greatness on the networks tonight and the only guest artists we notice will be heard over the WJZ chain at 9:30 p.m. They happen to be the Scottish Singers, a celebrated quartet and Jane Froman, the "Swing Along" and includes "Swing Low Sweet Chariot" and the "Hanmerin' Song."

Uncle Abe and David at 8.45 and at 7 the Melody Weck Dining Time programs are heard over station W JAP. At 8 with Rudy and his Connecticut Yankees, Kate Smith, crooner of "I Imagine" will be the guest artist. Also from this same station at 9.30 to be exact the program of Ireene Wicker's Nancetta is scheduled, so stick around.

Another presentation of B. A. Rolfe's band at 10 from WEAF and Rapid Transit at 11. Cab Calloway will be heard at 11.15 and Jack Albin at midnight. The Jesters take the air at 12.15 tonight from WJZ and they promise something just a little "extra". We always hear a good program from them anyway.

The Dixie Spiritual Singers over WJZ at 8 and Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit at 8. Paul Robeson, negro baritone is going place on a program from WJZ at 9.30 and for goodness sake, Jack, listen to be cause without a doubt he has the best baritone voice that a person ever heard. We heard him recently, remember when he had just returned from Europe.

Special program at 10 from this station. In recognition of a tribute to Trans-Atlantic Flyers. Many outstanding people on the aeronautic world will be there, so listen in. The Goodrich Zo-Rex hour on the networks again 11.45 and at midnight Harry Richman's orchestra.

PETERBORO FEARS POWER SHRINKAGE

Scanty River Flow and Low Levels Seen as Ominous

Peterboro, April 9 — Unless this district gets a greatly increased precipitation of rain within the next two months, Peterboro factories may be short of power.

The reservoir lakes to the north are far below normal for this season for this time of year, and the power situation is described by some as critical.

The dams north of the city which are generally brimming full at this time of year have but little more water going over than in mid summer. Every effort is being made to hold the water back and build up reserve.

Lake residents report that there were no Spring freshets here nothing snow because the ground was so dry that the water soaked in and did not run off into creeks and streams. Stony Lake is said to be four feet below normal.

THE BIG DEAL

Bob and the boys wanted to get out of town for the summer, but they hadn't much dough to look for a cottage. Fortunately, the telephone was installed in the conference, and it took over matters. A few Long Distance calls to nearby points—and everything was settled. The boys were elated over their "big business" foresight.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, APRIL 10, 1931.

WIGWAG WILL BE INSTALLED AT GEDDES ST.

City Council Committee Favors Acceptance of Proposition

WILL ACT AT CAMP

Upper Bridge to be Taken Over From the Contractor

The city of Belleville, according to a recommendation made at the meeting of the executive committee of the council held last night to be presented to the council meeting on Monday night, will agree to accept the proposition relative to the installation of a wigwag at Geddes street crossing as outlined in Mr. Alastair Fraser's letter of February 24th, 1931, addressed to A. D. Cartwright, secretary of the Board of Railway Commissioners of Canada.

Under the terms of the agreement the costs will be borne as follows—Installation, 40 per cent by the Railway Grade Crossing Fund; 30 per cent, by the city and 30 per cent, by the C. N. Railways; maintenance, 50 per cent, by the city and 50 per cent by the railway company.

According to figures presented to the council the cost of installation will not be heavy and the maintenance will be light.

This action is the aftermath of a railway accident on December 13th, last, in which three lives were lost when an automobile was truck.

Other recommendations made by the city council committees last evening were:

Take Over Upper Bridge

"That the letter of A. B. Creelock and that of the City Engineer both advising that the upper bridge was being found satisfactory and recommending that it be accepted be received and adopted by the council.

"And that the communication from the U. S. Bridge Company dated March 19th, 1931, in which they give their consent to the city paying the filing made to the contractor be also received and accepted, and that the City treasurer be hereby authorized to pay to the Holdcroft Construction Company Ltd., $6,584.17 being the amount in full of the final estimate as presented to this meeting by our Consulting Engineer A. B. Creelock."

"That prices be secured for a Fourth guarantee for the city department in connection with gasoline or oil stoves."

Resumes Duties at Camp

Mr. Nelson has been recommended for re-employment as caretaker of the Belleville Tourist Camp as the same salary as in 1930, his duties to begin April 15th and continue to October 15th, 1931.

WOMAN KILLED IN RAIL SMASH

Mrs. Sarah Watson of Weston Died of Wounds

Toronto, April 10—Rushing down the tracks from Weston at dusk last night, a C.P.R. train caught up a motor car at the Lake Shore Street crossing and carried it a distance of 100 yards before the machine dropped to one side of the rails. One of the occupants of the automobile was instantly killed; another lies near death in Western Hospital and the other two, both children, are expected to recover.

Dead

Mrs. Sarah Watson, aged 54, of 212 Williams Street, Weston.

Injured

James Bowerbank, aged 42, a boarder at Mrs. Walton's home. He is in Western Hospital and up to a late hour was still in an unconscious state.

Edna Watson, 13-year-old daughter of the dead woman. Cuts and abrasions and suffering from shock.

Margaret Dusbar, aged 12, 55th Avenue, Weston, minor cuts and shock.

Striking the car with terrific force the engine carried the wrecked machine along the track for 100 yards. The top portion of the car was still hanging on the front of the engine when the train pulled up another 900 yards further on.

View Obscured

The train was Toronto-bound and had left the Weston station but a few minutes before the accident, which occurred shortly after 6 o'clock. The engineer was Fred Bowerbank at the wheel. Mrs. Watson and Bowerbank are the two dead in the car, travelled down the fifth line road, then turned south to cross the tracks. A coal yard on the corner obscures a full view of the track, and it is believed Bowerbank was ignorant of the train approach until it was almost upon him.

CONDITIONS DO NOT WARRANT FEARS OF POWER SHORTAGE YET

All Depend on Freshet Flow and Rainfall to Early Summer

Fears of shrinkage of power in the Trent Valley system as expressed at a meeting of the Trent Valley Board are to early to determine what will be the conditions in the Trent Valley, it was pointed out to the Ontario Intelligencer today by Mr. C. H. Smith, district superintendent Ontario Hydro Electric Commission.

"The Department of Canals have the practice of drawing the lakes down to make room for the spring freshet and rains and there has not been sufficient rain this winter to fill the water to run off the land to reach the lakes in the fall volume as yet. Whether the light precipitation of the winter and the rainfall between now and early summer will be sufficient to bring the levels up to the usual standard of power cannot accordingly be foretold. "It is too early to say yet," was the statement of the official.

BOY WINS DARE DROWNS IN RIVER

Sudbury, April 10—Winning a dare cost eight-year-old Stanford Dale his life in the Vermilion River, when he tried to ford it in the spring freshet.

The little lad, son of Andrew Dale of Aberdeen Township, was playing with a group of young friends near Fari, and his cousin, Douglas Allan, when they made the dare. Young Allan, to whom would go farthest out on the river, on which the ice had not melted, Stanford reached the centre of the river, but the time broke beneath his weight and the swift current swept him under into the freezing water.

Earl and Douglas summoned the aid of Mrs. Dale, who ran hurriedly around his farm, some distance away to get the men. Before help arrived, Stanford had become exhausted and the swift current swept him under into the freezing water.

CONFLICTING STORIES TOLD OF ACCIDENT ON KING'S HIGHWAY

Transport Alleged to Have Crowded Coupe Causing Both to Take Ditch

One car is a complete wreck and a large transport considerably damaged as a result of a motor accident on the highway east of Belleville early this morning. The passenger in the touring car was injured to a slight extent. Traffic Officer Ryles investigated the accident and spent considerable time examining a number of witnesses and there is a possibility that charges will be laid under the Highway Traffic Act.

Constable Wm. Wooler was proceeding east in a coupe accompanied by Miss Amy Martin, R.R. 2 of Belleville and Miss Elsie Ashley of Wooler, while a transport owned by the Motortruck, 565 Fairick Street, Ottawa, driven by Victor Cronin was travelling in the same direction. There are conflicting stories as to how the accident actually happened, but the transport bounded into the coupe from behind passing and both cars were thrown into the south ditch. The driver of the transport states that he was driving east and when coming to the coupe blew his horn to warn the car he was about to pass. As the driver turned his transport to the left and started to pass, the driver alleges that Ellis swung sharply left and the left side of the transport struck the rear of the coupe throwing both cars into the ditch. NURSE CHIEF WITNESS IN MURDER TRIAL

Keen Interest is Manifest in Probe at Barrie

HER EVIDENCE

Killing of Mrs. Hisey at Niagara Falls Results in Arrest

Barrie, April 10.—With 10 or more witnesses still to be heard in the case against the younger of the defendants, and with the case against the older not even commenced, Magistrate Compton adjourned early last evening adjourned until the morning the preliminary hearing of the charges of murder against Gordon K. F. Castle of Burlington and Robert J. Elliott, Barrie business man.

Just until the end of the tedious day's testimony was reached did a throng of interest glow in the court. Two are accused of complicity in the death of Mrs. Hisey at Niagara Falls, the night of Feb. 11 last of Mrs. David Hisey of Midland in a car driven by Castle, from which he jumped before it plunged into the river.

Two weeks ago both were committed by Magistrate Cook of Midland for trial in the charges of arson and conspiracy in connection with the burning of the No. 14, 1930, of the Palmer House Hotel in Waubaushene, owned by Mrs. Hisey.

At the hearing here yesterday the main interest was when Elliott would be called, was the appearance of the nurse-witness in the dock, her pallid, dark and pretty young nurse from Penetang who identified herself as Miss Elizabeth Hamilton. It developed that she was the "mystery" woman" in Elliott's life. It was whispered here for several weeks that would provide sensational and damaging material for the Crown in the case against the accused and 36-year-old Elliott with the untimely end of the 56-year-old Midland woman.

Visited Scene

According to rumor, the girl would tell the court that while she was in the men's company during the scene of the accident several weeks previous to the fatality, they had pointed in a sinister manner to the embankment at the scene of the "that's the spot."

Miss Hamilton actually testified was that, on driving past the spot where the car later careened into the river with the fatal result Elliott had got out of Elliott's car and walked to the edge of the embankment with his 14-foot drop to the water.

The girl told of the two trips to the Niagara Falls district with the men on the week-end of last January or the first week in February. On both occasions she said she was Elliott's car and Elliott, to whom she understood herself to remain unmarried, his wife and child she was ignorant, had sat in the back seat with her. On the second trip they had spent two nights in Buffalo, and on the second evening from Niagara Falls, Ont., to Buffalo and return was covered before reaching that point.

Miss Hamilton identified photographs and plans of the scene of the automobile, already in which Mrs. Hisey was killed, as depicting the spot where she and the two men had stopped on the second trip jaunt to Buffalo.

Miss Hamilton told how first appeared in connection with Elliott and Castle at the Elliott home in Midland two weeks ago, when Crown Attorney G. L. Evans

APRIL MONTH IS TAX NOTICE TIME IN CITY

Long Notices Tell Income Taxpayers of Their Assessment

ASSESSMENT

Federal Income Statement Also to Be Made

There is one distinction though it is not a pleasure to those affected that those with taxable incomes are the first to receive notices of assessment through the city assessors department. Persons who file this year will contribute some thirteen thousand dollars to the city revenue as a tax upon their income whether in earnings or dividends from investments have received in the past few days their assessment notices.

These income taxpayers have also their income and taxes due as well —they have to pay their tax in one instalment.

It will be a little while before the other notices are sent out to ratepayers notifying of the property assessments for the year. And then will begin the civic deliberations as to estimated revenue and expenditures for the year 1931. The property assessment is not yet complete.

This is another reason why unlucky month for the income taxpayers the federal payment falls due in this month as well as the instalment of instalments has to begin in April.

But the income taxpayers are said by those who have no income sufficient to be taxed that they are forgiven a certain sufficient money to be called upon to pay a share in the government at the end of days when they turn out of work the taxes on property are a big enough item, one that requires considerable attention in order to "make both ends meet." Consideration has stated on occasion that it used to be the man of property and means who was behind in the payment of taxes but today the largest part of arrears is owing by the less wealthy citizens who in other days were able to meet their payments. This class has ousted the property owner from the unenviable position in tax arrears.

A meeting of the entertainment committee of the Belleville Fair Board was held last night, in their board room for a discussion of the attractions that will be brought in for the fair this year. A representative of a rodeo company met the committee but the attractions he is bringing in this entertainment was too high and the proposition will not likely go through. A regular meeting of the Board will be held next Thursday night and more discussion will follow along the line of entertainment for the fair. It is expected that Belleville will have one of the best fairs in its history.

"TEMPERANCE IN THE HOME"

Miss Ella Gardiner was the chief speaker at the C.G.I.T. Women's Auxiliary meeting at the Association Building yesterday, her subject being "Temperance in the Home". Mrs. C. R. Scantlebury, president occupied the chair.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE

Among the prominent students in the general course of the Presbyterian Missionary and Deaconess Training School, Toronto, is Miss Freda E. Matthews, of Shirley. An impressive service at the closing exercises was held last evening in Knox College Chapel. The graduates will go out to the various mission fields at home and abroad.

ENTERTAINED S.S. CLASS

Mrs. Stanley Joss, W. Bridge St., entertained the members of the Sunday School Class at her home last evening.

MOTORISTS BEWARE!

Needlight conditions of motor cars in the highways will be checked up immediately after the Traffic Officer according to information received today. There are many cars on the highways the lights of which are improperly adjusted and the Traffic Officers are determined to clean up the nuisance. At the same time brakes will be inspected and in each case where either is faulty a summons will be issued without warning.

INFLUX HERE

A number of French Canadian families have been proceeding through the city of late, most of them in search of work. It is rumored that they were told in Montreal that work could be secured on the steel plants at Belleville, Kingston and Oshawa, and thus the large number travelling. The police station has lodged a large number of these boys one night and fed them food and their journey. Unemployment has reached a high peak in Montreal at present and it has been a difficult matter to cope with the situation.

VETERANS GATHER

Veterans of Vimy Ridge gathered in Trenton last night at a social reunion in Canterbury Hall to celebrate the taking of the famous ridge by Canadians during the Great War. Captain Rev. C. K. Nicoll was the principal speaker of the evening and an excellent programme of songs and instrumental was arranged. A banquet was held later in the evening.

ATTEND CONVENTION

in the course of probing Elliott's bank deposits and withdrawals, read into the record a cheque of Elliott's for $50 made payable to the girl.

She said at Thursday's hearing that she had met Elliott in June of last year and had kept company with him. He had never mentioned his name to her, she said, and introduced himself at first as "Dr. Sirakis," though she admitted later to defence counsel Hughes Cleaver, of Toronto, that this name was more of a joke than an alias.

Elliott and Castle had visited her frequently last January while she was visiting a friend in Toronto, Miss Carrie Tessler, at Shrahnan Boulevard, she testified. They had joked about Castle's name. To make the trips to the Falls, she explained The evidence brought out by the Crown today bore largely on the inability of various witnesses to discover any skid marks on the road at the point where the Hisey car went into the water, and on the Crown's suspicious interpretation of the fact that Castle was able to telephone Mrs. Hisey's relatives in Midland about after the tragedy in spite of his appearing distraught, nervous and confused at the time.

Had Trio of Jurys

Provincial Constable Priest testified that the day following the death of Mrs. Hisey a formal statement of Castle's declared that the car had skidded crossing radial tracks, swerved to the left and then the right, and headed for the river. He had shouted after Castle's brakes without avail, Priest said Castle told him, and had then jumped. Though hesitant to venture an opinion, the constable finally admitted to defence counsel Cleaver that at the time he had considered the car "headed into the river, "purely an accident."

START TODAY TO CUT DOWN HILL

Cutting down of Lingham street hill was begun by the Public Works Department of the city this afternoon under the direction of City Engineer Mott. This hill over Lingham street ties between Ness and Emily streets, and has been unopened because of the bluff at the end near Emily street.

Removal of this incline by grading and filling with the earth from the hill will open up the street to all kinds of traffic which has hitherto been only possible to pedestrians.

The street has been a blind street and motorists have entered it from the lower end only to find the outlet not open.

Residents of this portion of the city appreciate that the opening will mean to the city.

NIAGARA FALLS SCHOOLS CLOSED

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., April 10 —Niagara Falls Public Schools were closed today and will not reopen for at least two weeks, and possibly longer. The action was taken by Board of Education in efforts to prevent the spread of cerebro spinal meningitis, commonly called Spotted Fever.

Six deaths have occurred among the school children and many others cases have been reported during the past week. Health officials say that usually seventy-five per cent. of the spotted fever cases prove fatal.

UNEMPLOYED CAUSE DEMONSTRATION AT MONTREAL TERMINAL

Montreal, April 10. — (Canadian Press)—A Party of nearly two hundred men gathered about the excavation work of the new Canadian National Railway terminal today and gave the police considerable trouble before they could be dispersed successfully. The police had been warned that a demonstration had been planned and protective measures had been detailed to the area, but a rapidly gathering crowd of unemployed refused to obey the police order to disperse and riot squad was called.

Macnider to Washington. No official intimation of the purpose of the flying visit has been given but trip gives rise to the uninformed rumor that possibly discussions may take place on the St. Lawrence waterway project. Mr. Manion is expected to return to Washington after three o'clock and return Sunday or Monday.

AUTHORS WILL CONVENE AT QUEEN CITY

Canadians Writers to Meet in Toronto in June

TORONTO, Ont., April 10—By the unanimous vote of the annual meeting of the Canadian Authors' Association, which meets in annual convention here from June 24 to 26. This was recommended at a recent meeting of the National Executive.

The head office of the association, under the constitution as at present, moves every second year in rotation between Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Winnipeg and repeated proposals to establish the headquarters permanently, with Ottawa favored, have so far been rejected because of the expense involved.

The recent meeting of the National Executive, including Mr. W. D. Lighthall, president; Mr. Justice Surveyor, Montreal; Mr. Fal-lon Edgar, Toronto; John M. Elliott, Toronto; Dr. Archibald Toronto and Dr. E. A. Hardy, Toronto —again decided this matter. It was pointed out that Ottawa would be the seat of the head office for the next two years under the rotation system so it was not thought advisable to specify that place for permanent headquarters. The annual convention, however, should be empowered to choose any Canadian city it may select for two years, the executive recommended.

Other matters up for discussion will be the safe-guarding of authors' rights in the legislation contemplated by the government will be given, the session, a new Dominion Act being contemplated. Mr. Lighthall, secretary of the Berne International Copyright Agreement is revised at Rome. The association's reconstituted copyright committee will meet on this matter. On the eve of the annual convention there will be a private reception at the Art Gallery. On June 27, after the conference closes the delegates will be offered an excursion to Niagara Falls.

Large attendance is expected, for the interest and loyalty shown in the association's activities is a healthy mark. A considerable number of members have already announced their intention to join in the voyage to England in 1932 if the convention of that year is held there as suggested.

FAVOUR VOTE ON DAYLIGHT SAVING

At the monthly meeting of the Manufacturer's Section of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce held last night a resolution was passed in favour of taking a vote on the question of Daylight Saving, using the Provincial or Dominion Voters' Lists.

The principal discussion was on Electric Power charges and the management of the Belleville system, Mr. G. H. Scott, manager, said his remarks and explanations were much appreciated by the members.

GERALD SPAFFORD KIWANIS SPEAKER

Belleville Man Describes Antipodes to Picton Club

Picton, April 10—Mr. Gerald Spafford, a former Pictonian, and son of Mrs. Spafford, Bridge street speaker at the regular Kiwanis luncheon at the Royal Hotel on Tuesday morning. Mr. Spafford has been located in Belleville for a number of years where he carries on a practice as a boots specialist. His talk was on his experiences while on a visit to Australia in 1926. He was introduced by Kiwanian Carman Burr.

In his opening remarks the speaker conveyed greetings from Picton, Australia, a small town in that country, serving its name from the fact that source as our own municipality of General Picton. Mr. Spafford stated that he landed in Australia quite by accident in 1926, being in the service of a foreign country at the time in looking over the Australian situation. A railway station he noticed the name of Picton, and persuaded the station master to wire for a visit there ,the name sounding so homelike. Leaving at Picton they found a barber shop where by coincidence the speaker recognized one of the barbers—a Bill Watson, also from Picton, Ontario.

Australia, declared Mr. Spafford, is much different from any country I have ever visited in search of wealth is one of the outstanding characteristics that impresses the visitor. Rain has to be depended on entirely. Irrigation is the hope for sheep ranching which of necessity is the principal occupation. The rabbit pest makes attempts at agriculture almost impossible. The rabbit drive is practised it must be done in wire net enclosures, and the cattle that are left to roam about in the ground to prevent the hordes of rabbits from overrunning. Artesian wells are excavated around such lots and metal spikes impale the bunnies after they try to get in. Huge acreage is required for any ranching in order that the sheep may subsist in times of drought, and their food supply. Water for household use is carefully conserved and used over and over, being purified in a manner that is startling.

Mr. Spafford related his experiences on a kangaroo hunt telling of the huge size and dangerous nature encountered on the trip—there are several species, where up to the present while man has never been able to domesticate them are described as the lowest type of human life on earth—the next step to the monkey. The wonderful plumage are to be seen but they are no songs, and the magnificent foliage and flowers give forth no perfume. Travelling up through the forests passed through a severe drought area where thousands of sheep and cattle had died of starvation. Sheep and cattle were piled in huge heaps after the hides had been removed, and not a blade of grass was to be found anywhere. Rain will return trip six weeks later, a transformation had taken place, the whole country was rank, grass had grown as high as a horse. The sheep were rounded up horseback, using dogs for the chase.' Mr. Spafford described how from 35 to 36 feet and lead the dogs a merry chase, Mr. Spafford said he potted one with a lucky shot after which a kangaroo steak was much enjoyed.

The situation in Australia is now good, declared the speaker. They do not show too much love for the United States. Mr. Spafford said he was questioned as to how towards the United States Mr. Spafford said he wouldn't trade one inch of Ontario for the whole country. Canada, he assured his audience, was by far the fairest land in the world. A Defoe were at British Empire.

Mayor George A. Welch moved a vote of thanks to the speaker.

FIND "HELDA" IN DEEP PROBLEM

Actresses Find Difficulty in Filling Part

LONDON, April 10.—(By the Canadian Press)—Writing of the appearance of Miss Jean Forbes-Robertson, daughter of Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, in the dramatic role in Ibsen's play "Hedda Gabler", recently produced at the Old Vic Theatre London, "The Times theatre critic says: "It is a problem so rare as life itself for each actress who approaches her," and he deals at some length with Miss Forbes-Robertson's interpretation of the character, most ly in very favorable terms. He says:

"Miss Forbes-Robertson's performance is a remarkable achievement, a surprise. What she has seen in the part is a fresh and curious spiritual experience. She traces all the evident qualities in Hedda's behavior ,jealousy of Mrs. Elvsted, her poisoned longing to possess Lovborg, her cowardice, her love of power. Then, perceiving that they do not explain her, she goes to them the unity of a masterpiece and to the spiritual, to the cold and unnerving deliberation of one who walks in her sleep, driven by forces avoiding obstacles, choosing her path, and driven by her dream.

"To those who see in Hedda an opportunity for a display of fireworks it may appear that Miss Forbes-Robertson's treatment of the part is tame. Certainly she makes no opportunities for theatrical effect which other actresses would have welcomed, and which, it must be add ed, Ibsen probably intended to receive more emphasis than she gives them. Her conception of the third act, the burning of Lovborg's manuscript, is too hurried, and would be improved within her interpretation of the part, if she gave the audience time to enter into the darkness of her thought. But, with this exception, she handles all her portraits. The woman she has imagined carries her own hell in her eyes; it is not for her to make spectacular proclamation of it."

FORTY YEARS ACTIVITY WITH ODDFELLOWS WAS RECOGNIZED

H. D. Ranson, Past Grand Is Recipient of Jewel

Forty years of activity in one organization is a long time, but Past Grand H. D. Ranson has completed that term in Belleville Lodge No. 81 I.O.O.F. and last night in the Oddfellow's Temple, the event was fittingly recognized. The brother was presented with a 40 year jewel and the occasion was unique in that his son Percy Ranson at present District Deputy Grand Master, read the presentation address and John Coon the oldest member present, pinned the jewel on the lapel of his coat. This ceremony was performed at the close of the regular meeting, one of the largest that has been held in some time.

Wilfrid Smith, Past Grand of the Lodge, presided at the social evening and solos were given by Sid Hector and Wilfrid Halls, both of which were greatly appreciated. W. Edmundson rendered a piano solo followed by three numbers by the Salvation Army instrumental quartette. Bandsman Green also of the Salvation Army gave a recitation. At the conclusion refreshments consisting of pie and ice cream were served and a social half hour was spent. It was a most successful function. The recipient of the 40 year jewel addressed the gathering briefly, thanking the brethren for the honor conferred upon him.

WALRUS SKULL 30,000 YEARS OLD IS FOUND

Montreal, April 12 (CP). — The natural resources and development branch of the Canadian National Railways has come into possession of a walrus skull believed to be between twenty and thirty thousand years old. It was found in Northern Manitoba by George Brown of The Pas, an employee of the C.N.R., during recent construction work on the Hudson Bay Railway. The skull was discovered eight feet beneath the surface of a gravel ridge situated eight miles east of the main line of the Hudson Bay Railway at mile 467. This point is about 35 miles due west on the western shore of Hudson Bay.

The skull is that of the Arctic walrus (Trichechus rosmarus) and probably represents one of the many walrus wanderers that flourished south of Hudson Bay during the glacial period. Walruses are notoriously gregarious and it is interesting to reflect that over much of the country at present covered by the Hudson Bay Railway there was once heard the deep barking of thousands of these mammals now supplying powerful but thoroughly formidable when aroused.

The two husks, some fifteen inches in length, are well preserved after thousands of years beneath the sands, but one is considerably worn at the tip. It is considered possible that this tusk was chipped as the creature sludged among rocks and sea shells in search of food, or was broken in battle with some polar bear, the inherent enemy of the walrus.

EARLY STRUGGLES OF McGILL ARE RECALLED

Great Change in Development of University During 110 Years of Existence

Montreal, April 10. (CP).—Though McGill celebrated the 110th anniversary of its founding March 31, it is only 98 years since the first degree was granted, illustrating the difficulties which the institution in its early days had to overcome before it could boast of even a moderately large student body.

The charter, under which McGill University was established, was obtained on March 31, 1821. Delay and difficulty marked all attempts to get classes under way and it was not until 1833 that the first degree was awarded.

Even the granting of the degree created great difficulties, for no one seemed to know how it should be conferred. The faculty of medicine, which had the distinction to present the first student at McGill for a degree, wrote the governors desiring to know how the degree would be conferred on the 24th of May and the tenor of said degree that they might be getting it ready.

The struggle for existence continued till 1853, when McGill obtained its amended charter. So bad were conditions towards the middle of the century that the university build ings, according to McGill's historian Dr. Cyrus Macmillan, were practically abandoned.

"Between 1849 and 1853 very few meetings of the governors were held" this writer points out, "owing to the absence of the governors from Montreal. The affairs of the college were largely in the hands of the vice-principal and his assistant. Conditions gradually became graver. The lecturers in French and mathematics were dismissed because no money to pay them was in prospect "Rain and snow fell freely through the cracks in the roof, and leaked to the rooms below. Windows and doors, which, in the course of time, had become shattered, were still unrepaired. There was not enough fuel to heat the broken and damaged structures, for an allowance of ten cords of maple wood for the winter was not sufficient to bring warmth.

"The college grounds were unused for. Students who dwelt in the city tramped through snowdrifts to the cold college class rooms. Because of the discomfort, the lack of adequate accommodation and the inconvenient distance from the hospital and the city, the medical class ca, which had been held in the centre building since 1843, were removed in 1851 to the building on Cote street."

Happier days, however, were in store. In 1871 Judge Charles Dewey Day, president of the Royal Society for the Advancement of Learning, assumed direct charge of the university, «48» and certain others appealed to the Legislature for a grant of money to help liquidate debts. The sum of $5,000 was obtained for this purpose. Repairs were started on the buildings, but what proved far more important than this was the appointment of William Dawson, a Maritimer, who was later knighted, as principal.

In the 30 years after McGill obtained its amended charter in 1853 the revenues of the university grew from a few hundred dollars to $40,000 a year, and in addition the fees from professional faculties. The staff was increased from eight to 39 officers of instruction, while the enrollment of students grew from less than 100 to nearly 600.

Sir William Dawson resigned as principal in 1893. The next principal Sir William Peterson, held office from 1895 to 1919, and the present principal, Sir Arthur Currie, was appointed in 1920. In the principalship of these three the student body has grown to some 2,000 from the few scores of undergraduates in the middle of the last century.

HOW CAN AUBURN DO IT?

We believe Auburn was the only automobile manufacturer who sold their entire 1930 output. All the high priced materials, purchased in late 1929 were thus disposed of, and new contracts placed for same in December 1930, for the new Auburn 1931 models. Commodity prices in December 1930 were the lowest in years. For instance copper was 8c per pound as against 22c per pound in December 1929.

Those manufacturers who did not dispose of their 1930 output, cannot compete with Auburn in price value, as they are still selling copper (and other materials) which they purchased at the much higher prices.

STATUES OF SIR WALTER SCOTT

Toronto Mail and Empire would like to know why there are few statues of Sir Walter Scott, like virile poet and novelist of the romantic era of the early nineteenth century. The world has moved since that day but it has not moved beyond the heroism and humanity of the Scott outlook on life. Halifax is planning to have the first Canadian statue of the great writer.

The city of Toronto has a statue of Burns and in a park is a statue of Peter Pan, the creation of Sir James Barrie, the playwright and storywriter of the twentieth century. Why Scott has been so long in coming to his own is difficult to understand, particularly as Canada has so large a proportion of Scots folk among her people.

"GHOSTS"

The teacher of the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, detective fiction writer and believer in spiritualism has declared that spiritualistic phenomena are fakes. He says that people want to be fooled and that he for eleven years has fooled them. Nino Pecararo, mystic, declared his seances were all a fake and that he had never seen a ghost nor did he believe there ever was one.

The surprising statement was made that five million dollars were spent each year on spiritualism in New York City.

The world has a great many of many people who yet do not admit the truth of spiritualism. Most would deny it. The appeal of the occult is due to incomplete knowledge of laws governing phenomena, this lack of knowledge being used as a basis for fraud and for wicked imaginings.

Ghost stories which are current in various parts can be easily explained on a very material basis. Ghost stories read nicely but the writers of ghost stories never saw a ghost, as Nino says himself.

What ghosts there "are" in the world are not material forms, they are just the phantasms of diseased or excited minds. The ghost of Banquo which spoiled the feast of Macbeth was a thing of Macbeth's own terror. Such "ghosts" are more terrible than any material ghosts could be. Guilty minds will ever have their ghostly fears until the end of time, but the fleshly ghosts have never been seen on land or in the air since time was.

STUDENT LIFE SOUND

Interesting to many people must be the statement of Sir Robert Falconer of Toronto University that the great body of students are worthy of the homes from which they come. He denied that in spite of great changes the universities were unhealthy localities or the breeding places for mental or normal malaria. There is no cause for alarm for such issues from this university, which he termed a healthy place morally, physically, spiritually and industrially. The life of the university is constructive, men and women speak of things unpleasant or dishonest and there is no violent upheaval.

This utterance to the Ontario Educational Association, following upon the discussion recently over an editorial in "The Varsity", the students' publication, was made, said Sir Robert, with a full knowledge of the trend of things at the university.

MOTOR MECHANICS OR CLASSICS

There is no more superiority in the study of classics than in that of motor mechanics, Hon. Leopold Macaulay, Provincial Secretary said in one of the striking statements made at the Ontario Educational Association. This placing of vocational study against the classics came in for attack by Principal Currie of McGill, who said that a broken down motorcar was a trivial thing as compared with a broken down moral system.

PROSPERITY

Much opinion is being expressed on the present condition of business and the out look for the immediate future. There are, it is said, indications which suggest that recovery is at the threshold.

Christian Science Monitor notes an increasing percentage of bank reopenings as compared with failures recorded by the Federal Reserve Board in February, an increase in bond trading, increases in savings banks' deposits, in construction contracts and some signs of betterment abroad. The Monitor concludes with this, "Straws in the wind of economic recovery!"

A tourist travelling in the Rocky Mountains was introduced to an old hunter who claimed to have killed no fewer than four hundred bears. "Well," said the introducer, "this feller wants to hear some narrer escapes you've had from bears." "Young man," said the old man, slowly, "if there's been any narrer escapes, the bears had 'em!"

The art of Chaplin has been given the highest proof of French approval, the award of the decoration of the Legion of Honour. Charles Chaplin is the only non-French actor to hold the honor. This presentation may bring the entire world to realize that the movies can be made high art.

HOSPITAL ROOM

There are secrets here,
If flowers could speak,
Which would give me clues
To the truths I seek.

Here has pain sojourned
Many a weary day,
When the wings of hope
Fluttered far away.

Dumb has often dwelt
In this sun-lit place;
On its bare, white floor
Men have heard Fear pace.

But today, a change
In the small, clean room;
Life's latest flower
Now the four walls bloom.

Here a mother lies,
With her face like morn,
And against her breast
Sleeps a babe, new-born.

"BIG BILL" THOMPSON, Mayor of Chicago, is not like Bill Thompson, ex-Mayor of Chicago, or will be as soon as he vacates the job, the citizens having by a majority of two hundred thousand or so given him notice that his services are no longer required. For three terms "Big Bill" has been a colorful Mayor keeping in the spotlight by all kinds of publicity stunts, chief of which was his frequent reference to King George, of Britain, whom he depicted as interested in Chicago and not in a friendly way, either. As the great protector of the peace of Chicago he kept King George at bay, and even neglected Al Capone, the great philanthropist in his efforts to keep public attention upon an imaginary foe occupying the throne of Great Britain.

MARBLES AND TOPS are now occupying the spare time of the boys and the girls are getting over skipping ropes—this spring a new aspirant for juvenile favor has appeared in what is known as Yo-Yo Spinners. Sometimes the Yo-Yo's are said to be selling like hot cakes in the cities, and have made their appearance in Belleville.

NOW THAT "BIG BILL" Thompson has been eliminated from the spotlight in Chicago, the citizens of that great city can turn their attention to the elimination of "Scarface" Al Capone and a few other leaders in various lines of endeavor in the windy and wicked city.

HOW TO TAKE A BATH

Eight rules for taking baths, to help stop the rapidly increasing number of bathroom accidents, are presented by Warren Holmes in a recent statement of the New Health Society, in England. Dr. E. E. Free's "Week's Science (New York) gives the following summary:

The first two rules are never to take a hot bath after a heavy meal, and never to take a cold one if you have a weak heart.

The third rule is always to keep the bathroom window open a little to prevent danger of poisoning from carbon monoxide gas from a defective gas-heater or similar device.

Fourth is to have all hot-water heaters and similar appliances equipped with safety attachments so that steam-filled pipes can not burst.

The other four rules deal with the electric fittings of the bathroom, it being agreed by safety experts that electric shocks are both common, and especially likely to be fatal when the skin is wet, or when a bather is in a metal bathtub electrically connected to the ground by the water-pipes.

The first electric rule is never to touch any kind of electric fitting, not even a light switch, while one is actually in the bathtub.

The second is that light fixtures should be fastened tightly to walls or ceiling and enclosed as completely as possible; loose, hanging cords, flexible connections, and similar installations being banished from the bathroom.

The third is that switch knobs and other electric devices which must be touched be of insulating materials.

Finally, the last rule is that no portable electric heaters, lamps, curling-irons, or other portable devices be permitted in the bathroom.

A DEFINITION OF MARRIAGE

Ordinary definitions of marriage, whether by Church or State, by sociologists or novelists, have not given universal satisfaction. Even poet, the wise-cracker, even the judge in the bench sometimes tries to invent a new one. Fe[illegible] Judge Woolsey has just offered his own which is paradoxical enough to please both the frivolous and the serious. In admitting a book which the Government has twice had qualms about, he said—her marriage is a "status of antagonistic cooperation". Since the volume in question tends to strengthen the co-operation rather than the antagonism, it is should be allowed free circulation in this country.

There is no glossing over of painful facts here. Many definitions of marriage ignore all the unpleasant or commonplace sides of it. To the young and unmarried it is an adventure holding boundless possibilities. To the old and lonely-married it offers less novelty and excitement on the one hand, and more security on the other. But it looks to the old and unmarried is another story. To which they are said the better. Young French girls used to look forward to marriage as the door to freedom in the past, but they probably feel about it now very much as young American girls do, and every one knows all about that. Even medieval novels and plays in which they reveal more than their elders suspect, are not to be trusted.

Cooperation by itself figures in Judge Woolsey's definition. But even the philosophic discussions of Havelock Ellis to the idiotic lyrics of Tin Pan Alley Antagonism is not given for good measure later. It occupies a prominent part of the picture. It is unlikely to take more than a fair share of matrimonial responsibility. Sometimes it is he who knows or thinks he knows what everything should be arranged. He wants yielding more than an equal division. But she is just as likely to stir up antagonism by wanting to be boss, though she often manages to conceal the gift for command. Then we have the apparent case of perfect partnership, which is unlikely that he is running the show, while she has the more fun of thinking she believe that he does. — New York Times.

TEACHING A PROFESSION

Toronto is in the hands of an army of teachers who are working on new editions of books for the young idea how to shoot. Every citizen wants to them good luck. For these are days of matrimonial boom.

Gone are the bad old times when a boy apprenticed to a profession like a few well-thumbed books and a birch rod was the only starter in the race to fortune. Then "readin', ritin' and 'rithmetic" were looked upon as all the equipment youth needed to scale the dizzy heights of fame and wealth.

Now the boy or girl starts under a heavy handicap unless singing, drawing, dancing and elocution, with a little fancy sewing or tatting is added before graduation from the public school to rugged road.

And as teaching has changed from an occupation to a profession its product can hardly be expected to be the same. It is not. The boys and girls of today do not make pioneers. The boys don't even make good office boys, though some of the girls do make quite good shop-workers.

But either or both can drive fishing car and qualify as instructors in the "talkies."

The "world do move" and the science of education has become more and more a propelling power.—Toronto Telegram.

ROSE

A wild rose grows down by a quiet lane
And sweetly fragrant scents the dewy air.
It whispers "spring has come again"
And Earth once more is dressed in raiment fair.

How much, how little does you flower tell
What message may it bring to you or me?
It does its duty, serves us well
If in you rose we beauty see.

And beauty's not in form alone,
More often is it found in thought.
Perhaps a wrong with right atone
Or good work well and nobly wrought.

And you sweet flower, like scented spice
Oft cheers us in a darkest mood.
Depression leaves like melting ice.
Then kind thoughts sway us, bright'ner hued.

How short its life, a little space,
Yet in its hour of fragrant cheer,
Its duty done, fulfilled its place,
Makes Heaven and earth more subtly near.

Back to Babylon
Court Jewel Period

London, April 8—Jewelry worn at the court of Nebuchadnezzar, magnificent sculpture of the Sassanian period and royal tombs over 5,500 years old have been discovered by the Oxford-Field Museum Expedition excavating at Kish, near the site of old Babylon, Dr. Stephen Langdon, Professor of Assyriology, Oxford University, director of the expedition, has sent a report to Sir Charles Marston, author of Essays on the Old Testament, who states that the jewelry is said to be worth several thousands of pounds.

The expedition is working on three separate strata covering three periods of history. Sassanian sculpture, dating from about 250 A.D., was found on the top layer above that of the Temple of Nebuchadnezzar. The find of treasure from the Nebuchadnezzar period is sensational and includes solid gold ornaments.

"It will be of great interest to know just what has been found because this time of Nebuchadnezzar is one about which we are learning a great deal from recent discoveries, and excavation is supporting the old Biblical narrative to an extraordinary extent," Sir Charles says.

Below the Nebuchadnezzar Temple's level has been found a further series of Sumerian royal tombs. These are about 5,500 years old and the excavation is just beginning to explore them. Written tablets and cuneiform writing have been discovered which will probably shed light on the history of those times. Sir Charles adds: "It is especially interesting to know that the level above that of the finds has now been fixed at 3,400 B.C., so that these tablets are probably older still."

Bones Believed Relics of Martyr's Found

Auriesville, N.Y.—Two complete skeletons and the skull of a third have been excavated on the grounds of the shrine to the Jesuit martyrs near here.

The Rev. Peter P. Quaick, director of the shrine, said that Dr. Arthur Parker, director of the museum at Rochester University, had been asked to come here and examine the skeletons, to determine, if possible, whether they were those of white men or Indians. Doctor Parker is a Seneca Indian.

John E. Wyman, curator of the Montgomery County Historical Society, who is directing the excavations! Dr. John Walton of the State Health Department, and Otis Boulton, County Coroner, believe the bones are those of white men.

Father Cusick thought it significant that no Indian relics were found in the shrine building.

No relics of the three members of the Society of Jesus who were tortured and slain at Auriesville by Indians in the fourth decade of the seventeenth century ever were found, Father Cusick said. The three, Rene Goupil, the Rev. Isaac Jogues and Joseph Lalande, were canonized by the Catholic Church in June, 1930.

The skeletons were found in front of the new shrine building, atop a hill sloping northward to the Mohawk River.

Quakers Abolish Restraints on Dress

Adopting as amended "Book of Discipline" for Quakers of the world, set in thirty-eight years, the Religious Society of Friends decreed at its New York yearly meeting that it is not necessary no longer to keep a strict plainness of body and to refrain from kinds of frills and laces.

The action was taken at the second day's session of the meeting at 221 West Fifty-seventh street. More than 100 Quakers were present. It was the first time since 1893 that a new edition of discipline had been issued.

Agreement of members and meetings was reached without a vote. The document contained forty-two printed pages and was drawn by the committee on revision of discipline, it was said, after a series of eighteen long meetings.

Although the provisions of the new "Book of Discipline" and that of 1893 substantially are the same, the section on "Dress and Times" omitted the customary advice of the seven previous books banning dress as to "plainness" in the mode of a Quaker's dress. "Spiritual simplicity" rather than simplicity in one's uniform was inferred by the document as essential.

To Use Calendar Names

The only other vital change contained in the 1931 book was that permitting Quakers to use the calendar names of the months, instead of numbers.

According to John C. Jr. of Chappaqua, N. Y., secretary of the committee on revision, the committee sentiment contained forty-two printed pages and was drawn by the committee on revision of discipline, it was said, after a series of eighteen long meetings.

Although the provisions of the new "Book of Discipline" and that of 1893 substantially are the same, the section on "Dress and Times" omitted the customary advice of the seven previous books banning dress as to "plainness" in the mode of a Quaker's dress. "Spiritual simplicity" rather than simplicity in one's uniform was inferred by the document as essential.

To Use Calendar Names

The only other vital change contained in the 1931 book was that permitting Quakers to use the calendar names of the months, instead of numbers.

According to John C. Jr. of Chappaqua, N. Y., secretary of the committee on revision, the committee sentiment against extravagance in dress and ornamented frills and laces should be avoided. At that time, Mr. Cox recalled, the Quaker men wore plain black suits and shunned collars and ties. The women wore plain shirts almost touching the ground and wore "mutton-leg" sleeves and shoulders.

Explaining the omission of the usual "advice" on dress, Mr. Cox said his committee had made this change "because our ways of thinking have changed" and because the "matter of one's uniform" had nothing to do with "spiritual simplicity in living."

"The principle of simplicity," the document said, in discussing dress, "does not change with the years or centuries, but the manifestations of it change with the varying conditions of life."

The book went on to warn, however, that Quakers "should endeavor so to keep our lives and possessions as to avoid ostentation and display; to keep our minds free from the fashion of fashions and our souls steadfast in a changing world."

The meeting instructed the committee on revision to reword certain paragraphs of documents pertaining to marriage and the use of tobacco. The latter was changed after several of the Quakers took exception to the statement that "the use of tobacco produces "serious effects upon the body and mind," and another asserting that marriage and the establishment of a family should be one of the aims of the young.

Members of the Friends' society said they liked to smoke and expressed resentment at the inference that the use of tobacco "makes one insane," and two or three women objected to the statement that the establishment of a family should be one of the "first aims" of young people.

After prolonged discussion the meeting finally consented to the substitution of the word "chief" for "first" in the section on tobacco and the section on marriage.

The meeting will continue today and tomorrow.

During the gathering last night, the Friends were addressed by Dr. D. Leigh Colvin, secretary of the Prohibition National Committee. Dr. Colvin said that prohibition had been a tremendous factor in promoting prosperity because it had diverted much of the nation's resources into legitimate channels and caused big profits to be made by industry which were used to earn more and spend more for the products of man's activities into a vast amount of raw material to produce. He also said prohibition was a great stimulating factor in the rapid increase in high school and college enrolment in recent years.

Wheat Testing at Experimental Farm Proves Beneficial

Oven in Which World-Famous Marquis Wheat Was First Baked Still in Operation

Ottawa, April 10—It is probably safe to say no phase of scientific inquiry has played a more important part in the economic development of the Dominion than has that connected with the milling and baking of new wheats as conducted at the Central Experimental Farm in Ottawa. Here one may daily hear the hum of a miniature flour mill and may examine numerous test loaves produced from new wheats brought in from the numerous government conducted experimental farms and stations scattered throughout Canada, at which point they are earlier subjected for yield and agronomic character.ics.

The oven in which the world-famous Marquis wheat was first baked some 20 years ago, is still in use, it is doing its bit in connection with an aggressive programme which seeks to produce for Canada new types of wheats.

Undoubtedly one of the best assets possessed by the Dominion today is the high quality of her wheat. The grain is prized above all for its superb quality, reflected in its ability to provide "strength" to blends of weaker wheats. While the grain of Argentina and Russia may approach in quality the wheat produced in this Dominion, yet Old Country millers still regard Canada's produce as Monarch of the Cereals.

The importance to Canada of maintaining a high standard in the quality of her wheats has long been recognized. As a result no new wheat, it was subjected. It was at the same time to obtain the stamp of approval and to get into general circulation before being put to the acid test, first at the experimental mill and bake shop and finally of the larger commercial establishments.

It was at the Experimental Farm here that the outstanding quality of Marquis was first recognized as a result of the exacting tests to which it was subjected. It was at the same institution and through the same channels that the newer introductions known as Reward and Garnet came to be picked out from hundreds of others forms as being worthy of further investigation and development.

At present numerous promising forms from a rust resistant standpoint are being tested for milling and baking qualities and results obtained this far seem to indicate definite progress is being made in this respect. It is confidently expected that in the near future a variety will be made available to the wheat-ridden areas of Manitoba which will be capable of resisting the ravages of this disease, and at the same time produce satisfactory yields of wheat of equally high milling qualities, thus saving to Canada of such a wheat may easily run into many millions of dollars during a year in which an epidemic occurs.

There are still 30,000 basement dwellings in London 100,000 people of Londoa.

Materials to impart a pleasing odor to rubber goods have been introduced.

FEMINIST REVIEWS EVENTS AT QUEBEC

Montreal, April 10. (CP). — Over half the population of Quebec — women—will never exert any important right until it counts politically and its demands will never receive a serious hearing from the legislature until it gains the right to vote. So declared Mrs. Pierre F. Casgrain, president of the League for Women's Rights, reviewing events at Quebec in regard to the two feminist measures which were recently defeated.

One member, and not among the least important in the Legislature, had said a few days previously: "Please don't ask us to waste the time of the Legislative Assembly over your academic debates," said Mrs. Casgrain. Was the bill to admit women to the Bar academic question—a measure designed to afford women the requisite training and talent to earn their livelihood in the profession for which they were fitted? she queried. Was a bill intended to give over half the population of the province the right to participate in the choice of those who would make the laws for the good or ill of the country an academic matter?

Labor and the farmers are listened to seriously when they make demands of the Legislature, said Mrs. Casgrain. Why? Because they have the vote. When they express their wishes legislative action they are told "We must not proceed too quickly—come back next year; we are so busy, we have not time to waste."

"We need the vote. At the polls our voice would be eloquent indeed — we would be heard. . . ." said Mrs. Casgrain continued, "that we obtained enfranchisement in the Civil Code, but only at the cost of year after weary year of striving and disappointment, and in face of a campaign of violence and calumny on the part of our opponents.

"We are not discouraged. Our cause is just, and we will win in the end," Mrs. Casgrain said.

IF ALL THE SKIES

If all the skies were sunshine
Our fears would be fain
To feel once more upon them
The cooling splash of rain.

If all the world were music
Our hearts would often long
For one sweet strain of silence
To break the endless song.

If life were always merry
Our souls would seek relief
And rest from weary laughter

Fashionably Speaking
By Lucille

Dear Readers:

Magic in its smartness of line and daintiness of color and design — the oxford! For this word means something that gives the spring suit a plaish cystet, style, black, brown or blue—combining satiny kid with beautifully marked lizard of suede. Around the oxford is what might be described as a collar—a prettily shaped band that continues to form the portion over the instep with its fronts eyelets. The heels are graceful and practical, a medium height that is just right for a street shoe.

An effect that is as novel as it is charming is achieved by the type of one-strap shoe that plays up tweed prominently. It is tweed that blends in color—not contra-, > that a black shoe has a dark grey, almost black, tweed forming all but the wing tip toe and the pieces that come around the sides to the back. This style, like the rest, is to be had in black, brown and navy.

Very much in the fashion picture is the pump, and there are graceful versions of it for spectator sports wear, the perfect finishing touch for her outdoor costume. This again com bines a smooth leather with the fine perhaps suede with a wing-tip perforated toe and band — for action sports there is a sturdy black shoe with open-work front, known as the Prince of Wales tongue. It has a low, business-like heel, and is made in both tan and black.

Then, too, there is the "dressy" type of pump for afternoon, a very important fashion. One of kid has suede "quarter," while another has a pretty touch of lizard as trimming. The heels of these pumps are slender and graceful.

Still others of these pumps are entirely of suede, in brown or black. There's one of patent leather with grey snakeskin trimming and another of plain style which asks for one of the fine cut steel buckles that are seen in a case at this establishment.

"The step-ins, those pumps that are cut a little higher and have a bit of elastic across the instep, concealed by a tiny buckle or a little tongue of leather, are still another chapter of the shoe story. A patent leather shoe with a narrow strap is made in sandal effect but is not really a sandal.

Linen shoes are expected to be the outstanding style for summer—they will be made in every style—oxford, pump, and one-strap. Two virtues they have, beside smartness; they are cool and easily cleaned. Pretty trimming effects in leather will adorn them, and they will be equally smart for town and country. White buckskin shoes with brown or black calf trimmings are also among the smart summer types.

Fashionably yours,
Lucille.

Here Are Dishes For a Meal That Men Like

By Hannah Wing

Few other combinations have the appeal to the average man than a meal of roast pork, apples, sweet potatoes and onions has. Around this can be built an appetizing and nourishing menu, starting always with something light and tasty, sauerkraut juice cocktail in this case.

The sweet potatoes, boiled in the oven with the roast, may be served as stuffed sweet potatoes.

Spring onions are most quickly cooked and easily eaten if cut in quarter-inch slices after removing the skin. Cover with boiling water, add 1 teaspoon salt and cook until soft. Add two tablespoons butter and sprinkle with paprika.

Orange and grapefruit salad and an unusual cornstarch dessert covered with molasses complete this masculine minded menu.

Sauerkraut Juice Cocktail

Serve canned sauerkraut juice, thoroughly chilled, in small glasses.

Roast Loin of Pork

Use half a loin taken from the chop of the more meaty chine end of the roast, wipe meat, sprinkle with salt allowing 1 teaspoon to each pound, and with pepper, also with poultry seasoning or sage if desired.

Place fat side up on rack in open roasting pan and put in hot oven, 500 degrees F., for 15 minutes. Reduce temperature to a slow oven, 350 degrees F., and cook thoroughly as pork should always be cooked.

Serve with brown gravy made with fat in the pan.

Brown Gravy

Remove from the pan all the fat except 4 tablespoons of it. Add 6 tablespoons of flour and stir until smooth and brown. Add gradually 2 cups of boiling water. Stir constantly until boiling point is reached and boil 2 minutes. Season with 2 teaspoons salt and 1-4 teaspoon pepper and strain into gravy bat.

For the apples, boil 1-2 cup sugar and 1-2 cup water 4 minutes. Pare 2 apples, cut each into 8 sections, remove core, and cook in syrup until translucent.

Cream Brulee For Dessert

1 tablespoon butter
2-3 cup molasses
2-3 cup milk
1 2-3 cups milk
1-3 cup cornstarch
1-8 teaspoon salt

Melt butter in top of double boiler, add molasses and sugar, stir until sugar is dissolved and boil to 260 degrees F. or until it forms a firm ball when tried in cold water. Add 1 1-2 cups milk and place over the remaining milk, stir until smooth, add to hot mixture, stir until thick, cover and cook 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from fire, add 1-3 cup walnut meats cut in small pieces, chill and serve with or without whipped cream.

Persian Balm is alluringly fragrant. Adds a charming refinement to the most feminine appearance. Clears and preserves complexions of youthful loveliness and attractiveness. Softens and whitens the hands. Soothes and dispels all irritation caused by weather conditions. Swiftly absorbed by the tissues leaving never a vestige of stickiness. A perfect toilet requisite. Invaluable to all women who care for elegance and distinction.

A few from around here attended the party held at James Gunns' on Friday evening. All report a good time.

WIVES HAVE MORE RIGHTS?

Says Laws Regarding Husbands and Wives Favour Latter

Toronto, Ont., April 10—"Legislation must do something for us poor men—if we are to survive," declared Dr. Cecil Wright Lecturer of the Osgoode Hall Law School, in speaking to the Women's Law Association of Ontario, at which Miss Grace Hunter presided. In a comprehensive review of the law respecting the married woman, Dr. Wright concluded that in seeking to put women on a parity with man the law had placed her so far above her former chief that he is now in a most unenviable position of disadvantage.

"Husbands seem to have little left except liability to pay the chief. It is time for a complete going over the husband and wife section of the law to put them on a true parity and clear out the peculiarities," Dr. Wright believes. A woman is under no obligation to provide in her will for her husband, but the doors are protecting the wife still stands. A woman cannot be arrested under the absconding debtor's act unless she has separate estate. Under the Fraudulent Conveyances Act there is no liability for moneys coming to her as bequests or grants. A wife always is or may be, agent for her husband in the purchase of necessities whether he can pay or not, and no matter how well she personally is able to pay.

This, Dr. Wright considers an injustice, arguing that a wealthy woman takes a chance in marrying and should she grow an indigent should be liable for his upkeep. In marriage the husband formerly took over his wife "with all her burdens" but by the 1882 Act he is responsible only up to the sum received from her on marriage.

A husband can not sue for tort but a wife may and while a husband must keep a home for his wife she can sue him for entering the home she owns unless she consents to his entering. Only in alienation of affection is the wife in a case of disadvantage. A husband can sue for such alienation but a wife has no case against the seductress of her husband.

COLLEGE 'DONTS' FOR PARENTS

New York, April 10— Parents of prospective college students were warned by Dean Milton E. Lomnis of New York University of the importance of a careful selection of colleges for their children. Dean Loomis issued the warning in the form of a list of ten con's. The list follows:

1. Don't encourage or insist upon a college education for your children merely as a matter of social prestige or as a result of social pressure.

2. Don't encourage attendance upon a particular college merely because it is a choice of your children's friends.

3. Don't insist upon or take blindly for granted your own college as a logical choice.

4. Don't insist upon college education merely because you had it.

5. Don't insist upon a college education merely because you did not have it.

6. Don't insist upon a college year at hand merely to maintain contact with superiority.

7. Don't encourage rif possible prevents a college merely to promote athletic interests.

8. Don't encourage college merely as an avenue to membership in a fraternity or a sorority.

9. Don't force your son or daughter as a total loss merely because they did not go to college.

10. Don't discourage college merely for financial reasons.

Petticoat influence is to the fore again. It shows markedly in a lovely block of black flat crepe which has Valenciennes ruffles on a white lawn petticoat, which peeps from beneath the collarless neckline, with rever fronts and an encrusted belt..

Buttons open a new road to smart mess and are much used this season. A new sports coat made of a brown and white mixture diagonally striped with almond green ras ash bears leather buttons on each side of the double-breasted effect. There is a collarless neckline, with rever fronts and an encrusted belt..

Just watch the rock of black accented with red and see if it is not the smartest thing ever. Very new is a frock of black sheer crepe with a wide bertha and flared lower sleeves of red crepe with a large cutout design. Other details include a narrow red belt and a full, ankle-length skirt.

Get a horse and then get a smart habit and find the way to new health and beauty. We can help the habit part of the prescription by suggesting a riding coat, on fitted lines, made of brown melton cloth and smart breeches in brown and white checkered worsted.

The belt goes round a lot and will be found again on the best coats this spring. A coat of grey spotted woolen has a wide, crushed belt that is gathered up in tucks at the side and pulled through a wide silver buckle. There is a collar and wide revers of black carsoil.

Help yourself to a halo for the halo is again featured on many of the new Spring hats. Useful for afternoon wear in town is a cap with a sectional crown made of black satin ribbon. It is ornamented with a twisted halo and a white gardenia is placed at the top of the crown.

To End RESTLESS TOSSING SLEEPLESS NIGHTS

FRAYED and jangled nerves . . . nights of restless tossing and miserable wakefulness . . . fitful dozing crowded with anxious thoughts . . . awake at or before dawn and no more sleep till rising hour . . . mornings of listless weariness, forcing yourself to the daily tasks—no mere sedative can correct these conditions. You need Ovaline, a tonic food beverage for nerves, body and brain.

Ovaline—"The World's Best Night Cap"

Ovaline corrects the causes of sleeplessness — feeds the worn-out nerves and fatigued body-cells. One cup just before retiring, immediately allays any digestive unrest that may be keeping you restless and awake, soothes and feeds the nerves, and allows the overlyalert brain to relax. Deep restful sleep follows quickly and naturally.

Ovaline is a highly concentrated extraction of ripe barley malt, rich creamy milk and fresh eggs from our own and specially selected farms. Do not mistake ordinary malt and cocoa flavoured beverages for Ovaline, or expect them to have the same beneficial effect upon your system. Ovaline is the original and supreme Tonic Food Beverage. There is no satisfactory substitute for it.

Ovaline is widely used in hospitals and sanitariums, not only for sleeplessness but for building up the health and strength of convalescents, for expectant and nursing mothers, and for aged folk who need extra nourishment. It is also widely used as a family beverage where there are children to consider —at meals, between meals and at bedtime.

OVALTINE RUSKS

For fine teeth and healthy gums eat Ovaltine Rusks. They combine Canadian wheat flour and Ovaltine granules, and offer a much higher food value than ordinary rusks or biscuits.

Ovaltine is sold at all good stores, in 30c, 75c, $1.25 and special $2.50 family size tins; also served at soda fountains.

CHICAGO NOW LEAD STANLEY CUP SERIES

CHICAGO HAWKS TAKE LEAD IN STANLEY SERIES OVER CANUCKS

Windy City Team Stage Strong Finish to Beat Canucks

MONTREAL, April 10. — Mervin Wentworth, right defence man of the Chicago Black Hawks, flickered on high shot past George Hainsworth's shoulder at 12.20 this morning and broke up the longest National Hockey League game of the season here. Montreal Canadiens, three goals to one, to win the two game total and the right to meet the Chicago Black Hawks in the finals for the Stanley Cup emblem of world's professional hockey championship.

The first 60 minutes of the game were played at a fast snip with Canadiens holding a decided margin in the first two periods and scoring twice. In the third period Chicago went all out to tie and succeeded in a triumphant 18 second burst of speed which saw Marsh, Adams and Wentworth register. The overtime was a grim, close-checking affair with both teams waiting for the break and using opportunities through over anxiety.

The end came when Adams, Wentworth and Goodfellow broke a tired Canadien defence. A few short passes while jockeying for position and a brilliant shot by Wentworth gave Chicago a well-earned victory and sent a disappointed crowd of 13,000 homeward.

Canadiens, with most of their invalids back in shape, forced the pace from the start, and in the first period outshot the Hawks by 10 to 8. Marty Burke made the play for the Canadiens' goal in that period, passing straight across the Chicago defence. George Mantha was nearest the puck, but just missed it, and Aurel Joliat was on in on top of the puck like a flash. Joliat was ready for that, but, bah Gagnon's drive took him unawares.

The second period was a replica of the first with Canadiens again holding a margin. Score at the end of the 11 to 8. George Mantha appeared to have given the Habitant team a commanding margin when almost half way through the period he completed a rush by Pete Lepine circled the net and passed out to the unguarded side of the net, and scored.

In the third period, although outshot 14 to 4, the Montreal players seemed to have the game sealed up when suddenly, with less than two minutes to go, Gottselig slipped Mush March a neat, accurate forward pass when he was through the defence. The shot by the Selkirk Manitoba right winger had Hainsworth completely beaten. Chicago came to turn in all its fairs and load up their driving speed. Eighteen seconds later the game was tied when Adams, a member of the play with Cook, drove home the puck. Starting Players Seen

Chicago's starting line justified its choice in no uncertain fashion, with March, Adams and Wentworth doing all the scoring and Adams getting the receiving assists. The only other Hawk to figure in the scoring record many was Gottselig, who received an assist on March's goal.

It was a bitter game for Canadiens to lose, but it was also ample revenge by the Hawks for a defeat they suffered here last Spring in the Stanley Cup elimination when the same two teams battled some 50 minutes of overtime with Canadiens finally coming out.

Superior numbers and excellent condition won the game for the Chicago crew. Before the match Coach Dick Irwin remarked: "This club is in great shape mentally and physically" and that was the impression he was talking about. Changing their players in bewildering fashion the Westerners always had speed to throw at the Shark-checking Marine defense, which went resistfully like whole route and were out on their feet at the finish.

The teams will meet again on Saturday night, and the Hawks must not be considered favorites. They were fresher at the finish and can be expected to throw of their fatigue faster than will the favored Habitants.

Provided Canadiens can tie the round at two games each on Saturday, a fifth and final game is tentatively scheduled for next Tuesday night here.

LIMITED EDITION IDEA DENOUNCED

LONDON, April 10.—(By The Canadian Press)—The first printing of special editions is having a remarkable effect in the sale of books at the end of book production, says the Lon don edition of the Manchester Guardian, commenting on a recent publication of books here. But the craze for limited editions, which is rather a branch of industry than of art, was denounced by one of the judges at the opening of this exhibition a man who runs a press justly famous for its high standard of workmanship. This press recently published an unlimited edition of Hazlitt as a moderate price, and the whole stock had been printed he was dissatisfied with the paper and printing and regretted to scrap the lot and start again—surely a notable example of sacrifice for an ideal. One or two copies, however, had gone out to travellers.

Immediately after the announcement of the cancelling of the edition an advertisement appeared offering $100 for a copy of the abandoned edition. The publisher countered at once by offering the advertiser all the 1,000 copies on his hands at four pence.

SPRINGFIELD WIN HOCKEY LAURELS

Springfield, April 10— The Springfield Indians won the championship of the Canadian-American Hockey League and a year's lien on the Henri Richard trophy when they turned back the Boston Bruins Cubs by a score of 3 to 2 here last night before 1,500 people. This represents Springfield's third championship in five years of the circuit's existence.

A solo by Earl Seibert, Tribal defence man, in the last minute of the overtime period, which followed a regulation time proved the decisive factor. Seibert gave Indianapolis a clean sweep of the three-game series. Springfield's second goal came before the best of the three. The Leafs faced a two of Indianapolis' strongest defensive duo and compiled seven hits.

Richard Opens Rally

Billy Burrell held the Leafs hitless until Nolen Richardson uncorked a double in the fourth inning when they bunched three hits, two of them doubles by McHenry and Strong, respectively.

The Leafs' other run came in the eighth when Richardson scored from second on a wild throw by Angley who tried to pick off Rogell off the bag at first base.

Until the fifth, Smith held the Indians to three scattered hits, one in each of the first three innings. Eight batters faced him in the second inning and three of them scored.

Koenecke led off in this frame with a grounder which Rogell booted. Narlesky forced Koenecke at second, Richardson to Rogell, Richardson to Rogell, Barnhart shot another hard grounder at the shortstop and Rogell let that one get through him.

Siege of Hilldamn

Angley was an easy out, but with three and two on Burrell, Smith failed to get the ball over the plate. He also walked Wolfe, forcing in Narlesky with the first run of the game. Nat McCann shot a single into centre to score Barnhart and Burrell.

The Indians scored what proved to be the winning margin in the fifth on Walker's double and singles by Koenecke and Barnhart.

The Leafs staged a neat rally in the seventh which was the last inning Burrell worked.

With one out, Rabbitt beat out a bunt and went to third on McHenry's double to right. Earl Strong then lofted a double to the centre field fence scoring both runners. Burke and Quinlan, however, could not bring Strong in although he went from second to third on Burke's hoist to deep centre.

INDIANS AGAIN DEFEAT LEAFS

Toronto Allow Winners Three Unearned Runs

Indianapolis, April 10—Permitting the Indians only two earned runs Toronto Leafs gave Indianapolis a clean sweep of the three-game series. Yesterday's ball game, however, was the best of the three. The Leafs faced a two of Indianapolis' strongest hurlers and compiled seven hits.

Mamaux Veteran Player Hopes to See New-ark Advance

Newark, April 10.—With practically the same set of players that finished fifth in 1930, Al Mamaux, veteran pitcher and manager, makes his second attempt this year to pull the Newark Bears out of their perennial place in the second division of the International League. It is considered he will have accomplished a feat that baffled two of baseball's most famous stars, Walter Johnson and Tris Speaker.

Although the majority of last year's outfit will be back, Mamaux is looking to one of the few newcomers to the team, Clifford "Red" McSwain of the Boston Red Sox, to add a much needed punch. McSwain has been hitting sensationally in training camp games and appears to be getting even better as the regular season approaches.

Hard Hitting Outfield

Teamed with him in the outfield Harry Layne, who was a star his first year with the club last season, and Billy Kiltzman, veteran fly chaser. George Loepp probably will break in as the fifth outfielder.

Whether the infield functions as planned by Manager Mamaux, depends largely on Andy Cohen, the former New York Giants' second base star. Cohen showed last season but apparently has his eye on the "Big Time" again this year as he has shown much improvement in spring practice. The youthful but experienced Bobby Stevens will cover shortstop for the third season with Bob Barrett at third.

First Base Problem

At first base, however, Mamaux has a real problem. Hal Bojin, clay-pitcher but weak batsman, is favored at present but Willis Windle is expected to report soon and Baxter Jordan, who played first, third and the outfielder last year, probably will be returned by Washington. Frank Parenti and Herb Thomas will serve as utility infielders.

If observers mean anything, Manager Mamaux already has his pitching problem solved. With the exception of Lefty Fisher, who went to Washington, he has his entire staff of last season back and many others. They include Vic Aldridge, Jim Faulkner and Myles Thomas, all of whom have seen service in the major leagues. Don Brennan, Leo Mangan and Herb Baldwin, complete the list.

Charlie Hargreaves, veteran catcher, is expected to do the bulk of the receiving with help from Benny April a youngster.

KANSAS CITY TROUNCE TULSA

Kansas City, April 10—Kansas City Pla-Mors got back into the American Association league pennant fight last night defeating Tulsa Oilers 2 to 0. Oliers won each of the first two games of the best-of-five series at home. Remaining games will be played here.

A packet house of 6,500 (ans witnessed the contest. With only six minutes to play in the third Mc-Dorker, the Oiler goalie, dove out to make a stop and Mitchell, Pla-Mor center man in, grabbed the puck and slapped it in for the first score. Less than a minute later, Mackenzie thunted the puck to one side of the net but McCormick passed to Halderson who drove it into the net.

It was Byrne's 25th shutout of the season.

Kansas City—Goal, Byrne; defence, Lefford and Magleson; centre Campbell; wings, Goodman and McCormick; subs, Jagnick, Healey, Mitchell, Jamilson, Dunfield and Ranger.

Tulsa—Goal, McCusker; defence, Lafrance and Marker; centre, Kesiu; wings, Hamets and Whitaker; subs, Moffatt, Wakeford, Metcalfe, Shepard and Trapp.

Officials—O'Leary and O'Hara.

PITCHING STAFF SPECS' TROUBLE

If Toporcer and Shawkey Can Develop Hurling Corps Watch Skesters

Jersey City, April 10—With a new owner, a new manager and the veteran Bob Shawkey, former Yankee manager, serving as pitching coach and ready to take a turn on the mound now and then, Jersey City is armed for a desperate attempt to climb out of the cellar and go some place in the International League.

Sam Dolacorcia, at one time a bat boy for the team, realized his life's ambition when he purchased the team this year. He immediately signed George Spec) Toporcer of the Rochester Red Wings as manager and added Shawkey as coach.

The mainstay of the reorganized outfit is a classy infield, but the outfield is an unsettled problem, while much depends on the pitching staff of a few experienced and a group of inexperienced youngsters.

Defensive-wise the team should not take a back seat to any quartet in the circuit. Rudy Clancy, recently of the Chicago White Sox and one of the finest fielding first sackers in baseball, will hold down first base. Toporcer will manage the team from second base while Charley Pittinger will be back at short and Joe Brown, known as "Gloves" for his fielding at any of the International League teams, will play third base. Bobby Gillis, the former University of Alabama football star, who was put out on the second base job by signing of Toporcer, will be carried as a utility infielder.

Max Wen and George Selkirk are just what the team seems to have two of the outfield jobs sewed up, while Manager Shawkey is looking around the Yankees for a hard hitting centre fielder who can put in regular duty.

If the Yankees fail to come through either Cedric Durst or "Pep" Young are slated to get the job.

The big "H" of the team, however, centres around the mound staff. Shawkey has the hurlers in camp and is expected to have six starting pitchers ready by April 15. Rerly "Bonny" Horne, who was with the Phillies in 1928 and more recently of the Chicago Cubs; "Bot" Oeksha, late property of the Red Cross; Kenney Graf, up from the Western League; Jack Pitts, a lanky southpaw, and Hartman, last with the Montreal Royals, and Bob Walsh, an Australian lad, are all are expected to form the nucleus of the pitching staff.

For backstopping duties the veteran "Mac" Morgan and Jimmie Mercer Walsh are available. Walsh led the Blue Ridge League in batting in 1929, his first year in organized baseball, and last year finished near the top of the Class A circuit as a member of the Albany Club. Efforts are being made to sign another catcher.

RECREATION ALLEYS

In the Ladies' Afternoon League the ties in the Hi-and-Miss each won two points. For the Smiths-Mrs. Ellis was high with 105, 128, 151—431 and for the Hi-and-Miss Mrs. Beal was high with 137, 187, 144—468.

In the Ladies' League the Nevertires won three points from Our Gang. For Never-Hits Miss Higgs was high with 137,182,154—474 and for Our Gang J. Springer was high with 202, 134, 133—469. A handicap of 100 was given to the Never Hits for each game.

A friendly game was played between the Belleville Eatons Crescents and the Kingston Greenbacks. The Belleville ladies won all four points.

In the Major League in the semi-finals Art Whalen's Moose team won from J. Leggett's Ice Boats in a hard fought battle. This game was played on the total score. The first game the Ice boats were up 31 pins, in the second game the Moose came right back and won the lost pins and 56 to the good. For the Moose D. Doran was high with 253, 258, 326—837. C. Young also had a nice three string of 253, 231, 193—697. For the Ice Boats J. Leggett was high with 225, 243, 218—686. J. Dixon was next in line with 224, 249, 217—690.

THE VAST MAJORITY DEMANDS GILLETTE

World popularity proves its quality

IN THE seasoned judgment of more than a hundred million men — from Vancouver to Venice — Gillette is the world's foremost razor blade. This one fact—dramatic and convincing —is conclusive proof of its uniform high quality and exceptional value.

Never content in spite of overwhelming leadership—Gillette engineers devote every effort to constant improvement of production method and finished product. Throughout 29 years of advance research and strict adherence to the highest manufacturing ideals — Gillette has won recognition as the standard of perfection in the razor-blade industry.

You have a right to expect for better shaving results from Gillette. Your experience proves that the Gillette double-edge blade—giving double service—is smoother and keener. When you use this blade you enjoy unsurpassed shaving comfort day after day. Every stroke is remarkable for its amazing ease and coolness.

Selected as the world's foremost blade by international referendum — Gillette is first choice of the vast majority. For this reason most men in every nation and every walk of life demand Gillette when they need razor blades.

RADIO FANS CORNER

Reception last night didn't quite come up to the standards of perfect reception, or even good reception, but we succeeded in bringing in plenty of programs to keep us busy throughout the evening. As long as we get something on the sets we won't complain. The electrical spasm we experienced about 11.15 tied up things for a while.

Don't forget tonight the outstanding program on the networks will be the concert from the Canadian Parade presentation of Cherrio station. The time for this big feature is 9 o'clock. Ends and they will be heard at 9.45. Your when a miniature glimpse of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado" will be given. Louis Muzy the guest artist from overseas will offer "Souvenirs Celtiu" and "Tales of Hoffman." Following these selections the G. M. Cadets will be introduced for the first time with Hominelli conducting. "Happy Delish" and "I Got Rhythm" are two of their presentations. Plenty other features are billed for the occasion so tune in at 9 sharp.

At ten o'clock Carlotta King, prima donna of the French-Italian Opera Company will be heard singing the role of "Manon" in Massenet's opera of that name. Chorus carries this big program also.

On Sunday, April 26th, daylight saving time comes into effect on the networks so we'll have to get ready for the change that has always meant. Get used to the idea of looking for a program you want one hour earlier than you really want it and you'll pull through all right which will continue until September 27th.

Uncle Abe and David at 6.45 from WEAF and the program of Major Bowes at 7. At 8 Jessica Dragonette and the Cavaliers, male quartet are presenting an exceptionally smart program tonight. At 9 a Chinese Temple Garden will be one of the features of the evening. The Dragonette will sing the "Indian Love Call" and Cavaliers "Rose Marie" and the program closes with "Memories."

Tuesday evening we have once the master of ceremonies for the Eskimos and tonight the Paris Sisters are the guest artists. WEAF is the station and the time is per usual 6 o'clock. Wednesday Clara Bow is guest artist of the week-end program heard at 10 from this station. RKO tonight at 10:30 WEAF and Vincent Lopez at 11 and Phil Spitalny at midnight. Oh Oh Wayne King at 12.30 but I suppose you'll be turned in at that time.

Vivienne Segal is guest artist at 8 from WJZ and Lazell Trio and White at 8.30. Billy Jones and Ernie Hare at 9 from this station and at 11.30 Otto Gray and his Oklahoma Cowboys. Mildred Hunt Contralto at navy, artillery and infantry, all of which were essential units, all performing valiant service.

VIMY DINNER

Chief Petty Officer A. Rickens replied speaking especially of the aeroplanes and the valuable service they render in directing operations. He also referred to navy and especially the proud record of the British navy.

A feature of the programme presented was the reciting and singing of the mysterious entertainer who is a member of the 21st Battalion, C. E. F. He was compelled to respond to hearty encores at the close of his renditions. His qualities as an entertainer are of the highest order.

Mr. James Bankier, Belleville, sweet tenor singer gave selections which were much appreciated. Mr. Leo Riggs was the accompanist upon the piano for the solos given and for the community singing led by Mr. Bankier. Songs were given by Messrs. Sam Turner, Billy Edwards and Sgt. Major W. Ara. The Bellville service to singing referred to his many years of service in the Argyll Light Infantry. His song was full of pathos and blue. The sergeants mess quintette gave a selection in a humorous manner, the members being sergt. H. Stanley, Sergt.-Major Lamoreaux Sergt. Major C. Monks, Sergt. Major R. Johnson and Quarter Master Sergt. J. Gibbs.

General were the expression of regret at the enforced absence owing to illness of regimental quarter Master Sergt. D. Dawes, who has always taken a deep interest in the mess. The secretary was unanimously elected to Sergt. Dawes the expression of regret and was also extended to send him the flowers which decorated the tables.

Previous to the breaking up of the party, Major Ponton, officer of the Argyll Light Infantry thanked the officers of the mess for their entertainments. This was acknowledged in a suitable manner. The national anthem closed the evening's proceedings.

It was the consensus of opinion that it was one of the best and most enjoyable evenings ever held by the mess and all members are to be congratulated on the success attended. Company Sergt. Major S. Langrell is President and Company Sergt. Major C. Monks is Secretary-Treasurer.

THEATRE STAAF ARE ENTERTAINED

Ronald Clarke was Presented With Lamp at Party

Last night Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Clarke, 20 East Moira street, were hosts at a delightful party given for the staff of the Belle Theatre. Mr. Clarke is an operator at the Belle. Refreshments were served to be followed by dancing. Music for the dancing was supplied by Paul Hall. The mark and his three-piece orchestra.

Last week Mr. Clarke celebrated a birthday and last night a pleasant surprise was added to the party when George J. Forhan, on behalf of the Belle Theatre staff, presented Mr. Clarke with a beautiful lamp. The presentation address was accompanied by the following appropriate address:

"To Ronald Clarke, our good friend who has just erased another year from the allotted three score and ten":

"Sincere Congratulations and many happy returns of the day.

"We would join in this anniversary of your birth go by without expressing to you our appreciation of your friendship.

PARKER'S STORY THRILLS LARGE FILM AUDIENCE

Conrad Nagel Gives Fine Performance in "Right of Way"

Sir, Gilbert Parker's "Right of Way," one of the great successes of the Canadian novelist and story-teller has been transferred to the talkies and was run at the Capitol Theatre in Belleville last night. This failed ful reproduction of the story of old Quebec days by the lawyer, Charley Steele, who saved Joe Portugais by his plea at a country trial and of the death of Steele from the river into which he had been thrown by a gang who dominated the waterfront and of his falling in love with a girl of the north woods did not fail to appeal. Parker's stories are virile and delightfully human and these characteristics along with the admirable settings were brought in the film. Parker's dramatic power was evident at numerous places in the story.

The leading role was filled by Conrad Nagel as the lawyer and this is one of his most finished performances The courtroom scene wherein the "dandy" lawyer proves to the jury the danger of accepting circumstantial evidence when direct evidence to refute gals was effective. The scenes with the half breed Dominique whom Charley taught to drink and who finally died from drinking because he thought Steele will bring him to justice for the theft of ten thousand dollars from the people's office were well done. Nagel had good support. Loretta Young was excellent as the French girl, the parish priest of the north was good in his part and the role of Joe Portugais was taken with a remarkable characteristics of this uncouth but healthy character by Fred Walker.

Belleville takes a particular interest in this story because Sir Gilbert once lived here and is an occasional visitor to this city. Parker's sane view of life and his sense of humor makes odd as the situations of this film story.

LITTLE HOPE FOR INJURED MOTORIST

Oshawa, April 10.—Little hope is held out for the recovery of S. A. Northcott, 388 Masson street, whose car was struck by an eastbound C. N. R. mixed freight and passenger train at Simcoe street, last night. Northcott, who was returning home from Taunton, evidently did not notice the approach of the train, which was just pulling out of the station. The automobile was badly wrecked and he suffered compound fractures of both legs, a fractured skull and other injuries. The force of the impact was sufficient to put the right from the locomotive, and the engine almost jumped the tracks. There is a train only three times a week each way on this line, and local motorists rarely exercise the same precautions as at other crossings. The injured man is in the Oshawa hospital.

"The Roast Beef of Old England" and "Buy a Broom" are titles of two popular songs of the long ago.

Patricia stood, small and slim and valiant against the door behind her, and answered Ethan for the fifth time.

"I did not see any note," she reiterated. "You know I always tell the truth."

Ethan sighed. He knew she did.

"Why do you care so?" she demanded, her blonde brows knitting with her unusual concentration on the problem at hand. He made no answer. Suddenly Patricia spoke. "It has to do with my Helen. It was her note.... Is that why she won't come back, Ethan? She says she says this to me? Well, then, I don't care." Patricia gave away her honor royally for love, her little face tense with the anxiety that can relieve her and not me, if it will bring Helen back."

"It isn't that entirely, dear," he said.

"You look terrible," she announced. "Something's awfully wrong, and you're all being stupid about it. the way most people are, I'm going to see to things."

Ethan made no answer. He scarcely heard her.

Generous with love. That was it. That was the keynote of it. Generous with love to him, had she been too generous to others? Would she never belong to him only?

He faced his own thoughts, he followed them out. Hard and ugly honorable like Nina. Nina was hard and dishonorable, too. And it was Nina's word that Ronny was in love with Helen. He had accepted it. It was Nina's amused suggestion that Helen's old lover had returned, and that Helen knew it and knew he was free and.... was not to be trusted? Yet, that was what Nina had implied subtly. He had taken Nina's word. He had been a fool.

And yet—She had broken her promise not to see Ronny. She had said she had left a note explaining, and there he was here unexplained to childs....

He walked the floor for hours, till it was so dark that if he had not known the room by heart he could not have told where it was.

He went to the telephone and called her.

Mrs. Birch answered him.

"She's gone," Dorie Millikin's, that movie business they make such a fuss over, and I think she'll be back till late."

That was where he had first known she belonged to him. He had a quick impulse to drive over there now, wait for her and, when she came, to end himself. It wouldn't be fair to take her from again before the others.... He would write.

He sat down and wrote to her. He told her that he loved her and trusted and believed in her; that he was coming to see her next morning. He waked out thought the fresh damp chill of the February evening, and down to the nearest letter-box, coming back with a lighter load. He could see her at latest by ten. He would go down and start the office machinery—a very important matter must be at least halved next morning—and go straight back to Helen's house.... He sighed with happiness.... Helen again!

Patricia made for the lodge where Marietta at this time of day was busy with her iron her labors and talking to her husband about the affairs in Kingsway Village.

There was little concerning the Kingsway family which escaped Marietta. Whether she had to find or cover it lawfully or unlawfully.

Marietta knew nothing concerning the Kingsway family which escaped Marietta, whether she had to discover it lawfully or unlawfully. And as she earnestly declared later, to go right with the Kingsways at all times. Ethan's marriage was something she considered a good thing for future generations, for once she satisfied Patricia's curiosity.

"God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform," she confided to her husband afterwards. "And if that outlandish young one is up to anything. I for one am for girin' her a chance. I never saw nothing like her anyway; I guess she'd a-had short life of it in the early days in Slaton!"

"Where's the Higginson boy?" Patricia demanded.

"Ain't you the beatenest!" said Marietta in genuine admiration. "I did hear he was worked in Dennie's Garage over Wayne way."

Patricia scarcely stopped for thanks. She sped through the darkening grounds, rushing into the living room just in time to take her seat at the table, and demanded across the candles of Ethan, trying to talk to his mother as if nothing had happened, "I was really the bargain advance on my allowance."

Ethan handed her a five-dollar bill absently.

Patricia held tight to her bill, and then surreptitiously thrust it up a slender leg. Nobody said anything more, not even Marietta, who saw her in bed. She was up early next morning; she breakfasted betimes in the kitchen, and took with her unaccustomed richness not a bus but a taxi to Wayne.

She found Ronny in overalls, hollow down a car.

"Ronald Higginson?"

"Yes. What is it?" demanded Ronny.

"I'm Patricia Kingsway, and I have to have an important talk with Helen Birch. I've got a lot better looking than you."

"Yes, and a girl Helen looks after," said Ronny.

"Helen has wrecked Helen's life," said Patricia, using a phrase acquired in the movies, and used on some occasion really worth it.

He looked at this, and stopped hoeing. "What on earth are you talking about?" he demanded.

Patricia stamped up the cash against him with her characteristic decision.

"And so you see," she finished, "we've broken off because of you. And we simply have to have Helen back in Kingsway. We need her round the house. And she does love Ethan lots and lots, though she won't want to hear your feelings, but I've noticed it, and I'm a very observing child. Every-body says so!"

Ronny stared down at her.

"Helen and Ethan," he said. "Look here, little girl, wait till noon and I'll be over with you and see Mr. Kingsway."

It was two hours till noon. Patricia stamped. She had some of the five dollars still, and she thought she could amuse herself. She wanted to explore the resources of Wayne, and was back on the steps of Ronny's.

The drove like mad to Kingsway, in the battered Ford Ronny had never abandoned in his most social-istic moments.

Ethan meanwhile had gone to his office and called Helen again from there.

Mrs. Birch's nasal voice replied. "She's went on a picnic with Tom Delamater, s'paced you was on it too. She said she'd be home by four anyway."

"I remember. No, I couldn't make it. Tell her I'll be there at ten minutes past four."

He turned back to the business in hand. He was outwardly as unmoved and self-controlled as usual. But underneath the quiet directions he gave his subordinates, the clear decisions he made, one thought went on and on, insistently, refusing to be checked or forgotten or dulled.

It was almost a relief to the dull terror that Ethan had known had to die when Ronny and Patricia, reinforced by Doris, walked in on him that day. Ronny had gone straight to Doris' house and called her out.

"Here's Ronny and Doris," Patricia said. "Even you will have to believe them! Tell him," she directed tall Ronny, and he obeyed.

"Doris and I've been married some time," he said, coming straight to the point manfully. "Helen was in on it. If she's got into trouble with you through my fool pride and Dory's fool cowardice, I can never forgive myself."

He rushed on, telling Ethan that he was going to tell Doris' people, and his stepmother, as soon as he left her.

"I'm taking Doris over to Wayne to live," he finished. "I've found a small furnished room that's pleasant tomorrow. And," Ronny ended frankly, "if I'd taken your advice that time you came over and talked to me, and used more common sense and less pride, none of it would have happened. Helen's been a wonderful sport straight through."

They went gone, leaving behind them an atmosphere of innocence and young love and folly that made Ethan smile a little, and then sigh.

Helen—Had he lost Helen? It was a hundred years till she would get back from her accursed picnic with that young rotter into whose arms he'd practically thrown her....

It was like a horror, this dream to Helen, repeating this picnic trip she had made to often with Tommy; his late February day in leaflets, and feeling nothing at all.

They reached the little glade, with its nearby outdoor oven. The day was mild. Tommy's luck. He spread a motor rug down and built a fire, and they began to open the cans no had brought, while he talked steadily on.

"You know, Helen," he said, settling down by her with his own paper plate, "after you other girls haven't much flavor. The devoted ones aren't amusing and the amusing ones are for one time. That's really"——he eyed her as he spoke —"why I gave Kay the air. Always had to bring your own knee-cushion when you went after Kay."

You think you did right to break off with her?" Helen asked coolly.

He gave one of his wild bursts of laughter.

"Oh, love, since you force me to the admission, she was painfully willing! You take little affairs of the heart too hard and fast, Helen. As our age counts, I'm old and I'm a lot as we have. And then we come back to our first love, and as we have."

Helen sat quiet and unmoved and only faintly smiling.

He looked full at her, with his queer green-gray eyes, lashed like a woman's. He was consciously exercising his spell on her.

"Love me, Helen," he demanded soft ly.

"No, Tommy, not a bit. I felt pretty badly when you threw me over before everybody in Kingsway, I had to pretend I didn't mind, I was kind of fond of you in a way now, just because I was over my head, and that was it——" She pondered. "I was never over you. I'm not crazy now. I'm sane."

Helen, I know I did you a dirty trick, but you shouldn't have taken it so hard, for one thing. You should have——" Tommy actually sounded injured—— "that I'd have come back to you and just been good on. But, no, you just took it! And anyway you make me very unhappy now."

Ethan handed her a five-dollar bill absently.

Patricia held tight to her bill, and then surreptitiously thrust it up a slender leg. Nobody said anything more, not even Marietta, who saw her in bed. She was up early next morning; she breakfasted betimes in the kitchen, and took with her unaccustomed richness not a bus but a taxi to Wayne.

Helen—Had he lost Helen? It was a hundred years till she would get back from her accursed picnic with that young rotter into whose arms he'd practically thrown her....

It was like a horror, this dream to Helen, repeating this picnic trip she had made to often with Tommy; his late February day in leaflets, and feeling nothing at all.

"Till call you up after dinner. By that time you'll be over your little tantrum," he told her calmly and she scepped out of his car.

She smiled and faced about. "Not at all," she said, and she repeated.

And then, inside the Nottingham lace of Mrs. Birch's parlor curtains, she saw the outline of a man.

She knew who it was. Only Ethan had that tall grace, Ethan, whom she had lost, Ethan who would always think her bravery shallowness; who had demanded faith and honor and loyalty; who had taught her a high code and then refused to believe her capable of living by it. Ethan, the dreadful.... it was unendurable..... she must do something.

"Very well," she said desperately to Tommy. "Call. You may hear of something to your advantage." She managed even to smile and wave her hand to him as she went in. She heard his triumphant voice floating back from the roadbox—Ethan could have heard it too——

"I knew you'd be! See you later—and always!"

She made herself walk into the room. Ethan stood there, waiting for her.... She uttered and pulled herself together to face him.

"Helen," he said, "I have come to ask you to forgive me."

"Don't you know where I've been? Where I thought before. I've been off all day with Tommy. Don't you understand? Tommy Delamater. He wants me to marry him again. He wants me to marry him tomorrow. I —I shall marry Tommy."

She stopped talking and stood facing him, not knowing for what he would say.

His voice close to her, was passionate, half angry, possessive.

"I don't care," he was saying "where you've been. I don't care what you've done or what you've promised. I believe in you entirely and absolutely, as you deserve. And you are going to marry me and nobody else, unless you can tell me honestly that you love him better than you do me." He came close to her and put his hands on her shoulders.

"Oh, Ethan——" How long could she stand this? Don't, don't do this again. Haven't I told you, it doesn't matter how much you love me if you don't trust me?

"I do trust you. Always, entirely, I ask you again to forgive me for distrusting for even a little while."

"You won't just say this? Not to get me back?"

"I wouldn't say it, even to get you back——I couldn't——If it weren't true. Didn't I let you get me back?"

"No, I went off this morning before the mail came. It was later than usual," she said mechanically.

"I wrote to you last night, thank heaven, before I'd been told anything by Ronny," he said.

"Ronny told you——"

He came close and took her in his arms.

"I'll explain everything, but, oh, Helen, I want you to get me again first, infinitely."

They were in each other's arms suddenly, blessedly; as if it had been years since they were parted.

"O, is it real?" Helen thought, and heard Ethan say softly.

"I can't believe it's real, darling. Helen, let's get married tomorrow!"

Suddenly she laughed and spoke.

"Oh, I forgot. I can't marry anybody tomorrow. Not even if more inquiries come.

"Any special engagement?"

"No, but I'm hard work for the Heather girls. My little sister's in trouble again, real trouble, poor baby and I have to go down and see what I can do to straighten it out."

He put his arms around her again.

"You don't have to straighten out anybody tomorrow, dear. I saw them both, and I straightened it all out. Their mother arrived on the 4 o'clock to you, before she wrote you. They don't need very much in love, and it wasn't hard."

"And what about Lester?"

"He was dispatched, poor young fellow. But they are starting all over again down there, Jessica is to have a little house—It's quite in the country—and the babies can play on the grass, and the shopping district is twenty miles off. So is Lester's business. So you mustn't have them on your mind any more."

There came a thud on the door, followed by the crash of its opening, and on top of that, Patricia. She made one leap, in her rainbow finery on Helen, Patricia caught her breath once, and then demanded.

"Is it all right? Helen, are you goin' to marry him?.....But you are. You're friends.... Oh, Helen, I'm so glad, even if I do owe Ethan six weeks' allowance! It was worth it."

Helen hugged the child close.

"And you'll come back tomorrow morning and stay with me?" Patricia persisted.

"Of course."

"All right then. And I forgot, Cous is this said wouldn't you please come to dinner if it was all right."

It had occurred to them, at the Kingsways' to straighten out the affair of Patricia and Ethan's debt.

"But didn't she give you anything?" Helen demanded. "I said 'Take this to Ethan,' that's what she would. It isn't like Patricia——"

"Wait," he said. "I remember now. She did give me——a paper-weight!"

"A paper-weight!"

"Why, yes. I thought it was one of her presents; you know what mysterious thing she has a way of expecting you to understand."

"No—what? know! I weighed down the letter. Let me see."

"Here's your letter. Ethan!"

She ran to the table.

He dropped it into the bed of coals smouldering between the brass fire-stock.

"So we both told the truth!" she said triumphantly.

"And incidentally, I forgot to tell you that today while I was going mad with impatience I took time out for one of it," he told her, "by break my Doris' marriage to her father and aunt."

"Mr. Milliken may, probably will, take Ronald into business with him, if he boy likes."

"And now, Helen, I don't want to be insistent. But I'm afraid of lunge you. What about next week instead of tomorrow?"

"And on what about my wedding, that your mother is planning so carefully?"

"Two weeks, then."

She lifted her flushed face, smiling and gracious and generous in the firelight.

"Oh, I suppose I'll do it, Ethan! It's like the motto on your ring, you know...."

"I've always 'gone the King's Wake!'"

They were quiet for a long moment. Then he kissed her once more. "Not many more times, then, I shall take you home!" he said happily. "This will be your home, Helen."

"But you must take me home now!.....

COMBAT NUISANCE OF SMOKE FOR THE AVIATOR'S SAKE

LONDON, April 10.—(By the Canadian Press)—Smoke, which has caused the "air-making" the country-side and for measures to combat the smoke nuisance in the interests of aviators are points closely allied to the problem of the efficient network of aerodromes and emergency landing grounds which the Air Ministry in the first report of the Aerodromes Committee of the Royal Institute of British Architects. The Committee which has among its members air pilots, landing fields because, and distinctive coloring and illumination of landing grounds, such as tall chimneys, church spires, wireless mast and powerful cables carrying electric power.

Smoke, states the report, is one of the chief causes of foggy conditions and bad visibility, especially around industrial areas. To combine the most formidable obstacles to regular flying; the safety and security of air transport will not least among the many reasons why the smoke nuisance should be vigorously attacked.

URUGUAYANS KNOW LOTS ABOUT CANADA

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, April 10 By Claude Melanson, Canadian Press Correspondent. "Canada" said "Vive la Canadienne," beautifully placed in a strange land at the end of a 7000-mile journey, in the City's Municipal Band, crested an impressive Canadian welcome by the members of the Canadian Trade and Goodwill Mission. The smart organizers of the Montevideo Chamber of Commerce knew this generosity, for they went to a great deal of trouble to find out all they could about the country before they sent the party's gratitude.

But their hosts did more, for in a few hours they assembled a display of the Canadians that, not only was interesting and colorful, but one of the world, but Uruguay as a whole was proud to call friends.

After meeting the new president of the republic, Dr. Gabriel Terra, a man of great distinction and culture, the Canadians met the representatives who accompanied them during an extensive tour of the city of 29 beaches and 1,000,000 people, wherein they were received for the Uruguayan by wool. Uruguayan money has suffered a depreciation of about 30 per cent, and although a recent amnesty pressed to discover as many Uruguayans fully conversant with all the Canadian questions, political, financial and social life—nothing apparently has escaped them. They talked of Uruguay in rich. They knew there for many years, although most of them never set foot on Canadian soil.

This fact, besides making the visit a most pleasant one, would seem to indicate the possibility of easy trade relations. Unfortunately there are still a few obstacles to be removed before full advantage is taken of a very propitious situation.

Uruguay is rich. This country, although much smaller, possesses more sheep and cattle than Canada. Its magnificent Parliament is built with 27 different kinds of native marble, and one has everywhere the impression of wealth. But this land, for 20 years free of revolution, did not escape the world financial depression, and the Canadian mission where it been received for the Uruguayan by wool. Uruguayan money has suffered a depreciation of about 30 per cent, and although a recent amnesty

BUENOS AIRES SEES ENGLISH RARE BOOKS

Pageant of Centuries Displayed at British Exhibition

LONDON, April 10.—(By the Canadian Press)—One of the most felicitous features of Great Britain's display at the British Empire Trade Exhibition in Buenos Aires is a collection of the English book-elders' wares rpm sqn no 'uno sunod 3uizsoo 4sq1 of printing and production, since it would be of great interest, for it shows some of the best work both of the commercial and the private presses, its contents range from the edition de luxe to the popular series, and it is rich in varieties of format and binding. But the arrangement of its hundreds of items is made to serve other well-conceived purposes.

One group of exhibits reveals the many links between England and South America by such works as Hakluyt's Voyages," the Cuneiform Sinaam, and there is an ordered display, in seven sections of books, illustrations, and facsimiles, giving for each period a typical collective glimpse of British thought, art, and achievement throughout the centuries.

The visitor will be launched on his progress by excerpts from Domesday Book and Magna Charta, and pictures from the Lindisfarne Gospels to the production of a Caedmon manuscript. Six sections are devoted to the Stratford "Bede," and Skeat's "Chaucer". Early literature is represented by the Book of Kells, and Wales by the Mabinogion, while the work of historical scholarship on the period is suggested by a few of the best of the writings of Stubbs, Tout, Coulton and many others.

By way of the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle, Chaucer and Malory, one reaches specimens of Elizabethan literature and the approach to the Renaissance. The Early English Text Society has space to themselves, where one can see an interesting copy of the revised Version and a facsimile of the first Prayer Book, with texts and commentaries galore.

Illustration is not forgotten, and opportunity is taken to show what Blake did for Milton, and Beardsley for Malory, and Rackham for Grimm and Walter Crane get their due, and Bernard Sickhaus's "Peter Pan" pictures will be found with Sir James Barrie's story-play. The representation of the Modern Age is achieved in the latest aspect, and, while it is brought down to date with "The Good Companions," it offers examples of research "The Palace of Minos," official literature ("British Documents on the Origin of the Great War"), and technical works of science and medicine. Indeed the exhibition cannot but make the development and export of English civilization more vivid to a nation already familiar with its political and commercial sides.

GREAT AIRCRAFT END LONG FLIGHT

CAIRO, Egypt, April 10.—(By the Canadian Press)— Exactly to time the formation of three Vickers "Victoria" troop-carriers, chosen to make this year the annual Royal Air Force flight from Cairo to Cape Town and back, alighted at Heliopolis aerodrome. They returned to their base after an absence of two months, having flown twice along the entire length of Africa from north to south, a distance of 11,240 miles.

This is the first year that "heavy aircraft" have made the journey, which has thus provided much valuable information about the operation over the route of large aeroplanes similar in size and performance to the air-liners which should by carrying mails and passengers regularly between Cairo and the Cape before the end of the summer. Further much was learned which should throw light on the military use of the heavy transport service aeroplane, a type that is expected to play an important part in the strategy of Empire air defence.

Occasionally the flight was delayed —by bad weather, flying conditions at one or two of the aerodromes and, twice, by damage done in landing at Broken Hill—but the aeroplanes never failed to make up the lost time with ease and there was never any danger that the pre-arranged schedule would be attempted. At Broken Hill on the outward journey one plane damaged a lower wing in landing again on the return one machine struck an obstruction on the landing ground there and sustained damage to the lower wing. The formation visited this aerodrome at the very worst possible time of the year, the first landing being made in a heavy storm. At two aerodromes the machines got bogged and were dug out.

The Vickers "Victoria" troop-carrier is a big biplane equipped with two 530 h.p. Napier "Lion" engines. It is able to remain aloft long enough to cover stages of nearly 800 miles without re-fuelling and, with a full load on board, weighs eight tons.

RAWDON

RAWDON, April 9.—(By Mail)— At Bethel on Easter the C.G.I.T. group gave a short programme after Sunday School.

Mr. Robert Pounder entertained on Saturday his family which were Mr. and Mrs. George Gaudy and children of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dunham and baby, Grace, of Wellman's and Mr. and Mrs. Robert of Melville and family.

Several of the men are busy plough ing and picking stone preparing for the spring rush.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sine, Muriel and Doris were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Bailey on Tuesday.

Mr. Robert Pounder is the proud possessor of a thoroughbred White Rock pullet which laid an egg on Easter Monday which measured 3 1-2 by 2 inches. The egg is on exhibition at his home if anyone would care to view it.

COUNTY JAIL WAS SCENE OF CONVENTION

Hoboes of Western Ontario Raised Disturbance at Simcoe

Simcoe, April 9.—Jail officials, the eight constabulary and the town council were given many uneasy moments last night as a result of a "hoboes' convention" which informally convened in the Norfolk County jail and then adjourned to the fire hall.

Twenty-two knights of the road were in the gathering, representing various nationalities.

During the early part of the evening a number of the traveling gentry drifted into town and on requiring a night's lodging, were escorted to the lock-up. As the evening hours wore on, still more came, until the jail was filled to capacity and the air was filled to overflowing.

Then the men, fortified by the superior force of their numbers overcame the jail staff, demanded food. Turnkey George Holden sent out a call for assistance, as the men had begun to show signs of unruliness. Night Constable Arthur Hammond and his turn called Alderman Percy Carter.

Alderman Carter quelled the insubordination and led the men to the market building, where he told them to make themselves at home. They in turn demanded food.

The alderman heard the sound of music from a dance hall across the street. He invaded the dance and explained his difficulty to the manager of the Bayfyfe Club, a local social organization. When he returned to the market building he carried a quantity of cake, sandwiches and other delicacies.

Alderman Carter then returned home for a few hours interrupted slumber. While more than 100 hungry dancers were being entertained, unbeknownst to them the "eats" would be light, the hoboes themselves moved on by the next meeting place this morning.

They Relieved A Pain She Had Had For Years

Saskatchewan Lady Used Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mrs. F. Mountney Recommends Them to Other Sufferers

Kenaston, Sask., April 6 (Special) "I suffered for years with a pain in my side," writes Mrs. F. Mountney, a resident of this place. "I would be awakened in the night with such terrible sensations. I did not know what to do. I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and sure felt a relief. I continued taking them whenever I felt the burning feeling start and now I am free from pain I keep them in the house all the time and have recommended them to other sufferers on many occasions."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely and simply a kidney remedy. They act directly on the kidneys, strengthening them and putting them in condition to do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood. For over thirty years Dodd's Kidney Pills have been in use in Canada, for nearly half a century. They demonstrate their worth in the most serious forms of kidney disease, such as rheumatism, backache, bladder and urinal troubles.

TROPICAL YUKON LURES PROSPECTORS

MONTREAL, April 10.—(By the Canadian Press)—In 1898 there was a rush to the gold areas of the Yukon and many a seasoned Canadian returned in the frozen north of the North. Today there is a more orderly rush" to the gold fields of British Guiana. Occasionally a liner of the Canadian National Steamships disembarks at Georgetown, the capital of the colony, some veteran prospector who has decided to tempt fate again, this time in the tropics. The latest Year Book dealing with this part of the British Empire says that the diamond fields of British Guiana's Mazaruni River and the high price of diamonds have turned more than one prospector from his original objective.

SURE OF WARM WELCOME HERE

British Teachers Would Find Hospitality in Dominion

LONDON, April 9—(CP)—Assurance of a warm welcome in Canada to British school teachers visiting the Dominion this summer are extended by Most Rev. Dr. S. P. Matheson, Archbishop of Rupert's Land, Anglican Primate of all Canada, in a letter to The Times. Archbishop Matheson writes in his capacity as President of the Overseas Education League, and refers to the invitation in 1926 it was his privilege as head of the League to extend six invitations to teachers of the British Isles to visit the Dominion. The Archbishop in his letter says:

"As soon as Major Ney, (Major Fred J. Ney, educationist, Winnipeg), our vice-president and honorary organizer who has been responsible for the work of the League during the 21 years of its existence, suggested the possibility of a repetition of such a visit, I consented to a pleasant invitation; to another group of educationists and this I do most heartily. Those of us who recall the very pleasing impression created by the former visit and the extremely happy and profitable intercourse which we enjoyed with the happy band of pilgrims' who came to us cannot refrain from desiring a repetition of the experience. Moreover, we feel that it was a distinct gain to the interest in the lives of all who took part in it.

"I first visited the Motherland in 1876; from the experiences of a long life I can say that what I have seen of the results upon Canadian teachers, I know the wide-spread and lasting benefits of travel. It induces growth in wider mental and spiritual outlook forces that might imperil, in its development, the integrity of the Empire. It improved Commonwealth, of which we should be proud, and which we should all do our best to safeguard. Comradeship and personal contact between citizens of the various parts of individuals furnish the best guarantee of a good understanding between peoples and nations. That is what we need in order to maintain and safeguard the integrity of our Commonwealth—in short we need more personal contacts and that can be best obtained by meeting together as we can.

"Visits, then, of a group of travellers, whose minds are already furnished to mold and color public opinion, to various parts of our far-flung Commonwealth thus coming into personal touch and contact with representatives of its various sections can be of untold benefit. For that reason, I cordially and warmly welcome to educationists of both sexes from the Homeland who will be good enough to visit once again our vast Canadian heritage, and we will do our very best to make their sojourn among us both pleasant and profitable."

HOPE OF THE WEST IN LONDON PARLEY

Calgary, April 9—Upon the outcome of the wheat conference in London next month rest the hopes of western agriculture depend, according to Duncan Gardiner, United Farmers of Alberta president and leader of the Progressive group in the House of Commons.

Much will depend upon the mutual arrangement for the division of avail able markets, he said in an interview here. The solution, he thought, would be an arrangement by Canada, United States, Russia, Argentine and Australia to permit orderly marketing of the export surplus of each of these countries to their mutual advantage. This if developed, would involve development of centralized marketing from Canada, possibly under government auspices.

The other alternative would be a compulsory pool. Mr. Gardiner said although he had been opposed to this method.

He urged that western farmers could improve the market stability of wheat by growing fewer varieties and thus raising the milling qualities of exports. Federal efforts to improve livestock would be beneficial but should be confined to present mixed farming areas where farmers were unable to purchase animals of the required quality, he thought.

VITAMINS OUT OF CANS

Jeers and jokes have greeted the housewife whose choice cooking instrument is a can opener. Dyspepsia is the traditional fate of her family. But this is all wrong. All health needs can be abundantly met, Professor W. H. Eddy of Columbia University states, in favor of the scientific canned foods. "No one has yet asked him what is life matter with the other eight).

An entire menu of tinned goods can supply an adequate amount of Vitamins A, B, C, and G, Professor Eddy suggests an appetizing caste du jour which offers a wide selection. There is a choice of fish, fowl, meat, from roast beef to chicken. Sixteen vegetables are suggested, but spinach heads his list. For fruit, one may chose prunes, apricots, apples, cherries pineapple or apple sauce. And even bread if it is brown, may be taken out of a can.

The animals on which the experiments were made throughout their test diet. One experiment lasted for a year the equivalent of about twenty-five years in human life.

The experiments were made chiefly on rats and guinea-pigs. What an opportunity for the man who yearns for the fresh flavor of green peas, new potatoes and corn on the cob to forget his manners and his vitamins and complain: "I'm tired of all this rate food!"—New York Times.

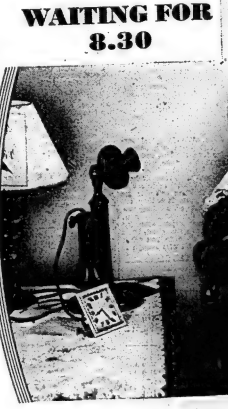
CITY EXPENDITURES



Cities with fixed liabilities are somewhat like individuals who have been doing too much installment buying. As long as there is plenty of revenue they can get along and meet their payments, but when a slack season comes and earning power is diminished, it becomes a different matter. The payments keep on coming due just the same, but the revenue for meeting these payments are not to be had.

The experience which municipalities are meeting should not be lost. Nothing can be more unsound policy in the way of deferred payments, because in that way they are merely piling debts that will have to be met regardless of the earning power of the ratepayers which is subject to variation from year to year.

The individual who has an abhorrence of debt generally gets along better than the man who has small fixed and so sublet. Mother and Anne had always been very close to one another. When Anne married and moved to another city, each missed the other greatly.

But one thing more than any other has helped to keep them close — the telephone. Every Friday evening Anne calls her mother by Long Distance . . . after 8.30 p.m. when the low night rates are in effect. During the week they both keep memos of topics they wish to discuss. Then there is no time lost . . . and nothing forgotten.

What if they are 120 miles apart! The telephone connection is made in about a minute — nearly always while Anne holds the line. Their voices are just as clear as on local, and the cost, after 8.30 p.m., is only 40 cents.

Miss Gloria Hollister Describes Adventures in Guiana

Montreal, April 10.—(By the Canadian Press)—One day when women shrieked at the sight of a mouse and fainted if they saw a spider in a far cry from the adventures enjoyed recently by Miss Gloria Hollister, technical associate of Dr. William Beebe, in the jungles of British Guiana, and recounted by her at a meeting of the Women's Canadian Club.

Miss Hollister, who is young, slight and blonde, modestly assured her audience, however, that the dangers of the jungle are mostly a matter of the imagination. Wild snakes don't attack you unless you interfere with them or corner them, she explained, and the long rope-like things that twine about and hang from the 250 feet trees only look like snakes. Actually they are just vines.

Despite Miss Hollister's statement that most of the dangers of the jungle came from an over-active imagination, it could not but be felt that the jungle presented its full stimulus. Among the everyday incidents she related on passing were the facts that one morning she wondered what her hammock was hanging into to discover that an alligator had crawled in the shadow to sleep in: that tarantula spiders and scorpions had bunked in her "sneakers" and that to allow dirt to get into her limbs had been exposed to the vampire bat—which if he could not hold fan them numb with his wings and then bite them with long, long teeth!

Mixing a little homily with her exposition, Miss Hollister told of the at of cross-eyed baby fairs, a native tated sloth, which spends his life hanging on a branch and has moss growing next to skin because he is so inactive —a striking warning of how vegetating may make one look like a vegetable.

Miss Hollister also told of the Indians living in primitive state in the central part of the country, as they had before Columbus had "even thought of existing America." As long as one did not treat them with suspicion they were most loyal, she said. Some of them had been taught they had abandoned a party of white men 200 miles ahead because they had discovered that they carried revolvers instead of their clothes.

In order to entertain her Indian hosts, she had performed a stunt of balancing a glass of water on her forehead, while lying down and getting up. This had pleased them so much that they had demanded an encore. But her parlor tricks were soon exhausted. Luckily she had hurt her teeth playing hockey and had been forced to wear a little brace, so she took that out and put it back again. They were so delighted with this, she said, that it was the only thing particularly began to weave straw in their teeth.

ICELAND AND SAGE

Iceland: a land whose barren plains and dark dark mountains fringe the Arctic Circle, whose rocky shores rise from steel grey seas to the solitude of the North, where smoking volcanoes rest by giant glaciers, and boiling geysers spout forth in the coldness of the Arctic wastes. Iceland: whose ancient parliament, the Althing, was founded more than 1,000 years ago by a band of wanderers of the intelligensia of Norway who fled from the oppression of their home and landed there by their raft upon the shores of Iceland and found there, so legend says, a country and a people who lived untroubled by tour from the outside world, as described vividly at a meeting of the Montreal centre of the Canadian College of Organists, by George H. Brewer, organist and composer, in an illustrated lecture on "Iceland the Poet Back." Mr. Brewer, who visited Iceland three years, described the natural beauty of the rugged, bare country, and told something of its romantic history; spoke of its old Norse legends; of the stirring poetry found in the sagas, and of the musical instinct handed down from generation to generation by the bards of old.

Iceland, Mr. Brewer noted, was for some centuries the middle ages before the University of the Scandinavian peoples, but in the early renaissance it had been scholars and savants, and they had kept alive a noble culture. Their skalds had handed down their art in ballad, poetry and stories which formed the basis for the musical productions of European masters. Wagner, for instance, had found much material for his musical dramas in the Icelandic sagas. The old poems and sagas, like old English ballads, were not written, but kept in the minds of the bards, who, by the way, were travelled men and revered in their own country, and were held in high honor far afield as Constantinople.

The Icelanders were a hardy race, beautiful of physique, and with a wealth of personality, the speaker said. Iceland today was a busy country, and the towns were growing up in modern style, the old frame houses being replaced by cement and stone structures, while the country boasted a splendid telephone system.

The Affairs of Your Child are Important

By Constance Cameron

Spring had arrived again, and Mother was intensely contemplating the dining room curtains, wondering whether they would stand another dry-cleaning or whether she would be justified in buying crap myrtle cone. Just as spring had come inside the house, with thoughts and preparations for cleaning and repairing and newness, so had it come into the backyard where Jack and the three companions were playing marbles. The game finally ended on the note of a call from a neighboring mother. Jack bounded into the house, his round eager face shining. "Mother" (this from the kitchen) "Mother—Mother had been discovered in the dining room. "Mother," Jack was breathless, "Mother, I won two aggies, Look!" A small dirty palm cradled the precious winnings. Mother continued to write little figures on pieces of paper. "Look!" Again came the eager command.

Mother finally turned her eyes from her small son's face, pondered for her thoughts away from the number of yards she wanted to buy for curtains. "What do you want?"

"I won two aggies!" He waited for congratulations.

But all Mother said as she viewed the little round things was: "For goodness sake, look at your hands. Go right this minute and wash them. Leave those dirty marbles here—no, not on the table. My goodness!"

"FATHER'S SON" GLORIOUS ENTERTAINMENT FOR EVERY MEMBER IN THE FAMILY

Lewis Stone, Irene Rich and Leon Janney in Leading Roles

"Father's Son," first National's production of Booth Tarkington's story is the feature attraction at the Belle Theatre, today and Saturday, matinee daily.

The story in brief is that of a middle-aged father who fails to be lenient with the pranks of his young son until almost too late to do so. The misunderstood lad finally runs away from home and then things begin to happen somewhere in the region of dad's heart, all of which mother aids in ways which mother's do.

But it is the razzle-dazzle of boy life, the pranks and the gangs—the circus—the swimmin' hole—the village bully —the lovesick pup—and all the rest—and the cast is just right. Leon Janney as father's blackening son is all that anyone could ask—that combination of imp and angel when most regular guys are. Lewis Stone as Judge Hazen father is convincing, but no more so than in later sequences, when he sees more clearly what being a boy is all about. Irene Rich is the ideal sort of mother every kid wants, or has, and John Halliday is fine as the doctor who takes the kid's side.

Robert Dandridge, the colored boy seen to such advantage in "Huckleberry Finn" and other pictures, plays the Judge's son who is Leon's pal and the redoubtable Mickey Bennett does the small town bully, who has a rough-and-tumble fight with the hero. Others in the cast are George Reed, Gertrude Howard, Bertha Mann and Grover Liggon.

William Beaudine has created another delightfully human picture. Never have the Booth Tarkington kiddies been brought more perfectly to life than in "Father's Son." Seeing the picture is like a trip back to boyland—for those of us who have left it behind—and a grand and glorious adventure for those of us who haven't yet left that delectable realm.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman
Only Strictly Formal Dinner Rules Out Bread and Butter Plates.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I read in your very useful column that bread and butter plates are not used at a formal dinner. Will you please tell me where the slice of bread is placed when taken from the bread plate?

2. Are the small coffee spoons used only with demitasse or may they be used with regular cups of coffee, also?

3. May ice cream forks be used when serving fruit cocktail in sherbet glasses?

4. May salad forks be used when salad is served as an entree?

C.B.

1. It is not the custom to serve slices of bread at a formal dinner. Some informal time of the day small biscuit is usually the type of bread that is served. This is placed either on the side of the service plate or perhaps on the table cloth.

It is only at the strictly formal dinner where the bread and butter plate is omitted. For hostesses wisely realize that this convenient little plate is necessary not only to hold the bread and butter that are served, but also for olives, celery, radishes, olives, or other food accessories. Even at the informal dinner, when bread of some kind is served, the guest is always supplied the bread and butter plate. The hostess who fails to provide this background will have nothing with which to crumble her cake or a cloth or some other piece of linen or material, doesn't, of course, have too gres lyn to attempt crumbling on a dry roll, placed on this cloth. So she has the bread and butter plate also.

Too, the bread and butter plates are a decorative feature, and add unusually attractive note to the table scheme and so they find a welcome, even though the guest has as usefully on the table.

2. Coffee spoons are not appropriate in size to be used with the large cups. They belong in the companions of the after-dinner coffee cups.

3. Ice cream forks would, I think, be awkward to use in sherbet glasses. Better to serve the teaspoon, or, as many hostesses now do, the bouillon spoon.

4. Yes. Either salad forks or luncheon forks.

The American Way and the Continental.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

People have informed me that it is incorrect to eat holding the fork in the right hand, the knife in the right hand, and transferring the fork to the mouth with the fork. They say the only correct way is to cut the food in this position, and then transfer the fork to the left hand always.

You will do me a very great favor by giving your authority for the right way. I think either way is right.

You are right—either form of eating is correct, and the choice rests with the eater. The fork-shifting method of eating is associated with a sensitive people, the Continental method with practically all other countries. An easy reason for this distinction has arisen in that so many Americans have adopted the Continental non-fork-shifting method of eating, and chose to eat in the more convenient and un-fussy it is.

When we get used to eating in the continental style (and we can get used to it in no time at all if we try) we find ourselves entertained of the knife and shifting of the fork, after a few bites of food. Besides, it does seem awkward and the motions involved to be unnecessary.

I am distinctly in favor of the non-fork-shifting method of eating.

Externally or Internally, It is Good.—When applied externally by brisk rubbing, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil opens the pores and stimulates the tissue, touching the seat of the trouble and relieving pain, affording relief. Administered internally, it will allay irritation in the throat which induces coughing and will relieve pain in the bronchial tubes and respiratory organs. Try it and be convinced.

HOW CURRENTS WILL BE TESTED

Washington, April 9—A new $350,000 building featuring running water will be erected soon at the Bureau of Standards, it was known in the at the National Hydraulic Laboratory. In it famous engineers hope to solve many problems and increase their knowledge of the flow of water in pipes.

When a huge engineering project, the construction of a gigantic dam, a canal or flood-control work is undertaken, the problems involved will be investigated in the laboratory.

All the natural formations will be reproduced to scale, and the speed and current of the water will be similarly reproduced. Then, by trying one type of construction after another, the engineers will determine which holds promise of greater efficiency.

H. M. Jacox, who is in charge of plans for the laboratory, predicts it will bring about tremendous saving in costs to the government and to private industry as well.

There is no end, he added, of expensive structures which failed of their purpose because the engineers who designed them did not have sufficient knowledge of how the flowing water would act. The laboratory is designed to supply such information as well as conduct experiments and fundamental research. These will be aimed at determining how current reacts to vari ous forms of pipes, the amount and intensity of current and pressure, the rise in water levels, the formation of silt, and other phenomena of rivers and canals.

A twelve-foot flume will carry water for a length of 100 feet in the building. An 80-foot standpipe will provide facilities for experiments in fishing water.

There will be numerous small flumes in which to obtain a clear view of complicated phenomena may occur. Also, high speed motion picture cameras will record what is happening in the water, analyzing and making a slay at Jasper Park Lodge and visiting Banff, Edmonton, Calgary and Winnipeg. They will arrive by special train.

SCIATICA AND LUMBAGO IN B.C.

For more than 30 years, since Dr. Minard first prepared his famous "King of Pain" Liniment, Canadians everywhere have used it for rubbing out pain, for Colds, Coughs, Stomach Pains, Asthma, Chilblains, Insect Bites, Sprains, Warts and innumerable other things. Minard's is the universal family remedy. For ailing animals there's nothing better —anywhere!

MANY MISSING "REMBRANDTS"

Cape Town Said to Have Old Master

Cape Town, South Africa, Apr. 10 (By The Canadian Press)—Cape Town has a genuine work of Rembrandt, "The Taxidermist," according to a writer to the Cape Argus, Eric Rosenthal, who quotes the late Dr. J. H. Hofmeyr as proof, whose name had been a household word for a generation among experts on Netherlands art, as his authority. Dr. de Groot was the managing editor of the monumental "Catalogue Raisonne of Works of the Most Eminent Dutch Painters of the Seventeenth Century," a learned index of thousands of pictures which is the international group of specialists worked for a number of years.

Rosenthal says: "There are several dozen missing Rembrandts waiting to be discovered, at least 250 of paintings according to the most exhaustive compilations, and Hofmeyr's Rembrandt is among the most famous. Hofmeyr discovered even in modern times is the fact that the value of the pictures of last century the total list only amounted to about 500, so that the South African collector, Quaited by nerves so I could sleep, I regained my strength and was in the enjoyed condition after taking the 'Prescription'."—Mrs. Alice Saunders, 1491 Grey St. Druggists. While in Toronto the delegates will be entertained by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Bruce at a Garden Party on June 3, the Queen's birthday. There will be an International Banquet on June 5, and a public service on the previous Sunday, for which prominent speakers from both Canada and the United States are being invited. The over seas delegation consisting of about fifty members will include those from Ireland, Wales, Germany, Denmark India, Egypt, and South Africa. They sail from Liverpool, May 22, and proceed to Toronto by way of Montreal and Ottawa, where special entertainment is also being planned for them.

The World Convention has not been held in Toronto since 1897, a period of 34 years. The last convention was held in Lausanne, Switzerland, in 1928.

COURT OF DOMESTIC RELATIONS SOUGHT

Montreal, April 10—A resolution calling upon the Provincial Government to establish a domestic relations court in the City of Montreal was passed recently at a meeting in which many organizations were represented, under the auspices of the Montreal Women's Club. This action followed the presentation of an address by Judge J. v. McKinley, Judge of the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court of Ottawa, one of the foremost Canadian authorities on this type of social service work. The resolution was moved by Judge Monet, who has been a candidate solicitor for a domestic relations court for several years, and was seconded by L. P. Caisse, clerk of the peace.

Rayon produced in Japan last year reached 33,000,000 pounds an increase of 8,000,000 pounds over 1929. Government taxes on this purchase in Japan to date are estimated at $50,000,000.

SIR ADAM BECK INTEGRAL WORKER FOR HYDRO POWER

Mr. D. S. Lelliott, 66 East Dundas street, is a great admirer of the late Sir Adam Beck, and has furnished the Ontario Intelligencer with a clipping from the Toronto Star after the Hydro Knight had made his last address before the Commission. Mr. Lewis was formerly in the interior service of the Toronto Commission. It will be particularly interesting at this time since the Sir Adam Hydro question is occupying the limelight. The article follows:

"At the conclusion of Sir Adam's address, Alderman H. W. Newman of Kingston moved the following resolution:

"We, the members of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association, here assembled, do hereby express our deep and lasting gratitude and appreciation of the past Hydro achievements of Sir Adam Beck and his organization which have proved such a boon to the Province of Ontario.

"And, further, we express to him our unbiased confidence in his integrity, efficiency and ability to continue the great undertaking and solve the hope that his energies will be backed to the limit so that the St. Lawrence development will be speedily consummated."

Sir Adam is Moved

"A know of no man who would have stood the abuse which Sir Adam has stood," said President C. A. Maguire of Toronto, in putting the motion. "He is the man who, more than any other, has made Hydro possible in Ontario. We are glad that he is here today, so that we can tell him what we think of him, and we will until he has passed away, as will those newspapers which are continually maligning him. He has built a valley reaching as no other public monument such as no other public man in the world has built. His enemies have been trying for years to get him. They never will be so long as he has a breath left in his body, for he always acts for the people. Sir Adam, it is a pleasure to be able to present this resolution to you and say that the people of this Province are behind you."

A storm of applause signified the unanimity of the motion. The Chairman-adoption of the motion. The Chairman-adoption of the motion. The Chairman-adoption

MAPLE SYRUP CHEAPER TODAY

Eggs Plenty on Local Market, Prices Easier

Maple syrup at lower prices, cents per quart, $1.75 per gallon was offered in large quantities today. Some of the makers stated that this would probably be the last day on which prices of such quantity would be sold. Sugar was sold in cakes at reasonable figures. Eggs sold well at eighteen cents per dozen and at eleven o'clock some were offered at sixteen cents per dozen. They were very plentiful and buyers were few at the late hour.

Butter stuck as low as thirty cents per pound.

There was a good market in vegetables and though business was not to spirited. Lettuce sold at ten cents or three heads for a cents, carrots, 25 cents per peck, beets 25 cents peck, onions 40 cents peck, turnips 30 cents peck, cabbage 5 cents per head 9 and 10 cents each green onions a bunch, and rhubarb 10c a bunch. Young radishes sold at 10 cents bunch and three bunches for 25 cents.

The meat market was well patronized. Prices were as follows, veal 6 cents liveweight, 12c dressed; lamb yearling 10 cents live and 20 cents dressed; no spring lamb was offered. Beef steer from Western Canada sold at 12 by the carcass.

There were a number of copies at one dollar to two dollars and a half a bushel. Potatoes ranged from 90 to one dollar.

Some duck eggs sold for fifty cents a setting.

The new floor in the market building is appreciated by both farmers, who now have a substantial floor beneath them. The old floor was badly worn. Next week farmers will see another transformation the walls redecorated.

HORTICULTURAL MEMBERSHIP MUST BE MAINTAINED, IS CLAIM

John F. Clarke Addressed Local Branch Last Night

Summer is in the offing and amateur gardeners are already thumbing over seed catalogues and dreaming of their flower beds and vegetable patches with the season, John F. Clarke, of the Ontario Horticultural Department, spoke here in the city hall last night under the auspices of the Belleville Horticultural Society. From a damp night could not keep horticultural enthusiasts indoors and a fair crowd gathered to witness one of the finest lantern displays on gardening matters and hear a really interesting and instructive address by Mr. Clarke.

The speaker embraced four phases of gardening in his remarks. He dealt with shrubs, perennials, rock gardens and lily pools, laying particular emphasis on rock gardens and perennials. Landscaping of the home was explained by Mr. Clarke and he stated that what applies to the home applies to public buildings as well. The perennial border will be particularly ideal with this, he pointed out. Such beautiful results were obtained in a period of depression. The gardening element is considering the cutting of our grass. The only way in which we can stop this is by doing our most to maintain a large membership in the Association. Augment the membership in your own society. You will have to do it.

"If the government grant is cancelled," continued Mr. Clarke, "it will seriously impair our work. We must work hard to increase the membership in horticultural societies and interest others in our work."

"In every city, from the mansion to the cottage, all are trying to beautify their grounds. Today the farmer is trying to landscape his farm and beautify it. This is a direct result of the work of the Horticultural Association. Fifty years ago there was only one flower shop in Toronto. Today there are over one hundred and fifty."

Another part of Mr. Clarke's lecture was accompanied by lantern slides, fully illustrating just what can be done to make a home attractive.

WOMAN RESCUED DROWNING CHILD

North Bay, Ont., April 11—Wading up to her waist in the swirling waters of Chippawa Creek, Mrs. W. A. Hood yesterday rescued her drowning three year old Marie Hedlean, who had fallen into the creek and was while tossing in rickets. Told by the youngster playmates, Mrs. Hurd who was on her way downtown, without hesitation, rushed into the creek and pulled the child to safety.

BREWERY MAN IS HELD FOR RANSOM

Missing Man's Relatives Refuse Offer of Assistance from Police

Monroe Wis., April 11— The wife and daughter of a wealthy brewer, kidnapped and held for $150,000 ransom pursued police aid last night in the belief that he was the captive of Chicago underworld gangsters.

While the hunt for Fred J. Blumer spread over a wide area, Mrs. Blumer begged police to cease their search.

"There is no use fighting them," she sobbed. "I am ready to deal with them. Why don't see how I can ever raise $150,000."

"We don't want the police in on this," said Blumer's pretty 19-year-old daughter, Marian, "because they will not do us any good."

Two decoy telephone calls from concerned executives of a dairy store chain interested in purchasing near beer from Blumer caused this to leave his home yesterday.

A telephone phone call last night to A. E. Wells, secretary-treasurer of the brewing company, demanded 126 "grand."

"We won't hurt Blumer," said the voice, but you won't see him for a day or two. Send us 150 grand and you can have him back. You'll find Blumer's automobile in Prescott. The key is on the floor."

The automobile was found in Prescott, Ill., as promised, but it afforded authorities no tangible clues.

FLIER SEEKS NEW AERIAL RECORD

Burbank, Calif., April 11—Capt. Iris C. Eaker, United States army air corps test pilot, streaked off in a low wing open cockpit monoplane here early this morning for New York in quest of a new transcontinental speed mark.

The flier hoped to reach New York in eleven hours or less. The present record of twelve hours and 25 minutes was established by Capt. Hawks. He averaged 165 miles per hour over the route.

PAIR FOUND INNOCENT OF CONSPIRACIES

J. Leo Bouchard and Lionel Charizard Found Not Guilty

CHARGE TO JURY

Verdict Disposes of One of Three Joint Indictments

Ottawa, April 11.—A verdict of not guilty was brought in shortly before midnight last night by the jury trying J. Leo Bouchard, civil service examiner, and Lionel Charizard, income tax branch employe, on charges of accepting money to favor certain candidates for positions in the civil service. The verdict disposed of one of the three joint indictments against the two accused men. There are four indictments on charges of conspiracy and conspiracy at common law were traversed until the Fall Assizes. Charizard and Leonard Joseph Bouchard alone, comprising charges of alleged forgery, fraud and falsification of documents were also traversed until the Fall Assizes.

The jury was out since a late hour Friday afternoon. The trial, one of the longest ever held in Carleton County, was largely taken up by testimony of some 30 witnesses called by the Crown. Most of the prosecution witnesses testified to paying sums of money in the neighborhood of $600 each to have their examination papers altered and corrected to ensure them positions.

The charge was one of conspiring to defraud the public. In his instructions to the jury, Mr. Justice W. D. Kelly said that the verdict must be the same for both men. The judge's charge follows, in part:

"These men are charged with conspiracy. They are charged with unlawfully conspiring together to defraud the Government of Canada through the mal-manipulation of examination papers. You must be conscious of bringing to you a clear understanding of the nature of this charge. It is not merely a charge of having been associated together that you have heard so much. Conspiracy is an offence consisting in the agreement by two or more persons do an unlawful act. Unless it has been found that the accused combined there can be no conviction for conspiracy.

Must Consider Both

"Suppose you come to the conclusion that Charizard had acted improperly. That would not be sufficient to find the protein Bouchard. Put it this way. If you think one and the other acted improperly, you may be no conviction. The law distinguishes that both must

MARY J. MEIGHEN

Toronto, April 11—Canada lost one of her notable women citizens shortly before midnight last night, when Mrs. Mary Jane Meighen, mother of Canada's former Prime Minister, the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, breathed her last in Wellesley Hospital, at the age of 82.

Mrs. Meighen, widow of the late Joseph Meighen, was taken suddenly ill on February 13 and, notwithstanding tremorst rallies and the highest medical skill, steadily lost ground in the past week until it became apparent a few days ago that hope was slender. The end was peaceful, with most of her family at the bedside.

The late Mrs. Meighen was a woman of extraordinary strength both of mind and of body, a wide reader, an excellent judge of good literature who read nothing but the best. She had lived with books for the last 20 years.

Blessed with a remarkable memory which remained with her to the last, Mrs. Meighen took a keen interest in public affairs, and was renowned throughout a very wide circle for her insight and frank political prognostications. From 1920 to 1924 she and her husband, the late Joseph Meighen, lived in Ottawa; it was during this period that Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen twice headed the Government of Canada. And during that period she was one of the statesman's most influential and valued counsellors — and perhaps his keenest friendly critic. She attended most of the debates, watching the parliamentary struggles usually from the Speaker's gallery.

MRS. FREDERICK SMYTHE

The funeral of the late Mrs. Frederick Smythe was held from her former residence, Foster Avenue, yesterday afternoon. Interment was made in Belleville cemetery. Rev. Archdeacon John Lyons of St. Thomas Anglican Church had charge of the service at the home and at the grave. He spoke of the wide friendship which the deceased enjoyed and remarked on the forthright with which she bore the long illness. Mrs. Smythe was a former resident of Ottawa, coming to this city about seven years ago. She leaves her husband and four children. Many friends were in attendance at the last rites, particularly members of the Kiwanis Club to which Mr. Smythe belongs. The floral tributes were beautiful and testified to the high esteem in which the late Mrs. Smythe was held by her friends. The pall bearers were W. Dadrison, Ernest Finkle, Reginald Moncrieff, Gordon Weseman, Charles Clarke and George Griffin.

The floral offerings were as follows:

Tavania Club; Management and staff, Belle Theatre; Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Clark; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith and family; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Imrie; Mr. and Mrs. P. LaPain and family; Mr. and Mrs. W. Basford; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Coles, Ottawa; Edie and Marion Wardhaugh; Mrs. E. Smythe, Boston, Mass., Miss Emma Moncrieff; Miss Alice Tompkins.

RAWDON

Mr. Leslie Maybee spent a few days recently with Belleville friends.

Mr. Hinds passed a few days in Havelock with her brother who was ill.

Mrs. Heath is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Dingman.

The longest village in the world is probably Kempton, near Bradford, England. It straggles along a single road for seven miles.

The total value of British goods exported from the United Kingdom during 1930 was $2,850,000,000. The total value of foreign merchandise imported and exported was $4,34,900,000.

Eleven Army horses recently discarded at Brighton, (Eng.) for veterinary reasons, mainly chronic laziness were sold to a London dog's meat firm for human consumption.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. Henry Alford, North Front street, was honored last night, when she celebrated her 72nd birthday. A number of her friends and neighbors organized a surprise party and all descended on the home in a happy frame of mind, each bearing a slight token of their appreciation. Mrs. Alford was taken entirely by surprise and thanked each for their beautiful gift. The evening was a social pleasure and delightful refreshments were served by those in charge of the party. All report a most enjoyable time and left wishing Mrs. Alford many more years of happiness.

CLUB TO PRESENT

Belleville Y's Men's Club will present an amateur production, "Summer Is A-Comin'" In," at the Collegiate Institute on Tuesday night, March 14th. Proceeds will be devoted to boys work chiefly to Motor Lake Camp and the citizens should give their support to this worthy movement. Miss Jessie Tuite has been directing the play and the cast has worked hard during the past few weeks and the play is said to be even better than that which was presented last year at the Collegiate. Well known local talent are assisting in the production. Special stage arrangements have been made and while a program will be presented between the acts, the play will be the main one carrying on a worthy work along the line of boys' welfare and on the success of the play depends a great deal the program which is to be outlined for the summer. Special emphasis is placed on the boys' camp at Motira Lake.

FIRE DAMAGE.

Firemen were called to a stubborn blaze shortly after nine o'clock last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bishop of Frank McEachern, Station street. When they arrived the place had gained considerable headway between the floors and the ceilings of the first and second floors and also the sidewalls. Two or three lines of hose were laid and after gaining access to the location of the fire it was quickly extinguished. The damage was considerable all of which is partially covered by insurance.

BANK MANAGER HEARD.

Last evening the High School Club of the C.C.I. was addressed by the members 15 to 17 years of age, held their regular High School supper in the Y.M.C.A. Building. William McCreary, the President was in the chair. Mr. Cliff Mitchell manager of, the Dominion Bank gave the boys a splendid talk. His subject was "Oil". Mr. Waite outlined a number of the qualities necessary or essential to success and not least among these was the quality of "stick-to-it-ness" or "Grit".

AUXILIARY EUCHRE

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion held a successful card party in the Memorial hall last night. Despite the inclement weather many were in attendance. Refreshments were served at the conclusion. The prize winners were as follows: Mrs. Hilton, Mrs. Mossman, Mrs. Simpson, gentlemen, Mr. Schreider, Mr. Nalla and Mr. Jenkinson.

TESTING BRAKES

Traffic Officer Byles is working the Kingston Highway today for effective brakes and bad lights. A brake testing machine is being used, while in each case the driver of the car is warned to have his lights examined for bad focus. A portion of the Highway is blocked off and the Traffic Officer is examining every set of brakes and if any are found that are defective in any way a summons will be issued without warning. The highway from Belleville to Shannonville will be worked next week, while the northern and southern highways will also be worked. Be sure the brakes on your car are in good working condition before venturing on the open road.

BROKE WRIST CRANKING CAR

When returning from Cobourg to Brighton after bringing some ladies to Cobourg to attend the Cobourg Presbyterial W.M.S. Rev. C. W. Barrett, pastor of Trinity St. Church, Brighton, and formerly of Stirling, had the misfortune to fracture his wrist, as he was assisting another motorist to start a stalled car. He managed to drive his car home afterwards.

TODAY'S VERSE

SONNET

Some searching look upon my face you say
You do not understand. Nor yet do
Save that when very blue is all the
I find myself looking as 'twere into another day.
Born long ago and buried far away,
Ah, then, for very ecstasy I cry,
Remembering how a little dawn-
breeze shy
Ruffled the grasses in adoring play;
And how the feathered magic of the morn
Rippled to song so sweet I could not forget.
Once born to be for evermore reborn,
Each morning look, and maybe I shall seek
A face I ne'er shall find—and maybe not.

RESCUES RELIEVE GRIM PAGES OF SEALING RECORDS

Bonavista, Nfld., April 11 (CP).—Since the loss of the Viking added more than a score of Newfoundland's seal hunters to the toll of almost six hundred men who have lost their lives in major disasters to the fleet, fyles have been resurrected and records searched in vain for old light stories comparing with the tragedy of Horse Island. But there are numerous instances of thrilling rescues to brighten the grim record.

Thirty-five or forty years ago it was customary for townspeople here to repair to White Rock, an elevation of 200 feet and watch the sealing fleet from St. John's pass north on March 16. There also, out to sea the town who had not been fortunate enough to secure a berth in the ice donned their sea-boots and prepared to prosecute the industry from their own homes on the packed ice of the harbor. Here were enacted in miniature the successes and failures, disasters and rescues characterizing the fleet's activities in the north.

"Uncle Larry" Keel, when a lad of twelve years or so, accompanied his grandfather out on the ice one morning; the wind blew off-shore and the ice broke into pans. In late afternoon the grandfather knew his strength was gone and that no hope remained of their reaching shore together. He persuaded the boy to leave him and try to reach a vessel that could be seen several miles off. The lad did, and succeeded in reaching the vessel shortly before nightfall and as it was impossible to set him ashore that night it was decided to take him to the fire fields. That was in March and the vessel did not make her home port of Harbor Grace until May. One bright afternoon in that month plying Larry arrived safe at home, having profited both physically and financially from the venture.

The grandfather we never seen again. "Uncle Larry" died an old man, three years ago.

An experience of the same sort, though less spectacular occurred thirty years ago when a man left his home at two o'clock in the morning to go "off on ice." During the day he became separated from his companions and was given up for dead that night. Searching parties found no trace. Blinds were drawn in the home of the relatives. Nearly a week had lapsed when tidings came that the man had reached Liscombe Lighthouse after forty-eight hours on the ice, and was on his way home.

It was customary years ago when the ice came in for the women and girls to prepare kettles of hot tea and "lazy buns" and go out to meet the returning men on the ice. After this refreshment they were ready to look for another load of pelts.

When the sealing fleet passed north this year the only recognition of the event in Bonavista was a signal on the fog-horn as they passed the cape. The bay was as clear of ice as in the month of August. Few old customs have fallen into disuse.

LIBRARY CORNER

LIBRARY CORNER

A noteworthy addition to the Corby Library Biography section is the life of "Henry Irving" by his pupil, Gordon Craig. Mr. Craig, son of Irving's leading lady, Ellen Terry and himself an outstanding contributor to the contemporary theatre, has given a vivid pen picture of the outstanding figure of the English stage in the last part of the nineteenth century. The book is a keen and witty analysis both of the great actor and of the theatre itself. In developing his theme Mr. Craig has drawn upon his immense personal knowledge of the theatre to describe developments since Irving's death and predict future ventures. In the epilogue Irving, himself returns to life to comment on the theatre as a whole and George Bernard Shaw in particular, decides to say the volume proves interesting reading.

The last glittering decades of the Victorian era are recalled by E. F. Benson in his book "As we were; a Victorian peep show". Here the figures of Queen Victoria, Gladstone, Disraeli, Tennyson, Browning, Swinburne and Oscar Wilde are prominent in the pageant. The author records the period as told by one who lived with it intimately looking back with the smile of the modern yet the joy of participant. "As we were" will delight the Victorians, and also those who have known them only as ancestors.

Two new and enlightening volumes on the Russian situation are "The Challenge of Russia" by George Earle Buckle, and "Russia Faces It" by William Henry Chamberlin. Mr. Eddy's account of the Russian experiment is based on six visits to Russia, two during the Soviet regime and four under the present government. The former regards Soviet Russia as a land of amazing contradictions but nevertheless a challenge to the world. The latter volume, dealing with Russia, sub-titled a living experiment in history" is an open-minded survey of the changes in Russia by a seven year resident. Mr. Chamberlin, Russian correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor, gives a panoramic story of the communist movement, which is comprehensive and informative. The volume has been acclaimed by the critics as the most truthful study of life under the Soviets that has yet been published in America. K.G.

GEESE NESTING

Walter Turner, well known local game conservationist, announced to the Ontario Intelligencer today that a pair of his wild geese were nesting at the sanctuary on the Foxboro highway. This is the first time that this pair of geese have mated although another pair bred last year. There are three eggs in the nest. Mr. Turner cautions all who wish to view this unique sight with being extremely careful when approaching the nest. "Not only will it frighten the geese" he said, "but if the sender attacks which he is extremely likely to do he is liable to inflict serious injury. One blow from his wing could break a child's leg."

POSSIBILITIES OF WINDMILLS

Edmonton, Alta., April 11—Possibilities of windmills as a unit source for power for Alberta farms will be further investigated. An experimental farm plant will be constructed at High River, Premier J. E. Brownlee declared here recently, and tests will be carried out.

The government also is interested in research work in connection with the utilization of waste gas in the Turner Valley fields and Dr. R. E. Boomer has been asked to report on possibilities.

WHOLE VILLAGE IS THREATENED BY BAD FIRE

Eight Properties Levelled by Early Afternoon Today

HELP ARRIVED

High Wind Made Work Difficult For Fire-Fighters

(Canadian Press)

Actonvale, Que., April 10—The entire village of Actonvale was threatened with destruction at noon today when eight properties had been levelled by a fire that started at nine o'clock, causing damage of seventy-five thousand dollars. Aid from the adjacent towns and from the city of Montreal, fifty-five miles away, was rushed to the scene but a high wind was scattering flames in all directions and the situation remained desperate. A large part of the residential section was stricken and in addition to the buildings already destroyed many others had been seriously damaged.

Help arrived from St. Hyacinthe, 25 miles away, but the call to Sherbrooke had to remain unanswered as the department from that city had gone to Cookscok earlier to aid in fighting a fire that destroyed several buildings there.

Actonvale has population of about 1800 and most of the buildings are of frame construction. Efforts of the firemen were greatly hampered by a high wind which tossed burning embers far over the district.

Worms feed upon the vitality of children and endanger their lives. A simple and effective remedy is Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator.

ASK FOR STATE FISHERY PROBE

Providence, R.I., April 11—Nova Scotia is not the only part of the world in which difference of opinion exists on fisheries regulations. Late in March a resolution was introduced in the Rhode Island state assembly calling for the creation of a five-man commission to study the state's fisheries laws.

The Journal remarks editorially that enactment of the commission "might well be the starting point for the statutory reform in this field which is so much needed."

The proposed commission ought naturally to do more than obtain the views of the various factions among Rhode Island fishermen and use them as a basis for codifying the existing statutes. It should first determine exactly what rights and privileges are given the Rhode Island free fisherman by the State's fundamental law, then study out the essentials of a programme under which the fisheries would best be developed and conserved as a resource of the State and a source of income to the individual, and finally frame a body of laws designed to protect those rights and privileges and promote that program, with a single consideration as the administrative authority.

"The disputes and warfare among fishermen and the ill-feeling between the latter and State authorities to whom the task of regulating the fisheries has been delegated will not end nor will the fisheries be truly and wisely conserved, until such a course of action has been followed—as soon

Be Thrifty—Buy Quality

In artistry of design and brilliance of action, the new Willys-Knight takes front rank among the most luxurious cars of the day. Particularly appealing is this car when it is considered that its price represents a saving of $800.

Most important of all, the new Willys-Knight gives you all the inherent advantages of the patented Willys-Knight double sleeve-valve engine . . . the simplest and most efficient of automobile power plants, and to this firmly established engine has been added an enviable array of improvements. It is the most powerful car ever produced by Willys-Overland. It develops 87 horsepower with a top speed of more than 80 miles per hour. It will do 50 miles per hour in second gear, quietly and easily. This remarkable power plant is rubber insulated in a strong, all steel doubledrop frame.

The wheelbase is 121 inches and the tread is 58½ inches wide. The seats are wider and the front seat is adjustable to the angle that fits you. Bodies are roomier.

SCIENCE OF TELEVISION MAY BE ADVANCED AS RESULT OF LOCAL INVENTOR'S CREATION

Morse Robb Working on Model Which may Revolutionize Industry

NEARS COMPLETION

United States Firm Make Offer for Patent on Instrument

Television! A word with which to conjure; a word that brings thoughts of a roaring crowd at a football game a grand opera singer, a great race on—all brought from some far away place and transmitted on the small screen in your own home. A dream? At present, yes. But television is just around the corner and when it turns that corner the name of Belleville and of Morse Robb may be indelibly engraved in history as contributors in no small part to the development of this wonderful science.

Faint whispers of some great development in television have been in the Editorial desk and Yesterday a reporter was sent post-haste to interview Mr. Robb, whom it was rumoured, had something to tell us in that line. It was further rumoured that some large corporation in the United States had interested itself in Mr. Robb's invention and was "dickering" with him for a share of the spoils. With trepidation in his heart the reporter presented at the interview with the inventor—and was greeted by Mr. Robb himself. He was careful to explain in the layman-like language his principles as applied to television, but even that hardly simple enough to reproduce here.

To keep invention

Yes, indeed, Mr. Robb has been approached by a large company in connection with television, the United States. Too, he was made an offer by that company for the rights, or part of his rights, as far as the United States was concerned. It must be understood here that he was patented his television idea in the United States, Canada and Great Britain. But Mr. Robb, at least for the present, intends to keep his invention to himself. He refused to consider the offer that was made to him and is now sitting back and awaiting developments. "I don't know whether I have come across something that the company thinks they can use, or whether their own engineers were already working on this principle only to find that I had already had it patented," he said yesterday. "However, the engineers of the company drew the attention of the president to my patents and he wrote me, making this offer, which I did not care to accept."

Television as conducted at present, according to Mr. Robb, is hardly practicable for home use. The machine is bulky, only a very small image can be reproduced at the same or a lenths match could not be broadcast, for instance. In its present form the image is broadcast on the screen from a rapidly rotating disk. This is perforated with numberless holes. The system is costly and decidedly not satisfactory. Again it would be too expensive for the average purse to install television equipment in the home.

Mr. Robb's idea is totally different. He does not use a revolving disk. Instead, his plans call for a totally different apparatus, involving the use of extremely delicate mirrors and no metallic disk. Much farther than this he did not explain, or if he did, it was far too deep for the reporter.

A New Organ

But Mr. Robb could and did show the scribe another invention that is far nearer completion and which has received the endorsation of one of the largest organ manufacturing concerns on the continent. This is his famous organ which was heralded so widely in the press of the last three or four years, ago and the building of which Mr. Robb is now proceeding for this organ company. When it is finally completed it will completely revolutionize organ playing. Whereas now huge pipes fill up practically acres of space wherever an organ is installed, these pipes will be completely done away with under the new system. It will be possible to gain many more effects on the organ. The tones will be sweeter and truer. Not much space will be required. In place of a series of huge pipes mounting up to the skies there will be two or three amplifiers, similar to the lay mind, look very much like radio "speakers". The body of the organ itself could be contained in a space not more than twenty feet long and six or seven feet high. The tones are produced, by electrical energy, of course, from small mechanized steel discs. When the organ is turned on by the console keys set it would be imagined that some glorious chord was played on one of the great organ in Roxy's theatre.

It will be some time yet before a working model of the new organ is finally completed. Difficulties many disappointments and hardships will have to be met—that is the lot of the inventor—but in the end, it is certain, it is expected that the old type of organ will be a back number and will be relegated to the land wherein now resides the monstrous cup and hoop skirts.

Who knows? Perhaps some day the name of the Capital City of the Bay of Quinte will be known through out the civilized world as the home of the founder of practicable television and wonderful organs.—Morse Robb.

DAILY MEDICAL SERVICE

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D. Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

WORK IS NOT ENOUGH

It is a worthy ambition to want to work and to become intensely interested in it. There are those who lack these qualities, to be sure. They never take any interest in the world that affords them a living and they long for the day to be over.

Yet there is such a thing as allowing one's work to usurp too much of our energy and too much of our attention. And here I refer especially to those who combine their regular, daily work after they get home in the evening, who figure all problems connected with their work when they ought to be sleeping and who, in many other ways, do not relax and play with the same intensity that they concentrate upon their work.

Such over-zealousness really is not unnecessary as it is unwise. With thought and planning every man and woman ought to be able to do all his work during working hours. If ought and should not be necessary to take the brief case home and pound the typewriter during evenings. And the same applies to factory workers and to those who receive "piece-work" pay. Don't make of a machine with monotonous leaden-like tones every day.

All workers, in fact, no matter whether it be routine labor or the work of an executive, professional man, should keep in mind the old adage about "too much work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." Continually to use the same set of muscles and brain cells sooner or later dulls the thinking and actually makes the work itself less effective.

This primarily is an age of specialization in all fields, particularly in industrial life. Years ago, for example, a shoemaker made a pair of shoes from start to finish all by himself and he took an honest pride in his achievement. Nowadays, however, the building of a pair of shoes has been divided and subdivided into so many as sixty-four different processes, each carried out by a single individual. The same is true of automobiles, furniture, the canning of food, manufacture of drugs or whatever it may be.

What has happened is that the worker no longer appreciates what his own contribution to the final product really amounts to. He has, in short, been forced to lose his sense of values and with it has gone a great deal of the interest and enthusiasm he formerly had.

The result, of course, is that work which probably also grew tiresome in the old days when persisted in too long is much more likely to bore one because of its automatic quality. It tends to deaden. It robs it lacks any possible qualities of inspiration. That is why our work as much, no matter what it may be, is not enough. We must counteract its overwhelming qualities with rest, exercise, amusements and fun.

Work when you do work with zeal and with as much interest as it is possible to arouse in the task. But when the working day is over, forget it. Neither carry it into your mind nor continue it at home. Relax and refreshment yourself so that you may be able to take the next day's labors with a fresh and unwearied body and mind.

Be as happy, in your work as you can. Realize the benefits it yields. But in order to be happy in your work you must needs only be happy when you are away from it.

Health Hint

Poisoning from mushrooms unfit for human consumption may be very serious and care must be taken to distinguish the poisonous from the harmless ones when gathering them oneself. In case of poisoning emetics and cathartics are indicated.

TRIBE FORGOT ITS LANGUAGE

All But Few Greeting Words Lost

Hartford, April 10—The language of their tribe has faded from the memories of the last surviving Mohicans in Connecticut.

At Mohican, near Norwich, where the Connecticut tribe has its stronghold, and elsewhere in this state where there are in all about 70 Mohicans left, interest is beyond a few words of greeting is known.

Chief Pegee Uncas, of Hartford, who is the presiding officer at state councils of his race, does not know the tongue and says that to his knowledge none of his people do.

But Chief Pegee Uncas, 61 years old, remembers relatives at Mohican who used to talk to him in this difficult and beautiful language. Remembrance harked back to him this week when he was shown a dispatch of an aged trembling Mohican in Wisconsin, William Dick, who knew the language and was said to be the last of the Mohican who could speak it.

"When I was a little boy," said Chief Pegee Uncas, "an old Indian by the name of Dick used to come to visit us from Wisconsin. He must have been a relative of this man. At that time, my mother's aunt could talk with him in Mohican. That person I knew who could speak the tongue was my aunt, Mrs. Emma Baker of Mohican. But she has been dead for many years.

Chief Pegee Uncas, although never elected chief of the Connecticut Mohicans, was a member of the ruling council, before the other members died and the virtual chiefship has descended to him. His grandfather was the ruling chief, come of a line of chiefs, and Uncas has picked his name from these ancestors. Freely translated, it is Fox-on-a-Rock.

"The Mohicans pride themselves," said Chief Pegee Uncas, "on having the first Indian preacher in the United States. He was Samson Occum, who went to England and so pleased the Earl of Dartmouth that he backed the founding of Dartmouth College and decreed a scholarship for one descendent in each generation."

The Mohican Indians, the chief explain... ...ed lived together in Massachusetts and Connecticut. Later they joined the Iroquois and became one of the Five Nations. On the breaking up of this group, a section of the Mohicans returned to Connecticut, where they resided at the reservation at Mohican. Another section, together with other tribes, formed the Brotherhood and removed to Wisconsin. There they formed a settlement known as Stockbridge, named after Stockbridge, Mass., the old home of the tribe.

The Wealth that Makes Wealth, that Builds Factories, Cities, Comes from the Soil—

Canadian farmers provide the basic wealth of the Dominion. Under agricultural depression, industrial life stagnates. Self-interest, if nothing else, should actuate every Canadian to do his part to help farmers of Canada to a footing of more permanent prosperity. To this end an event of world-wide interest is planned—

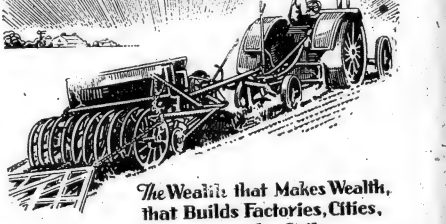
The World's Grain Exhibition and Conference

REGINA — JULY 25—AUG. 6 — 1932

Advertising of this great undertaking has focused the attention of the world on Canada. The Federal Government has issued invitations to forty-four countries to take part. Already twenty have signified their interest, and before March 1, 1932, fifty will have arranged to participate.

Canada's wealth and place among the nations of the world depends upon her agricultural prosperity. The World's Grain Exhibition and Conference is Canada's opportunity to demonstrate to the world the important part she fills, and the more important part she is destined to play in the solid for agricultural supremacy.

Farmers from the Atlantic to the Pacific are busying registered seed, giving more attention to grading, and putting forth every effort to carry off the major awards.



It remains for all citizens of urban Canada to do their part wholeheartedly. Write to the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference. Plan to visit your farmer friends and relatives, making the meeting place Regina, July 25-August 6, 1932. Encourage your overseas friends to visit you. You will see much of interest. You will meet representatives from the four corners of the world. But if impossible for you to attend, take out a membership and secure a copy of "The Report of the Conference Proceedings" and place this where it will do good. All our provinces are organized to insure the success of this great Canadian undertaking. Write any of them for further information.

Alberta—E. L. Gray, Dept. of Agriculture, Edmonton. British Columbia—C. Vice, Field Crops Commissioner, Victoria. Manitoba—W. G. MacKay, Dept. of Agriculture, Winnipeg. New Brunswick—O. C. FOURTEEN YEARS AFTER Almost half a generation has passed since Canadians at Vimy Ridge won one of the great victories in the Great War and in so doing drove a wedge into the German lines from which the foe never recovered.

Other days and years are passing and soon the achievement of the Canadian troops will take on almost legendary characteristics. The men who fought and died or who fought and came through that struggle deserve to be numbered with heroes of all time. They were giants of prowess.

But their deeds were such that they do not require the mellowing influence of time except to soften the sense of loss which such a victory brings. The deeds accomplished here were all that men could do and no legendary account could amplify their achievement, no poetry embellish the supreme deeds of valor.

Time, however, does soften the bitterness of each day as the heroes pass into legend and join the great human deathless army of those who died. To those who went through the events of that drive these events must take on added tinge as the battle recedes with the years.

BRITAIN IN AIR DEVELOPMENT

Advancement of flying according to all accounts from England is among the most marked of developments in the British Isles. Airdromes are springing up all over the country and flying is attracting large numbers of people.

Evidently the people of the British Isles see that the air as a means of travel and transportation is not to be neglected. The war showed that the air was to be considered: the world did not know then the way we know of without development of flying. Yet the advance of the art and science of air navigation has been growing during the post-war years steadily.

SAFETY IN FLYING

One of the signs of air development is shown in the small number of accidents to air liners not only in England but in Canada. At St. Humbert, Montreal, in twelve months there arrived 760 planes from the United States and points further south and the R-100 arrived from England. This airship and 725 planes cleared for foreign parts in this same period. Accidents have been rare. Elimination of risks is proceeding steadily as mechanism is perfected and greater acquaintance with the air through personal experience is made.

CAN LAUGH AT SELF

Some men like to collect sayings and comments made against them. "Big Bill" Thompson of Chicago could make a large collection of words of libel which might be led off with the editorial title in the New York Evening Post, "An International Clown Is Decried." Post is particularly rejoiced at his defeat though it does not hope for much from his successor. "Anybody is better than Thompson," is a hard cry to use against a man but that seems to have been the case at Chicago. Anybody could have beaten him. The Post says that Chicago was particularly sickened of him with his menagerie of jackasses and other supposedly symbolic animals with which he paraded the Loop.

According to Hydro officials there is no occasion to worry about shortage of electric power because of drought, when the spring season is so little advanced. All the pressing need for water will find its way into the Trent System which will add one drop to the amount of water to be stored up for the development of electric energy.

Seasons have their drawbacks, even lovely springy April finds the postman delivering income assessments and the time demanding a visit to the federal income office by those with incomes.

The transformation of the northern end of Lingham Street from a step, rough, hilly slope into a fine highway will be one of the improvements of the present month. This is one of the oldest portions of the city. On this street once a church held meetings and here the church was closed many years ago and yet the street has always been "blind". Time for a change!

Quite a large number of men are making their way westward by hike or other methods at this time of the year. Spring days are days of great shifting of these people and it makes one think that however taxes rise, he who owns a home or is domiciled in one place is better off than those who drift across a continent. It pays to be "settled".

If Belleville council passes the recommendation in favor of a wigwag on Geddes Street as expected, the city will have taken its first step in drawing down aid from the Grade Crossing Fund. While the amount which the fund will be called upon to spend for the installation of the signal is small, it will doubtless some day be followed by greater contributions when other level crossings are under consideration for elimination by the construction of subways or other guards against accident.

THE STORMIEST SEA!

Some ships sail out always on placid tides
And meet no tempests on their happy course,
Before their prows a singing sea divides
And favoring winds lend them their kindly force;
While others struggle . . on through angry waves,
With timbers trembling from terrific blows,
Their sailors picturing deep, unquiet graves
On the white floor where ceaseless ocean flows.

So would I go, a ship that fears no gale,
But gains in courage every storm-wracked hour,
And while it fights its way with close-reefed sail
Rejoices fiercely in its new-found power.
I would wrest triumph from adversity,
And gain my goal through even the stormiest sea!

"AS I STROLLED THROUGH THE PARK ONE DAY", was the title of a once-popular song, revived in memory by a walk through Victoria Park one day this week. High water for the past year or two has detracted from the popularity of Victoria Park and this year low water has not added to its attractiveness, and the spring has added leaves it rather stark, ugly and smelly with the winter deposit of rubbish on the ice now deposited on the shore around the park. Filling up of low spot in the corner of the park has not contributed a sweet smelling savour to the atmosphere, but this, of course, will be remedied when the rubbish dumped there, old tin cans, etc., will have been covered by nice sweet fresh earth. The Corby baths; gift to the city of Hon. Senator Harry Corby, have come through the winter remarkably well and the big pool for the kiddies awaits the advent of warm enough weather to again become a place of delight for many kiddies and a relief for many mothers who can park the whole family in the pool and enjoy a dip at their own nearby bench. The swimming float rests on the bank awaiting opening of the swimming season before taking the water, while the buildings, dressing rooms, refreshment stand and band stand have wintered remarkably well, from casual inspection. This park is one of the most popular breathing spots in town and a favorite place for mothers to take children, principally on account of the freedom from automobile and other traffic, a place where the children can romp and roll without danger of serious accident. Folks with motor cars can seek out distances of attractiveness for leisure moments and reach them in short time but lots of Belleville folks prefer Victoria Park for daily outings, if it is kept reasonably free of unpleasant smells and ferocious mosquitoes and the members of the Parks Board, handicapped for the past two years by unfavorable conditions, will no doubt endeavor to make the Victoria Park this year as attractive as possible.

BELLEVILLE'S WATER FRONT is always an interesting place for a walk, and is especially so at this time of the year when winter has been dispossessed by spring and even inanimate things seem to have the urge to burst up and go busy. Just some impressions received in a waterfront walk on a sunny day this week: Big white airplane resting on the bank near Schuster's wharf, looks deserted like a bird with a broken wing, only wings; some day we'll be by breaks in its flying kites and doing it well, skilful handling some sharp diving but just the right twist to take the kite out of a tail spin and start it heavenward again; farther on a sand-sucker (I think that's the proper name) is busily filling up large buckets of sand from the harbor bottom, with a puffing tug nearby and a gigantic arm swinging back and forth depositing the sand in its depleted hold and then a big hulk of a boat which looked as if it had seen better days was leaning rakishly up against the wharf, looking as if it might be a floating boarding house for the dredge men; back of the shipping rose row after row of oil tanks wholesale supply stations for motor traffic; father on the government wharf, while guarding the traffic stands the lighthouse — beyond one is ravaged farm the green fields and hills of Prince Edward County and the Bay bridge with its endless line of motor traffic — beyond this and in shore albeit greater Albert College looks proudly out over the waters of historic Quinte — then we wake up, its time to return to city streets and motor traffic, red and green lights and gasolene smells.

Other Papers' Opinions

MARBLE QUARRIES

The development of a marble quarry near Marmora, in Hastings County, is being referred to in the press as though the stone had been but recently discovered in that point and as though the marble industry were a new one for Ontario. The fact seems to be that the marble near Marmora was discovered by an American company prospecting for iron in 1912, but until now the property has not been developed. At some other points, however, quarry enterprises have been operated.—Toronto Star.

STANDARDIZATION

The passing of time and the increase of material wealth may have liberated the child from the extreme physical discomforts of the pioneer school, but Miss Walker apparently sees a danger which is as real as the smoky stove of a vanished era. "One of the pitfalls of modern education is standardization," she says. What is needed is less attention to curricula and more to the individual.—Montreal Star.

SEANCES

Conan Doyle's medium has confessed that he tricked Sir Arthur and the so-called seances. Curious that Sir Arthur's gullibility hasn't revealed the fact in the written messages it is claimed to have sent the widow.—Toronto Star.

VIMY

The public does not forget its obligations to those who died so much for Canada and the Empire; but sometime goes on inevitably memory fades; gratitude grows less; the sacrifice proportionately less. In order to keep the ideals for which we commemorate, it is necessary to have an organization of some kind to investigate cases and apply the remedies. The Canadian Legion, a body formed of ex-service men from the various services of Canada, is doing such work its special care: "As they served in war, they serve in peace." The Canadian Legion are striving to serve in peace, as in war, with unselfishness, with the movement, "so that the debt which they owe to comrades may never be forgotten and so that the obligation they owe to Canada and the Empire shall be fulfilled. It is a great and glorious memorial, but one which shall reach its highest effectiveness and significance only when every man who has served Canada in the country's time of danger if enrolled in this ever-growing association. We gladly print this appeal to ex-service men and combine with it an appeal to the public in general to lend its sympathy and support to these worthy objects.—Hamilton Spectator.

DEALING WITH CRIME

Michigan has decided by referendum that the death penalty, abolished in that State 84 years ago, is not to be re-established. The people have determined that murderers are to be entitled to the chance of life which is denied their victims. The result may reflect neither a humanitarian objection to the death penalty nor satisfaction with the results obtained under it in Michigan, but may be the expression of a popular belief that the difficulties in securing a conviction where the penalty is imprisonment would be multiplied many times if the penalty were death. But whatever the explanation of the Michigan vote, the idea is gaining ground across the border that violent crime calls for stern corrective measures. There is a reaction against the sentimentalism in penology and has provided the Statistische model penitentiary with trade for over eight years, other tables, leisure hours, sports and uncensored newspapers. The fatal riot in that institution has induced the thought that it is by merely trying to furnish penal institutions with all the comforts of home.—Toronto Telegram.

WATCHFUL WAITING

In connection with the forth-coming marriage of Miss Bennett to the Canadian Minister to the United States, Ottawa is pondering a remark which the distinguished lady is said to have been heard to make on more than one occasion, to the effect that what she would be married on the same day as her brother, the Prime Minister.

While Miss Bennett is possibly used to make this laughing rejoinder in references to any approaching marriage before her commander-in-chief, Herridge developed, Ottawa is far from persuaded that Mr. R. B. Bennett intends to continue Canada's recent precedent of a bachelor Premier indefinitely.—St. Catharines Standard.

FARM VALUES

The trend of rentals is upward in urban centres, but anyone who wants a house out in the country can get one at less than ever before, provided he buys a farm. That is the gist of the fact of depreciated values throughout the rural districts of Ontario as a whole. At any rate, $3,200 for a hundred-acre farm is not allowing a great deal for buildings. In Manitoba, and Saskatchewan, farms are the same acreage, with buildings.

Value of occupied farm land in this province, reckoned officially at $8 an acre less in 1930 than in 1929, is the lowest in twenty years. The Dominion bureau of statistics in its annual report says that there is an average value of occupied farm lands in Canada as a whole, including both improved and unimproved land, as well as dwelling houses, barns, stables and other farm buildings, is $32 per acre, as compared with $37 in 1929.

Nothing could more eloquently tell the story of lowered returns for farm products. Nevertheless, there must be in many cases a perilously small margin between valuation and mortgage.—Review.

Poor Lone Old Rooster Is Last "Health Hen"

Washington, April 11—The lonely old rooster on Martha's vine-yard off the Massachusett's coast is apparently the only known health hen alive, Official of the Bureau of Biological Survey said they had given up hope of finding a mate for him when he is dead. they believe the heath hen will have gone the way of the wild pigeon.

Thousands of dollars and much time and effort have been expended in an effort to keep this game bird from extinction, but it was the old story of priming the pump after the horse burned down.

Early settlers along the Atlantic coast found huge flocks of the heath hen—in size and appearance much like the western Prairie chicken—frequenting the sandy, scrub oak plains of Massachusetts, Connecticut, Long Island, New York, and other coastal areas from Maine to Virginia.

The bird, however, was the pot hunter's prey. It flew in a straight line and rather slowly and it had the unfortunate habit of congregating in large flocks in open spaces. It was extinct on the mainland as early as the Civil War period but still flourished on islands.

There have been called attention from time to time to the fact it was disappearing, and as far back as 1907 there was a heath hen conference in New En land in an effort to save the pinnated fast.

SAYS CONVICTS WRIT E MANY LOVE LETTERS

Sing Sing prisoners are among the most industrious letter-writers in the world and they have a passion for love letters, Bernard B. Kelly, Commissioner of the State Division of Parole, said before the section meeting of the Prison and Correctional Agencies at the Welfare Conference.

"Through correspondence, prisoners join matrimonial agencies and sometimes have replies from women all over the nation, many of them splendid women who have responded to matrimonial agencies in the secret hope of marrying and so to be fair in their own walk of life," Mr. Pagan declared.

"The prisoners give only the street address of the prison in Ossining and often elaborate on the views from the windows and the beauty of the Hudson River near which they live, and the unsuspecting feminine reader enjoys the letter and is soon writing out her very soul to a convict lover, thus beginning a long, tortuous social problem against the day the prisoner's release unto society.

"Driven by their loneliness and the confinement, the prison life to expression on paper, men in prison become prolific letter-writers and sometimes develop a genuine genius of expression along this line. Two of their chief outlets are in the social secretary and the matrimonial bureau. They sometimes pour out their hearts to Dear, or even litlem different agencies and obtain women of financial and social assistance upon their release.

"Their letters often contain far more of fiction than of reality, owing to the imagination engendered by writing and by self-pity that arises from their condition."

STYLE DOMINATION OF PRESENT TRADE

Under normal conditions, fashion is similar to those that decreed the length of a woman's dress are found throughout human history, Paul Mazur, New York banker, declared in a talk to members of the lately formed Gallet Guild at a luncheon at the Roosevelt Hotel. Admitting that fashion was not the style of the present time, he predicted that with a return to prosperity, American men and women would indulge in more extravagance than ever.

Making a lone appearance before the guild's women fashion experts and stylists, Mr. Mazur said that "fashions in buying" exerted a ruling influence in every human activity, including even the basic industries. With thriftiness in favor as a result of business conditions, he said, buyers are becoming more interested in utility and are making "old styles" suit conditions and new purposes.

From the economic point of view, Mr. Mazur analysed fashions as attitudes of mind created to persuade men and women to buy products, not so much because they were useful but because they represented the latest developments of science. Automobiles were often bought because of a new gadget or design, he said, and innumerable other commodities purchased merely because they were advertised as something new.

"Style is the idea of the time for the moment," he said, "and the manufacturer has to meet his aggressiveness. Style in men's clothes is a matter of economy, because the psychology of the modern man has not changed. As soon as industry has rubbed itself, everyone will again be dressed as with the Joneses."

Miss Marian C. Taylor, president of the guild, which was formed six weeks ago to bring together executors and experts of women's styles, declared that a professional code of ethics was being formulated, and would soon be put into practice.

WHEN CARS WERE NE W 'AY BACK IN YEAR 1906

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

It would be a strange world nowadays without motor vehicles but it is just 23 years since the Legislature of Ontario seriously debated the right of motorists to use the roads, or to use any roads after sundown. A member of the Cabinet declared that the roads were for the use of automobile had more money than horses, and would have to be taught a lesson.

A serious allusion to that historic debate has brought requests from several Sentinel readers for particulars. The discussion took place on April 2, 1906, when the House was considering the report of a bill by Donald Sutherland, South Oxford, respecting regulations for automobiles. The report was sent to the municipal committee and after certain changes it was enacted.

The sponsor of the bill admitted, in the course of his speech, that the automobile had come to stay, and it would not be wise to forbid its use, but the laws in this respect were altogether too lax.

Mr. Hoyle voiced the feeling in the House against the automobile.

"I would be impossible to stop the automobile, said Premier Whitney, but the law might be changed. He opposed a clause providing that one-half up agreed to do so they were, for many years. half of fines should go to the informer. It was useless, he said, to demand the name of the driver of a vehicle; the majority of those who had been fined had caused accidents were Americans. The premier furth er pointed out that it would be wrong to allow municipalities to designate certain roads for the use of autos. He showed how the driver of a motor car with speed limit of 10 miles an hour municipality would be subject to endless vexation.

Mr. Graham — now Rt. Hon. George P.— said that everybody wanted to ride on the best roads. An Act to be any use must be universal in its application. It was easy to stop and to stay on the highway. Legislation affecting it should be practical and municipal.

Mr. Little favored restraining motorists from using the roads after sundown "because of the dust," it caused horses by the blinding flash lights. Those who were using automobiles at the present time were "sports, and they were rushing people all over the country.

Then the voice of Toronto was heard when Mr. Lucas declared he held the right of the motorist as of the pedestrian to the use of the highways. Because a few wanks

Fashionably Speaking
By Lucille

Both slippers and mules are being worn in leisure hours. Their trim lines gives the finishing touch needed to set off the gown. They are more vivid than they were when short skirts ruthlessly exposed them; that they must "register" beneath the hem lines that shoemakers are fashioning them of brighter hues in metallic patterns.

Gold and silver kid are much used together or in conjunction with other materials. Heavy crepes are usurping the erstwhile popularity of satin; lame holds its own for the limited purpose of conventional dress wear; and suede is utilized for fragile sandal strappings.

The most exquisite models espouse as much of foot and stocking as possible—an effect achieved by the cut-out toe. The sandal toe, which has been steadily increasing in popularity, has called forth many and ingenious forms of treatment. The sandal with its double straps is well known and liked. Newer and much more enticing are "gritted" vamps; here the kid is cut into a kind of open lattice over the toes and can be worked into various patterns. Slippers or sandals of gold and silver kid each tone is used in alternating bands. A smart open-toe sandal is of suede tin claret color emerald or black) whose appliqué strappings, piped with gold, lie in a simple geometric figure over the instep. Like many of the sandal models it has a heel strap. A few are shown with ankle straps.

Amusing are the models made with what might be termed a half and half design—they are two-toned; the modernistic pattern is carried out in one color on the right side of the vamp and repeated in the other on the left. The elegance of footwear adapted to the leisure hour is manifested in its finish; sandals are stitched, and where they are trimmed with gold or silver the heel seat is of corresponding kid.

Little in the way of jewelled ornamentation is seen in this type of shoes since they affect a modernistic simplicity. Where any ornamental motif enters it is apt to be extravagant.

The modernistic mule is still courting the square toe, though pointed ones are seen. The octagonal sesquihigh heel is smart. Plain slippers and mules can be enlivened with all sorts of entertaining trimmings. There are formal little flowers of leather, made to match the color of the shoe, two-colored velvet bows of two or more loops, severe and at the same time soft; to go with the gown that is bit frou-frou there are lace bows made up with diminutive silk flowers.

Fashionably yours,
Lucille.

QUAKERS LIFT BAN ON FRILLS IN DRESS

New York, April 11— Adopting an amended "Book of Discipline" for Quakers for the first time in thirty-eight years, the Religious Society of Friends decreed at the New York yearly meeting Tuesday that it was necessary no longer for members of that faith to keep a strict plainness of dress and to shun all kinds of frills and laces.

The action was taken at the second day session of the meeting at 221 East Fifteenth street. More than 100 Quakers were present. It was the first time since 1893 that a new set of rules of discipline for the government of members and meetings was prepared and ratified. The document contained forty-two printed pages and was drawn by the committee on revision of discipline, it was said, only after a series of eighteen long meetings.

Although the provision of the new "Book of Discipline" and that of 1893 semantically are the same, the section on "Days and Times" omitted the cautionary advice of the seventeenth century books issued since 1760 as to "plainness" in the mode of a Quaker's dress. "Moderation and simplicity" than simplicity in ones uniform was inferred by the document as essential.

NEIGHBORS TALK

"I am employed in a theatre and it is a problem to make ends meet and I help support my mother and sisters. I like to dress well but haven't very much to spend on clothes. To give the appearance of variety to my slender wardrobe I change the color of a dress or stockings as soon as the things become faded. I always use Diamond Dyes for the work—using them to dye dresses and as suitable for stockings. I have always gotten such perfect results that my neighbors talk about the great number of new things I have.

"I learned about Diamond Dyes from our worthwhile mistress. She says she has tried all the dyes on the market but none do such splendid work and are so easy to use as Diamond Dyes. I understand they are the world's most used as well and they deserve to be."

CRUCIAL GAME IN MONTREAL TONIGHT

CANADIENS NEED TONIGHT'S GAME

Black Hawks are Favorites For Stanley Cup Series

MONTREAL, April 11.—Fighting against a determination which will come if they cannot win tonight, Montreal Canadiens will have a full team for the fourth battle of their Stanley Cup series against the young and confident Chicago Black Hawks here, Chicago holds a two games to one lead in the best three out of five series. Albert Leduc will be back on the line-up in five aid to a sorely-tried defence composed of Marty Burke and Sylvio Mantha.

Perfect physical condition and top criority of attention has made the visiting team favorites to capture the Stanley Cup when all world's professional hockey honors. The Hawks have come through seven gruelling play-off games without a scratch and have only been beaten in one of them. Coach Irvin will have his regular lines to pit at frequent intervals against the Canadiens who will be complete in man-power but weakened in spirit by several injuries.

Although Chicago are favorites the French club fights hardest with its back to the wall. Superstitious fans games does not reach overtime they should have a good chance of evening the series and forcing a third final game next week. It will be a case of a team's plenty of championship experience and hockey ability meeting a game, fighting attack, for the Hawks carry a full complement of 11 players in addition to the goalie and every man is a constant threat.

Canadiens after Early Lead

Canadiens will probably attempt again to take an early lead by speed in the first two periods. Should they be successful in experience they have last night when the Hawks ripped in two breath-taking, four minutes from the end to tie the match, will probably prove a trump card. Leduc's defence should face the continuous assault. It was persistent pressure, with several forward lines that beat Canadiens last night, as the local team staved off the margin of defeat for 50 minutes of the regular playing time and even in the first period back on the defensive towards the end hasted the punishing Hawk attack.

Coach Irvin sees the series as a matter of the breaks. He said to-day the teams are evenly matched and that the breaks will decide the world champ ionship.

A summary of Canadiens' condition today revealed that Mofens has aggravated the shoulder injury he received last week; Larochelle has a wrenched back and Rivers a charley horse. Pete Lepine's broken finger is bothering him and Leduc and Gagnon duc are just out of the hospital.

The Hawks came out of the gruelling 58 minutes overtime last night in great shape except for Mush March who is suffering from a bloe on the head received when Marty Burke landed him. The little winger will be on the scene, however, and probably will be in the game as well as he was last night when every rush he took was the spark of the dynamite for Rainsworth.

Manager Tutt Hart will probably send out Lepine, Wasnie and Jolat to start on the forward line against Cook, Gagnon and Morenz. Joe Hawks, Morenz, Gagnon and George Mantha have been working well together as the second line, usually facing Romnie Goldsteig and Pierre Larochele, Mondou and Rivers are available as a third line while Hawks have Ripley, Arbour, Ingram, Goldsteig and Gomers available.

HAMILTON HOCKEY PLAYERS INJURED

HAMILTON, April 1.—Butch Arbour, Al Wentzell and Al Quinney, front line trio of Hamilton Intermediate O.H.A., team, figured in a rather serious automobile accident early this morning and as a result, Arbour is in the hospital suffering from possibly skull fracture, middle concussion, and shock and has not yet recovered consciousness.

Worrell badly lacerated about the face was taken to his home after being treated at the hospital and the driver, Quinney, who suffered comparatively less was arrested and charged with reckless driving. The charge was later changed to criminal negligence.

The accident occurred about 1.30 this morning when the car driven by Quinney collided with another driven by K. P. Harvey, of Woodstock, at the corner of Main and Wellington sts.

Little change was reported in Arbour's condition during the day.

OSTROM'S DRUG STORE

BYRNES RECORDS 20th SHUT-OUT

Kansas City, April 11—Kansas City Pla-mors today stood two games away from their second consecutive American Hockey League title, while Tulsa Oilers need but one victory to cinch the title. Beaten twice at the start of the three-of-five-game series, Pla-mor came back last night on their home ice to win by 2 to 0.

Pla-mors, who now must take two straight to cop, stepped back into the play-off running by netting two goals in the third period. Pete Mitchell, former Albertan, and "Slim" Halderson, member of the world-champion Winnipeg Falcons in 1920, were the scorers. Paddy Byrne, Pla-mor goalie, stretched his total of shut-outs for the season to 20, of which three have been made since the close of the league schedule. The next game of the series is billed at: Kansas City.

BROCKVILLE ROWERS OUT ON THE RIVER

Brockville, April 11—Gerald Serjeant, leading sculler of the Brockville Rowing Club, opened the training season this afternoon by taking his first workout in a shell on the St. Lawrence River in preparation for participation in the Eastern Rowing Association and Royal Canadian Henley regattas this coming summer. The R.C.R. regatta is scheduled to be held here in July with entries expected in the 15 events from Ottawa, Montreal, Lachine, Que., Ottawa Rowing Club, Toronto University, Argonauts, and Hamilton Rowing Club.

SHAG MAY RETURN AS COLLEGE COACH

Montreal, April 11—It is learned on excellent authority that Frank "Shag" Shaughnessy, coach of the McGill football squad over a period of 13 years, will return to active coaching next season. He has received tentative offers from both Montreal Amateur Athletic Association and McGill University. He has neither accepted nor confirmed the report as yet.

"Shag" as he is known in football circles, has had considerable experience in both amateur and pro ranks, coaching United States college teams.

HOCKEY TROPHY IS ON DISPLAY HERE

The Junior Moose Hockey Trophy which was won by the Wellington all-stars last winter is on display in the Bay of Quinte Moose League; will be presented to the Belleville junior winner until Wednesday night.

It will be officially presented by the Wellington team at the Junior Moose annual ladies' and dance being held Wednesday night.

This trophy will be competed for by the Moose lodges of Picton, Wellington, Trenton and Belleville; all games being played on the Wellington Arena.

Little Benny's Note Book

We was eating supper and all of a sudden ma sed, O shaw, O my goodness I jist remembered that I dident get to make an entry in my diary today and its the most interesting day has gone by and Im sure I wont be able to remember a single interesting thing to write about it now. I know I'm just going to spell my self a headache thinking about it.

Let me change the subjeck for you pop sed. I was reading in the paper that the Duckvas of Squish is expecting a ball an bourn visit from the Prince of Wales. Or is the Squish Duck's Or can it be the Squish Duck squish of Wary he sed. Anyway I imagine he'll have his shoes shined and all his new fingernails repaired, he sed.

I wouldent feel so provoked about it if I hadent distinckly started to make my daily entry after lunch yestiddag, and then Benny couldent find his self any usual and I had to find it for him to keep him from being late for skool, and then I forgot about my diary as completely as the troyle nown as ma sed. It seems to me that yestiddag was a very intiriguing day, too, but just in what way I dont seem to remember, she sed.

I was reading in the paper that Dr. Nobody has been arrested in 30 days by 90 motorcycle pleecemen for going 90 miles an hour, pop sed.

Its the first time it ever happened. I've never let a day go by without entering something in my diary, ma sed and I sed Well O, ma. If its so unusual why dont you write that down for something to write down, why dont you write down what about how you forgot to write anything down?

Well now that's a bad idea! that's just what Ill do, ma sed.

Then Mary Kerp sprung her supper with a more inlyoable expression.

LOW HARVESTING COSTS IN WEST

KINDERSLEY, Sask., April 11—(By The Canadian Press)—Harvesting costs on Saskatchewan farms can be kept as low as $1.60 an a're, a survey, conducted by Professor J. D. Wm. Allan, B.S.A., of the University of Saskatchewan, indicates.

Indebtedness, it was found, averaged 28 per cent. of the estimated value of land, buildings and equipments.

Averages were struck regarding time on the land, acreage in crop, equipment and the cost of operation.

The survey covered over 200 Saskatchewan farmers.

Nearly 200 theatres in Italy are showing silent.

On the Sport Trail

The eyes of Central Ontario Baseball fans are centred on this city today where the annual meeting of the Central Ontario League is being held in the Y.M.C.A.

Belleville will be represented in the League providing four teams are entered. Those who received the situation here, met on Thursday night and a general round table discussion was held. It was also planned to field a squad, as there is sufficient material here to uphold the reputation enjoyed by Belleville Club in past years.

Should the Nationals be a spoke in the wheel, Walter Gerow will again guide the destinies of the Nationals. Walter Gerow is an astute baseball man and it was owing to a first-class squad. It is reported that some new players have located in town since last season but until a practice is called their worth will not be known.

Peterboro enthusiasts are keen to go this year and Belleville has always been an important factor in the League. Little has been heard from either Kingston or Cobourg as well it is presumed that both will be in. The age-old question of the long season will again prove to be a bone of contention this year.

Peterboro have the backing of Kanger and Son, meat merchants, and finances will be taken care of by this firm. The Prize have been developing some Junior players who will fill the gaps left by the old-timers. However, Max Ivenston and "Al" Heckman will likely be with the Belleville team as they go through for the re-organization of the C.O.B.L. "Shiner" Johnston who has been identified with the team for many years has been named manager.

The same enthusiasm and interest which was manifest years ago has been lacking during recent times. It is reported that owing to the fact a new ball park must undergo an operation for the removal of his appendix he will not be out this year. However, this rumor may be taken as a grain of salt as Mills is too fond of the game for laying up his uniform. He will likely be the first man out within the call for talent is issued. Baseball will come to life when it's like chicken without the dressing.

He has been identified with the game here for many years and is still recognized as one of the best.

Send in your interesting fact today. It need not necessarily refer to tobacco. For every fact we use we will send you a package of 20 Buckingham Cigarettes. Give a reference with your fact. If interesting enough Mr. Gundersen will cartoon it and you will receive a Buckingham picture in the Rocky mountains with the highway system of British Columbia.

The petition recommends the Jasper route as being the logical one to the Peace River country providing a direct connection with Prince Rupert parks and as an unemployment relief program.

It is hoped that today's meeting will see the C.O.B.L. again functioning in first-class order.

With Stan Burgoyne having accepted the post of hockey coach at Fredericton, New Brunswick, next winter, all rumours that he would return here are automatically squelched. Burgyne was popular in the Maritimes having played for the Truro Bear Cats and he enjoyed great success with that team.

Malvihill, whose home is in Atmonte was scheduled to play but will not be in not here and nothing definite is known whether he will be wearing a Belleville uniform in 1931-32. He made a favorable impression with the fans here and it is hoped that he will come back. Smith will remain in Belleville while Montgomery who was somewhat of a disappointment will likely be missing.

Bill Sherry, who played with Belleville Juniors in the season just past, has accepted a position in Toronto and has taken up his new duties in the Queen City with the Sherwin-Williams company. It is rumored that he will not be seen in Toronto Marlboro uniform next winter. Bill made a big appearance with his clever play this year and his many friends here wish him continued success.

A little bird whispers that "Bouncer" Dalzay who is accustomed to retire next season may be given the job of coaching the local teams next winter. Hockey is popular with the fans and players alike and the appointment would no doubt meet with general approval. He knows the game from A to Z and would no doubt have sufficient time to devote to the coaching.

A strong hockey committee composed of Slew, Pender, J. H. Legate and Bill Rankin has been formed and will undertake some action in the near future. All fans are indeed enthusiastic and some new players may be gracing the local line-ups next season.

Harry Moore of the De-eronto Post has been named to the-line-up of Belleville Intermediate Orgrand old game may see a revival in this area. There are many who would like to see the game brought back into its own, but lack of finances and lack of interest spelled its downfall. Queen's University are organizing a team and perhaps may field a team in the O.A.L.A. shortly. It's a good Canadian game and it is hoped that something will be done to put it the game on the pedestal where it belongs.

The local badminton season winds up at the armouries here tonight when the championships are introduced. The local badminton players have enjoyed a successful year.

Golf bugs are having their inning as both courses were thronged over last week end. The first competent greens are in use at the Country Club while the course of the Belleville Club decided to use the temporary greens until the brown Beth Clubs expect many new members this year.

EARLY START ON MOUNTAIN HIGHWAY

KINDERSLEY, Sask., April 11. — (By The Canadian Press)—Immediate start upon the construction of that part of the proposed Trans-Canada highway between Kindersley and Jasper, Alta., and Rue River B.C., is requested in a resolution forwarded to A. U. G. Bury, M.P., at Ottawa, for presentation to Premier R. B. Bennett.

Completion of the highway will connect one of the most rapidly developing areas of the prairie provinces by the lowest and safest pass in the Rocky mountains with the highway system of British Columbia.

The petition recommends the Jasper route as being the logical one to the Peace River country providing a direct connection with Prince Rupert parks and as an unemployment relief program.

CHAMPION WING NEED MOUNDSMEN

Vacancies Left by Berly, Derringer and Grant Not Yet Filled

Rochester, April 11—The Rochester Red Wings, three times International League champions, are casting an anxious eye toward the St. Louis Cardinals as they prepare to battle for their fourth consecutive pennant.

When the major leaguers got through batting and drafting last Fall, Manager Billy Southworth found himself without two pitchers, John Berly and George Grant, the big trio of his pitching staff. As the result Southworth is depending on the parent club at St. Louis to supply him with at least a couple of reliable veterans. Derringer appears to be making the grade with the Cards while Berly is with the New York Giants and Grant with Pittsburg Pirates.

Youngsters to Be Hot

None of the young pitchers has shown much promise in the training camp at Orlando, Fla., but according to his aid ,Southworth will have to depend on Herman Bell, a veteran formerly with St. Louis; Carmen Hill the Canadian veteran who has also seen service on numerous major league clubs; Ralph Judd, a right hander and Ira Smith, a holdover. In addition he has Larry Irvin, a southpaw who broke in with the New York Giants and Grant with Pittsburg Pirates.

The outfield also was robbed of much of its punch, when the Cards sold Chick Hafey to Martin and Robert (Red) Worthington went up to the Boston Braves. Even with the loss of these two players Rochester is to patrolled by the most powerful outfit in the league. Outfielders worth plans to do much of the outfielding for the Wings will be flanked by Ray Pepper a holdover; Geo. Watkins, a hard-hitting outfielder sent to the Red Wings from St. Louis; Waddy Holm of Houston and Ed Hemmingway, Wichita Falls Danville of the Three Eye League.

Infield Veteran

Jimmy Collins the league's rankest infield veteran will be given a trying a trial with the Cardinals but if he fails to make the grade with the parent club he will be back in his prime, to hold down the initial sack. Two other veterans, Shortstop Jack Saltzgaver and Joe Brown were sold to Jersey City and Newark respectively by the Boston Braves, but Manager Southworth considers their services essential.

One new catcher, Mike Ryba, will assist the veterans, Paul Florence and Clarence Jonnard, behind the plate.

CELL SUCCEEDED SENTIMENT HERE

Boston, Mass, April 11—The long arm of coincidence reached out for another night and gathered Raffael Marco in. Raffael was attending a movie, at which Police-woman Irene McAuliffe was also spending her leisure time. Darkness lights, the soft music, and the vicarious emotions of the film, apparently coincided things to Angelo. He stretched his left right arm and placed it gently around the waist of the comely officer. Then the man and wife whispered tender words in her ear. Miss McAuliffe, not as tender, Angelo was picked up by the neck and deposited in the aisle. There the struggle began in earnest. The thriller on the screen flickered on unwatched as the audience turned with interest to observe the battle in the aisle. It ended when the police-woman had subdued the man who to police headquarters, where he was booked on a charge of assault.

Further vent of Raffael's attentions was Policewoman McAuliffe.

Boosts and Fair Criticism

Will Senior Baseball in Central Ontario again take its place in the Province of Ontario baseball world?

Many are doubtful but—possibly today's meeting to be held here will tell the tale. "Bob" Elliott of Deseronto who was elected for the 2nd term as President of the O.B. A.A. and President of the C.O.B. B.L. has called the meeting and the welcome will be watched with interest.

Few people realize the amount of time given in the various branch es of sport throughout the country by the men who make the rules. Our own fair city is very lucky—a few hard workers have carried the load.

However new life has apparently originated by the formation of the Belleville Amateur Athletic Association. Right now the main stay has been one of the best moves made here in years.

This Association executive has been working quietly but already is beginning to be of assistance in sport. Strong executives are being appointed in the various branches of sport and well known capable men are working. When the drive for membership takes place we would advise all to get behind the Association.

Players too, might have a little consideration for sport executives. Remember when you are signed that the teams there would be no teams to play for. Much public popularity is gained by his efforts on the field and his co-operation with the fans. Take pride in your game and injure the effectiveness of a club's playing—why not find out if you are right Mr. Fan or Mr. Player before you criticize or praise.

Do you know that we have two playgrounds in Belleville with equipment in one at least is in good repair. That is why do older children not visit them in the summer? Because as far as can be learned, there is no organization of group games for the older ones. The grounds are not in fit shape for games which healthy boys and girls indulge in. Many other forms are taught fancy work, etc., which is fine and has its place there, but. Some action should be taken to improve our playgrounds. We think a Director of Recreation for the city playgrounds for certain periods at least. Mr. Aldermen—is this question worth following up?

CORRECT CLOTHING FOR MEN

"THE SQUEALER" IS THRILLING EXPOSE OF RUM RING OPENS AT THE CAPITOL MONDAY

Embracing a distinguished cast including Jack Holt, Dorothy Revier and Davey Lee, "The Squealer" promises something unusual.

Detective Charlie Hart was a real estate agent, but underneath this disguise of a respectable calling he was a lucrative bootlegging trade.

Hart had power in the underworld. His pals were loyal, and he had no mercy for a squealer. Thus, when Ratface Edwards tipped off Valetti —Hart's business rival and hated enemy—he paid toll.

The bootlegging business was the source of many quarrels between Hart and his wife, Margaret, despite their strong love. John Sheridan, Hart's lawyer and best friend, usually pacemaker. Sheridan cherished a secret love for Margaret but never betrayed it.

Hart discovers Valetti has invited one of Hart's henchmen to dinner. It is evident that Ratface Edward's death is going to be avenged. He burries to Valetti's house and rescues his follower.

What happens in the office no one but the notorious Valetti's body is found the next morning, cold. Hart flees to a summer resort, but the police learn of his whereabouts from Bunny, Hart's little son. Hart is imprisoned, but that his wife squealed on him, escapes during a terrific riot at the jail with the intent of killing his wife and Sheridan, who he suspects.

Reminiscent of "The Big House" this prison riot breaks is realistic. The guards mounted on the wall with machine guns command a fusillade of bullets scattering rioters and eventually quieting them down like so many sheep, but Hart is missing.

Jack Holt as Charlie Hart can be well imagined, a character of polish and yet can be as tough as called for.

"The Squealer" opens a three day run on Monday at the Capitol, daily at 2.30, 7.15 and 9.15. There will be other attractions competing the bill of fare.

RADIO FANS CORNER

Oh-oh what a lot of fun the radio had with us last night. fading out to a mere whisper and then jumping suddenly out just when we least expected it and saying "Boo" or something that sounded exactly like it. Funny thing how good it could be all evening and then sound so rotten. Nevertheless it not so playful. Funny sense of humour.

RKO put on a neat surprise last night and the way Willard Robison and his Deep River orchestra played the "Memphis Blues" was positively mean, smart band, hope they drop around to Belleville some time. I don't can stay longer. Dorothy Lee sang a smart little number and several other performers performed so altogether it was a nice little party. Don't forget Crazy Rhythm last night, fans? Clyde is the chap that is thrilling New York these days by his original animal act in the great Ringling Barnum and Bailey shows, Madison Square with fourteen lions, and they are no mean performers, they mean business. Nice job but he can have it.

The special Roxy Symphony concerts that were discontinued recently will be resumed tomorrow morning at 11.30 will be heard over the Columbia NBC network, WEAF is the station of course, with Dr. Rothafel at the organ recital of Kathleen Stokes heard over WEAF and WJZ every day except Sunday evening and at ten she will be heard again.

Uncle Abe and David at 1.45 from WEAF tonight and one station at 1.30 Ted Lewis and his Musical Clowns also will be heard for half an hour. Weber and Fields come to bat at 8 and at 9 in the hour we have some Lewis and Lew Conrad. At 9.30 Walter Damrosch and Floyd Gibbons and at 10 S. S. Rolfe and his orchestra. Little Jack Little does his stuff and closes at 11.45 and then Rudy Vallee and his orchestra relieve to the extent of 15 minutes. Come back Rudy, how long are you going to stay?

The Musical Doctors program will be heard over WJZ tonight at 9.30 and a saxophone, xylophone and accordions will be featured instruments. The Annual Jefferson Day Dinner at ten and Sisters of the Skillet at 11 by Rudy Vallee and his orchestra relieve to the extent of 15 minutes. Come back Rudy, how long are you going to stay?

Better let the kiddies sit up until 12 to-night to hear the big circus program called Circus Nelson and Sinclaers, Several speakers will be heard and a musical program with the circus and singers and a calliope. WJZ at midnight and no need to say don't let the kiddies sit up for the broadcasting so I'll be seeing you on the lot.

Only one farmer in 61 countries of the western hemisphere statistics has filed an income tax return.

"FATHER'S SON" DELIGHTS BIG FIRST NIGHT AUDIENCE, VIVID KIDDIE PICTURE FOR ALL AGES

Lewis Stone, Irene Rich and Leon Janney in Splendid Roles

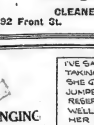
The large audience at the Belle Theatre last night, at the first showing of First National's screen version of the Booth Tarkington story, "Father's Son," was greeted with applause as spontaneous as if the audience had by some strange magic reverted to the age of the boy-hero of the play.

"Father's Son" is presented by a capable cast headed by the clever child-actor, Leon Janney, who did such remarkable work in "Courage," "Old English" and "The Doorway to Hell." Irene Rich is the wistfully lovely mother who tries to protect the boy from the stern father who is portrayed by Lewis Stone as he only could play it.

Others in the cast are Mickey Bennett, as the kid bully of the small town, Robert Dandridge, remembered as the pickaninny in "Hallelujah," John Halliday, George Reed, Gertrude Howard, Bertha Mann and Grayce Lagron. William Beaudine who has credited so many of those human stories that appeal to everyone, has been eminently successful in his direction of "Father's Son."

The picture is based on Booth Tarkington's story "Old Fathers and Young Sons." It is a marvelously true story of a boy who is misunderstood by his middle-aged father, who takes all his pranks for evidences of natural depravity. The lad has the brooding sympathy of his mother, the faithfulness of his dog, and the worship of Vestibule Pullman Johnson, a colored lad—but there is the old gang—Red and Fat and Skinny and the rest—but dad's harshness seems to cancel all the comfort the others bring.

The boy finally decides to run away and then it is that the father begins to see the wrongs wrought by his attitude towards the lad. No more of the story need be told except that the picture from first to last is suffused with humanity. The characters are all living, amusing, and often moving in their tenderness.



Whether it is the old swimmin' hole, the straws that heifer-skelters gang, or the circus, or the fight in which the village kid-bully mixes up with the hero—all is real. Seeing "Father's Son" is like boarding an express for a trip back to boyland. It is the one of those rare pieces which have universal appeal. Whatever else you must miss, don't miss "Father's Son."

Mr. Price intimated there will be a further conference on these questions, declaring it was not deemed feasible to continue on them at this time.

JEDDO COAL
Aristocrat of Anthracite

JEDDO COAL comes from a small, restricted basin in the heart of the Lehigh Anthracite Region. By some freak of nature, the coal in the small basin runs toughest in structure and higher in content of pure carbon than in any other place in the Pennsylvania Anthracite Field.

However no matter how inherently pure a coal may be, it must be prepared with painstaking care if the final result is to be satisfactory in every way. JEDDO COAL is prepared in a "Chance Cleaner," the most efficient and modern method known.

And what is the resulting prepared JEDDO COAL? It is a tough structure, long, even burning Lehigh Anthracite, of outstanding purity.

At this time your coal supply is probably low. 'Phone CONGER LEHIGH for a load of JEDDO, 'the Aristocrat of Anthracite since 1858.'

Order JEDDO COAL by name, and look for the Certification Stamps on your delivery ticket, one for each ton of JEDDO COAL delivered. This is the producer's guarantee to you.

MICMAC LODGE MOURN CHIEF

Was More Than a Hundred Years old Late Seventies

Annapolis Royal, N.S., April 10—A chief has joined the Great Spirit. He went on March 29, on a minute of three guns announced to the streets of Annapolis Royal. The death of Benjamin Pictou, chief of the Micmacs of this district.

Seven months ago, on September 7, Chief Pictou celebrated his hundredth birthday, and although death was the natural result of age, it is believed that he over-estimated his strength at the birthday festival, when he gave a long and eloquent address and led the dance.

A colorful and courageous figure, chief Benjamin Pictou had sailed the seas as a youth, trapped in the woods and fishing, and refusing to be broke in his old age, had taken up boat making. He was a devout member of the Roman Catholic church.

This marks the first third year that farmers and homemakers have been honored for their success and their contribution to the home, county and state in which they live.

George P. Pindlen, prominent in the Fort Fairfield district, sells between 7,000 and 10,000 barrels of potatoes each year, operating 250 acres of land, 85 of which are under potato cultivation. He is pointed out as being especially successful in producing Green Mountain certified seed, and was one of the first growers to start tuber unit plots. The other members chosen for this years premier farmers are William D. Deering of York County, whose major interest at present is the improvement of his woodlands, and Charles C. Clement of Waldo County, who keeps 2,000 hens. He also has an apple orchard of 1,500 trees, Mr. Deering was one of the first in the state to plant pine.

The outstanding home-makers of the year are Mrs. Clara B. Stevens of Portage, Aroostook County, Mrs. Harry J. Mitchell of Lisbon Falls, Androscoggin County, and Mrs. Mary E. Miller, Hampden, Penobscot County. All are prominent in Maine's rural life and in the development of Boys and Girls Clubs.

The six were honored at a special programme given at the University of Maine here, and presented with certificates by President Harold Boardman, sponsored by the Maine Farm Bureau Federation.

MAINE HONORS BEST FARMERS

Certificates Presented at University Gathering

Orono, Maine, April 10.—(By the Canadian Press).—A potato-grower from Aroostook County, just across the border from New Brunswick, shares with an expert in forestry improvement and a poultry grower, the honor of being chosen for the farm section of this year's Maine Farm and Home Sextette. This marks the first third year that farmers and homemakers have been honored for their success and their contribution to the home, county and state in which they live.

CATS AND ALL THAT STUFF

Halifax, N.S., April 10 (CP). — Sixty years ago last month one of the strangest cargoes ever shipped out of Halifax was cleared for Sable Island. Long noted as the scene of disastrous wrecks, the island had apparently become the home and breeding ground of rats less acute in intuition than other members of their family, credited with deserting a doomed ship at the last port of call. And so the Federal Government of Canada was asked to call upon its resourcefulness to avert the plague.

A Halifax morning paper of March 15, 1871 will probe the following item in its local column:

"EMIGRANTS TO SABLE ISLAND—The steamer Lady Head is ready to leave for Sable Island with a consignment of cats about fifty in number sent by the Dominion Government to exterminate the rats of, that place.

On the following day further pro gress was reported:

"THE MOMENTOUS CATS — The steamer Lady Head of yesterday for Sable Island with her cargo of cats."

Completion of the transaction, except insofar as the cats and rats were concerned, was recorded in the issue of March 20:

"FROM SABLE ISLAND — The steamer hady Head returned on Saturday morning from Sable Island, after landing its cargo of cats. No wrecks have occurred at the island since last advices."

A recent despatch from Berlin states that, fitted by the complaints of stall owners in the central market at Alexanderplatz, that rodents were becoming a nuisance, city authorities appointed twenty-four cats wearing the city colors on their collars, to chase them away.

The sixty-year-old Halifax paper neglects to mention whether or not the Sable Island cats were a distinctive uniform.

In 1883 Congress appropriated $30,000 for the purchase of a herd of camels to be used for military transport in the desert sections of the southwest. The experiment being abandoned after the close of the Civil War.

Earnings of workers in the iron and steel industry of England now average $13.30 a week.

CHAUTAUQUA AT MADOC VILLAGE

Madoc, April 10—St. Peter's W. M. S. held their April meeting at the home of Mrs. Hailstone, one week early on account of the Chautauqua opening on their usual date.

The lesson taken from the study book, "Ambassadors of Good Will," was given by Mrs. Harper and Miss M. Mackintosh. Mrs. Harper spoke upon the Gwalior Mission. It was started by the late Dr. Wilkie in 1844, great evangelistic work having been done since. Schools were erected for girls and boys, also hospitals. Miss Mackintosh spoke upon the Bible work, stating that Dr. and Mrs. Buchanan were the first missionaries to go to this field; now they have splendid helpers, and gradually the jungle tribes is becoming under the influence of these noble workers.

At the close of the lesson Mrs. E. West offered prayer on behalf of Indian Missions, especially "Ingathering," was sung and the service closed with prayer by Mrs. Wilson.

Another event was the closing night of the Chautauqua programs in Madoc. In spite of the handicap of having to appose during Holy Week and then to greatly advertise the success, the Chautauqua of 1931 has been a success to the extent that those followed the programs through the four evenings and the matinee on April 1, 2, 3, 4, 6.

On the final evening the Canadian players presented the excellent play, "The Whole Town's Talking" from the collective pens of the most famous and widely known teams of authors, Anthony Gilbert and Anella Loos.

On Saturday evening, Julius Caesar Nayphe, a man as amazing as his lecture is unusual, gave his scientifically fascinating lecture, "By the Peaceful Pastures of Palestine". On Monday evening, Philadelphia, of the twenty-third Psalm, this brilliant young Athenian will be again encountered by his admirers in Madoc.

The last closing play presented by the Peerless Players, "Turn to the Right" which was given on the 6th night, them gifted actors under the personal direction of Lawrence Gilbert, made a place for themselves with the crowd gathered to attend this first of the Chautauqua seasons.

The two brilliant musical programs in the second day by the Lowell Paterson Artists were a Treat to all music lovers.

They Relieved A Pain She Had Had For Years

Saskatchewan Lady Used Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mrs. F. Mountney Recommends Them to Other Sufferers

Broadville, Sask., April 6 (Special) "I suffered for years with a pain in my side," writes Mrs. F. Mountney, a resident of this place. "I would be awakened in the night with such terrible sensations, I did not know what to do. I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and got such relief, I continued taking them whenever I felt the burning feeling start and now I am free from pain. I keep them in the house all the time and have recommended them to other sufferers on many occasions."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely and simply a kidney remedy. They act directly on the kidneys, strengthening them and putting them in condition to do their full work of eliminating the impurities out of the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills have been in use in Canada for nearly half a century—They demonstrate their worth in the most serious forms of kidney disease, such as rheumatism, backache, bladder and urinal troubles.

NO MORE NEED FOR BOATHOOK

Students Pass Away Time in Shows

Boston, Mass., April 11—Yachtsmen who have been stood on a sloping fore-deck and stabbed with a boathook at the home buoy will find their labors lightened by an automatic mooring, one of the new devices at Boston Boat Show, which ran for six days at the end of last month.

All the gentleman sailor need do now, with the automatic mooring, is sail him off the landing, is slip a loop of rope over a tall spindle when sailing past. When she sheers off, up up the loop is locked in position by a spring hook. A full sized model of the gadget was shown in a tank at the exhibit hall.

A lower trend in prices was noted at this year's show. More than 2,000 people attended the first day, to view a fleet of water craft ranging everything from a six-foot flat bottomed rowboat priced at $14 to a forty-foot mahogany cruiser capable of making a $17,000 dent in the exchequer.

Another clever contrivance is a marine speedometer. Instead of having to compute the speed of one's power craft from the number of revolutions made by the engine, the marine speedometer scoops up a small stream of water beside the keel, which in turn exerts pressure on a "water meter that registers the actual number of miles per hour the boat is travelling. Useful for racing and deck controls. It also gives the day's distance run, and is accurate for speeds as slow as two miles an hour.

A long engine builder is exhibiting a husky marine engine that will operate on fuel oil, kerosene, or any diesel fuel equally well, which ever is available.

Because native growers refused to co-operate, the extensive tea-restriction program in Java has been abandoned.

CALLS BLUENOSE A FREAK VESSEL

Halifax, N.S., April 11—"If you ask me, the Bluenose is a freak vessel. They'll never build another like her." Those were the chilling qualities of the famous fishermen-racer summed up by Captain Ben Pine, who was at the wheel of the Gertrude L. Thebaud during part of the series in which the Thebaud defeated the Bluenose, winning the series by a last fall. He is now in Halifax superintending repairs to the Iquanis.

"And Captain Angus Walters is the man who can sail her." Here the voice raised itself in the tones trained on the quarter deck and he glared around as if he dared anyone to contradict this eulogy of the skipper from whom he had more than once tasted defeat.

Hurriedly enough the talk turned to the last racing series which was between the Bluenose and the Gertrude L. Thebaud. "Captain Walters made a mistake, but it was not near as big a one as I have made—and he can't be held to blame for that." Of this Captain Pine certainly should know, and as he stolidly said it: "There's also luck attached to racing than enough."

Here is what he had to say about the races. "They brought the ben crew to Gloucester I ever saw. We had a storm and not to various locations and you can't beat that for real fishing schooner crew."

Here a broad grin passed over his weather-tanned face. "And I could remember times when it would have been a running fight.

"What does age mean to a vessel like Bluenose? She gets better and better like a rare old wine."

Here he stopped to compare her with the whaleboats that used to race in during the good old days. "We used to grip them by the sides and shake to limber them up, and by jolly, they used to slide through the water after." This, of course, was in answer to some claims that the Bluenose was strained and had weakened herself when she was stranded on the Newfoundland Coast last year.

"Why the Columbia went ashore and knocked her keel out. Another skipper put her ashore again on the opposite tack and near straightened it out again."

"My vessel used nearly always have her keel slipped, and always used to go too near the rocks in Lunenburg Harbor."

Of course Captain Pine is glad that the Thebaud won, and that the Captain Walters has raised his voice to impress, "we sure would have built a new vessel this year, if the race was longer."

Captain Pine believes that the In-

The Heart is the Human Engine

The motor car which stalls by the roadside or the aeroplane which drops into the sea is no more helpless than the human body when the heart plays out.

The heart is the human engine. If supplied with suitable nourishment and not overstrained by unwise eating and living, the heart is a wonderful worker and needs no ordinary energogics.

When the heart weakens the action of the heart weakens. Restore the feeble nerves by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and immediately you strengthen the action of the heart.

This is the most certain way to overcome heart weakness, and the time to begin treatment is to-day—now. You can no better afford to delay than can the pilot in a fog-bound steamer. When you receive the danger signal from the heart it is time to apply the restorative—Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

UTOPIA CLUB WILL ASSIST IN BOYS' WELFARE

To help defray the expenses connected with the Boys Camp at Lake Moira sponsored by the Y.M.C.A., the Utopia Club will run an At Home in Johnstone's Academy on Monday night. This social organization has been prominent in philanthropic work since their inception some years ago and no doubt the Boys Camp will be materially helped after the social evening. There will be fun aplenty at the dance when over 40 prizes will be distributed for various stunts. Practically every merchant in the city has contributed to the worthy cause, while the members of parliament for both the lower and upper house have contributed gold for door prizes. The prizes have been assembled and will be shown next week in Scantlebury's window.

There will be two orchestras dispensing the popular hits of the day each orchestra playing half the dance. Stewart and his Royal Orchestra will entertain during the first half and Charley Doyer and his Bon Tons the second half. Every dance will be a prize dance of some kind while the feature of the evening will be the prize waltz and fox trot. The Mystery Man will be present to give funny songs and sayings, while preparations have been made to serve dainty refreshments. The largest portion of the receipts will be turned over to Joe Shortt of the Y.M.C.A. and used to advance the work of the boys. Many a boy unable to have a holiday in the glorious summer will through the efforts of the Utopia Club be able to enjoy this pleasure. The cause is a worthy one and merits support. A programme has been issued for the night's entertainment and is available from any member of the committees.

CHART INDICATES WINTER MISNAMED

SAINT JOHN, N.B., April 11.—Old-timers who thrill audiences of small boys with their descriptions of "terrific" snowfalls in Saint John half a century ago, are quite snowblind when it comes to actual facts. The Saint John Observatory Chart supplies those facts, and thereby hangs a different tale.

Official records issued by the Government Meteorological Observatory Douglas Avenue, compiled from statistics of the last fifty years, proves that snowfall is dropping . In wives each year, and that this winter is just about the same as it used to be. The largest number of inches of snow collected 1881-1882 when 147 inches were gauged, but 1925-26 saw only one less inch. This year seems to be in a valley of the mount's-average trend.

Despite the fact we know March is the first day of spring, the observatory notes that the year experienced 2 inches of snow in April; in the same month of 1929, 2.35 inches; in fact, away back in April, 1882, all of 24 inches.

STOMACH SORE AS A BOIL

TANLAC brought relief

Indigestion bothered him all the time, after every meal, gas almost choked him and between the constant nagging pain and the pressure of gas, he became so weak and nervous that he could neither work nor sleep.

Then Mr. Noah Pare, 230 Albert St., Windsor, Ont., heard of TANLAC. He tried it—and, as he writes, "it helped me third bottle, I was well. Now I eat and sleep fine, have not had a pain, and have never had a day's sickness since taking Tanlac."

This is only one of thousands and thousands of cases of stubborn indigestion, Gas and Pain after eating and other distressing Stomach Troubles that TANLAC has promptly relieved. This wonderful tonic does not only corrects digestion ills, but also builds up new health and strength.

More than 55 million bottles of TANLAC have been used; and over 100,000 endorsements have been received.

RAIL OFFICIAL DIED SUDDENLY

William J. Moffatt of Canadian National System Passes

Toronto, April 11—One of the most popular and widely known of C. N. officials, Wm. J. Moffat, Assistant General passenger agent of the Canadian National System, with headquarters in Toronto, passed away here last night following an attack of heart trouble.

Mr. Moffat was at his desk on Wednesday when he complained of indisposition. He entered St. Michael's hospital yesterday morning but his death supervened upon an especially acute attack of the heart malady which had made itself known two years ago.

The late railway official will be mourned by an especially large circle of friends, as his courtesy and amiable disposition had made him known to countless travellers in the 36 years of his railway career. A bachelor, the late Mr. Moffat is survived by his aged mother and his funeral will be held from the family residence, 50 Scarborough St. West.

The late Mr. Moffatt entered the service of the Grand Trunk Railway now a part of Canadian National Railways, in the passenger department. Subsequently he served in the transportation department and in 1908 was appointed Chief Clerk in the passenger Traffic Department. He was successively made Travelling Passenger Agent, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, City Passenger Agent, General Agent and District Passenger Agent. In 1928 he received a further promotion to the position of Assistant General Passenger Agent, which position he occupied at his death.

He was a prominent Mason and a member of the Toronto Transportation Lodge.

In Shrine circles he played a leading role and was one of the outstanding members of Rameses Temple. When the great continental wide convention was held in Toronto last June the late Mr. Moffatt was chairman of the Transportation Committee and Temple City, consumated by the National System to house approximately 10,000 visiting Shriners and their families, was largely laid out under his direction. During the convention week the late Mr. Moffatt was affectionately known as "The Mayor" and as such he made hundreds of intimate friends among the visitors, who will be severely felt in Masonic fraternal circles.

CORBYVILLE

Corbyville, April 10—The Sabbath W.M.S. met on April 5th at the home of Mrs. Fred Robinson. Mrs. J. Bills took charge of the meeting in the absence of our president, Mrs. Hanna. The meeting opened with hymn 333, "Into a tent where a gypsy boy lay," prayer by Mrs. Ja. Bills. The Scripture reading from 1ce 61st Psalm was then read by Mrs. L. McLaren. The secretary then read her report and the treasurer read the treasurer's report. The roll call was then answered by a verse from the Bible containing the word "mother." Business was then discussed.

The meeting was then taken, by the group leader, Miss Julia Rollin. Hymn 324, "The Morning Light is Breaking" was sung. A reading was read by Mrs. J. Cole from the Study Book.

A well rendered solo was then sung by Mrs. P. McLaren, "Jewels for Jewels," Mrs. G. Dudley gave a reading, "I think I'd Rather go to Church."

Mrs. Robinson and Bernice then gave an instrumental duet.

Mrs. Ja. Bills gave a reading, "The Christian Stewardship Plan."

Meeting closed by singing hymn "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me," and all repeating the Lord's Prayer.

Aviation activities in Mexico are increasing.

CHRISTIANITY NOT SUPREME SO FAR

Winnipeg, Man., April 11—(By the Canadian Press)—For every dollar given to further the cause of Christianity in this country, over 30 dollars was spent in cosmetics. Such was the observation, made here recently, by Dr. E. H. Oliver, moderator of the United Church of Canada. Dr. Oliver declared this as proof that, after nineteen centuries, Christianity was not supreme in the lives of Canadians.

The current year, Dr. Oliver pointed out, was one of stressful times. But it also was a year of wistfulness. The church was having difficulty in attending with conditions which permitted luxuries of life a preference over the church.

PLACE MOVIES AHEAD OF ART

New York, April 11.—The average Columbia College student so far as public recreation hours are concerned might as well be in some cross-roads hamlet attending his classes instead of in New York city with its many educational and cultural advantages, a survey of student interest, conducted by "The Columbia Spectator" student daily, disclosed yesterday.

Replies of 500 students to a questionnaire showed that the majority carefully prepared program of combining lectures during the week and the student to New York, Columbia finds visiting museums and libraries, and, wee even more diversified in the matter of pus literary and dramatic organizations.

All but five of the 306 confessed to passing several hours each week in one of the neighborhood motion picture theatres, although just than one-half were attended the programs of the Institute of Arts and Sciences only 15 had ever viewed productions of the Columbia experimental dramatic organizations, and seven teen had heard of the latter organizations. In contrast, 306 out of the 306 had attended the big Broadway motion picture theatres.

More than 100 of the students never had been inside the New York Public Library or the Metropolitan Museum of Art, although visits to the museum are required in courses in the fine arts. About one-half never had visited the American Museum of Natural History. About one-fifth of the students said that they had attended one performance at the Metropolitan Opera Company, and about the same number occasional attendance at symphonic concerts. Only 25 students ever had heard of the Morgan library.
